Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County, at No. 32, May Sessions, 1916, one Ada Bayard, a colored woman, twenty-four years old, was indicted for murder. She was found guilty of manslaughter and recommended to the mercy of the court.

The details of the crime are numerous. The following are the principal circumstances.

Several days before the crime was committed, the petitioner discovered that her nine year old daughter had been violated and the child accused the mother's uncle, a man thirty-five years old, intemperate in habits, working only occasionally and who lived in the same rooming house as the petitioner and her daughter. The mother slept at the house at week-ends only, her services as a domestic requiring her absence most of the week. The rape occurred while the mother was working and as a result thereof, the child became afflicted with a transmissible disease. The uncle denied the child's accusation but the evidence leaves no doubt as to his guilt.

On the day of the petitioner's crime, she went to a certain house to recover a trinket which she had loaned to a friend. Being informed that her friend was not at home, she went to her room and in looking for the trinket discovered a revolver. This she took, thinking with it she could frighten the uncle in acknowledging the truth of her daughter's accusation.

On her return home and after conversing downstairs with other occupants of the house, the petitioner went to the uncle's room, demanded to know why he had so mistreated her child, and threatened him with arrest. He replied with curses, and seizing a chair raised it above his head in a hostile manner. He was then standing between the woman and the only exit to the hall. The petitioner, frightened and, as stated by her, scarcely conscious of her action, drew the revolver and fired. Her indictment for murder and the verdict for manslaughter resulted.

She was sentenced to not less than four, nor more than six years in the Eastern Penitentiary, but upon the petition of the jurors who rendered the verdict, the court reconsidered its action and imposed a new sentence of not less than three nor more than five years, in the same institution, and to date from June 13, 1916. A material part of the jury's petition was as follows:

"If it is within the wisdom of your Honor to reconsider the sentence imposed upon the said Ada Bayard and to extend to her further consideration in the form of a reduction of the sentence imposed on her, the undersigned trial jury feel that the ends of justice have been fully met.

We might add, your Honor, that it was the unanimous opinion of the trial jury that the act should not be justified by an acquittal, but it was our opinion also that the act was prompted by most unusual circumstances and that a more mild form of punishment was in the minds of the jury at the time of our verdict."

The petitioner has now been confined approximately two years and eight months, the minimum term of her sentence being not less than four years. At the present time, she is in an exceedingly nervous condition and has recently at times lost the full control of her lower limbs. She had, prior to the commission of her crime, never been arrested and has always borne a good reputation. Several letters have been received from persons for whom she formerly worked expressing readiness to re-employ her if she is liberated.

The foregoing facts and circumstances lead us to conclude that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency.

We therefore "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Ada Bayard.

Board of Pardons.

Harrisburg, Pa., February 19, 1919.

His Excellency, Wm. C. Sproul, Governor.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, to Nos. 393 and 394, April Sessions, 1912, a certain Barney McElhatton plead guilty to indictments charging him with the crime of Burglary, and was by the said court, on April 22, 1912, sentenced in the aggregate to pay the costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of not less than fourteen years nor more than twenty years.

There was no testimony taken at the trial of the petitioner, but the admitted facts showed that all the offenses were committed in the neighborhood in which the defendant lived and covered a very short period of time. The total value of the goods alleged to have been taken in the twelve Bills of Indictment amounts to less than $250.00, and all the testimony showed that it was the work of a sneak thief and not an armed burglar, and in no case was there any intimidation or threats of danger or violence to the occupants of the premises.

We quote below a letter from Honorable Howard A. Davis, the judge who tried the case:

"To the Honorable the Members of the Board of Pardons of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Sirs: As the trial judge sitting in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia, April 22, 1912, I sentenced the above named defendant on twelve bills of indictment, charge burglary, to which the defendant pleaded guilty. It appears from the testimony that the defendant had entered a number of dwelling houses and stolen certain articles. It further appears that he had a criminal record prior to his indictment upon these bills. He was sentenced to a term of not less than fourteen years nor more than twenty years in the Eastern Penitentiary. He had served nearly seven years of that term.

"I am informed by the Probation Officer of the City of Philadelphia that the defendant has been a model prisoner and that his imprisonment has been of vast benefit to him morally and intellectually; that he is now 31 years of age; his mother is a widow; and would be dependent to a great extent upon the support of this son.

"From the information I have received I feel that the ends of justice have been served by the term of the imprisonment which defendant has undergone in the penitentiary. If no further facts appear to the contrary and the application for pardon meets with the approval of your Honorable Board, I have no objections to a favorable disposition of the petition."

The prisoner has already served nearly seven years of his sentence. The value of the goods stolen did not exceed $250.00. Considering the value of the goods taken, we believe he has been sufficiently punished.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Barney McElhatton.

His Excellency, Wm. C. Sproul, Governor.

Sir: At No. 31, October Sessions, 1913, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Mercer County, one Tony Monteleone was convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced on May 2, 1913, to pay a fine of one dollar ($1.00) and the costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a term of not more than fifteen nor less than ten years.

The petitioner, when convicted, was fifteen years old. He was single and was employed as a coal miner. His mental development was not normal, two physicians testifying that he had at the age of fifteen

"The intellect of a boy ten or twelve years".

The petitioner's father and a Lewis Toderella were enemies, and some months before the commission of the crime Toderella had beaten the petitioner. On the evening of the crime the petitioner's father requested his son to walk with him. They came to what seems to have been a boarding house, in the kitchen of which several men, including Toderella, were eating and drinking. The father left the petitioner, looked into the room, and, seeing Toderella, returned, gave the petitioner a revolver and said: "He is there." The boy then walked to the door and shot and killed Toderella.

The petitioner had never, prior to the commission of the crime for which he is now serving sentence, been charged with, or convicted of, any offense. He has now been confined for over five years and has served practically half of his sentence.

The Judge who imposed the sentence, and the District Attorney who prosecuted the case, have both filed letters with the Board recommending pardon, and have assigned as their reasons the mental capacity of the boy at the time the offense was committed and the time that the petitioner has been confined.

The circumstances of the case and the punishment already undergone impel the Board to the opinion that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Tony Monteleone.

Sir: At No. 73, September Sessions, 1913, of the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lycoming County, one Michael Wall was convicted of felonious rape, and sentenced on September 12, 1913, to pay a fine of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) and the costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of not more than fifteen or less than fourteen years.

The petitioner, when convicted, was sixteen years old. He was single and had been employed in a machine shop. He was born in Italy, and three years after his arrival in this country, at the age of six years was taken to live with a friend of his family. His mother has been dead for many years; his father lives outside the State.

The prosecutrix was nine or ten years old, large for her age, and was the illegitimate daughter of a woman whose reputation for chastity was bad. The child was subjected to no parental control, and at the present time is at Glen Mills Reformatory School.

On the day of the crime the prosecutrix, accompanied by a girl friend, followed the petitioner from his home in which they, with other friends of his, had been eating watermelon, across the street toward a river. They continued until a clump of bushes on the river bank was reached, when the petitioner entered with the prosecutrix and committed the crime for which he was sentenced. The other girl remained on the outside.

These actions were observed by a fisherman, who reached the clump as the petitioner and the girl came out. The prosecutrix denied that anything had been done to her, but later, after considerable effort on the part of her mother and another woman, admitted the facts as above stated.

The petitioner, prior to this time, bore a good reputation. He has now served five and one-half years in prison and has conducted himself to the satisfaction of the prison authorities. A sister and her husband residing in Chicago, Illinois, have offered a proper home to the petitioner if he is released.

The circumstances of the case and the punishment already undergone impel the Board to the opinion that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Michael Wall.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County, at No. 12, June Sessions, 1917, Charles Russogulo, Joseph Russogulo and Jack Guastaferra were found guilty of murder of the first degree and sentenced to death.

The petitioners are aged twenty-two, thirty and eighteen years respectively. Charles and Joseph Russogulo are brothers, Jack Guastaferra is a half-brother; all are unnaturalized Italians.

On May 2, 1917, shortly after twelve o'clock at noon, one John Cappa and a friend, John Lapaglia, left the house of the former's sister-in-law, located at No. 1019 Reedsdale Street, in the North side of Pittsburgh, where they had eaten their accustomed dinner, and proceeded up the street. They passed the home of the petitioners, located four or five doors beyond at No. 1011, where at the time Charles Russogulo and Jack Guastaferra were sitting on the front steps. Joseph Russogulo and his step-father were in the house on the second floor waiting for their dinner.

The sister-in-law testified at the trial that after Cappa and Lapaglia left her house, she went to an upstairs window to see if her child was coming from school, that she saw Cappa and Lapaglia pass No. 1011, and that Charley and Jack opened fire on them, Joseph shortly after joining in; that she observed a shot-gun being fired from a second floor window of this house and saw Cappa fall to the ground.

The petitioners did not deny killing Cappa, but asserted it was done in self defense. They stated that Cappa and Lapaglia had repeatedly demanded money of them and had made blackhand threats if payment was refused; that they had been so terrified that for over a week they had taken turns during the night at watching from the front and rear windows lest their house be blown up. They declared that when Cappa and Lapaglia walked by them on the day of the shooting, the former turned, approached, and again demanded money. Charles refused, saying they were too poor to pay, whereupon Cappa drew a revolver from his hip pocket and commenced firing. Charles and Jack returned the fire, and Joseph, being informed by a ten year old step-brother who had just come from school that Cappa was killing Charley, rushed down stairs with a shot-gun and began shooting. The autopsy disclosed that the wounds on the body of Cappa were caused by a buck shot.

After the shooting was over, Cappa being killed and Lapaglia having escaped with minor wounds, the sister-in-law came down to where Cappa was then lying and gave him some attention.

The petitioners locked themselves in their house until the police arrived about fifteen minutes later, when they submitted to arrest, surrendered their weapons and gave their details of the occurrence. No revolver was found by the police on the body of Cappa. They did, however, discover upon his body a magazine containing loaded cartridges. Under a pillow on the bed of Lapaglia they discovered a loaded revolver. Lapaglia was subsequently arrested through the physician to whom he went for treatment and was produced at the trial as a witness.

The petitioners, prior to this crime, bore a good reputation, none of them had ever been theretofore arrested. Other than the petitioners, the only witnesses of the facts occurring immediately prior to the shooting were Lapaglia and the sister-in-law of the man killed. Lapaglia had a bad reputation. The letter of John J. McLaughlin, first sergeant of Troop A, State Police, written to one of counsel for the petitioners, has been filed with the Board. It therein appears that Lapaglia was under strong suspicion as a participant in two murders in different counties of this State. The communication concludes as follows:

"The record of the Department of State Police at Greensburg, Pa., show that John Lapaglia has been for some time a character, who, as means of a livelihood, preyed upon persons of his own nationality, for the purpose of extorting moneys, etc., for himself and his associates. This is done generally by sending threatening letters through the mail, by verbal threats and by intimidation. He is known in police circles as a 'gunman', and habitually carries on his person a thirty-two caliber automatic pistol. He is a well known character in the State of Pennsylvania, and for many years has been identified with associates of the order of Mafia, commonly so called black-handers."

Many letters have been received by the police supporting the application of the petitioners. Certain police officers, whose beat included the district in which the shooting happened, have written of the good character and conduct of the petitioners, and of the bad character of Cappa and Lapaglia. Certain other police officers and detectives who arrested the petitioners and investigated the circumstances of the affray have expressed decided opinions that the petitioners did shoot in self defense. Concerning these letters, the present director of the Board of Public Safety of the City of Pittsburgh has written the Board as follows:

"Certain officers of the Police Bureau, which is in this Department, have submitted statements to your Board in the above mentioned case, from which statements it appears that they are of the opinion that the infliction of the death penalty will result in a miscarriage of justice, and that there should be a commutation of life imprisonment in all the circumstances. These officers are still members of the Police Bureau, under me, and I believe they are second to none in the Department in their integrity and devotion to duty, and any statements they make are entitled to careful consideration."

The present Mayor of that city and the Mayor in office at the time the crime was committed, have both addressed communications to the Board supporting the request of the petitioners. Many citizens not in public life have done likewise. The District Attorney at the time the prosecution took place personally appeared before the Board and appealed for a favorable consideration of the petitions.

We are not inclined to believe the petitioners guiltless, but all the facts and circumstances of the case impel us to the conclusion that justice requires mitigation of the penalty.

We therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that the sentence of death imposed on Charles Russogulo, Joseph Russogulo and Jack Guastaferrero be now commuted to imprisonment for life.

In recommending commutation in this case, we are not actuated by any belief that the verdict of the jury should have been manslaughter rather than murder of the first degree. We are clearly of the opinion that Justice requires nothing less than imprisonment for the whole of the petitioners' lives.

Sir: In York County, at Nos. 26 and 27, January Sessions, 1916, of the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail

Delivery, and at Nos. 16, 28, 29, 30 and 31, January Sessions, 1916, of the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace, one Ernest Carr was sentenced on seven indictments to cumulative terms aggregating not less than six and not more than thirty years in the Eastern Penitentiary.

The petitioner was eighteen years old when he committed the offences. He was unmarried but did not live at his father's home on account of unfriendly relations existing between himself and his stepmother. By trade he is a carpenter and cabinet maker, but was unemployed at the time of his arrest.

The crimes for which sentences were imposed were burglary, felonious entry, larceny and receiving stolen goods. They were committed in a baker shop, an eating house, a pool room, a school house, railroad buildings and in a produce house. All of these places were located in the Borough of Hanover. All of the offences occurred between the months of September and November of the year 1915.

The property taken consisted of cakes, tobacco, school supplies, two watches and some money, the aggregate value of which was less than $100.00.

Two other boys, joined with the petitioner in one of the indictments, were convicted of felonious entry. The record is somewhat confusing, but it is asserted that both of these boys were sent to the Industrial Reform School at Huntingdon, Pennsylvania, and that both were discharged in July and August of 1917.

The Judge who imposed the sentence has recommended favorable consideration of the petition. The District Attorney who had charge of the prosecution states:

"Carr is a young man and I feel that he has suffered sufficient punishment for the offences which he committed. None of the offenses, in my judgment, was extremely serious except in a technical, sense, and I at the time felt that his conduct was more that of a mischievous boy than a criminal."

The petitioner has now been confined over three years, and considering the character of the acts which constituted his offences and the value of the property taken, we believe he has been sufficiently punished.

We therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Ernest Carr.

Sir: At No. 268 June Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County, Matilda Jones, twenty-eight years of age and married, was found guilty of the crime of larceny and was sentenced on June 16, 1919, to pay the costs of prosecution and to undergo an imprisonment in the Philadelphia County prison for a period of six months.

The article stolen was a chair, which had been taken from the porch of the prosecutrix. The defendant was not represented by counsel and no witnesses were called in her behalf at the trial. No notes of testimony were taken on the trial of the case, but it seems evidence was submitted to the effect that the defendant was seen in the vicinity of the porch of the prosecutrix at the time the chair was taken, although no witness was produced who could testify that he or she saw the defendant steal the chair. The applicant denied her guilt at the time of the trial, and has since continuously maintained her innocence.

A short time before her conviction she had been indicted for the crime of forgery, but the jury disagreed, and when her conviction for larceny occurred she was out on bail pending a new trial. At the time of her conviction sentiment seems to have been running high against her.

The prosecutrix in the prosecution for larceny was a friend of the prosecutrix in the forgery proceeding. Prior to these charges the applicant bore a good reputation.

Since the applicant's incarceration it has developed that she is enceinte, and the prison physician has written the Board that her obstetric time is due. The District Attorney has sent a communication that he interposes no objection to a pardon.

Under the foregoing circumstances, we believe clemency should be exercised, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Matilda Jones.

Respectfully submitted,

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace, in and for Centre County, at No. 14 February Sessions, 1919, one L. H. Swanson, seventeen years of age, overgrown physically but comparatively undeveloped mentally, and a student at the Bellefonte Academy, pleaded guilty to the larceny of several petty articles which he had stolen from a store in Bellefonte. On February 3, 1919, he was sentenced to pay one ($1.00) dollar fine, the costs of prosecution and to undergo imprisonment in the Huntingdon Reformatory, at Huntingdon, Pennsylvania, under the rules and regulations of said institution.

The applicant comes of good parentage. He has never heretofore been charged with the commission of any crime. Complete restitution has been made of the property stolen. The applicant has been confined in the Reformatory somewhat over six months.

The District Attorney who prosecuted the case and the owner of the store from which the property was stolen have written asking that a pardon be recommended. The Judge who imposed the sentence has sent the following communication:

"In re-application of L. H. Swanson for a pardon, I trust same will receive favorable consideration at your hands. I feel this unfortunate young man has been sufficiently punished, and will in the future conduct himself as a good citizen.

Respectfully yours,

(Signed)

HENRY C. QUIGLEY,
Trial Judge."

We are impelled by the foregoing to believe that this is a proper case for Executive clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said L. H. Swanson.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery, in and for Northampton County, at No. 57, April Term, 1918, Frank Skrilecz was found guilty of aggravated assault and battery, and on June 13, 1918, was sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred dollars, the costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the Northampton County prison for a period of three years.

The circumstances of the crime were the following:

At the time of the commission of the offense, the defendant was employed at the Bethlehem Steel Company and a campaign for subscription to one of the liberty loans was being conducted. A great many of unnaturalized foreigners worked at the mills and some slight misunderstanding arose among them with reference to subscribing to the loan. The applicant had not bought any bonds although there was no evidence of any feeling on his part against the government of the United States. On the day the crime was committed, the petitioner was called into the office of his foreman and after some general conversation was asked why he did not subscribe to the loan, to which he replied he had no funds. Other workmen were in and about the office and it seems made threatening remarks concerning the petitioner's failure to subscribe. Becoming alarmed for his safety, the petitioner undertook to leave the office but was intercepted by two men. A rope in the hands of some unidentified individual was drawn around Skrilecz causing him to become greatly excited. He made an attempt to loosen himself from the rope, and failing in this he drew a small knife and slashed it about him in an effort to free himself from the rope and to protect himself from the bodily harm which he believed imminent. It was while thus slashing about with his knife that he cut several persons and committed the crime for which he was sentenced. The applicant is married; has two children, and has heretofore borne a good reputation.

We are impelled to the conclusion that he labored under the excitement of a fear of bodily injury, and that the crime was committed in what he believed to be an act of self-defense. From this aspect of the case, we believe sufficient punishment has been imposed, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Frank Skrilecz.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions in and for the County of Elk, at No. 6, April Term, 1913, T. W. Jackson pleaded guilty to an indictment charging rape, and was, on March 4, 1913, sentenced to pay a fine of Five Dollars, the costs of prosecution and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary by separate and solitary confinement at hard labor for a minimum term of twelve years and a maximum term of fifteen years. The circumstances of the crime were the following:

The defendant, at the time of his arrest, was an optometrist with his office in the Borough of Ridgway, Elk County. For some time prior to the arrest of the applicant, the janitor of the Ridgway National Bank Block, in which the applicant had an office, observed a girl making frequent visits to the upper floor. Rumors reached him that the girl's character was bad and he decided to watch her. On the day of the commission of the crime, he followed the girl to the office of the applicant and gaining admission by his pass key, he apprehended the applicant in the commission of the crime.

The applicant is now sixty years of age, unmarried, but the sole support of an invalid mother. Prior to the commission of this offense, he was law abiding and of good reputation. He has now been in the penitentiary for over six years. The law judge, who tried the case is dead, but both of the associate judges at the time the applicant was sentenced have written the Board in his behalf. The District Attorney, who prosecuted the case, has written as follows:

"I was District Attorney of Elk County at the time that the above case was taken up in our court and made a further investigation of the case at the time. From the investigation made at the time by me, I was fully satisfied that the above named defendant, while guilty, was the goat for several others, whose names we were unable to get, and the above named defendant refused to give out any information relative to the others. I believe that the ends of justice have already been satisfied in this case, as the sentence imposed appealed to me as being unduly severe under all of the circumstances of the case, and I would respectfully recommend that the appeal on behalf of this man for a pardon be given favorable consideration by your honorable Board.

Respectfully submitted.

FRED W. McFARLIN,
District Attorney for Elk County."

Letters urging a pardon have also been received from all the county officers of Elk County, as well as from justices of the peace and representative citizens.

We are of the opinion that the applicant has been sufficiently punished for his crime. For this reason, as well as on account of the other matters above appearing, we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said T. W. Jackson.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Cambria County, at No. 7, September Sessions, 1911, Mike Regar was convicted of statutory rape with felonious intent and was sentenced on September 16, 1911 to pay a fine of one hundred dollars, costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a term of not more than fifteen years, and not less than three years and nine months.

The applicant, prior to his conviction, bore a good reputation and had never been before accused of any crime; during the period of his incarceration, he conducted himself in such a manner as to cause no complaint on the part of the prison authorities; he has been out on parole more than four years, and has deported himself during such time in a commendable manner. The petitioner is thirty-seven years of age, married and has two children. Upon his parole, he moved to another county in order to escape the stigma of his conviction and imprisonment, and has brought his wife and children to this country who now live with, and are supported by him. He desires to become a citizen of the United States and to re-establish himself equally with his fellow citizens, friends, neighbors and associates. His wife and children are ignorant of his arrest and conviction, and he lives in fear that his family will learn of his reporting monthly to the parole officer, and that domestic estrangement will ensue.

We are impelled, in view of the foregoing, to the belief that a pardon will restore this man to self-respect; that it will conduce to good citizenship; that it will be possibly the means of preventing domestic sorrow and family disgrace, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Mike Regar.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Chester County, at No., August Sessions, 1911, William Swine alias John Swine aged forty years and colored was convicted of burglary. When captured he was prowling about one of the upper floors of a private residence, although he had not actually taken any property. On October 28, 1911 he was sentenced to imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a term not less than two and one-half years and not more than ten years. Under this sentence his maximum term would expire August 28, 1921.

On August 28, 1916, after an incarceration of five years he was paroled. While at liberty he was married, but sometime afterward, during 1918, he was arrested on complaint of his wife, upon a charge of assault and battery upon her, to which he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the Chester County Prison. Upon the expiration of his term of imprisonment in the County Jail, which occurred on June 25, 1919, he was returned to the Penitentiary, because by committing the assault aforesaid he had violated the terms of his parole. At the time he was convicted of the assault and battery about three years remained of his maximum sentence to the Penitentiary, and he must, therefore, remain in this institution until sometime in the year 1922, a year longer than the maximum term of his sentence, unless a pardon be granted.

The assault which the applicant committed upon his wife was simple, not aggravated. He has served his full sentence for that offense. We are of the opinion that he has been sufficiently punished for his crime of burglary, and should not be compelled to undergo further imprisonment for that crime by reason of the assault.

The District Attorney's Office has written the Board, inter alia, as follows:

"It would seem to us that if his behavior has been good, he has suffered enough inasmuch as his full term has been nearly completed.

Very respectfully,

HORACE L. SPROAT."

By reason of the foregoing, we recommend, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," that a pardon be now granted to the said William Swine alias John Swine.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions in and for the county of Clearfield, at No. 39½, May Sessions, 1919, Frank Ingro, an Italian boy, pleaded guilty to charges of fornication and statutory rape. The following sentence was imposed:

"Now, May 24th, 1919, the defendant having plead guilty to an indictment charging statutory rape and the evidence showing that he has been a young man of previous good character, industrious and well behaved and that he is now but 20 years of age, the Court feels that this is a case in which notwithstanding the high grade of the charge and also certain circumstances which tend to show that the girl in question was being handed along, that this is a case in which leniency may be exercised properly, and the defendant, in view of his good reputation, is found to be proper subject for commitment to the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory, situated at Huntingdon, Pennsylvania, and is therefore committed to the care and custody of the Board of Managers of the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory aforesaid, there to remain until legally discharged."

By the Court,

SINGLETON BELL, P. J.

The District Attorney who prosecuted the case has written that his office does not feel like opposing the application; that the girl had certainly been guilty of illicit intercourse before that which she had had with Ingro, although the defendant, at the time of the trial, could not establish that she was a woman of bad repute. The trial Judge has written the Board as follows:

"In Commonwealth vs. Frank Ingro, I felt that the ends of justice required a sentence to the reformatory, but in his case there were strong features of alleviation. So that I would think the ends of justice would be conserved by a pardon not earlier than September 15th, 1919. If the rules permitted it, I would have preferred to see a parole, but since that is not possible, I think there is such a marked distinction between his case and the other that a pardon would be proper."

In view of the foregoing, we believe this is a proper case for Executive clemency, and we therefore "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Frank Ingro.

Sir: At Nos. 3, 4, 5 and 7, February Term, 1919, of the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Somerset, John Lenhart, William Lenhart, George F. Wilderman and James Hutzell pleaded guilty to the crimes of burglary, breaking and entering cars, larceny and receiving stolen goods. On January 13, 1919, each was sentenced to pay a fine of one ($1.00) dollar, the costs of prosecution and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for not less than two and one-half years nor more than three years.

The following were the circumstances of the crime:

For sometime prior to the applicants' arrests railroad cars had been broken open and things taken therefrom. In December, 1918, railroad and other police swore out twenty warrants, searched the homes of many persons and made numerous arrests. They took from the homes of the petitioners property alleged to have been taken from the Railroad Company. Eleven suspects were discharged, and the other nine were subsequently removed to the county jail. Here they were detained for several weeks, and it seems that inducements were offered to sign confessions. At this time all refused to plead guilty, but subsequently four of the younger ones, all minors, entered pleas of guilty, three of them being sentenced to the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory, at Huntingdon, and the fourth, George F. Wilderman, being sentenced, along with the other three petitioners, to the Penitentiary. After the minors had so pleaded the remaining five agreed to stand sentence.

The Court revoked the sentence of one of the boys committed to the Reformatory. The Superintendent of the Reformatory, upon petition, discharged the other two. The remaining members of the group, two adults, against whom the evidence was clear, were so sentenced that they were on the same day discharged from custody.

It thus appears that of the entire group of nine the petitioners are the only ones who have been incarcerated for any length of time, although it does not appear that the magnitude of their crime was as great as the last two mentioned. They have now been confined for almost a year.

The present District Attorney writes, inter alia, as follows:

"Owing to the inequality of the sentences, the allegations of these men and their friends that they were induced to plead guilty (which allegation is not disproved), as well as to the public sentiment in their favor, in their community, it does not seem fair that they should longer suffer punishment when the other defendants, standing equal with them, are at liberty."

Under the foregoing circumstances, we believe these are proper cases for Executive clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that pardons be now granted to the said John Lenhart, William Lenhart, George F. Wilderman and James Hutzell.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of the peace, in and for Lackawanna County, at No. 655, October Sessions, 1918, Arthur H. Greaves pleaded guilty to an indictment charging embezzlement, and was sentenced to pay a fine of one dollar, the costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for a period of six months. He has served his full term of this sentence, but desires a pardon that he may be paroled on a prior offense. The facts of the petitioner's case follow:

In 1909, he hired a horse and wagon from a livery man, and, while it was in his possession, he became intoxicated and sold the property to an innocent party. He pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny by bailee and was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and three months, and a maximum term of ten years. While on parole, he was employed by Armour & Company, part of his duties being to make deliveries of produce and collections therefor. On a certain day after finishing work, he returned home with certain of the company's moneys in his possession, intending to make an accounting on the following day. That evening he met some of his former associates and, although from May 1909 up to this time he had abstained from intoxicants, he was persuaded to indulge and as a result he became drunk and spent part of the money of his employer. The following day, he found himself in Buffalo, New York, some four hundred and sixty miles from his residence. Realizing what he had done, he returned at once to his home town, acknowledged his deed and surrendered himself to a police officer. His employer, upon being informed, entered a charge of embezzlement. He pleaded guilty and the sentence hereinbefore referred to was imposed.

As before stated, he has served the entire term imposed for the charge of embezzlement, but unless he is pardoned he will now have to remain in the penitentiary for seven years and nine months although the maximum term of his sentence would have regularly expired on June 23 of the present year. In view of the fact that, if pardoned, the petitioner will still be under the control of the prison authorities, we believe this is a proper case for Executive clemency.

The Board was inclined to doubt its authority to recommend a pardon for a crime, the full term of sentence for which had been fully served, but an examination of the authorities has convinced us of our power to recommend, and of your authority to pardon.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Arthur H. Greaves.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Juniata County, at No. 1 April Sessions, 1886, William Josiah McMeen was found guilty of murdering his wife, and on July 27, 1886, was sentenced to be executed.

He appealed to the Supreme Court, which refused to reverse the judgment of the lower Court. He petitioned the Supreme Court for a rehearing, based upon after discovered evidence, but, as the term of Court had expired, the Court found itself without jurisdiction, and denied the rehearing. He then applied for a pardon, and, on June 30, 1887, pursuant to a recommendation of the Board, his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. In 1909 and in 1914 he applied to the Board for a pardon recommendation. Both applications were refused. He now renews his application for Executive clemency.

The argument on the present application was heard by three members of the Board, the Lieutenant Governor declining to sit, as he had been of counsel in one of the former applications. As the case of the applicant is unique in the criminal annals of this Commonwealth, we believe a full recital of the surrounding circumstances is necessary, notwithstanding the fact that they are many and somewhat involved.

In 1886 the applicant was twenty years of age, an American citizen, and a farmer in Juniata County, and lived with his wife and his eleven months old daughter at Port Royal. It seems that harmony prevailed in his home, the only evidence to the contrary being a statement of his mother-in-law that shortly prior to the death of his wife he had had "a little tantrum"; that he "got a little cross," and said he was going to leave home. When his mother-in-law reproved him and said: "Do you want to break my heart"? she says he replied that she would have more than that to break her heart before all was over.

This remark was construed by the Commonwealth as a threat by the defendant of the commission of the crime with which he was later charged, and this, with certain other evidence hereinafter referred to, constituted the only evidence to connect the applicant with his wife's death.

On the part of the defendant it was testified that he was a devoted husband and father; that he had never abused his wife, and that she had often spoken of her husband's kindness to her.

McMeen's house had been infested with rats, and his wife had frequently asked him to buy strychnine to kill them. He had always evaded a compliance with this request because he feared that a member of his family or someone in his house might take it inwardly under a misbelief that it was something not poisonous, with fatal consequences.

About 9:50 A. M. on Monday, March 8, 1886, the petitioner went to a drug store at Patterson, a short distance from Port Royal. His wife had renewed her request for strychnine to kill the rats, and before he left home had addressed an envelope to herself so that he might mail the strychnine home, and had seen that he took the envelope with him. At his request the druggist sold him ten grains of strychnine, placing it in an envelope, sealing the same, and pasting on the outside thereof a label marked "Poison—Be Careful." The druggist then sealed this envelope in a piece of paper which had printed on it an advertisement for Foutz's Horse and Cattle Powder. He handed the package to the applicant, who took some envelopes out of his pocket and placed the package either in an envelope or his pocket-book, at the same time inquiring about train time.

It was within a few minutes of the time for the mail train, which left from Patterson for Port Royal at 10 A. M., and an envelope addressed to Mrs. W. J. McMeen, Port Royal, Pa., and containing the strychnine purchased was mailed in the 10 o'clock mail that morning, and arrived at Port Royal shortly afterwards. It was delivered by the clerk in the Postoffice at Port Royal between three and four o'clock that afternoon to a stepson of the applicant, and by him presumably delivered to Mrs. McMeen.

The testimony showed that at the time the envelope was addressed, Mrs. McMeen had stated there was another woman of the same surname living at Port Royal, and that, at it would look suspicious if she received poison through the mail, the envelope had better be addressed to "Mrs. W. J. McMeen."

On the morning after the strychnine was received, between eight and nine o'clock, Mrs. McMeen was heard to cry out: "God help me!" Several neighbors and a physician hurriedly gathered at the rear of her home, and found her on the back porch in convulsions. She was carried into the house, muttered unintelligible sounds, and died about ten minutes later without making any statement.

In the pantry on a table were found a quart glass jar, a small dark crock, and a plate on which were two table-spoons and one teaspoon and a small knife. One of the spoons contained some jelly, with traces of white powder around the edge, and on the table was found some white powder in a paper which bore the advertisement of Foutz's Horse and Cattle Powder. An analysis of the jelly and the powder proved that the latter was strychnine, and the testimony of the physician and of those who made an autopsy left no doubt but that Mrs. McMeen died from the effects of strychnine.

Several witnesses testified that they had seen an envelope in the house that morning addressed to Mrs. W. J. McMeen, and bearing the postmark of Patterson, Pa. Two witnesses testified that a search of the house made by them did not reveal the inside envelope which was supposed to have contained the poison. Another witness, a sister of the applicant, testified that in putting the house in order after Mrs. McMeen's death she had picked up an envelope labeled "Poison—Be Careful," corresponding exactly to the description of the envelope in which the original powder was sealed by the druggist, and that she had burned it along with some rubbish.

On Monday afternoon, the day the poison was mailed and the day before his wife died, the applicant went to a sale in or near Patterson, accompanied by a friend, and towards evening took the train to Harrisburg, where he made an application for work on the railroad and where he spent the night.

On the day his wife took the poison he was at a boarding-house in Harrisburg from about eight or nine o'clock in the morning until between twelve and one o'clock noon. About noon, or shortly thereafter, he met a friend on the street who had come down that morning from Port Royal. He asked McMeen whether he had heard the news from Port Royal, and when McMeen replied that he had not, the friend, Willi by name, told him that his wife was dead. The applicant at first did not credit the news and thought Willi was joking, but when the circumstances were detailed, he realized it might be true, and in company with Willi hastened toward the railroad tower or round-house, thinking perhaps there was a telegram for him in regard to it. On the way, he passed the home of a sister-in-law of his wife. She was standing in the doorway, and he crossed the street to see whether she had received any news. He found that she had received a telegram and that his wife was, in fact, dead.

He made arrangements to get home as quickly as possible, and succeeded after having a train known as the "Fast Line" flagged for him. He left Harrisburg about 3:40 P. M., and arrived at Port Royal shortly after five o'clock P. M. Upon his arrival at Port Royal he went immediately to his home, where a number of the family and friends were gathered. The testimony differed as to his conduct. Some thought he took the matter lightly, while others said he was so affected that he could not speak, and still another said that tears rolled down his cheeks, and he sobbed: "What will become of my poor baby."

He was questioned by relatives as to why the poison was in the house, when and where it was bought, etc. He made inquiry as to the circumstances of his wife's death, and was convinced, as was the fact, that she had died from strychnine poisoning, and that she had taken some of the strychnine which he had sent her.

For reasons not explained in the record, the applicant at different times afterwards told conflicting stories as to when, where and under what circumstances the poison had been procured, and as to where and when he heard the news of his wife's death. He has stated in explanation that not having the slightest thought he would be accused of murder, he feared that he might be subjected to a prosecution by the Federal authorities for sending a poison through the mail, and had made his conflicting statements in order to avoid such a Federal action.

Just at the time McMeen was about to be tried for murder, information was obtained that while in Harrisburg on the morning of the day his wife died he had talked about her death to a person other than Willi, and her sister-in-law. Acting on this information, officers came to Harrisburg and brought back with them and placed on the witness stand a man, Dwight Mead by name, who testified that he had met the applicant in Harrisburg about nine o'clock on the morning of the applicant's wife's death, and that he had told Mead of her death.

This was extremely important testimony because it went to show that McMeen knew of the death before he had met either Willi or the sister-in-law. To this testimony the trial Judge, in his charge and in his opinion overruling the applicant's motion for a new trial, gave the greatest weight. Without doubt this testimony was responsible for his conviction.

The officer who had originally subpoenaed Mead for the trial met him in Harrisburg shortly after the Supreme Court had rendered its decision, and told him of this fact, and stated that the conviction rested largely upon his (Mead's) testimony as to the hour when he had talked to the applicant about the death. Mead thereupon replied that he was sorry, because he had thought it over afterwards, and from other facts which he had recalled, he knew that he had been mistaken as to the hour, and that he had not met the defendant until about noon or after noon. Mead made an exparte affidavit to this effect, and upon the strength of it a petition was presented to the Supreme Court for a rehearing. That Court, as before stated, dismissed the petition and denied the rehearing because it had no authority under the law to consider it, the term of Court having passed.

This occurred before the passage of the Act of April 23, 1903, P. L. 245, which authorizes the Supreme Court to grant a rule for a new trial—

"Whenever by petition, supported by after discovered evidence, it shall be made to appear to the Supreme Court that there is ground for substantial doubt as to the guilt of any prisoner convicted of murder of the first degree, * * * notwithstanding the expiration of term in which such prisoner was convicted and sentenced."

Undoubtedly had this Act been on the statute books in 1887 a new trial would have been secured.

The defendant was not a witness in his own behalf, and therefore did not explain his inconsistent statements as to the time when he sent the poison nor rebut the testimony of Mead. This was doubtless because it was only in that year that a defendant in a first degree murder trial was allowed to testify in his own behalf. The Act was passed in the same year as the defendant's trial. There was doubt in the legal profession as to just what the Act meant, and a subsequent enactment was necessary to clearly define the right of such a defendant to appear as his own witness. Had the law been clearly understood at the time of the trial we believe the defendant would have been put on the stand and given an opportunity to rebut Mead's testimony, and to explain his own inconsistent statements above referred to.

The applicant has always denied his guilt; the evidence which undoubtedly led to his conviction was sworn to be untrue by the witness who gave it; the misleading statements of the defendant have been explained. These facts, together with the fact that the poison was mixed with jelly before it was taken by the wife impel us to the conclusion that there arises a reasonable doubt as to the applicant's guilt. The members composing the Pardon Board when this case was originally before it recommended commutation to life imprisonment because, as stated in its recommendation—

"The case is by no means free from doubt, even with the testimony of Mead as originally given in it and with that testimony practically out, the doubt of the prisoner's guilt is so greatly increased that the Board believes that the penalty of death should not be inflicted."

Under the foregoing circumstances of this case the members of the Board who heard this present application are impelled to the belief that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency. We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said William Josiah McMeen.

Sir: At No. 45 December Sessions, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Bucks County, a certain Joseph Dackowski alias Joseph Daschowski pleaded guilty to an indictment charging arson. He was sentenced on March 23, 1917, to pay a fine of one hundred dollars, costs of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of eight years and a maximum term of twelve years.

At the time the applicant was convicted he was twenty-one years of age and a student at the "Congregation of the Holy Ghost and of the Immaculate Heart of Mary." He comes of good parentage and is well educated, and at the time of his arrest was pursuing fourth year Latin, Greek, advanced history, fourth year French, fourth year German, chemistry, algebra and geometry.

The building which he set on fire was a dormitory of the above named Institution in which he and certain other students were housed. The fire was started by the applicant either in order to postpone the examinations, being fearful that he could not pass the same, or as a result of a boyish prank. A short time after the fire he was interviewed by a constable to whom he admitted his guilt.

We are of the opinion that the applicant does not belong to a law breaking class; that the crime for which he was sentenced was not committed with a vicious criminal intent, but for the reasons above stated. We are impelled to the conclusion that owing to the parentage and education, and all the circumstances surrounding the commission of this crime, if he is pardoned he will be restored to his manhood, his sense of self-responsibility, and can start life anew with a mature mind, sound body, and every probability of becoming a useful citizen. The case was not prosecuted by the authorities of the Institution. No one opposes Executive clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph Dackowski alias Joseph Daschowski.

Sir: At No. 4 April Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery for the County of York Joshua Bell was convicted of assault and battery with intent to ravish and on April 22, 1918 was sentenced to a minimum term of one year and a maximum term of three years in the Eastern Penitentiary, as well as the payment of a fine of fifty dollars ($50.00), and the costs of prosecution.

Early in the evening of a certain day in March, 1918, Catherine Ross, a thirteen year old colored girl went to a store in a thickly populated portion of the City of York, Pennsylvania. She met the defendant, a single man of thirty-three years of age, also colored, and by occupation a waiter, and they engaged in conversation in the shadow of a porch at the corner of a street opposite the store to which she was going, and near an arc light at the intersection of said street. Many people were passing this corner going in both directions. A white male friend of the girl rode by on a bicycle and alleged that he saw the applicant and the girl standing in the shadow of the porch and that she was crying and making a noise. He informed her brother and when they came to the corner she was on her way home and the applicant had disappeared. She testified that the applicant had laid his hands upon her and solicited her. This was the only act of violence proven. The applicant was indicted for assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery with intent to ravish. He pleaded not guilty to all of the counts. The jury found him not guilty of the first and second counts, but found him guilty of the third count, and recommended him to the mercy of the Court.

The applicant has now been out on parole for six months and has been conducting himself in an exemplary manner. He desires a pardon that he may be restored to his former good standing among his friends and acquaintances. We are not convinced but that the story of the girl was not a fabrication to save herself before her white admirer. Neither the trial Judge nor the District Attorney who tried the case oppose clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joshua Bell.

Sir: At No. 5 September Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Bradford County, William H. Davenport was found guilty of the crime of larceny, and on August 19, 1918, was sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred dollars, the cost of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of two years and six months.

The articles taken consisted of certain wearing apparel valued at one hundred and twenty-five dollars. These articles were taken from a closet in a house in which the applicant boarded, and while he was badly intoxicated. He took the clothing to a secondhand dealer, sold the whole lot, worth, as above stated, about one hundred and twenty-five dollars, for the sum of three dollars, returned to his room at the lodging-house, and immediately fell into a drunken stupor.

The loss was soon detected, the goods located, and Davenport was aroused from his sleep in a dazed condition, and taken to the Town Hall, where, on the following day, he admitted his guilt. Three days later he was brought into open Court, waived the finding of the Grand Jury, pleaded guilty, and received his sentence.

The District Attorney is in favor of clemency. The Judge who imposed the sentence writes as follows:

"It now appears that Mr. Davenport, a man forty-seven years of age, has previously borne a good reputation, and this is the first offense with which he has been charged, so far as can be learned. That he has made reparation to the satisfaction of the prosecutor and his sister, who urge his pardon. That he is a good mechanic, and would be a useful citizen if he behaves:

"In view of these facts, if true, as I am assured they are, and which were unknown to me when Davenport was sentenced, I join in the prayer of his counsel, and request that a pardon be granted."

We are of the opinion that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and under all the foregoing circumstances of this case we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said William H. Davenport.

Sir: At No. 74 December Sessions, 1914, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Allegheny County, Joseph Christman entered a plea of nole contendere to a charge of felonious assault, and was sentenced on December 19, 1914, to pay the costs of prosecution, a fine of ten dollars, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a maximum term of seven years and a minimum term of five years.

At the time of the commission of the crime the applicant was twenty-two years of age, was single, and lived with his mother and three sisters. He had become an addict of heroin, using it frequently and in considerable quantities.

On the morning of the commission of the crime he had taken an overdose of the drug, and, while in the department store of Joseph A. Horn, in the City of Pittsburgh, in company with several of his friends, he took a tie from a counter. He was seized by an officer, and in resisting arrest committed the crime for which he was sentenced.

There is no doubt of his addiction to the drug nor that he was under its influence at the time he resisted arrest. He has now been in prison about five years and will be eligible for parole in about two months. We are convinced that the applicant has been separated from the drug for a sufficient length of time to enable him to successfully resist any temptation to resume its use, and we are of the opinion that a pardon will restore the applicant to his self-respect, and will conduce to a higher degree of self responsibility and good citizenship.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph Christman.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Philadelphia County, at Nos. 253 to 260 both inclusive, of July Sessions, 1915, William S. Grier pleaded guilty to eight indictments charging forgery, larceny by clerk, servant and employe, embezzlement by employe of corporations. All the indictments grew out of the same offense which consisted of taking about Five Thousand Dollars of his employers cash, he being employed as a bookkeeper and accountant for the Corby-Cobb Company in the City of Philadelphia. The money was used in the up-keep and support of his family, and it clearly appears that the defendant and his family lived beyond his income.

On November 9, 1915, he was sentenced to pay costs of prosecution and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for an aggregate minimum term of five years, and an aggregate maximum term of seven years.

The application for clemency is made by Grier's wife. She and the defendant's mother, sixty-five years of age, have been endeavoring to support the defendant miner's son, and to keep the home together until he returns. Both women have engaged in hard manual labor since the defendant's incarceration. The defendant's mother has now become an invalid and this, with the increased cost in living, will compel the wife to break up the home unless the defendant is released.

The prisoner has always been a faithful husband, father and son, and this is the only offense he has ever committed. He has been promised a responsible position if pardoned.

Counsel for the applicant has instanced some thirty cases of like character. The longest term imposed was four years and this appeared in only one of the cases. The defendant has now been confined for a time approximately equal to the longest term imposed in the cases instanced.

Under all the circumstances of this case, we are impelled to the belief that Executive clemency should be accorded and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said William S. Grier.

Sir: At No. 40, March Sessions, 1919, of the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lycoming County, Lawrence Bailey, along with four other defendants, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging burglary and larceny. On April 19, 1919, he and one of the other defendants, being between the ages of fifteen and twenty-five years, were sentenced to the Industrial Reformatory at Huntingdon, and the other three defendants were sentenced to the County Jail for a term of nine months.

The young men, on the day of the commission of the crime were all intoxicated, and they broke into a laundry establishment and took One Dollar and Fifteen Cents. The three defendants sentenced to the County Jail were paroled after an incarceration of three weeks. The applicant can not be paroled by the Court from the Reformatory by reason of an opinion of the Attorney General's Department rendered on April 21, 1919, to the effect that the Courts have no power to parole persons committed to that Institution.

The applicant has never heretofore been charged with any crime. The prisoner has conducted himself in an exemplary manner, and has now made the honor roll in the Reformatory. The District Attorney has written, inter alia, as follows:

"Taking into consideration all the facts and circumstances surrounding Lawrence Bailey, the Commonwealth will be perfectly satisfied to have him pardoned at this time."

The applicant has now been incarcerated more than five months since the release of the co-defendants committed to the County Jail.

By reason of the foregoing, we are impelled to the conclusion that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency.

We therefore "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Lawrence Bailey.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of the County of Philadelphia at No. 306 September Sessions, 1917, Ralph Oliva was found guilty on an indictment charging robbery, and was on May 3, 1918, sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of four years and six months, and a maximum term of five years.

Oliva was what is commonly termed a card sharp. He engaged the prosecutor and another person in a card game and won eighty ($80.00) dollars. The person from whom the money was won became angry and made threats of arrest. The applicant returned the money, but an information of robbery was made.

An agent of the United States Government happened to see this game. There was no grabbing of money nor any personal violence. The applicant was placed under heavy bail, and at the solicitation of friends, skipped it. He was apprehended as a draft dodger, but subsequently was released upon presentation of his registration card. He went to Ohio where he got into another card game, and where he again returned his winnings after protest from the loser, and where another information was lodged. The District Attorney in Ohio is, however, willing to nolle pros that case in the event that pardon be granted on a recommendation of this Board. The severity of the sentence, doubtlessly, was due to the action of the applicant subsequent to his arrest in Pennsylvania.

The Assistant District Attorney appeared before the Board and expresses himself as doubting whether technically the applicant was guilty of robbery, and that the most serious offense which his acts constituted was conspiracy to defraud. He has now been confined for a period of time more than equal to the maximum sentence which the law annexes to the crime last mentioned. We are in accord with the statement of the representative of the District Attorney's office, and therefore, believe this to be a proper case for Executive clemency.

We therefore "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Ralph Oliva.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Erie County at No. 1, November Sessions, 1915, Bert C. Ish was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter, and on November 13, 1915, sentenced to pay a fine of One hundred dollars, costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a period of not less than four years and six months, and not more than nine years. From the many letters which have been filed with the Board, written by responsible business men of his community, and who knew him for many years, Ish seems to have been a man law-abiding; not quarrelsome, well thought of by his friends, and kind to his family. His one fault was that he was fond of intoxicating liquors. He was not, however, an habitual drunkard.

The applicant was a borough night policeman and on the day of the commission of the crime, a couple of hours prior thereto, he was in the office of the District Attorney, and the District Attorney writes was "so far under the influence of liquor, and his conversation so meaningless that it was plainly conceivable to the ordinary laymen that Ish was not responsible at that time for his acts or deeds." Ish was told to go home. He remained about town, however, and after a while went into the bar room of a hotel, walked up to a man whom he never knew and made some remark. The man arose from his table and they grappled each other. Ish drew his revolver and fired two shots at the floor in front of his adversary. He then thrust his arm over the man's shoulder and fired again with the weapon pointed toward the floor. One of the shots however entered the man's back, took a downward course, and came out of his back on the opposite side of the spinal column. He was operated on in the hospital but failed to recover and died somewhat over five months later.

The District Attorney recommends a pardon. The applicant was the sole support of his wife, child and aged mother. The Judge who tried the case stated orally, to the applicant's counsel, that he believed Ish was telling the truth when he said that he did not know what he was doing when he killed the deceased. The applicant has now been confined for more than four years.

Under all the circumstances of this case, we believe it is a proper one for the exercise of Executive clemency, and we, therefore "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Bert C. Ish.

Sir: At No. 4, October Sessions, 1915, in the Court of Quarter Sessions in and for the County of Elk, Lee Ling, a Chinaman, thirty-nine years of age, was placed on trial on an indictment charging rape. He did not have the advice of counsel until the day of the trial, when an attorney was assigned. He pleaded "Not Guilty", but after the production of certain testimony changed his plea to one of "Guilty". On October 7, 1915, he was sentenced to pay a fine of Five ($5.00) dollars, costs of prosecution and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of twelve (12) years and a maximum term of fifteen (15) years.

Ling was a laundryman, and the brother of the girl on whom he committed the rape worked for him as a delivery boy. The girl came so frequently to his laundry establishment that a police officer's suspicions were aroused. The officer on one occasion stopped the girl, questioned her and a confession followed.

The papers before us leave no doubt but that the girl was of bad character, and that had counsel for the applicant had time to prepare a defense the girl's reputation could have been clearly established before the Court. The Trial Judge has written that he has investigated the facts of this case, and that he favors a pardon. The District Attorney who tried the case writes as follows:

"There can be no question about the guilt of the defendant, but the sentence seemed to me to be unduly severe as the girl and her family do not bear a good reputation, and while the girl was quite young she seems to have made a practice of hanging out around this place, and it was quite evident that her mother had knowledge of the same."

The County Commissioners of Elk County have also written urging a pardon. The applicant has never heretofore been accused of any crime.

Under the foregoing facts, we are impelled to the conclusion that the applicant, who has now been confined for over four years, has been sufficiently punished, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Lee Ling.

Illness prevented the Attorney General from sitting on the Board at the session at which this application was heard.

Sir: At No. 169 May Term, 1917, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Westmoreland County, Henry Christenson was found guilty on an indictment, charging pandering. On May 19, 1917, he was sentenced to the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of seven years and a maximum term of nine years.

He lived with his wife and his two step children, and one of the daughters was the prosecutrix. When the case came on for hearing before the magistrate, this officer, as appears from his affidavit filed with the Board, was reluctant to bind him over for court. He was of the opinion that the information was actuated by a bad feeling on the part of the girl and her mother, growing out of a family quarrel. The applicant insisted that he be held for court in order that he might be cleared by a verdict of the charge. Contrary to his expectation the jury found against him. He was convicted largely on the testimony of the prosecutrix, who claimed that on a certain night several men came to her step father's home and that one of them had intercourse with her, for which she received the sum of five dollars; that later the same night the defendant asked her for and received from her a like sum. Christenson's wife testified that to her knowledge he had never brought men to the house for the purpose of having sexual intercourse with the girl and that her daughter, the prosecutrix, was a "bad actor," and that she, the mother, had difficulty in keeping her "straight." The defendant has never heretofore been convicted of any crime. He has now been confined two years and a half.

Considering the character of the witnesses on which the conviction was had, as well as the statements sworn to by the Magistrate, we are convinced that the applicant should be freed, and we therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Henry Christenson.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Philadelphia County, at No. 392, November Sessions, 1918, Joseph F. Batteer pleaded guilty to the charge of fraudulently making a written instrument. On March 14, 1919, he was sentenced to an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum period of eighteen months and a maximum period of two years.

The applicant committed the crime by gaining possession of a cancelled check of his employer, tracing the signature on another check and making it payable to himself, and for a sum certain presented it to a bank, where it was honored. His first forgery was for a sum of approximately $80. This forgery meeting with such success, he procured employment with another person, where he again forged a check in the sum of approximately $1,000.

At the time the applicant committed these crimes he was about eighteen years of age and had never theretofore committed any crime. The applicant is not of the vicious criminal type. He comes of a family of excellent reputation. He did not spend the money which he had procured through these forgeries in fast living, and the evidence shows that at first his surprise was so great when the check was cashed that he did not know what to do with the money and for some time concealed it in his room. Complete restitution has been made and the persons against whose account the checks were drawn were reluctant to prosecute. Many letters have been presented from business men of the highest standing, urging a pardon. The Assistant District Attorney has stated orally to the Board that he believes Executive clemency should be extended.

By reason of the foregoing circumstances, and the fact that the applicant has now been incarcerated over nine months, we are of the opinion that he has been sufficiently punished and that a pardon would restore him to a sense of self respect and conduce to his future good citizenship, we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph F. Sir: At No. 12 January Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace for York County, Walter Witmer was found guilty in an indictment charging larceny and receiving stolen goods. On March 31, 1919, he was sentenced to the Industrial Reformatory at Huntingdon.

The applicant, a boy of about seventeen years of age was stationed by three adult men at a certain corner with instructions to give warning if anyone approached. The three men then proceeded to rob a wagon, property of a peddler, of several suits of clothing and some underwear. One of the suits was given to the applicant and it was found at his parents' home. He admitted his participation in the crime but disclaimed any criminal intent. The other defendants, who denied their guilt, were convicted on the testimony of the applicant. The Trial Judge has written as follows:

"I have no doubt of the young man's guilt, but I have recently been importuned by his brother, George Witmer, who was absent at the time of the trial serving as a soldier in France, and who has returned with honors, and promises me that he will take charge of the boy and see that he is properly guarded and instructed in the future."

"If he does this and the boy can be placed amidst proper surroundings I think it will be to his benefit."

The boy is not of the vicious criminal class, and he has never heretofore been arrested for any crime.

We are of the opinion that this is a proper case for Executive clemency, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be granted to the said Walter Witmer.

Sir: At No. 50 April Sessions of 1918 in the Court of Quarter Sessions for the County of York, Leon M. Martin pleaded guilty to an indictment charging assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery with intent to ravish.

On May 13, 1918, he was sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of five years. The circumstances surrounding the case are the following: On a certain night he followed a girl, she says against her will, but he asserted at her invitation. She turned into an alley-way which led to a mill. Police officers heard a scream and hurrying to the mill apprehended the applicant. The clothes of both the applicant and of the woman were disarranged. The girl claimed that he was attempting to ravish her with force and against her consent.

The applicant is a slender and somewhat frail person. He had always heretofore borne a good reputation, and during his incarceration has been a model prisoner. He has continually denied his guilt asserting that he had gone with the woman at her request, and that he pleaded guilty thinking he would be left off with a very slight sentence. The District Attorney, who neither recommends nor opposes a pardon has written, inter alia, as follows:

"In justice to the defendant, I would state that this girl, Rosetta Snell, has turned out to be a bad reputation. She was afterward married, her husband procured a divorce against her on the grounds of adultery, and she on a charge of adultery was sent a few months ago from this County to the Darling School for Girls."

From the foregoing facts we are of the opinion that this was a case of fornication and that there existed in the contemplated act no element of violence nor any lack of consent. The applicant has now been confined for more than a year and seven months and we are impelled by our opinion to the conclusion that he has been sufficiently punished.

We, therefore, after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Leon M. Martin.

Sir: At No. 24 February Sessions 1919 in the Court of Oyer and Terminer for Washington County, Harold J. Shaner pleaded guilty to an indictment charging robbery. On February 3, 1919, he was committed to the Huntingdon Reformatory.

The applicant, together with two companions, as a boyish prank, held up a moving picture operator and a pianist and took a ring and some money. The companion, who actually took the property returned it the same evening.

An application for Executive clemency was made on May 21, 1919. This application was refused, notwithstanding the recommendation of the Trial Judge, for the reason that the application was opposed by the District Attorney. At the hearing on the present application the District Attorney personally appeared before the Board and stated that this, in his belief, was a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency. The Trial Judge, the District Attorney, the prosecutor, the witnesses, the burgess, the Chief of Police and the former employers of the applicant have all written the Board in favor of the application.

Impelled by the foregoing circumstances, we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Harold J. Shaner.

Board of Pardons.

Harrisburg, Pa., December 18, 1919.

Sir: At No. 62-1 October Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Montgomery County, Petro Roberto pleaded guilty to an indictment charging murder in the second degree. He was sentenced October 13, 1917, to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of ten years and a maximum term of twelve years. The defendant at first entered a plea of "not guilty," but at the trial changed this plea to one of "guilty." After sentence was imposed he claimed and continues to claim that he misunderstood the interpreter, and that he did not know that by such a change of plea he was admitting that he had committed the crime. He has continually asserted that he is innocent.

As this recommendation is impelled exclusively by a communication addressed to the Board by the Trial Judge, which appears hereinafter, we are of opinion that a statement of all the circumstances of the crime would serve no good purpose.

The letter of the Trial Judge is as follows:

"The Board of Pardons,

Harrisburg, Pa.
Gentlemen: On July 4, 1917, one John Vitalies was feloniously shot in a street of West Ambler, this County, and afterwards died. I deem it unnecessary to elaborate the details of the occurrence, as they were afterwards disclosed in Court, but three other Italians were charged with responsibility for his death. One of their number, Petro Roberto, was first placed on trial before me at the October Term, 1917, and early in its progress, withdrew his plea of "not guilty" and entered one of "guilty of murder in the second degree." He was, on October 13, 1917, sentenced to the Penitentiary for a minimum term of ten years. Another, Signoretta, was also later placed on trial before me and after a prolonged contest, in which Roberto was brought up from the Penitentiary to testify as a witness and, because of its character, the circumstances of the case were gone into with much greater detail than was done in October 1917, he, Signoretta, was acquitted. The third, and as it now clearly appears under all the testimony, the one chiefly responsible for the killing, escaped immediately after the occurrence and has never been apprehended.

As the result of the greater knowledge of the case that I acquired at the Signoretti trial and other credible information that has come to me since Roberto was sentenced, I promptly decided that the punishment that had been imposed upon him might be regarded as too severe and, therefore, resolved that I should wait until he had served that which, in light of my present understanding would be a sufficient length of time, and then recommend his pardon. As he is in the Penitentiary I cannot parole him.

I have, therefore, suggested to Henry I. Fox, Esquire, of this bar, who represented Roberto, that he make an application to your board for a pardon of his client some time this fall and he has now informed me that the application will be heard at Harrisburg next Wednesday.

I voluntarily, in a sense of duty, and for the reason assigned, write to say that it is made at the instance of myself, the sentencing Judge, and that, had the circumstances of the killing been gone into with as much detail at the time of receiving Roberto's plea of guilty as was subsequently done at Signoretta's trial, a lighter sentence would likely then have been imposed upon Mr. Fox's client. I am now convinced that, while he was undoubtedly legally responsible to some extent for the homicide, it was really Trino, the fugitive, who fired the shot in an assault upon the decedent that had been started by himself, but which was afterwards joined in by Roberto, who was then to some extent under the influence of liquor, and others.

I feel that justice to the prisoner requires that I should write thus frankly and I, therefore, do so without hesitation and commend his application to your favorable consideration.

Yours respectfully,

JOHN FABER MILLER, J."

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Petro Roberto.

Sir: At No. 4 May Sessions, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer for the County of Washington, Edward Bourguignom alias Edward Bourgunignom pleaded guilty to an indictment charging murder in the second degree. On May 29, 1916, he was sentenced to the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of seven years and a maximum term of twenty years.

The applicant, a Frenchman fifty-three years of age, at the time of the commission of the crime worked in a coal mine in Washington County. On the night of the commission of the crime he was, with certain other friends, in the room of the deceased, a fellow boarder, in their boarding house. Earlier in the evening some whiskey had been mixed with coffee and drunk, and later after the meeting of the French and Belgian Club of which the applicant was secretary, some more whiskey had been consumed at the boarding house. In the course of general conversation the deceased made reflections on the character of the boarding mistress which angered the applicant who went to his room, packed his trunk with the intention of leaving the house. He brought it downstairs and placed it in the room of the deceased. Shortly after midnight all the visitors left the house, the applicant and the deceased returning to the room. After a while the boarding mistress was called down to make some coffee and set out some food, and on her arrival the applicant informed her of the charges made by the deceased. She denied them and words passed between the two men who were at the time seated at the kitchen table. The applicant called the deceased a liar and a hypocrite, whereupon the deceased jumped up, seized a large skillet from the table and aimed a vicious blow at the applicant's head. The altercation continued and the applicant drew his revolver and fired with fatal results. Bourguignom remained in the house the rest of the night; the next morning left the place and after some time arrived in New York. He worked there for about a month and a half when he learned the boarding mistress was confined in the Washington County jail, then he started back with the intention of giving himself up. The authorities learned of his presence in Pennsylvania and arrested him on the train while enroute. He made no pretense of innocence, and as before stated, pleaded guilty.

The District Attorney who tried the case personally appeared before the Board and stated he was not opposed to a pardon. The applicant is not of the vicious class and has never heretofore been accused of any crime. He has now been confined for over three years and six months.

Under all the circumstances we believe the applicant has been sufficiently punished and that Executive clemency should be extended.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted the said Edward Bourguignom, alias Edward Bourgunignom.

Sir: At No. 34, December Term, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Lawrence County, Daniel Hawk alias Daniel Hough was sentenced to the Huntingdon Reformatory on an indictment charging forgery.

The applicant, a boy between fifteen and sixteen years of age, was given a check by a fellow employe, which he took to a restaurant and had cashed. He was there arrested, it having been ascertained that the check was forged. The man who gave the check to the applicant disappeared and his whereabouts has never since been ascertained. Upon being arraigned, the applicant stood mute refusing to tell the Judge who his people were and from whence he came. Under these circumstances the Court was compelled to impose sentence. The District Attorney who tried the case has written the Board recommending a pardon. The Judge who imposed the sentence has written as follows:

"About one year ago, I sentenced Daniel Hawk, then aged about fifteen or sixteen years, to the Huntingdon Reformatory. Within the past two or three months, information concerning this young man received by me has convinced me that possibly a mistake was made in sending him to Huntingdon Reformatory, and I therefore join with the petitioner in asking that your Honorable Body grant him a pardon, believing that this would inure to his benefit and advantage, he having been, in my opinion, sufficiently punished."

The applicant has now been confined for more than a year, and has conducted himself at the Reformatory in an exemplary manner. Impelled by the foregoing, we believe this is a proper case for Executive clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Daniel Hawk alias Daniel Hough.

Sir: At No. 449, January Sessions 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Philadelphia County, Fedeno Costellanea was convicted on an indictment charging burglary. On January 18, 1918, he was sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of three years and a maximum term of four years.

The applicant, an Italian, about a month after his arrival in this country, went from New York to Philadelphia with a companion. They engaged a room and a few mornings later the companion stole the applicant's money and disappeared. That evening the applicant, without funds, was forced to leave his lodging place, and, unacquainted in Philadelphia, wondered about the streets seeking the Italian section of the city. About two o'clock in the morning he inquired of a stranger standing on the corner for the location of the Italian quarter, whereupon he was given a card and the directions which he requested. He started for the foreign district, but becoming alarmed at the sight of two policemen, he began to run. He was overtaken, brought back to the corner mentioned where the man who had directed him, John Spanilli by name, was still standing and who was also then placed under arrest. Spanilli later confessed to his own implication in the robbery of a store near to which he was standing when apprehended. The applicant was indicted and convicted as an accomplice in this same robbery.

The only evidence which brought about the applicant's conviction was that he ran when he saw the policemen. No stolen goods were found on his person, and no proof of his actual participation in the robbery was had. Spanilli has made an affidavit in which he states that he never knew the applicant before the morning of the arrest; that he did in fact ask him to be directed to the foreign quarter; and, that he did not participate in the robbery. The District Attorney does not oppose a pardon and agrees with the Board that there exists a strong element of doubt as to the applicant's guilt. Since his incarceration the applicant's family have become in destitute circumstances; since his incarceration he has learned to read and write and has, at all times, been an exemplary prisoner. He has now been confined for almost two-thirds of his minimum sentence.

We are impelled by the foregoing to the belief that this is a proper case for Executive clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Fedeno Costellanea.

Sir: At No. 40, November Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions for Philadelphia County, Michael Dempsey was found guilty of assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery and aggravated assault and battery with intent to kill. On March 28, 1919, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a period of not less than two years nor more than three years.

The testimony taken at the trial disclosed that the applicant and another man engaged in a fist fight in the street and that during the scuffle the defendant drew a knife. The prosecutor seized the hand of the defendant in which he was holding the knife, and during the struggle the prosecutor was cut.

The District Attorney's office was at first opposed to a pardon, being under the impression that the applicant was considered a bully in his neighborhood. It has been shown to the District Attorney that this is not the fact and pursuant to this information the Board has received a communication inter alia as follows:

"If there is nothing standing in the way of such pardon save the statements I gave to the Board of his general reputation in the neighborhood, I am prepared to say that I feel that Mr. Perry's statements to the contrary are deserving of real consideration. I am prepared to go further and say that I will not recommend the refusal of this pardon after having talked with Mr. Perry, and having been considerably impressed with the sincerity of his statements and the value of his intimate knowledge of Dempsey. **

Very truly yours,

CHARLES EDWIN FOX,
Assistant District Attorney.

At the time of his arrest, the petitioner was employed at Hog Island as a mechanic. He is married and has five children, the oldest of which is aged ten years, and the youngest nine months. The wife is now an invalid, suffering with tuberculosis which has so far progressed that she cannot possibly live longer than about nine months. The petitioner is now in ill health caused by the worry over the condition of his wife and what her condition means to his children. His family is entirely dependent upon him for support. The petitioner has now been confined about eight months.

By reason of the foregoing circumstances, we believe this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Michael Dempsey.

Sir: At No. 285 August Sessions, 1915, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery for Philadelphia County, Benjamin C. Fendall pleaded guilty to an indictment charging murder in the second degree. On October 6, 1915, he was sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of eight years and a maximum term of nine years.

The petitioner and his wife were both addicted to the excessive use of intoxicants. About two weeks before the commission of the crime a young daughter of petitioner had died, to the great grief of the father. On the day of the funeral the petitioner's wife drank heavily and she was arrested for using vile language to a neighbor. The husband procured his wife's discharge and told her that they must both "cut out rum." She agreed, but insisted that they have one last quart of wine, which the petitioner bought and they both consumed. The next day she insisted on having porter. This her husband bought and asked her to drink no more. When he came home that night he found her drunk.

On the day of the crime the applicant took a razor out of a drawer and said he was going down-stairs to shave and get ready for work. Shortly after he became sick at the stomach and went to a nearby saloon to get some bitters. When he returned he was upbraided by his wife who demanded that he go out and get her a drink. He did so and upon returning with a container filled with porter he stumbled against the fence and spilled most of it. He took what was left to her whereupon she became angered and accused him of consuming it. By this time he was feeling so sick that he felt he was compelled to lie down. The wife objected and said he should not lie down until he had gotten another kettle of porter. The applicant then went down-stairs intending to lie on the sofa. The wife followed him and as he was about to lie down she threw a dish at him. He then went to the other side of the room and said he would lie there. His wife objected and said he should not lie down until he got her more porter. The husband declared that he was too sick to go out and carry any liquid, that he had spilled the last he had bought. Finally after more upbraiding from his wife he went to the saloon and walked around the streets thinking his wife would recover from her temper and would let him rest. When he returned his wife was sitting in the rocking chair and immediately demanded to know if he had brought her porter. He promised to go out and buy some if she would go up stairs and lie down and let him alone. She agreed and he went out and brought back a kettle of porter which she drank and immediately wanted more. He then refused saying that the bar tender had notified him that he should not return for more drink until he had become sober. The wife then began anew to scold him accusing him of infidelity and many other things which he claims were untrue. The petitioner at the trial testified as follows:

"When I could not bear it any longer I seen the razor lying on the sideboard where I had left it in the morning. I thought I will take this (the razor) and scare her with it and probably she will lie down for a while and give me a minute's peace. I took the razor up with no more intention of cutting the woman than I have, of cutting myself this very minute."

He proceeds to testify that he took the razor and that she jumped up and pushed him and then the next thing he knew he got up from the floor and saw his wife through the doorway standing in the yard with blood on her and he went toward her but before he reached her she fell; that the next day his daughter came to the hospital and told him his wife had died on her way to the hospital.

The testimony at the trial shows the petitioner outside of his one failing of excessive drinking was good to his wife and children. The petitioner has now been confined for over four years, and if released he desires to establish a home with his youngest boy, now sixteen years of age, and his widowed sister can live with them.

We are of the opinion that the crime was committed while the petitioner was in such a state of mental agitation and while he was so excessively intoxicated that he did not realize the consequences which might follow his seizing the razor in an effort to scare his wife; and that under this aspect of the case the time which he has now served constitutes a sufficient punishment.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Benjamin C. Fendall.

Sir: At No. 10 September Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer for Fayette County, Lewis Page a colored man, was found guilty of murder of the first degree. On December 31, 1918, the sentence of death was imposed.

At the time of the commission of the crime the applicant was a steward of the Elks' Club at Scottdale. He went to Uniontown to ascertain the whereabouts of a woman who was not his wife, but with whom he had been living and who had promised to join him in Scottdale. On arriving in Uniontown he inquired of a number of people as to the whereabouts of the woman, but being unable to locate her he concluded that she was not there. During the day the applicant and the deceased, who was his friend were together almost constantly. They had drunk at several bars and had eaten their noon meal together. The applicant at no time suspected his friend of paying attention to the woman he was in search of. When the applicant was about ready to return to Scottdale, he and the deceased went to the home of his fiancée. They conversed for some time when the woman left the room. A discussion subsequently arose between the two men regarding some money the deceased owed the applicant, and the testimony shows that the deceased, an irritable man, jumped to his feet and put his hand to his hip pocket, whereupon the applicant, believing he had a revolver, having seen one in his pocket that morning, drew his own weapon and fired, the bullet striking the deceased's nose. The two men grappled with each other and in the scuffle the applicant's revolver was again discharged with fatal results. The application for clemency is supported by almost every colored church in the community of the applicant's residence.

Under the foregoing circumstances we are of the opinion that there exists grave doubt as to the wilfulness and premeditation of this murder. We believe that justice compels a commutation of the sentence imposed to life imprisonment. In coming to this conclusion we are also of the opinion that the applicant should serve his full sentence as commuted.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that the sentence of death upon the said Lewis Page be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At No. 28 March Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer for Montgomery County, Louis M. Brown pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging larceny and receiving stolen goods. On June 15, 1918, he was sentenced to pay a fine of $250.00, the costs of prosecution and to undergo an imprisonment in the County jail for a period of two years. The circumstances of the case are briefly as follows:

A freight car containing a large quantity of Cinco cigars was broken into and most of the cigars taken. A short time after the discovery of the theft officers called at the cigar store of the prisoner in Philadelphia and asked if he had any Cinco cigars to sell. He replied in the negative. When they told him who they were and that the cigars had been stolen he took them upstairs and showed them a large supply of Cinco cigars which he said, however, were not for sale as he had disposed of them all and the only thing to be done was to arrange for their delivery. When asked from whom he purchased them he replied from a man by the name of Guss. He further stated that Guss had called at his place of business and quoted him prices on a lot of 20,000 Cinco cigars and stated that they were the property of jobbers outside of Philadelphia who were willing to sell them at a reduced price in view of the fact that ready cash was needed. He further stated that the cigars had been delivered in two small automobiles several days later. His story was not believed and information, indictment and conviction followed.

Brown identified two men as those who, accompanied by Guss, brought the cigars to his store. Informations were made against them but they were both discharged by the Magistrate. Sam Guss was indicted but his trial resulted in an acquittal.

The prisoner has never heretofore been accused of crime. He has now served more than seven months of the sentence imposed. His wife, mother and children are all in delicate health and are rapidly becoming unable to support themselves; the prisoner has conducted himself without giving the prison authorities any cause for complaint; and Counsel who tried the case for the Commonwealth has written that he interposes no objection to a pardon.

By reason of the foregoing we are impelled to believe that this is a proper case for Executive clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted the said Louis M. Brown.

Sir: At No. 61, September Sessions in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Dauphin County, Samuel S. Seibert, aged forty-seven, pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging rape, assault with intent to commit rape and incestuous adultery. He was found guilty and on September 29, 1916, was sentenced to pay a fine of $5.00, costs of prosecution and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of seven years and a maximum term of ten years. He was convicted on the evidence of his thirteen year old daughter who testified that on several occasions he had had carnal knowledge of her. The physician who made a physical examination of the girl testified that his examination would not justify him in testifying that she had ever had sexual intercourse.

The wife of the applicant was a woman of bad reputation and about a year before the applicant's sentence she had been convicted of frequenting a bawdy house. The daughter was of an incorrigible nature and had been frequently punished by her father.

The petitioner has always asserted his innocence and has maintained that his daughter had sworn falsely against him in order to retaliate for his chastisement of her; and also, that she was prompted by her mother, who on the next day after his conviction filed a libel in divorce, and immediately after attempted to induce the applicant to assign to her the rents from his property, and when this was refused promised to withdraw her divorce suit if he would agree to join in a conveyance of his real estate.

A year after the conviction the wife wrote to the applicant that she did not want a divorce and that she did not believe the testimony of her daughter was true, and that she would aid him in procuring a pardon. The petitioner continued in his refusal to assign the rents or to execute a deed, and subsequently the wife lifted her divorce.

The petitioner has now served a total of over three years and four months. He has given no cause of complaint to the prison authorities, but on the contrary has gained their confidence and esteem. He continues to assert his innocence. He is the father of four children, all of whom are now in one of the Harrisburg homes and supported at the expense of the County.

Under the foregoing circumstances we believe that this is a proper case for the exercise of clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Samuel S. Seibert.

Sir: At No. 33, October Term, 1914, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Lackawanna County, James Cowans pleaded guilty to an indictment charging rape. On October 10, 1914, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of ten years and a maximum term of fifteen years. The applicant, a man fifty-nine years of age, prior to the commission of this crime, bore an excellent reputation in his community. He was an active member of his church and was the teacher of two very large community bible classes. He was never, prior to the commission of this crime, accused of any violation of law, and all the papers before the Board indicate that he was a man highly esteemed in the community in which he lived, and that all who knew him were astounded when he was charged with this crime. He has now been confined for over six years, and the District Attorney who tried the case has informed the Board he believes, owing to the circumstances in this case and the reputation of the man, that he has been sufficiently punished. Petitions have been presented, signed by many people among whom the petitioner formerly lived, asking that a pardon be granted.

We are of the opinion that the applicant has been sufficiently punished and that this is a proper case for the exercise of clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said James Cowans.

Sir: At June Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Cambria County, Oliver Dunn pleaded guilty to an indictment charging entering ticket office and baggage room with intent, larceny and receiving stolen goods. On March 19, 1919, he was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution, $50.00 fine and to undergo an imprisonment in the Huntingdon Reformatory. Since his incarceration he has made a "perfect record in conduct, labor and school studies." The Postal Inspector who made the information has written the Board as follows:

"I was assigned to the investigation of the Post Office robbery at South Fork, Pa. on the night of March 2, 1919, when it developed that the burglary was committed by three persons, Gilbert McCloskey, Robert Straitiff and Oliver Dunn. I swore out the original warrants which resulted in the arrest of the trio at Altoona, Pa. In the course of the investigation it early developed that McCloskey was the ringleader ably seconded by Straitiff in crime, while Oliver Dunn appeared to be in a sense a victim of circumstances rather than a premeditated participant in the crime.

The same night in making a get-away from South Fork, Pa. the trio boarded a freight which pulled off the main line at Portage, Pa. where the Pennsylvania Railroad Station was entered and robbed by the trio who had to leave the train they were riding.  Oliver Dunn was drinking and in an intoxicated condition, although he was only nineteen years of age. *****

 Dunn was taken to my office and interviewed. He had time to think over the matter and was thoroughly sobered. He impressed me as being different from the criminal class, which fifteen years as an inspector has taught me to recognize.  Dunn made a clean breast of the burglaries, did not spare himself, offered to get and return his share of the loot (which he did not destroy) and made the unusual request that he be allowed to go alone to his home to get the loot (mileage or scrip books), as he did not want his mother to know that he was under arrest. *****

I granted his request and in a short time he returned with the mileage books.  His clear statement of all he did showed his purpose to atone for his wrongdoing, and he advised the officers present with me of his intention to plead guilty and do his best to make restitution and to aid in the proper prosecution of the law as against his fellow defendants, if such course were necessary, although he expressed his natural disinclination to the idea of being compelled to tell on his fellows.  I am satisfied that young Dunn would never had taken a part in so serious a crime as burglary had he been sober and realized fully what he was doing. *****

Since his arrest I have learned that he was the main stay of the family, very materially aiding his father in the family support and that the family keenly need the benefit of his earnings. From investigation I learn that he was never in trouble before, and has a good reputation except for his weakness of drink which was inherited. *****

In summing up the whole matter I have reached the conclusion that young Oliver Dunn has fully realized the gravity of his offense, and that further incarceration in penal servitude will not materially aid or be necessary to effect his decision to lead a new life and obey the laws of his State and country hereafter. **

I, therefore, recommend that the Board of Pardons give favorable consideration to the proposition of granting him a full pardon at an early date that he may rejoin his family, add to their financial and material support, which is now greatly needed. *****

 I have, therefore, suggested to the United States Attorney at Pittsburgh that in view of the present punishment inflicted upon Dunn, no further action be taken against him in the Federal Courts for the South Fork offense, provided he shows by his actions when released that he is fully reformed. Under the Federal practice criminal prosecution can be had at any time within three years before the statute of limitations will debar prosecution. I am convinced that if he can stand a probation for that length of time, he will be of sufficient age (considering that he does not bear criminal tendencies) to guarantee that he will be a useful member of society and will abstain from violation of the laws in the future."

The District Attorney does not oppose clemency.

Impelled by the foregoing, we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Oliver Dunn.

Sir: At No. 3, ——— Sessions, 1913, of the Court of Oyer and Terminer for Armstrong County, Mike Weiss alias Mike Weise pleaded guilty to an indictment charging murder in the second degree, and on December 24, 1913, was sentenced to the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of five years and a maximum term of twenty years.

Prior to the commission of the crime the applicant, a Pole, was given to excessive use of intoxicants, and when under its influence developed a religious mania. He would get into quarrels with the priests in the different Catholic Churches, and would also involve his wife in violent verbal altercations, which became so frequent that finally she left him and went to live temporarily with neighbors. One morning, after a night of intoxication and of prayers and visions, the applicant, while under the influence of drink,, claimed to have had a call to bid his wife farewell and kill himself. He purchased a revolver, went to his wife, and while in a state of wild excitement, fired. Instead of shooting himself he killed her. He made no attempt to escape. The evidence showed that he was intoxicated at the time he was apprehended to such an extent that his mind was at least temporarily unbalanced. He has served his minimum term and has been out on parole for more than a year. He has secured employment, has abstained from drink, and is believed by those who know him to now be of sober and industrious habits. His children are anxious for a pardon, and the District Attorney interposes no objection to clemency.

The petitioner is now about sixty years of age, and the reporting to the prison authorities prays heavily on his mind, as it serves to renew all the details of his crime, concerning which he has shown great remorse ever since he realized what drink had caused him to do.

We are of opinion that this man will be a better citizen if pardoned than he would be if he were compelled to report to the prison authorities for such a length of time, and under all the circumstances of the case, we recommend, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," that a pardon be now granted to the said Mike Weiss alias Mike Weise.

Sir: At Nos. 2 and 3, September Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Bedford County, Charles Ross and H. C. Miller pleaded guilty to indictments charging larceny, and on May 28, 1919, were sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of one year and a maximum term of eighteen months. The larceny was of chickens, the defendants having stolen three chickens from one man and four from another. The severity of the sentences was explained by the fact that they were imposed to break up the practice of chicken stealing, which had become prevalent in this community.

Both the District Attorney and the Trial Judge have written recommending clemency. The petitioners have now been confined for about ten months. We are of the opinion that they have been sufficiently punished, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Charles Ross and H. C. Miller.

Sir: At No. 31, November Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County, Rocco Martino was indicted for murder. The jury returned a verdict of voluntary manslaughter, and on February 9, 1918, His Honor, Judge Quigley, specially presiding, imposed a sentence of imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of three years and a maximum term of five years. The circumstances of the crime are briefly the following:

On a certain Sunday afternoon, the applicant and certain other Italians engaged in a game of cards and continued playing all afternoon, during which time liquor was consumed. That night the crowd again assembled and began drinking wine. They grew boisterous and the applicant's father-in-law told him to take the wine to his own room and consume it there. A short time afterwards the applicant came down and another argument ensued between him and his father-in-law, which resulted in an invitation to fight. The father-in-law grabbed the petitioner and attempted to eject him from the house. A fight ensued, during which the applicant drew a revolver and fired, one of the shots entering the arm of his mother-in-law, who was also attempting to eject him from the house. The fight was continued on the front porch, and after an interval of seven or eight minutes, two more shots were fired and shortly afterwards another and last report was heard. About fifteen minutes after the last shot the persons in the house opened the door and found the deceased lying on the porch with a bullet wound in his abdomen, which resulted in his death. The father-in-law fought with a knife and inflicted wounds on the face and body of the petitioner which caused his confinement in the hospital for over three weeks. The evidence showed that the father-in-law first attacked the applicant and that during the scuffle his brother-in-law entered the fight against the applicant.

The petitioner's wife is now the mother of a two year old child. By reason of her delicate physical condition, she is unable to support it and herself. His father has a wife and three children to support and his meagre wages will not enable him to contribute to the maintenance of his daughter-in-law and grandchild. The petitioner's mother, eighty years of age, is suffering from a disease which renders her duration of life very short, and her constant wish is that she may see her son before she dies. The Judge who tried the case has written the Board as follows:

"In the matter of the petition of the above defendant, for pardon, I recommend the same for the reasons therein set forth.

Very respectfully,

HENRY C. QUIGLEY,
Trial Judge."

We are impelled by the foregoing to the belief that this is a proper case for clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Rocco Martino.

Sir: At No. 116 August Sessions in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Chester County, Toney Dossick was convicted of the crime of murder in the second degree. On September 22, 1913, he was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00 costs of prosecution and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a maximum term of twenty years and a minimum term of fifteen years.

The applicant, and another, Russian, Salbin Sampir by name, were old enemies and a few years before sailing for this country Sampir with a gang of ruffians had attacked and almost killed the applicant. Sampir was prosecuted by Dossick's father and sentenced to a substantial imprisonment in Russia. Shortly before the commission of the crime for which Dossick is under imprisonment, Sampir had attacked Dossick on the street, and later on the same day the two men again got into an altercation with the result that the applicant struck Sampir a blow on the head which resulted in Sampir's death.

At the time of the trial the defendant being without funds, was assigned counsel and he was asked whether he desired to plead guilty to the charges of second degree murder. This was known both to the Court and to the jury. The applicant persisted in his innocence, refused to plead guilty and insisted that the case go to a verdict with the result that the jury found him guilty of the crime charged. There seems to be no doubt at the time of the altercation both participants were intoxicated, and there seems to be no doubt that the request as to whether he desired to plead guilty of the crime of second degree murder influenced the verdict and that if such a request had not been known to the Court and the jury the trial would have resulted in a conviction of a crime of no higher degree than voluntary manslaughter, in which event the applicant would now have been eligible for parole. Nine of the jurymen who sat on the case have written the Board in favor of clemency, and from their letters it appears that had it not been for the persistence of one of the jurymen, now deceased, and for the talk concerning second degree murder, hereinbefore referred to, a verdict of voluntary manslaughter would have been returned.

The District Attorney has written interposing no objection to a pardon.

We are impelled by the foregoing to the belief that this is a proper case for clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Toney Dossick.

Sir: At Nos. 155 and 156 November Sessions, 1915, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia County, Lazar Gruich alias Lazar Gruick was found guilty on an indictment charging assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery to kill. On November 19, 1915, he was sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of five years and a maximum term of seven years. He has now been confined over four years.

We are impelled to recommend clemency on the statement and promises made by the prosecutor in a communication to the Board as follows:

"I am writing this letter in the interest of Lazar Gruich, who has petitioned your Honorable Board for a pardon.

"He was charged with biting my finger and with shooting me with intent to kill, for which charges he was convicted and sentenced on November 19, 1915, to a term of not less than five years nor more than seven years in the Eastern Penitentiary in addition to which the costs of prosecution were imposed upon him.

"For some time before these crimes were committed, Lazar Gruich had been employed in my candy factory at 922 Master Street, Philadelphia, but I was finally compelled to discharge him because of the fact that some of the other employees and he did not agree, this being due, in large measure, to his foreign nationality and consequent excitability. And, as I desired to have perfect harmony among my employees, I felt that it would be for the best interests of all concerned, the others having begun to tease and taunt him, to discharge Gruich, which I accordingly did.

"It seems that he was out of work for some time, and as a result thereof he became despondent, and while in that condition felt that I was responsible for his being out of work, and unable to secure other employment. In consequence of this he lay in wait for me early one morning, and shot me, inflicting a wound, which, however, did not prove to be very serious; he also chewed one of my fingers in the scuffle which resulted.

"Mr. Gruich has now been imprisoned for more than four years, and in my opinion, he has been sufficiently punished. He has sent for me, and I have visited him in the prison. I have also conversed with the Warden at some length in regard to him, and with others of his nationality, some of whom came from the same neighborhood and even town where he originated from, and they all feel as I do, namely that I ought to join in an effort to have him pardoned. I might mention, in this connection, that I know of his having been arrested on a prior occasion while he was in my employ, but I felt convinced that he was free of all blame at that time, and I sided in his defense, he and those arrested with him being promptly acquitted at the time of trial.

"His father died while he was in my employ, but he has an old mother who is living in Slavonia, and as a result of the world war is greatly in need of his support. I am conversant with that part of Europe and know of conditions there. Gruich has promised me that if he be pardoned he will forthwith proceed to his old home and mother, in Slavonia, and I am sufficiently interested in him that at his earnest solicitation I have promised, if he do so return, to pay his passage, and to deposit a further sufficient fund with the proper authorities there to purchase a small home and farm for him. I realize that he will serve his minimum time in approximately a year, but he has no funds of any kind to pay the costs imposed upon him, and as his mother is advanced in years, and he seems so anxious to accept my offer that I respectfully suggest that his prayer be given very earnest consideration.

"I will, therefore, appreciate it if you will consider my earnest endorsement of his appeal to your Honorable Board to grant the application for a pardon.

Very respectfully yours,

THOMAS M. DAVIS."

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted the said Lazar Gruich alias Lazar Gruick.

Sir: At No. 158, March Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Schuylkill County, Alexander Dale was found guilty on an indictment charging murder. On May 6, 1918, the death sentence was pronounced. The circumstances of the crime are briefly the following:

Dale started from his boarding house with the son-in-law of the proprietor, to go to Shenandoah. The two men never before had any misunderstanding or differences of any kind. They left a street car on which they had ridden part of the way and took a path which diverged from the main road and gave a short cut under the Borough. Dale suggested that he was unfamiliar with the path and asked his companion to lead the way. After they had gone a short distance, Dale called "look out" and fired a shot, which was fatal. He took a trolley car back to the boarding house, and it so happened that the wife of the deceased and her sister were also passengers on that car. Dale approached them and standing behind their seat said, "I fixed him, I fixed him." They inquired who he fixed, and he answered "Charlie." The wife of the deceased asked him what he did that for, and he replied, "Well, I did it. He will never treat you the way he has treated you and he will never bother you." Dale's defense was insanity, but evidence showing insanity of certain collateral relatives of the petitioner was not admitted, owing to a legal technicality.

At the instance of the Board, Doctor Frank Woodbury, Secretary of the Committee on Lunacy of the Board of Public Charities, made an examination of the petitioner, and reported, inter alia, as follows:

"From my personal examination of Alexander Dale, I believe him to be not sane, and to be at present mentally abnormal".

The Board is, therefore, of the opinion that the sentence of death should be commuted to life imprisonment, thereby rendering it possible to have the petitioner transferred to the proper State institution, and accordingly, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," we recommend that the sentence of death pronounced on the said Alexander Dale, be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At No. 58, June Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer for Northampton County, Peter J. Sheehan was found guilty upon an indictment charging involuntary manslaughter. On October 28, 1919, he was sentenced to pay a fine of five hundred dollars, costs of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Northampton County prison for a term of three months. The circumstances of the case are thus stated in the opinion of the lower court discharging the rule for a new trial:

"The defendant and the decedent had known each other for about twenty-five years and been on friendly terms. On the evening of July 31st, the defendant says he went to Doctor Coyle's house to inquire about some offensive remark he had that day been told, Doctor Coyle had made about his wife. Not finding the Doctor at home, the defendant waited for him the next afternoon and met him near the intersection of Fourth and New Streets, in the City of Bethlehem, and engaged in conversation while continuing to walk in the direction of the Doctor's office. As they reached the sidewalk, partly covered with cement and partly with slag blocks, Doctor Coyle struck the defendant upon the head with his fist, and later again attempted to strike, but the defendant ducked, and the force of the blow caused the Doctor to swing around. They then clinched, the Doctor having his left arm around the defendant's neck and striking him about the head with his right fist. Defendant was also striking the Doctor and attempting to free himself from the Doctor's grasp. Two or three witnesses for the Commonwealth say that, as the parties separated, the defendant gave an uppercut, striking the Doctor upon the left jaw, and that the Doctor fell back upon the pavement like a log, his head striking upon the slag block. The defendant denied striking the Doctor upon the jaw, saying it was impossible, by reason of the Doctor's height, and that he dropped upon his knee after they had separated. Some of the witnesses say no blow was struck by the defendant when the parties separated, and that the Doctor stepped back two or three steps before falling."

Under these facts, we do not think the applicant is guilty of any crime. The decedent struck the first blow—this is the statement of the Court and fully substantiated by the testimony—and there is no evidence that the applicant used more force than was necessary for his own self-defense. Whether the decedent fell by reason of a blow delivered by the petitioner, or whether it was due to tripping on the pavement, is immaterial. Under the facts of this case, we are of the opinion that the death of the decedent was accidental and that the petitioner committed no offense.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Peter J. Sheehan.

Sir: At No. 40, September Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Northampton County, Carl H. Freihoffer pleaded guilty to an indictment charging forgery. On December 9, 1918, he was sentenced to pay a fine of ten dollars, the costs of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment in the county jail for a term of three years.

At the time of the commission of the crime, the applicant, seventeen years of age, was anxious to identify himself with the military forces of the Federal Government. He applied for admission to several officers' training camps but was refused on account of insufficient education. He endeavored to enlist in the naval and military forces but was refused on account of the Influenza Epidemic. Camp Crane was located near his home and he became acquainted with some of its soldiers. One of them, who has since been killed in action, became an intimate friend of his, and learning of his failure to get into the Service and his disappointment thereabout, told him he would be accepted if he bought himself a uniform and other equipment. He suggested to the applicant, who had no money, that he draw checks on the Department Stores in Allentown, and on the same day, drew a check for the applicant on a particular store for sixty-five dollars, and told him to take it to a bank which would cash it for him. The petitioner took the check, presented it for payment and received the proceeds. The next day the soldier friend filled out a check for one hundred and fifty dollars as he said the first was not sufficient to fully equip him. This check and a third one were presented and honored. On one of the trips, the applicant was accompanied to the bank by the soldier. All the money which he thus obtained was expended in buying his uniform and other military equipment, with the exception of transportation expenses to Philadelphia where he made his purchases.

The applicant comes of good parentage, he is not of the criminal type, and has never heretofore been accused of any offense. He has now been confined for over a year and three months.

Under the circumstances of this case, we believe the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and we therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Carl H. Freihoffer.

Sir: At No. 2, September Term, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Somerset County, Andy Racosky pleaded guilty to an indictment charging murder, and on August 30, 1918, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00 and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of three years, and a maximum term of five years. The applicant is by birth a Slav, but at the time of his arrest he had become a naturalized American citizen. The applicant is about forty-four years of age; has a wife and five children; and is by occupation a coal miner.

On the evening of the commission of the crime he was sitting on the porch of his home urging his neighbors to buy Liberty Bonds. While so engaged, an Austrian approached, told the applicant to "shut up"; that one Austrian was able to whip twelve United States soldiers; that United States was going to lose the war; and that no one should buy Liberty Bonds. The applicant said he was an American citizen now; that he could say what he pleased; and, that having two brothers in the army he intended to do everything he could to assist the United States Government. The decedent then stated that the American Flag was no good; that the applicant's citizenship papers were worthless, and that the United States ought to lose the war. The applicant, by this time extremely excited, walked into the house; procured a shot-gun; shot the decedent in the leg, and immediately went before the squire and surrendered himself. The decedent was taken to the hospital and blood-poison set in. He was advised by the attending physician that it would be necessary to amputate his limb. He refused to permit the operation; gangrene set in, and his death resulted.

The applicant has never heretofore been accused of any crime. He has now been confined for more than a year and six months.

Under the foregoing circumstances, we are impelled to the conclusion that he has been sufficiently punished, and, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," we recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Andy Racosky.

Sir: At No. 643, September Sessions, 1913, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County, Andrew Cobb was found guilty of murder in the second degree, and on February 10, 1914, was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of twelve years, and a maximum term of twenty years.

On the night of the commission of the crime the applicant was standing in his doorway when the decedent, a stranger, came along with three companions, two of them women, and sat down on the steps of the applicant's home, and began to talk in a suggestive manner to the women companions. The applicant told the decedent to discontinue his remarks, and ordered him to move on. The decedent and his companions started away from the house, and when they had gone but a short way two shots were heard. Some of the witnesses testified that the decedent fell after the second shot, and there was some evidence as to whether his fall was caused by a bullet, or by his tripping. A few seconds after a third shot was fired by a police officer in the direction from which the decedent was going. The defense at the trial was that the fatal shot was fired by the policeman.

The District Attorney has stated orally to the Board that his belief is that the applicant has been sufficiently punished. The Trial Judge orally, stated to counsel at the time of the sentence that he would co-operate in securing a pardon after the applicant served part of his term. The Judge, however, is now dead. It seems to be conceded by all that the element of manslaughter is strongly discernible in this case. The applicant, prior to his arrest, always bore a good reputation. He has now been confined for more than six years.

Under all the circumstances of the case we are of opinion that it is a proper case for Executive clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Andrew Cobb.

Sir: At No. 97, November Sessions, 1916, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Luzerne County, Hiram E. Kline was convicted on an indictment charging rape. On November 25, 1916, he was sentenced to pay a fine of one dollar, the costs of prosecution and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of ten years and a maximum term of fifteen years.

The rape was alleged to have been committed on the applicant's ten year old daughter. The prosecution was instigated by his sister, who had previously been rebuked and reprimanded by him on account of her immoral and lewd conduct.

The Trial Judge has written the Board as follows:

"Hiram Kline was convicted before me on the 22nd of November, 1916, and sentenced to the Penitentiary on the 25th for term of not less than ten nor more than fifteen years. The nature of his offense was so heinous that I felt compelled to make the sentence so severe. But the evidence had in such important contradictions that I would not have been surprised at a verdict of not guilty. The important witnesses were closely related to the defendant and the whole matter had the appearance, to a large extent, of a family row with much bad blood. At present I am informed his parents who are very aged, the father past 84 and the mother past 80 and lying fast in bed with a broken hip, are in great need of his services, he being the only one of their children who would contribute to their support. Under all the circumstances of the case I am inclined to believe that the interest of justice will not suffer if you conclude to recommend him for pardon."

The District Attorney has sent a similar communication. The applicant has now been confined for more than three years.

Under all the circumstances of the case, we believe Executive clemency should be extended, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Hiram E. Kline.

Sir: At No. 6, December Term, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Green County, Steve Antolich alias Kit Vidkovic was convicted on an indictment charging assault with intent to rob. On September 4, 1918, he was sentenced to pay a fine of twenty-five dollars, the costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of three years.

The circumstances of the case are briefly the following: The applicant and a fellow employe, mutual friends, took a trip lasting several days through an adjoining county. They visited acquaintances and consumed much intoxicants. On their way home, the companion missed his pocket-book which he claimed contained twelve dollars, and accused the applicant of having stolen it. A heated argument was thereby occasioned which resulted in an altercation in which the companion was considerably worsted. The information, conviction and sentence resulted.

The applicant has always heretofore borne a good reputation. There does not seem to be any evidence of an assault with an attempt to rob. It was, in our opinion, nothing other than a drunken brawl. The petitioner has now been confined for about a year and six months.

Under the circumstances of the case, we are impelled to the conclusion that he has been sufficiently punished and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Steve Antolich alias Kit Vidkovic.

Sir: At No. 4, February Term, 1917, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Somerset County, Milton J. Livengood pleaded guilty to an indictment charging burglary. On May 3, 1917, sentence was suspended and the applicant was paroled. On February 6, it was represented to the court that the applicant had violated his parole. He was called before the court and sentenced to pay a fine of five dollars, the costs of prosecution, to make restitution, and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of three years.

The cause of the applicant's misfortune was the excessive use of intoxicants. He was under its influence when, between six and seven o'clock, he broke the panel of a door leading to the bar-room of a hotel, frightened the proprietor by his incoherent talk, and took a pint of whisky from the bar-room, which resulted in the above stated indictment. It was intoxication which constituted the violation of his parole and lead to the imposition of the sentence.

The Trial Judge and District Attorney have written as follows:

"In the foregoing case, the defendant having been in the Western Penitentiary for a period of about one year, and the real prosecutor, William M. Dietz, desiring that the prisoner be pardoned, and the parents of the prisoner being very old, we believe, under all the circumstances, that a pardon should be granted to the petitioner."

We are impelled by the foregoing to the belief that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency and we therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Milton J. Livengood.

Board of Pardons.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 22, 1920.

Sir: At No. 57, September Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lancaster County, Rufus Thompson pleaded guilty to an indictment charging felonious entry and larceny. On September 6, 1919, he was sentenced to pay a fine of fifty dollars, the costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for a period of one year.

The applicant is about twenty-one years of age, a farm-hand by occupation, and employed as such by his uncle with whom he lived in said county. About 10 o'clock one night, he stopped his team in front of a neighbor's house, raised a partly open window, entered the house and stole one dollar in money and a crate containing twelve dozen of eggs which he later sold. The following day, he met the owner of the house, told him what he had done, and offered to make restitution. The neighbor, in a letter to the Board, states that he had known the boy all his life, and that he thought it would be a good thing for his future welfare if he had him arrested and reprimanded, having no thought that he might be incarcerated.

A Farmers' Mutual Protective Association was informed which made an information and caused the boy's arrest. Contrary to the general expectation that the applicant would be only reprimanded and a sentence of imprisonment, if any, suspended, the applicant was committed to the county jail for the term above set forth. The man whose eggs and money were taken, the Protective Association which had the matter in charge, and practically all of the neighbors of the applicant, have written the Board urging a pardon. Complete restitution has been made and the applicant's uncle, with whom he has lived for many years, is willing and anxious to take him back into his home and to be responsible for his future conduct. He has never heretofore been accused of any crime, but on the contrary has borne an excellent reputation.

We are of the opinion that he has been sufficiently punished, and we therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Rufus Thompson.

Respectfully submitted,

Harrisburg, Pa., March 22, 1920.

Sir: At No. 22, June Sessions, 1893, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County, James Newton Hill was found guilty of murder in the first degree, and on January 27, 1894, the sentence of death was imposed.

On account of his physical condition his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. He was taken in a supposedly dying condition to the Allegheny General Hospital, and remained there for about three months hovering between life and death. When he had sufficiently recovered, he was placed on trial and his conviction and sentence followed. On account of his physical condition his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

The applicant was convicted on circumstantial evidence, as no one saw the shooting of Rosa Roetzler. Ever since his arrest he has maintained his innocence. The Warden of the Penitentiary has written that he has always deported himself in an exemplary manner, and that he now occupies the most responsible position assigned to inmates, that of Librarian.

The District Attorney who tried the case writes, inter alia, as follows:

"Considering the length of time he has served in the Penitentiary, to wit, about twenty six years, I can state to your Board that I have no objection or protest to make against his obtaining a pardon upon his present application."

John Glenn, for twenty-one years connected with the Police Department of the City of Allegheny, acting during that time as Chief of Detectives, Assistant Superintendent of Police, and retiring as Superintendent of the Department of Police, has written that during the greater portion of his incumbency in office he prepared for trial all the murder cases from that city, among others the case against the applicant. He has strongly recommended pardon, being of the opinion that the petitioner has been sufficiently punished.

Many other letters have been filed with the Board from reputable citizens urging Executive clemency. The applicant is now about sixty years old, and has been confined for twenty-six years.

We are of the opinion that under all the foregoing circumstances he has been sufficiently punished, and we therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open sessions," recommnd that a pardon be now granted to the said James Newton Hill.

Respectfully submitted,

E. E. BEIDLEMAN,
Lieutenant Governor.

Board of Pardons.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 22, 1920.

Sir: At No. 4, March Sessions, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Lebanon County, Paul E. Arms was convicted on an indictment charging robbery; and, at No. 52, March Term, 1916, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of said county, he pleaded guilty to an indictment charging larceny and receiving stolen goods. On March 10, 1916, he was sentenced for the first named offense to an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of four years and a maximum term of five years; and, for the crimes to which he pleaded guilty, he was sentenced on the same day to the same institution for a minimum term of one year and a maximum term of two years, to commence and to be computed from the expiration of the sentence imposed on the conviction for robbery.

The applicant contends he is innocent of the crime of robbery; that he has served the maximum period imposed for the crimes of larceny and receiving stolen goods, and that therefore he should be given his liberty. He is now about twenty-six years of age, an American citizen, unmarried, and, at the time of his conviction, resided with his parents.

The circumstances of the robbery were briefly as follows: Two unmasked men entered a small store in the Borough of Palmyra, Lebanon County, about six o'clock one evening, in February 1916, and at the point of revolvers, held up the proprietor and robbed the cash register of approximately fifty dollars. A dim light in the front part of the store enabled the proprietor with difficulty to note the general appearance and the facial characteristics of the criminals. He however positively identified one of them as a Paul Smith, but was not certain as to the identity of the applicant. The applicant claims he was charged with the crime of robbery solely by reason of the fact that he was a companion of Smith's, and that subsequent to the commission of the crime he and Smith, who were companions, were found together. He states that he is entirely innocent of the crime and knew nothing of its commission. Paul Smith has made an affidavit stating, inter alia, as follows:

"Paul Arms * * * was not with the party at Engle's store in Palmyra, Pa., on the Twenty-second day of February, A. D. 1916. Arms knew nothing of the holdup and was not in it at all. * * * Arms was not in the holdup, knew absolutely nothing about the robbery. He is an innocent man."

We are of the opinion, the applicant having now been incarcerated for a period longer than the maximum term imposed for the crimes to which he pleaded guilty, and there being, in our minds, merit in his assertion and in the affidavit of Smith, as to his innocence for the crime of robbery, that this is a proper case for Executive clemency. In order to set the applicant unconditionally at liberty, a pardon must be granted for the crime of robbery and also for the crimes of larceny and receiving stolen goods.

We therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Paul E. Arms for the crime of robbery and for the crimes of larceny and receiving stolen goods for which he was convicted and pleaded guilty respectively at the numbers and terms of the courts hereinbefore indicated.

Respectfully submitted,

Sir: At No. 14, March Sessions, 1914, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer for Allegheny County, James Bryant was found guilty of murder in the second degree; and on September 19, 1914, was sentenced to pay a fine of six and one-fourth cents, the costs of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment of not less than eight nor more than fifteen years in the Western Penitentiary.

For some time prior to his conviction and sentence, the applicant had been the owner of a large farm in Allegheny County and resided thereon with his wife and family. On January 6, 1914, the agent of a Gas Company secured from the applicant a right-of-way to lay a pipe line over a certain part of the applicant's land. About two weeks later, on a Saturday morning, he discovered the company's men digging a trench across another part of his land. He told them they were on his property and that they should immediately desist from further digging. Repeated protests were made but the foreman of the men stated that he had instructions to dig the ditch and he was going to comply with them. The petitioner's son was called who also asked the men to stop their work until the right-of-way agent could be consulted but the men continued in their refusal and proceeded to place joints of pipe on the land preparatory to their connection. Finally the petitioner went to the house, obtained a revolver, and returned carrying it in his hand for, as he alleges, "bluffing" the foreman of the men. Words ensued between the petitioner and the foreman which finally resulted in the latter threatening to take the revolver away from the petitioner and starting out of the ditch to execute his threat. The petitioner fired wounding the foreman, from the effects of which he subsequently died. The applicant then located an officer, stated that he had shot a man and was arrested. It appears that he knew the foreman of the gang, believed him to be a dangerous fellow and fired under the belief that the foreman was about to attack him as he had stated he was going to do; that he shot with no intention to kill being in the state of a mental excitement and without criminal intent.

The applicant is now seventy years of age and has been incarcerated for a period of over six years. On account of his incarceration and grief over the death of his wife which occurred two years after his imprisonment, the applicant has developed organic diseases. Many letters from prominent and reputable citizens have been filed with the Board in the applicant's behalf.

We are of the opinion that under the circumstances of this case, the applicant has been sufficiently punished and that Executive clemency should be exercised. We therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said James Bryant.

Sir: At No. 39, February Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County, James Gibson aged thirty-five years, pleaded guilty on advice of Counsel to an indictment charging murder. He subsequently petitioned leave to withdraw his plea. The petition was refused, and on March 14, 1919, the death sentence was imposed.

For some time prior to his arrest, the applicant had been out of work and was living with his parents. On the night of the commission of the crime his father told him to make less noise, his mother at that time being sick. The applicant persisted and the father left the house declaring he would find an officer and have the applicant placed in the lockup for the night. The father returned with two policemen, and as they approached the back porch along an alley, the applicant shot and killed both of the officers. The defendant was tried at No. 37 February Term, 1918, for the murder of Officer Meyer. The defense was intoxication, and evidence was submitted showing that it was his high degree of drunkenness that caused him to be so boisterous and which ultimately led him to procure shot guns from the house after his father had left and to shoot the officers as they were coming through the yard. The Jury brought in a verdict of murder in the second degree, and sentence was imposed in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of sixteen and a maximum term of seventeen years. Doubtless impelled by this verdict, the defendant pleaded guilty to the indictment charging murder of Lucas, the other officer, but the Court imposed the punishment prescribed by the statute for murder in the first degree. The Jury must have believed the applicant was intoxicated, or otherwise it must have found him guilty of first degree murder. The Judge who imposed the death sentence has written to the Board, inter alia, as follows:

"It is a fact now appearing, which did not and could not appear in this case, that the jury impaneled in the other case found him guilty of murder in the second degree, and he was sentenced. Of course we were aware of the former verdict and judgment, when we decided this case, but the facts of that case were not legally before us. In view of that verdict, it is highly probable that, had we been clothed with any discretion, the sentence in this case would have been imprisonment for life instead of the one which was imposed. It would seem that the law will be vindicated by the milder punishment."

The District Attorney joins in the application, and in a communication of the 15th instant, addressed to the Board, affirms his statement in a prior letter, in which he says as follows:

"While we feel that the Court under all the evidence was entirely justified in their finding but in view of the Jury in the case tried preceding this found the defendant guilty of murder in the second degree and the sentence in that case of imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary of not less than sixteen years nor more than seventeen years having been pronounced, that the ends of justice will be met by commuting this man to life imprisonment."

Impelled by the foregoing we, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that the sentence of death imposed on the applicant, James Gibson, be commuted to imprisonment for life.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County, at No. 4, October Sessions, 1916, one Morton Kelley, a colored man about twenty-eight years old, was indicted for rape. He was found guilty and sentenced on November 18, 1916, to pay a fine of six and one-fourth cents to the Commonwealth, the cost of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment of not less than five years nor more than seven years in the Western Penitentiary.

The following were the circumstances of the crime:

Several young men, seeking refuge in a park near the City of Pittsburgh from an impending summer rain storm, came upon a girl between eighteen and twenty-one years of age, who implored that she be directed to some place affording protection from the storm. She went with the boys to a building and consumed a considerable part of the night inside, during which time several of the boys had sexual intercourse with her, among others, the applicant.

Grave doubts exist as to the legality of the applicant's conviction. The evidence is convincing that the intercourse occurred with the consent of the girl. The crime was not known for a considerable period of time after its commission, and the information was made by a person other than the girl.

The two colored boys who were in the party were tried and convicted. The other boys do not seem to have been prosecuted. The applicant has never been heretofore convicted for any crime.

He has now been confined for over two years and five months. The Judge who tried the case is strongly in favor of a pardon.

The doubt as to the legality of the applicant's conviction, the severity of his sentence the time served, and the attitude of the Trial Judge, impel us to conclude that clemency should be exercised.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Morton Kelley.

Sir: In Luzerne County, at No. 68, November Sessions, 1917, of the Court of Quarter Sessions, an Italian, Alphonso Pesani was convicted of robbery but recommended to the mercy of the court. On November 27, 1917, he was sentenced to pay a fine, the cost of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment by separate and solitary confinement at labor in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of four years and a maximum term of ten years. At the time of his conviction, the applicant was about thirty-three years old, was a talented musician and resided with his wife and three small children.

His arrest and conviction were attended with peculiar circumstances. On a certain Sunday afternoon, a verbal altercation occurred between him and his wife. Because of the deafness of the wife, Pesani's voice was raised to an extremely loud tone, and being heard by certain neighbors, a policeman was summoned who placed him under arrest.

He was accused of committing an assault and battery on his wife, but after a two days' confinement in the borough jail, was discharged after hearing by the squire.

About eight years prior to this occurrence, two little girls walking along a highway, and bound for home with their parents' pay envelopes which had been delivered to them by an employing coal company, were accosted by a man, seized and the money taken from one of the girls.

Upon the discharge of Pesani as above stated, three police officers again took him into custody, accused him of committing the robbery of the girls, and after severe treatment forced a confession from him that he and two other men did rob the girls, his participation in the affair being only to share in the division of the money. This confession was never reduced to writing. At the time of the trial, the applicant pleaded not guilty and has constantly asserted his innocence. The girl who was robbed appeared as a witness at the trial, but when asked to identify Pesani as the man who robbed her, the testimony discloses her replies to be so indefinite as to compel the belief of an uncertainty on her part as to whether the applicant was in fact the man who committed the crime. For several years succeeding the robbery, Pesani was in and about the vicinity. He was always conspicuous as he was a prominent musician and a vaudeville performer. He has always borne a good reputation and has never been heretofore arrested. The applicant was largely convicted through the testimony of the police officers, all of whom have written the Board, urging a pardon; one of them has expressed a strong belief that the applicant did not commit the crime. The petitioner's wife is now almost totally deaf and is afflicted with other physical disabilities. His three children are dependent upon neighbors for support, and are frequently in dire distress. These reasons impel us to believe that Executive clemency should be exercised.

We therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Alphonso Pesani.

Sir: At No. 45, May Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Somerset County, W. F. Johnson pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery with intent to rob. On April 14, 1919, he was sentenced to pay a fine of one dollar and costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of three years, and a maximum term of four years.

On the night of the commission of the crime the applicant and another man, both under the influence of liquor, engaged in a physical altercation which resulted in the applicant injuring his companion about the face to such an extent that he was incapacitated for work for a few days. An information was made against the applicant charging him with an attempt to rob. At the time of the trial the applicant's recollection was hazy as to the occurrence. He stated that he was ignorant of any intent on his part to attempt to rob. He pleaded guilty because he was advised that thereby a light sentence might be imposed.

The applicant has never heretofore been accused of any crime. He has now been confined for more than a year. The District Attorney, in office at the time of the imposition of sentence, has written, inter alia, as follows:

"There has always been a doubt in my mind as to whether this man was in such a state of mind as to know what he was doing. There seemed to be no question as to a great degree of intoxication as to both the prosecutor and the defendant * * * * * I recommend a pardon in this case, and feel that it should be granted with the hope that he will profit thereby."

The Trial Judge also recommends a pardon.

We are of the opinion that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said W. F. Johnson.

Sir: At No. 9, June Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Wayne County, Floyd Young was convicted on an indictment charging barn burning. On June 20, 1918, he was sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years, six months, and a maximum term of ten years, to be computed from April 18, 1918. He was convicted on circumstantial evidence, but the mind of the District Attorney is clear that the jury were fully justified in rendering a verdict of guilty. The petitioner is thirty-one years of age, an American citizen and by occupation a farmer and road laborer. He is the father of three children, the oldest of which is seven and the youngest two and one-half years. His father and mother are both more than seventy years old and are living with his wife.

The father is rheumatically crippled. The wife, children and parents are in pitiable circumstances. The Trial Judge has written:

"The reason set forth in the application concerning the condition of this young man's family is absolutely true. The circumstances of these people are known very well by me, and, under all the circumstances, I am pleased to recommend a pardon in this case, and I think this is the first pardon I have recommended since being upon the Bench for over ten years."

The District Attorney writes:

"I join in the prayer of the petitioner, that a pardon may be granted as prayed for by the petitioner."

This, in our opinion, is a case for the exercise of Executive clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Floyd Young.

Sir: At No. 25, December Term, 1915, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Montgomery County, Benjamin F. Decker was convicted on an indictment charging burglary and larceny. On March 11, 1916, he was sentenced to pay a fine of ten dollars and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of four years, and a maximum term of five years. He was given three preliminary hearings. At the first the time of the crime was stated to be April, 1914, but the petitioner in defense stated that at that time he was in prison for another offense, and his statement was verified. He was confined for two weeks, given a hearing, and then put back in jail. A week later a third hearing was given, at which time it was alleged that a mistake had been made as to the time and place of the commission of the offense, and a new set of facts sustaining the information was alleged. His first jury disagreed after deliberating about twenty-six hours; the second jury found a verdict of guilty after considering the case about twenty-four hours. His conviction was wholly on circumstantial evidence, his identity as the person who committed the crime being exclusively through finger-prints.

The applicant has now been confined for more than four years. He has saved $2,400 out of work he has done during his incarceration, and desires to engage with his capital in the carpenter business. His wife is in need of his financial assistance.

We believe, under the circumstances of this case, Executive clemency should be exercised, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Benjamin F. Decker.

Sir: At No. 78, March Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Allegheny County, Evelyn Drake was convicted on an indictment charging larceny from the person. On April 2, 1919, she was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of eighteen months and a maximum term of three years.

The applicant is twenty-seven years of age, colored, and by occupation a domestic. For several years prior to her arrest she lived with the prosecutor as his common law wife. She was charged with stealing a diamond stud and a diamond ring from the prosecutor while he was under the influence of liquor. The applicant admitted the taking of the jewelry, but stated it belonged to her, the stud having been purchased directly by her, and the ring bought by the prosecutor with money which she had furnished, and that the articles were taken because the prosecutor had abandoned her and was living with another woman.

The District Attorney has written, inter alia, as follows:

"From the testimony produced at the trial, we believe the jury were justified in their finding. We are also of the belief that the prosecutor was morally as bad as the defendant, and under all the facts, as the defendant has served twelve months of her eighteen months imprisonment, we do not object to favorable action on her petition."

We are of the opinion that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon

Sir: At No. 43, September Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Allegheny County, Nicholas Lampo, an Italian restaurant cook, was convicted on an indictment charging rape. On February 28, 1919, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for not less than two nor more than three years.

He was convicted on the evidence of an eighteen year old American waitress, who testified that early one morning while no customers were in the restaurant she was assaulted by the applicant, after she had carried some dishes into the kitchen, and the crime committed on her. Several witnesses were called for the defense, who testified that her reputation for morality was very bad.

The District Attorney has written, inter alia, as follows:

"We are free to admit that we are of the belief that the woman, who to our recollection was a colored woman, who testified on behalf of the defense that she saw the prosecuting witness, Frances Chance, having sexual intercourse with a colored man in an out-house in the rear of the restaurant a few days prior to the alleged rape, worked to the detriment of the defendant, rather than being of assistance to him.

"In view of all the facts in this case and in view of the fact that the defendant has served upwards of fourteen months of his imprisonment, we do not oppose the granting of Executive clemency in this particular case.

Very truly yours,

(Signed)

HARRY H. ROWAND,
District Attorney."

Under the foregoing circumstances, we are impelled to the conclusion that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Nicholas Lampo.

Sir: At No. 96, June Term, 1919, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Philadelphia County, Ellis Marks pleaded guilty to an indictment charging larceny. On September 29, 1919, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a minimum term of eight months and a maximum term of two years.

The applicant is twenty-two years of age, a Hebrew and a citizen of this country. He is a chauffeur by occupation, and at the time of his arrest was employed by the Quaker City Cab Company. On the evening of the commission of the crime he was employed to drive a certain automobile, for which he was promised a small consideration. There were five or six men in the party, and the applicant was ordered to drive the car to a certain address in Philadelphia and was threatened with bodily harm if he disobeyed. A robbery was committed at that address and the applicant was compelled to drive the car speedily from the place of the crime. After protestations on his part, he was compelled to accept eighty dollars, whereupon the men disappeared. He made no complaint to the police officers or others fearing bodily harm from the perpetrators of the crime.

The ownership of the automobile, as evidenced by its license tax, was in the person who engaged the applicant to operate it on the night of the robbery. This owner was arrested, but the trial resulted in his acquittal. Only one of the members of the gang was ever arrested and he is now confined in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

The applicant has never heretofore been accused of any crime, and many letters have been filed with the Board averring the prisoner's reputation for honesty. He has now been confined for about seven months.

Under all the circumstances, we are impelled to the conclusion that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Ellis Marks.

Sir: At No. 116, September Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Berks County, Richard A. DoErr pleaded guilty to an indictment charging arson. On September 11, 1917, he was sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred dollars, the costs of prosecution and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a minimum term of three years and a maximum term of twelve years.

The applicant is a Physio-Therapist, and had an office fitted with the appliances of his profession on the second floor of a building in Reading, and his residence on the third floor of the same building. Early one morning fire was discovered in the office rooms, resulting in very little damage other than the entire destruction of the applicant's office equipment and furnishings. The investigation by the Insurance Company resulted in the arrest of the applicant and his wife. No direct evidence of the applicant's guilt could be had, but he, after much questioning, finally consented to plead guilty on the condition that the prosecution of his wife should not be pressed. She was subsequently permitted to go free under a suspended sentence.

The applicant has never heretofore been accused of any crime. He has now been confined about two years and six months.

We are of the opinion that he has been sufficiently punished and that a pardon will conduce to his better future

Sir: At No. 294, November Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia County, Harold D. Jacobs and Edward Rost March pleaded guilty to an indictment charging larceny. On November 17, 1919, each was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of three years.

About noon one Sunday the applicants, both sailors with exceptionally meritorious war records, but on this day intoxicated, took possession of an automobile parked on the street and drove it to Baltimore, Md. They visited the home of March's mother, and after driving her and her daughter about the City of Baltimore started to return to Philadelphia. On the way back the automobile collided with another, resulting in the applicants' arrest. The larceny of the car was thus discovered, and the boys were taken to Philadelphia and their indictment and sentence followed.

The District Attorney recommends clemency, and is of the opinion that the larceny amounted to nothing but a drunken prank, and that these sailors were victims of that demoralization which immediately followed the cessation of war activities, and when sailors stationed at the Navy Yard had a great deal of leisure time. The applicants have now been confined more than five months.

We believe that under the circumstances of the case they have been sufficiently punished, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Harold D. Jacobs and Edward Rost March.

Sir: At Nos. 304 and 315, September Sessions, 1915, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Allegheny County, Thomas G. Forney was sentenced on indictments respectively charging felonious assault and battery and conspiracy. He pleaded guilty to the former and entered a plea of nolle contendere to the latter. Cumulative sentences were imposed on October 27, 1915. The applicant is now on parole, but the maximum term will not expire until 1923.

At the time of his arrest the petitioner was practicing law and was married to the daughter of the prosecutor. He and his father-in-law had been at various times jointly interested in business transactions, which necessitated frequent traveling by both of them between Washington, D. C., their home, and the City of Pittsburgh, Pa. The petitioner after numerous requests finally demanded payment from his father-in-law for professional services which he, the petitioner, had rendered him. This demand was refused. In an attempt to effect a compromise or settlement, the petitioner accompanied by three or four companions, whom he alleges he took along as witnesses, met his father-in-law in a hotel at Pittsburgh. A stormy interview took place resulting in the prosecutor being assaulted by one of the son-in-law's companions.

The applicant, with the permission of the authorities of the Penitentiary, is now engaged in business in the City of Detroit, Michigan, and is also following at that place the practice of his profession. He alleges he is handicapped by reason of his criminal record, and that business associates object to being connected with one who has impending a possible future prison term for the violation of a parole. The applicant is thirty-one years of age and is now residing with his parents.

We are of the opinion that Executive clemency would tend to restore this man to his self-respect and conduce to his usefulness as an American citizen, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Thomas G. Forney.

Sir: At No. 5, February Term, 1915, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Washington County, Mercurio Pati was convicted of murder in the second degree. On February 16, 1915, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of ten years and a maximum term of twenty years.

The applicant is an Italian, and on the day of the commission of the crime was walking along one of the streets of the Borough of Washington with three other Italians. A controversy arose over money. The petitioner testified that the deceased had demanded money of him under penalty of death; that he, the petitioner, refused, whereupon the deceased put his hand in his pocket. The petitioner then drew a knife, lunged at him twice, both blows piercing the heart. It was admitted that the deceased, when found, had his right hand in one of his pockets clutching an automatic revolver. The jury found that the defendant, notwithstanding this testimony, was the aggressor.

It is conceded that the petitioner, prior to his arrest, had always borne a good reputation. Letters have been presented to the Board from his former employer, and from numerous other reputable citizens, that he was a sober, industrious, and law-abiding person. The District Attorney who tried the case for the Commonwealth agrees that this is the fact. The deceased, according to the statement of the trial District Attorney "did not work steadily, did not bear a very good reputation, and after his death there were many reports that he had extorted money." Both the trial District Attorney and the present District Attorney have written that they interpose no objection to a pardon.

The applicant has now been confined for more than five years. Under the circumstances of the case we are of the opinion that he has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Mercurio Pati.

Sir: At No. 285, June Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of the County of Philadelphia, Luigi Negri alias Ligin Negri was convicted on an indictment charging arson. On June 13, 1918, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of five years and a maximum term of six years.

The applicant is an Italian, aged about thirty-four years. He was given to the excessive use of intoxicants, and for some time prior to his conviction had not been living with his wife because of her alleged infidelity. Evidence was submitted at his trial that he had entered a dwelling house about midnight and had thrown several lighted matches about the stairway, resulting in the building catching fire. The applicant insisted at the trial that he had not committed any crime, but on cross-examination admitted he was in the house in an intoxicated condition and that while he struck matches to light his pipe, he had no intention of burning the dwelling. The jury, however, disbelieved his testimony.

The applicant has never heretofore been convicted of any crime. The City Fire Marshal, who made the information, has written that he interposes no objection to the application. The Trial Judge has written, inter alia, as follows: The Trial Judge has written, inter alia, as follows:

"I have gone over the record of the trial of Luigi Negri, having read the stenographic report, and in the light of the information that you have given me, have had sufficient investigation made of him and his standing in the community prior to the offense for which he was committed to satisfy my mind that the sentence imposed was probably too severe. At the time of the trial, however, there was somewhat of an epidemic of arson, and my purpose was to assist the Commonwealth in breaking up the practice.

"Under the circumstances, I feel that probably the man has been sufficiently punished by the imprisonment of a year and a half which he has now undergone, and I am strongly of opinion that had I committed him to Moyamensing Prison, I would at this time parole him. Since this cannot be done for the reason that he was sent to the Penitentiary, I give you permission to inform the Board of Pardons that favorable action upon your petition in his behalf would meet with my approval.

Very truly yours,

NORRIS S. BARRATT."

By reason of the foregoing, we are of the opinion that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Luigi Negri, alias Ligin Negri.

Sir: At No. 781, September Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Schuylkill County, Joe Palumbo and Ralph Palumbo were called for trial on an indictment charging murder, along with three other defendants. The District Attorney's offer to accept a plea of guilty of manslaughter, first refused by the applicants, was later accepted, on the advice of counsel, when their co-defendants threatened to take the stand and swear that they, the petitioners, committed the murder. On September 4, 1918, they were sentenced each to pay a fine of one hundred dollars and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of not less than eleven nor more than twelve years. Ralph's sentence was later reduced to five years.

The night of the killing the petitioners and their co-defendants congregated at a store, when one of the latter was heard to threaten bodily harm to the deceased. Later that evening, after the Palumbos had left, deceased and a companion joined the crowd. The deceased and his companion suggested that they go up the mountainside, where they would relate some of their escapades. On the way up the mountain a fight ensued, in which the deceased was killed with a rock and his companion was injured with a hatchet. The co-defendants were arrested shortly after the commission of the crime, on the description of the injured man. The petitioners do not seem to have been brought into the case until about six months later. No convincing evidence of their connection with the offense appears.

Mr. Harvey J. Smith, at that time a member of the State Constabulary, investigated the case with much detail, and in a communication to the Board states, inter alia, as follows:

"In my investigation I finally learned that the Palumbo brothers had been at Bell's store early in the eve of the murder and having stated this to the prisoners they then began to implicate the Palumbos and they were arrested within twenty-four hours after their names were mentioned. I do not believe that the Palumbo boys were guilty. In conclusion in answer to your second request for my opinion as to whether the Palumbos should be pardoned I unhesitatingly answer yes."

Sometime after their sentence Mr. Smith was at the Penitentiary, when one of the petitioners' co-defendants told him he would like to make a statement. All the defendants were summoned and Frank Scianna, one of the co-defendants, being sworn, stated, inter alia, as follows:

"The Palumbo brothers had no connection with the murder and they were not on the hill at the scene of the crime at the time of its commission."

Frank DelDucca, another co-defendant, swore, inter alia, as follows:

"When up at the mine hole I heard some kind of a noise behind me. When I turned around I saw Domenick Ingenure fall down. Then I turned around and I saw Luigi who had a hatchet in his hand. As far as I know Joe and Ralph Palumbo did not have anything to do with this crime."

Luigi Scianna, another co-defendant, then swore, inter alia, as follows:

"On the night of March 19th, 1918, at which time Carmine Bardisciana was murdered on a hill at a place known as the Rocks, near Shenandoah, Pa., and also at the time when Domenick Ingenure, who was struck on the head and leg with a hatchet in my hands, the two brothers, Joe and Ralph Palumbo, were not present at that time and I do not know them to have any connection with the crime."

These affidavits were made voluntarily, and so far as can be ascertained without ulterior purpose.

Under the foregoing circumstances, we are of the opinion that these cases merit Executive clemency, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joe Palumbo and Ralph Palumbo.

Sir: At No. 6, September Term, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Somerset County, James Albright, thirty-one years of age, single and the sole support of his aged parents, pleaded guilty to the crimes of resisting an officer and mayhem.

On the morning of July 13, 1916, in company with Vasil Drabich and a Mr. MacMurdy, the petitioner went to a hotel at Meyersdale, Pennsylvania, where they drank a considerable amount of liquor, and started for a visit to some other friends east of Meyersdale. While on their way they became involved in some difficulties and MacMurdy took a sum of money from Drabich and divided it with the petitioner. MacMurdy fled from the jurisdiction of the Court and has never been heard of since.

The petitioner remained about his home in Meyersdale until the following day when the constable attempted to arrest him on a warrant. The petitioner, still under the influence of the liquor attempted to bite the constable, and successfully resisted arrest. The following day the constable placed the applicant under arrest and conveyed him to the office of the Justice of the Peace where he pleaded guilty and was committed to jail. The Grand Jury rendered a true bill as to the charge of assault and battery and robbery, and also a true bill as to the charge of resisting an officer and mayhem. The defendant pleaded guilty to both indictments. In the first case, the charge being assault and battery and robbery, and the money having been returned to Drabich, the Court suspended sentence. Upon the charge of resisting an officer and mayhem the Court admitted the defendant to parole. Some time subsequent the defendant again became intoxicated and was arrested for the violation of his parole, and on March 1, 1917, he was sentenced to pay a fine of five dollars ($5.00) and to undergo a term of imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary of Pennsylvania for not less than four years and not more than six years.

The District Attorney at the time of the sentence, has written the Board as follows:

"On September 13, 1916, a true bill was found by the Grand Jury of Somerset County, charging James Albright on the First Count with Assault and Battery and on the Second Count with Resisting an Officer or Obstructing Process. There was no Mayhem whatever in the case, so the Grand Jury did not indict him on this charge. Before trial, defendant entered a plea of guilty and was paroled in accordance with the Act of 1911, P. L. 1055. On March 1, 1917, defendant was brought in for a violation of his parole and was sentenced to pay the costs, a fine of five dollars and undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for not less than four years nor more than six years. As I recall now, the violation of the parole consisted in drunkenness and disorderly conduct. It seems some error has been made in the sentence, for the maximum period of imprisonment on each count of the indictment is one year. There was no sentence for mayhem. The Court may have meant to sentence the defendant on a charge of Robbery, having entered a plea of guilty to said charge on September 13, 1916. But the record shows that sentence was suspended on this charge, and the defendant paroled on the above charge and afterwards sentenced for a violation of his parole as above set forth. I was always of the opinion that the sentence was for the crime of robbery. But the records do not so show.

"I am not resisting the pardon because of the illegality of sentence and because of the enfeebled and helpless condition of his aged parents. Excessive use of intoxicating liquors has been the ruin of this young man and at the bottom of his crimes."

In a subsequent communication the District Attorney concludes:

"I feel no hesitancy in recommending to your Honorable Board that he be pardoned."

The petitioner's parents have been, as above stated, dependent upon him for their support. The petitioner's mother is afflicted with an incurable disease, and an affidavit of her physician sets forth that her duration of life cannot exceed a few months.

In view of the foregoing the Board is impelled to the belief that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said James Albright.

Sir: At No. 480, December Term, 1917, of the Court of Quarter Sessions, for the County of Philadelphia, Joseph Friel was convicted of larceny and was, on April 30, 1918, sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of not less than two years, nine months, and not more than three years.

No notes of testimony were taken at the trial of the case but the following facts, sworn to by the petitioner, were agreed to as being correct:

"I was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at their Camden yards, and on November 16, 1917, Daniel Raybould asked me to accompany him to a house of a friend of his in Philadelphia 1534 North Street. While we were at the house only a short time, it was surrounded and raided by detectives of the Philadelphia Police Department. I aver that I knew Raybould only because I was an associate workman for the railroad, that I did not know that he had been connected with any thefts of I would not have gone with him, that I did not know who the tenant of the house was or for what purpose it was being used. I further aver that Raybould, who could prove my innocence, was drafted into the National Army and has since died in France. I went with Raybould to the house at 1534 North Street only because he asked me to go with him as he stated he was going to see a friend. I did not know who this friend was and would never have gone with him if I had known that there was anything illegal going on.

When I was arraigned for a further hearing, the Camden authorities lodged a warrant against me and Raybould for larceny and I was held in $800.00 bail. At the time of my arrest, there were arrested two others besides myself and Raybould. I was not acquainted with the above two men who were also convicted and did not know they were engaged in illegal acts or I would not have gone with Raybould to the house on North Street, Philadelphia."

All the defendants in the case, four in number, were tried together. If the petitioner had been tried separately and had been able to avail himself of the testimony of the witness, who was in the Army, his acquittal would undoubtedly have resulted. The Judge who tried this case stated that he should have liked to have reduced the sentence, but could not do so after the expiration of the term for which the petitioner was sentenced. The Judge is now dead, but in view of the time served by the petitioner, we are inclined to agree with the statement that if he were now living he would favor Executive clemency.

Prior to this conviction the petitioner has never been accused of any crime and has always borne a good reputation.

The petitioner has agreed to contribute to the support of his sister's two children who are now maintained with difficulty, and if released a position as an elevator constructor will be given to him.

Under all the circumstances of this case, we conclude that it is one proper for the exercise of Executive clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph Friel.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Mercer County at No. 18, October Sessions, 1906, one Anebal Lombardi was convicted of murder of the first degree, and on October 21, 1908, the sentence of death was imposed.

On October 26, 1908, commutation was granted by Governor Edwin S. Stuart on a recommendation of the Board of Pardons. The material portion of the recommendation, which includes the circumstances of the crime is the following:

"The parties to the tragedy which resulted in the death of one of them, are natives of Italy. Pasquali Panelli, the deceased, and his wife, Marie, settled at Sharon, Pennsylvania. Later the defendant, a boy in his teens, came to Sharon, and by reason of having been a neighbor and friend of the Panellis abroad, made his home with them for three or four years. A younger brother came later, and he also made his home there. A few months before the tragedy they changed their boarding place to the house of Returno, a brother of Mrs. Panelli, living nearby. The boys were frequent visitors at the Panelli home. About midnight, September 12, 1906, the prisoner went to the railroad roundhouse to learn the cause of some trouble his younger brother had with a workman there. While talking to the latter, Panelli, who also worked on the night turn, was seen spying, which provoked the prisoner to say something in disapproval of Panelli's conduct. Panelli became furiously enraged, pursued the prisoner from the roundhouse, and, not overtaking him, went to his house, got a gun, and returned to the roundhouse. There he met Luigi Returno, a brother of his wife. Shortly thereafter Panelli and Returno were seen, the former with a revolver and the latter with a club, and were overheard plotting to go to the boarding house of the prisoner to kill him in his bed. His brother who had heard the plotting informed the prisoner of the murderous intent, and he remained away from his room and slept on a neighbor's porch. Later in the night Panelli returned to the roundhouse and said to the prisoner's brother: 'Luigi Returno and I went to Anebal's room to kill him, but he got word and was not there; but we will get him yet.' Luigi Returno admits this.

Sometime near noon of September 13th, the prisoner stopped at the house of Luigi Returno to drink a bottle of beer, obtained from his wife. He was sitting on the fence when Panelli and Luigi came to him. Panelli was quarrelsome, but Luigi interfered and prevented a fight. The prisoner went into Luigi's house for another bottle of beer; saying to Panelli that he had better go home and sleep. Panelli went home. The prisoner visited some friends near by until three o'clock, P. M., when he started for his boarding house. The road he followed led by Panelli's. As he passed slowly Panelli called to him to go right on. The prisoner said that he was on the public road, but he wanted to be his friend as he had always been. Panelli then said: 'Come in then, if you want to be my friend.'

The prisoner then went onto the porch where Panelli was, and said he had gone to the roundhouse last night, not to disturb him, but to find out why his brother was licked. Panelli said that no apology would be received, and rushed in at the kitchen door. Very soon the prisoner heard a scuffle and, stepping inside the door, saw Panelli with a gun and his wife holding his arm. The gun was discharged, the shot lodging in the wife's leg near the knee. The prisoner wrested the gun from Panelli, put it in his pocket, and went out of the house. He then heard the wife scream, 'Let him go; let him go.' He then saw Panelli following him, only thirteen and a half feet away with another gun. The prisoner instantly drew the gun he had taken from Panelli and fired three shots at him, in quick succession, one of which killed him. Two of the shots went wild".

We quote the letter written the Board by the Honorable A. W. Williams, the trial Judge:

"Mercer, Pa., August 26, 1908.

To the Honorable the Board of Pardons:

Gentlemen: I have been requested by a number of persons to write you in the interest of Anebaldo Lombardi, who is now awaiting execution in this County for murder.

I very much doubt the propriety of my writing you at all; but it may not be improper for me to say that during the trial of the case, and in submitting it to the jury, I felt that the evidence would warrant conviction of murder either of the first or second degree, according to which theory of the case should be accepted by the jury; the theory of the Commonwealth or that of the defense.

The jury evidently accepted the theory of the Commonwealth, and returned a verdict of murder in the first degree.

Had the verdict been murder of the second degree I would have considered that the verdict was warranted by the evidence, and that substantial justice had been done.

Under the law and evidence, however, I could not see my way clear to set aside the verdict of the jury by granting a new trial; and, of course, I had no discretion in the matter of imposing sentence.

The case as it now stands is a proper one for the consideration of your Board, and it would be improper for me to say anything to influence your action one way or the other.

My information is that the prisoner, who is a young man, about twenty-one years of age, had previously borne a good reputation, and that he has been a model prisoner ever since his confinement in jail. There seems to be considerable public sentiment in his favor, and if your Board could see its way clear to commute his sentence to life imprisonment your action would be approved by a great many people.

Respectfully,

A. W. WILLIAMS."

A further communication has been received from the Judge who tried the case in which, after referring to the communication above quoted, continues as follows:

"Assuming that his defense did not rise higher than murder in the second degree, and very strong reasons were urged in support of that view of the case after his conviction it seems to be the general opinion of people having knowledge of the case that Mr. Lombardi had been sufficiently punished for the crime committed.

Had he been convicted of murder in the second degree and given the maximum sentence for that offense, twenty years, his behavior during his imprisonment would have entitled him to the commutation provided by the Act of May 11, 1901, then in force, which would have reduced the term of his confinement to about eleven years and five months. Hence, Mr. Lombardi has already undergone imprisonment longer than he would have been confined had he been convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced for the full term of twenty years, the limit for such offense. I am, therefore, of the opinion that his application for a pardon should be granted.

Respectfully yours,

A. W. WILLIAMS."

The now President Judge of this County has also written a letter in which he states that he had much to do with preparing the testimony in the case, and that if the attorneys for the then defendant had tried their case on the theory that the murder was one of second degree instead of attempting to satisfy the jury that the killing was in self defense, and that therefore, an acquittal should be had, there could have been no doubt that no verdict higher than manslaughter or murder of the second degree could have ensued. The Judge referred to concludes his letter as follows:

"In view of all the circumstances in this case, as I remember them, I am of the opinion that the ends of justice would be satisfied if your Board should see fit to pardon him."

The District Attorney who prosecuted the case has also written urging a pardon, and the present District Attorney has written stating he has no reason to interpose any objection.

Under the foregoing we are of the opinion that the petitioner's case could have been presented to the jury in a manner which would have justified it in rendering a verdict no higher than murder of the second degree; and had such a verdict been in fact given the petitioner would have served at the present time practically the entire minimum sentence. The petitioner has now been confined eleven years and six months. We are impelled to the conclusion that he has been sufficiently punished.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Anebaldo Lombardi.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lehigh County, at Nos. 138 and 141, January Sessions, 1919, one George Mercer, a silk weaver, without the advice of counsel, pleaded guilty to the crimes of attempted larceny and malicious mischief. Prior to his arraignment, his sisters called upon the Chief of Police with a view to the employment of counsel, and were advised that under the circumstances of the case, such employment was not necessary. He was sentenced on March 17, 1919, to pay fines aggregating ten dollars a month, the costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for a period of one year and six months. The following were the circumstances of the crime:

At about 6:30 P. M. on the Saturday of his arrest, the petitioner, while under the influence of liquor, and while traveling along the main street of the City of Allentown, in the heart of its business section, lost his balance and fell to the ground. In falling, he struck and broke a large plate glass window of a pawn broker's establishment. The noise attracted the attention of the Chief of Police who happened to be on the opposite side of the street, and who immediately crossed, assisted the petitioner to his feet, and conveyed him to the city lockup. He was detained there until Monday when he was charged with the crimes before stated. The following Wednesday he pleaded guilty before the committing magistrate, and on March 17, sentence was imposed.

Subsequently counsel was employed for the purpose of securing a modification of the sentence or for permission to withdraw the plea, enter a plea of not guilty and to stand trial. This application of counsel was refused by the court because it had not been made during the term in which the sentence was imposed.

The petitioner has paid the cost of replacing the window. At no time did he attempt to steal any property. He has never heretofore been charged with any crime. The Board is in receipt of a communication from the Vice Chancellor of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, in which he states that he has known the applicant for some years, and has been intimately acquainted with his family for a long time; that the petitioner has never heretofore been arrested, but that he has been accustomed to indulge too freely in intoxicating liquors.

This, in our opinion, is simply a case where an intoxicated man fell against the window with sufficient force to break it. There is no evidence of an intent on his part to commit the crimes with which he was charged. Had he stood trial, an acquittal must have necessarily resulted. Under all the circumstances of the case, Executive clemency should be granted.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said George Mercer.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Erie, at No. 28, November Sessions, 1918, a certain Heiman Moritz, sixty-five years of age, and theretofore bearing a good reputation, pleaded guilty to the crime of receiving stolen goods. On November 8, 1918, he was sentenced to pay a fine of ten dollars, the costs of prosecution, to restore the property taken, or pay the value thereof, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of one year and five months, and a maximum term of three years.

The value of the goods received was approximately thirty dollars. The petitioner has now been confined about seven months. The Judge who sentenced the petitioner has written the Board as follows:

"The more I think of this sentence, the more I believe it too severe; and, that a sentence of five or six months would have been enough, and I am writing this letter to inform you that my Secretary, Ray S. Holbrook, Esq., is making an application for a pardon for him, and that I recommend that such pardon be granted; and, that the notices required to be given to the Mayor, head of Police Department, and the Judge who tried the case, the District Attorney and Sheriff, are deemed unnecessary in this case for the reason that appended to this letter is a recommendation from all of them; that the prayer of the petitioner be granted."

The request for clemency is signed by the officials above named.

We are of the opinion that the convict has been sufficiently punished for his crime.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," now recommend that a pardon be granted to the said Heiman Moritz.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Dauphin County, at No. 8, January Sessions, 1911, a certain John Parker was indicted and found guilty of murder of the second degree. On March 25, 1911, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of five years and a maximum term of twenty years. The circumstances of the crime were the following:

Shortly after midnight on October 29, 1910, the petitioner while on his way home met a boy with whom he had previously had some trouble. A fight ensued and the petitioner was knocked down. He regained his feet and started toward his home. Warner, his adversary, followed him, struck him a second time, and again knocked him down. The petitioner, when he regained his feet, drew a revolver and fired intending, according to his statement, to wound Warner in order that no further harm would be suffered at his hands. The bullet missed its object but struck a man, who, having heard the disturbance, had come to the door to ascertain its cause. The petitioner, after the shooting, went to his home ignorant of the fact that he had killed anyone. The next day he was arrested, and his trial, conviction and sentence resulted.

The applicant has never heretofore been charged with any crime; he has always borne a good reputation, and has now been confined approximately seven years. He is now on parole, but we believe the granting of a pardon would increase his self respect and conduce to his good citizenship. We believe this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted for John Parker.

Respectfully submitted,

Board of Pardons.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 27, 1919.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace, in and for the County of Philadelphia, Nos. 306, 307 and 308, April Sessions, 1912, one John Rogaski pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with burglary, and was by the said court, on April 22, 1912, sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten nor more than twenty years.

The crime for which Rogaski was sentenced was committed in conjunction with one Barney McElhatton, and all the circumstances of the robberies which surrounded McElhatton's case are equally applicable to the case of Rogaski.

At a prior meeting of the Board of Pardons, a petition was presented for the pardon of McElhatton, and the pardon was recommended to your Excellency on February 19, 1919. The reasons which impelled the Board to such a recommendation were the following:

"There was no testimony taken at the trial of the petitioner, but the admitted facts showed that all the offenses were committed in the neighborhood in which the defendant lived and covered a very sort period of time. The total value of the goods alleged to have been taken in the twelve Bills of Indictment amounts to less than $250.00, and all the testimony showed that it was the work of a sneak thief and not an armed burglar, and in no case was there any intimidation or threats of danger or violence to the occupants of the premises.

We quote below a letter from Honorable Howard A. Davis, the judge who tried the case:

"To the Honorable the Members of the Board of Pardons of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Sirs: As the trial judge sitting in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia, April 22, 1912, I sentenced the above named defendant on twelve bills of indictment, charge burglary, to which the defendant pleaded guilty. It appears from the testimony that the defendant had entered a number of dwelling houses and stolen certain articles. It further appears that he had a criminal record prior to his indictment upon these bills. He was sentenced to a term of not less than fourteen years nor more than twenty years in the Eastern Penitentiary. He had served nearly seven years of that term.

I am informed by the Probation Officer of the City of Philadelphia that the defendant has been a model prisoner and that his imprisonment has been of vast benefit to him morally and intellectually; that he is now 31 years of age; his mother is a widow; and would be dependent to a great extent upon the support of this son.

From the information I have received I feel that the ends of justice have been served by the term of the imprisonment which defendant has undergone in the penitentiary. If no further facts appear to the contrary and the application for pardon meets with the approval of your Honorable Board, I have no objections to a favorable disposition of the petition.

The prisoner has already served nearly seven years of his sentence. The value of the goods stolen did not exceed $250.00. Considering the value of the goods taken, we believe he has been sufficiently punished."

The foregoing reasons are equally applicable to the present case.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Rogaski.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Fayette County, at No. 11, September Term, 1918, one R. A. Whitting, a colored man, was found guilty of murder of the first degree, and on December 31, 1918, was sentenced to die.

The circumstances of the crime are briefly as follows:

The petitioner, a laborer at a coke works in Fayette County, lived in a company house with a woman not his wife. She left him saying she was going to Morgantown to secure employment, but two weeks later, availing herself of the applicant's invitation made at the time of her departure, she returned, arriving on Saturday, the day before she was killed.

The following day the woman went to a neighbor's for dinner, and returned while the applicant was out buying some groceries. He returned, unlocked the front door and asked her to stop drinking, she having imbibed somewhat freely the night before, and also just before her return to his house this particular morning. She made some joking reply and went into the bedroom. The petitioner followed her, and going into the kitchen deposited his groceries, picked up a gun, pointed the barrel around the corner of the bedroom and fired.

There seems to have been no evidence of any verbal altercation between the man and the woman whatever. After the shooting the woman ran out of the room, and the petitioner, thinking that he had only frightened her, continued to work about the kitchen. Learning that she had been shot, he hurried to her assistance, called for aid, and with the help of another man, carried her back into the house. He continually asserted he had no intention of killing her; hurried to apply what he thought would be helpful medicine, and generally showed extreme remorse. He asserted that with her dead his life was not worth living, and attempted to commit suicide. He was seized before he could carry out his intent and placed under arrest.

A few years before the commission of this crime the petitioner was confined in the insane ward at Marshall Sea for approximately six months, and the records of that institution show a diagnosis of his case to be a form of insanity. There have been filed with the Board affidavits of two jail doctors stating that the applicant is now in the third and last stage of syphilis, and that the probable duration of his life is not more than two years. The District Attorney has written stating that he does not oppose commutation.

By reason of the foregoing this is a proper case for commutation, in our judgment.

We therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that the sentence of death imposed upon R. A. Whitting be now commuted to imprisonment for life.

Sir: At No. 18, March Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Butler County, Walter A. Dress, twenty-six years old, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging burglary, larceny and aggravated assault and battery.

On February 8, 1917, he was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution, a fine of one hundred dollars, restore the goods to the owner, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of three years. In August, 1917, he escaped and all efforts to discover his whereabouts were futile. It has since developed that he enlisted in January of the following year in the United States Army, sailed as a part of the American Expeditionary Forces, returned to the United States in 1919, and was honorably discharged in April of that year. While stationed in England, he married and his wife returned with him and they resided for some time in California. Reproached by his conscience and acting upon the advice of his wife, to whom he had confided his criminal record, he returned to Pittsburgh in 1920 and surrendered himself to the Warden. The expenses of his return were paid from his own earnings and the prison authorities had no intimation of his whereabouts until he appeared and surrendered.

He was taken before the court and convicted of escape from prison, but at the request of the Warden of the Western Penitentiary sentence was suspended. Prior to the conviction on which he was sentenced, the petitioner was never accused of any crime. He has been in actual confinement almost ten months. The Warden of the Western Penitentiary appeared before the Board and earnestly urged clemency by reason of the voluntary return of this petitioner.

We are of the opinion that prisoners, who in moments of weakness yield to a temptation to flee their place of confinement, but who in the afterward, when sober reflection brings out their better selves, repent and desire to return, should not be deterred by any policy which would impel them to the belief that they had forfeited all right to any consideration of leniency and that they would be dealt with harshly and to the full extent of the law, no matter how exemplary might be their future conduct nor how sincere might be the effort to efface the stigma of their breach of trust. Each case must stand on its own merits and if sufficient punishment has been suffered, or if other circumstances should appear which would justify the exercise of clemency, we believe the fact that a man has escaped should not, in every case, operate as an unconditional forfeiture of all consideration for leniency. Under all the circumstances of this particular case, we are of the opinion that Executive clemency should be extended and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon for the crimes for which the petitioner was originally sentenced be granted to the said Walter A. Dress.

Sir: At Nos. 22, 23 and 24, July Term, 1917, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace for Clinton County, Preston Seyler and William H. Seyler, brothers, neither above the age of eighteen years, waived the finding of a true bill, and, upon being arraigned, pleaded guilty to the crimes of larceny and robbery. The defendants were sentenced cumulatively on each indictment to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of three years, or an aggregate minimum sentence of six years and an aggregate maximum sentence of nine years.

One of the crimes for which the boys were sentenced was the larceny of fourteen dollars and ten cents ($14.10) worth of merchandise; another was for stealing poultry valued at three dollars and seventy-five cents ($3.75); another was for stealing property valued at two dollars and fifty cents ($2.50). All the acts of the boys consisted of petty theft and robbery, and the total amount of property taken did not exceed fifty dollars.

The petitioners have now been confined for almost three years. The present District Attorney, who appeared as counsel for the boys, has written, urging clemency.

Considering the age of the petitioners at the time these petty crimes were committed, we are of the opinion that they have been sufficiently punished.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that pardons be now granted respectively to the said Preston Seyler and William H. Seyler.

Sir: At No. 106, August Sessions, 1912, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace for York County, C. C. Wire, forty years old, was convicted on an indictment charging felonious entry. On September 23, 1912, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of three years and a maximum term of ten years. At the expiration of his minimum term, he was released on parole but having violated the same was committed to the penitentiary on March 22, 1916. On April 27, 1917, he was again released on parole, but in October of that year he was found guilty of a crime of larceny and sentenced to an imprisonment in the county jail for a term of eight months. After serving this term, he was returned to the Eastern Penitentiary where he has been confined for a period of almost two years. The acts which constituted the petitioner's original offense were the breaking into a saloon and the taking of a quantity of cigars, tobacco and ice cream. There was some evidence at the time of the commission of this crime that the petitioner was under the influence of liquor. The first violation of his parole consisted in his becoming intoxicated. The petitioner denied and still denies that he is guilty of the crime of larceny for which he was sentenced to the county jail and which constituted the second violation of his parole. He pleaded not guilty but his trial resulted in a conviction.

The petitioner has been confined in the penitentiary and in the county jail for an aggregate period of five years and eight months. The Judge who sentenced the defendant, the District Attorney who tried him, the District Attorney now in office, the prosecutor and the Justice of the Peace who held the preliminary hearing, have all written to the Board recommending clemency. We are of the opinion that this petitioner has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said C. C. Wire.

Sir: At No. 452, June Sessions, 1914, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the County of Philadelphia, Adolph Koch pleaded guilty to an indictment charging subornation of perjury. On June 24, 1914, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Philadelphia County Prison for a term of three years and three months.

He was released on parole July 18, 1916, and the full term of his sentence has expired. The petitioner desires a pardon that he may be restored to his civil rights. The acts which constituted his offense were the making of certain fraudulent bail-bonds. An investigation of the District Attorney's office disclosed the fact that he had been used as a tool by the ringleaders in a conspiracy to obstruct justice. When apprehended he at once admitted his participation in the crime and assisted the District Attorney's office in every way in the subsequent trials and convictions resulting from the investigation.

The Petitioner has never heretofore been accused of any crime. Since the date of his parole, almost four years ago, he has been engaged in the real estate business in the City of Philadelphia, and has gained the respect of all who have become acquainted with him. Many letters have been filed with the Board urging clemency, and commenting on his good conduct and standing in his community. A representative of the District Attorney's office appeared personally before the Board, and recommended favorable consideration of the petition.

We believe a pardon restoring this man to his civil rights would conduce to his sense of self-respect and his future good citizenship. His conduct since his release upon parole, and his success in a legitimate business enterprise indicate his sense of respect for the law and his desire to be an asset to his community.

From the foregoing we are of the opinion that Executive clemency should be exercised, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Adolph Koch.

Sir: At No. 208, January Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lackawanna County, Omerigo Rogo, an Italian, twenty-six years of age, was found guilty on an indictment charging perjury, and on February 7, 1917, was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and a fine of $50.00, and to undergo imprisonment in the State Penitentiary for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of four years. The circumstances of the crime are briefly as follows:

Anthony Malinaro, a friend of the petitioner, was arrested on a warrant charging murder. On the trial of Malinaro, Rogo testified that he, Rogo, talked to the mortally wounded victim while the latter was being transferred from a carriage to an ambulance enroute to the hospital, where the victim, several weeks later, died. He said that the victim had told him that he had been shot with his own firearm. This testimony was important in that a plea of self-defense had been entered, and an effort was made to show that the defendant and his victim were engaged in a scuffle and that Malinaro seized the victim's revolver, which was discharged in the altercation.

Several witnesses for the Commonwealth testified that the petitioner was not present at the place at which he swore this conversation between him and the victim occurred. The petitioner has never heretofore been accused of any crime. He has now been confined for about fifteen months. He has a wife and children, who are in destitute circumstances.

Honorable George W. Maxey, former District Attorney, and now a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Lackawanna County, has written the Board as follows:

"I am already on record, in a letter dated September 11, 1919, as favoring the granting of a pardon to Omerigo Rogo. I was District Attorney at the time he was convicted, and I personally conducted his prosecution. The prosecution, conviction and sentence were all proper under the circumstances, and I believe they had a salutary effect. However, it is my opinion that no good purpose can be served by keeping Rogo longer in prison.

I think the case is one for the exercise of the merciful functions of the Board of Pardons. Rogo was undoubtedly imposed upon by stronger-minded and stronger-willed persons and became the tool of unscrupulous suborners of perjury, without adequate realization on his part of the enormity of the offense he was committing.

Rogo's record previous to his commission of perjury was good. He belongs to a respected Italian-American family and his brother is the chief of police of Old Forge, a borough of about ten thousand inhabitants, situated a few miles from Scranton. Rogo's own wife and family are very much in need of his support, and I am confident that no harm will be done the Commonwealth, or this county, or the cause of justice, if Rogo is now released from the penitentiary, where he has already suffered nearly fifteen months imprisonment."

In a subsequent communication, Judge Maxey states as follows:

"Supplementing the letters I have already written you on this application. I am authorized to say by Judge Barber, who sentenced Rogo, that he is not opposed to the granting of the pardon."

From the foregoing, we are of the opinion that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Omerigo Rogo.

Sir: At No. 1, April Term, 1900, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery for Elk County, Bruno Rizzo, an Italian twenty-four years old, when arraigned for trial on an indictment charging murder of the first degree stood mute, and the Court accordingly directed the entry of a plea of Not Guilty. His trial resulted in his conviction, and on April 7, 1920, the sentence of death was imposed.

The applicant lived with the parents of his victim, a young girl who had been promised to him in marriage. On the strength of this promise he had, from time to time, purchased various articles for the house and had made loans of money to her parents. The girl was not disposed to marry the petitioner, so informed him and requested him to seek another home. Disputes ensued between the petitioner and the girl's mother, which at times became violent. On the day of the commission of the crime the petitioner became enraged after one of these disputes, went to his room, threw a new Victrola and about fifty records out of a window and utterly destroyed practically everything he owned in the house. He then went into the yard and jumped on the victrola and records, stamping then to pieces. The mother of the girl came out and another verbal altercation followed. During this spirited altercation the victim, returning from the Post-Office, came through a gateway a short distance from the petitioner. When he saw her he drew a revolver, which he had had for some years, and fired several shots at her and she fell. He approached and standing over her shot again. He then walked away, threw the revolver into a creek, and went to Woodlawn, in Allegheny County, where he was apprehended.

Since his conviction and sentence he has been examined by Dr. H. W. Mitchell, Superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane, at Warren, Pa., and by Dr. J. M. Murdoch, Superintendent of the State Hospital for Feeble-Minded, at Polk, Pa. Both of these eminent men personally appeared before the Board and stated orally what they had substantially advised the Petitioner's Attorney in a communication of April 21, 1920, to-wit:

"We have not found him to be suffering from any form of actual mental disease that would justify the opinion that he was insane at the time of our examination, nor do we find that there is reason to believe that he has at any previous time suffered from insanity.

"We do find, however, that he is congenitally mentally defective, though he is physically a fairly well developed young man. He is densely ignorant, displays most primitive ideas of moral or ethical concepts and in response to the recognized psychological tests in common use for the purpose of determining the mental capacity of an individual, he does not show mental development beyond that commonly found in a child eight or ten years old.

"Either in control of his own affairs or in regulating his reactions to others, it is not to be expected that he would show more than childlike judgment or self control.

"We both are willing to render any aid possible in your proposed plea to the Board of Pardons for commutation of sentence to life imprisonment.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) H. W. MITCHELL,
Supt. Warren State Hospital for Insane,
Warren, Pa.

(Signed) J. M. MURDOCH,
Supt. State Institution for Feeble-Minded,
Polk, Pa."

We are of the opinion that under no conditions should this Petitioner ever be given his freedom. We are also impelled to the conclusion by the statements of these State officials, recognized authorities on mental derangements, that the death penalty should not be inflicted. The petitioner should be taken to the State Penitentiary of the proper district, where he will undoubtedly be transferred to a proper State institution for persons mentally defective. If he at any future date becomes possessed of his mental faculties to such a degree as to justify his discharge from such institution, he should be returned to the Penitentiary for the remainder of his natural life.

We, therefore, in order that the same may be effected, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that the sentence of death imposed on the said Bruno Rizzo be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At No. 17, November Sessions, 1911, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County, Amaza Colbert pleaded guilty to a charge of murder. The court, on testimony taken, fixed the degree as murder of the second degree; and, on December 9, 1911, sentenced her to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of five years, and a maximum term of twenty years. The circumstances of the crime were as follows:

The applicant, an orphaned colored girl, twenty-four years old, met the deceased, some years her senior and also colored, a few months before the commission of the crime. Smith, the deceased, courted her and by the use of fervent declarations of love and promises of marriage, seduced her. On the night of the commission of the crime, she was induced by Smith to come to his room in the hotel of which he was a bar-tender, and there informed her that he would not marry her. She requested him to take her home but he refused, saying he was too tired. He locked the door of his room, lay down on his bed and fell asleep. The applicant endeavored to arouse him and persuade him to let her out of the room, but her efforts were unavailing. Finally, about midnight, she took his revolver out of his holster which he wore strapped about his waist and shot him. She found the door key, left the room, and surrendered herself to the police.

The testimony at the trial of her case showed that she bore an excellent reputation as an industrious, honest, Christian girl. She has been on parole for more than three years and a half, and has conducted herself with the highest degree of propriety. At the time of the commission of her offense, she was educating herself at night school and upon her release on parole, she took up a course of education and is still pursuing it. The District Attorney has written the Board that he does not oppose a pardon and that under all the circumstances, he is inclined to believe that she has been sufficiently punished. We are of the opinion that a pardon will tend to reinstate the petitioner in her community and will conduce to her self-respect and future good citizenship.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Amaza Colbert.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 17, 1920.

Sir: At No. 19, September Term, 1915, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Cambria County, John William Brooks, thirty-five years of age, pleaded guilty to indictments charging robbery and receiving stolen goods. On December 15, 1915, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of five years and a maximum term of six years. He has now served over four years and five months of his sentence. His parents, both past seventy-two years of age, are financially destitute. Satisfactory evidence has been furnished the Board that the mother, by reason of the incarceration of her son, is on the verge of insanity. The Trial Judge has written the Board, inter alia, as follows:

"I further certify that because of circumstances which have since been brought to my attention, I believe that the petitioner has been sufficiently punished for the offence committed and that if a reformation in him is to be had, it would be well fixed in his mind at this time.

"Therefore, I would most respectfully recommend to your Honorable Board that the prayer of the petitioner be granted and that the said John William Brooks be pardoned from the sentence imposed.

Yours respectfully,

MARLIN B. STEPHENS,
President Judge, Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for Cambria County,
47th Judicial District of Pennsylvania."

We are impelled by the foregoing to the conclusion that this is a proper case for Executive clemency and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John William Brooks.

Sir: At No. 19, February Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of McKean County, Arch Turner pleaded guilty to an indictment charging voluntary manslaughter. On February 26, 1918, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of six years and a maximum term of seven years.

At the time of the commission of the crime he was fifty-six years old, and for about a week prior thereto had been under the influence of liquor to such an extent that he was suffering with delirium tremens. About noon on the day of the commission of the crime while lying on the bed, in a drunken condition, he shot a revolver at random and it killed his intimate friend. After the shooting he repeatedly called the deceased and asked him to accompany him to work. He made no effort to get away, and it was several days before he became conscious of the fact that he had shot and killed his companion. With the exception of being an excessive user of intoxicants, his reputation had always been good in the communities in which he has lived. The Judge who imposed the sentence has written the Board, inter alia, as follows:

"I have known Mr. Turner for many years prior to the time he got into this trouble, he was always an honest, hardworking, peaceable man, his only fault being that he was addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors. I am of the opinion that if he is pardoned under present conditions society will not be troubled again with Mr. Turner and that the ends of justice will be met."

The District Attorney writes as follows:

"In the matter of the application for the pardon of Arch Turner, the writer, upon information and knowledge of the facts, believes it proper for a pardon to be granted."

The applicant has now been confined for almost two years and six months.

We are of the opinion that under all the circumstances of the case he has been sufficiently punished, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Arch Turner.

Sir: At No. 56, September Term, 1916, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Erie County, Joseph Zavarella was convicted of murder in the second degree. On September 25, 1916, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of eleven years and six months and a maximum term of nineteen years.

The applicant labored under an overpowering fear and apprehension of danger caused by frequent threats on the part of the deceased that he, the deceased, intended to take the petitioner's life.

On the night before the commission of the crime the deceased renewed a quarrel with the petitioner, and made certain accusations against him. The applicant entered his house and locked the door, whereupon the deceased endeavored to break down the door and force an entrance into the building, at the same time daring the former to come out and stating, if he would not that he, the deceased, would shoot him in the morning. Early the next day Zavarella was accosted by the deceased, who, with vituperative remarks, struck the applicant in the face and reached toward his pocket, apparently to draw a weapon. The petitioner, fearing for his safety, drew his revolver and fired, with fatal results.

Prior to the commission of this crime, Zavarella bore an excellent reputation in his community. He has now been confined for approximately four years. His wife and four minor children are financially destitute. The District Attorney believes that a pardon should be granted.

We are of the opinion that the applicant, in view of the circumstances in the case, has been sufficiently punished, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph Zavarella.

Sir: At Nos. 83 and 83½, April Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Luzerne County, Enoch Baranowski alias Frank Baranowski was convicted on indictments charging robbery and pointing a pistol. On May 2, 1917, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of four years and a maximum term of five years.

On the night of the commission of the crime, the applicant, accompanied by another man, entered the engine room of the colliery of a coal company and at the point of a revolver demanded of the engineer his possessions. The engineer surrendered the sum of five cents, a flash-light and a pocket-knife, whereupon the applicant and his companion left the building. The time during which Baranowski has been incarcerated in the County Jail and the Penitentiary aggregates about three years and five months; his wife, his widowed mother and a thirteen year old brother have no income except that derived from the labor of the two women. The Assistant District Attorney who tried the case, and the District Attorney now in office, have written the Board recommending clemency. The engineer has stated in a recent communication that he was subjected to no violence of any kind.

We are of the opinion that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Enoch Baranowski alias Frank Baranowski.

Sir: At No. 1, September Term, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Somerset County, Guiseppi D'Orozio on the advice of counsel agreed to plead guilty to murder in the second degree. On September 16, 1916, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of twelve years, and a maximum term of fifteen years.

He boarded with the deceased, Leonardo Gregorio, the latter having a reputation in the community as a desperate and dangerous man, and who had frequently threatened the applicant with bodily harm.

On the day of the commission of the crime the applicant had received his pay and went to his boarding house for some clothing. He was followed out of the house by the deceased who began to make threats against him. The former began walking toward a railroad station where he had intended to board a train. The deceased intercepted him and continued with his threats and abuse, which became so violent that the applicant feared bodily harm, and fired with fatal results.

He has now been confined for almost four years; prior to the commission of the crime he bore an excellent reputation; since his incarceration he has learned the trade of silversmith and has become very proficient in the arts of that trade.

The District Attorney and the County Commissioners recommend a pardon. The Judge who imposed the sentence writes as follows:

"In reapplication of Guiseppi D'Orozio for pardon:

"The sentence in the above case was unusually severe. So far as I have been able to learn the defendant was in no trouble or infractions of the law previously. He has been a good prisoner as shown by the present record.

"I think under all the circumstances and in view of his conduct that the defendant has been sufficiently punished and should be conceded the leniency he seeks."

We are impelled to the belief that this is a proper case for the exercise of clemency, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Guiseppi D'Orozio.

Sir: At No. 32, September Term, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lebanon County, Charles Reddinger pleaded guilty to an indictment charging larceny of some chickens. On September 16, 1918, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of one year and six months and a maximum term of three years, "to commence and be computed from the 16th day of September, 1918." At the time of the commission of this offense the applicant was out on parole, having been convicted in 1912 of burglary and felonious entry of a school-house, and larceny therefrom of a bucket, some lead pencils, a clock, etc. On that conviction he had been sentenced to a minimum term of two and one-half years and a maximum term of ten years, and under a rule of the Attorney General's Department he would be compelled to serve out the full maximum term of his first sentence without eligibility for re-parole before beginning the second sentence.

The Trial Judge has written the Board as follows:

"To the Board of Pardons of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen: In September 1918 Charles R. Reddinger was sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary to serve not less than one year and six months and not more than three years, to be computed from September 16, 1918, upon a charge of larceny. I understand he was a paroled prisoner at the time of the imposition of this sentence and that about eight years of his prior sentence in 1912, remains unserved. The Attorney General's Department has given an opinion that under our Acts of Assembly relating to parole, this prisoner must serve the remaining eight years of his unexpired maximum sentence and thereafter the sentence as imposed by me on September 16, 1918. It was not my intention to effect any such result and its enforcement would be unduly harsh. Since the minimum of the second sentence as imposed and intended has now been served the application for a pardon does not seem to be amiss. The prisoner would then still be serving the remaining part of his first sentence and his discharge, owing to the violation of his parole, would be discretionary with the Penitentiary officials.

Yours very sincerely,

C. V. HENRY."

We are of the opinion that to compel the petitioner to serve both sentences in full would be an exceedingly severe punishment for the magnitude of the crime committed. In view of this fact and in view of the intention of the Judge as indicated by his letter, we, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Charles Reddinger.

Sir: At No. 30, April Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Chester County, Frank Johnson pleaded guilty to indictments charging assault and battery, and assault with intent to ravish. On April 30, 1919, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of three years.

This application for pardon is made by the District Attorney of Columbia County, State of New York, in order that Johnson may be extradited to that State, and placed on trial for the crimes of assault and highway robbery, a detainer having been lodged with the Eastern Penitentiary.

It appears that after Johnson had unsuccessfully tried by force to ravish a girl in Chester County, he went to New York and there, on the night of February 7, 1919, accompanied by three other persons, assaulted a man named Lansing and struck him with a weapon made of nuts from railroad rail bolts secured in a hat, with some sort of a handle attached thereto. Johnson left the State of New York and appeared in Chester County for sentence on the indictment found in that county, evidently for the purpose of escaping arrest and trial for the New York crime. After some weeks of rest and treatment, Lansing was able to aid in the apprehension of the perpetrators of the assault upon him. He was ultimately taken to the Chester County jail and there positively identified Johnson as one of his assailants. An indictment against Johnson has been found in New York. Two of the other perpetrators of the crime have confessed and have substantially stated that Johnson was the principal in the commission of the New York crime. Another person arrested in connection with this crime is held in New York awaiting the extradition of Johnson. To postpone the trial of Johnson until the expiration of his Pennsylvania sentence might be extremely prejudicial to the State of New York as Lansing is rapidly declining in health. His vision is greatly impaired, having lost entirely the sight of one eye; and his hearing is also greatly impaired, having lost entirely the use of one ear. An affidavit has been filed with the Board that his general physical condition is rapidly running down and disintegrating so that he has been compelled to give up his business and do nothing in the effort to regain health.

Under the foregoing, we believe, as a matter of comity between states, that a pardon should be granted in order that the accused may be extradited to the State of New York and be placed on trial for the serious offenses with which he is charged, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Frank Johnson.

Sir: At No. 101, December Sessions, 1915, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Berks County, Antonio Petrecia, an Italian, twenty-eight years old, was at first convicted of the crime of involuntary manslaughter and recommended to the mercy of the court. This verdict was not accepted and the court directed that it should find a verdict either of murder of the second degree of manslaughter, or of not guilty, whereupon a verdict of manslaughter was returned. On September 5, 1916, sentence was imposed, the minimum period of confinement in the Eastern State Penitentiary being two and one-half years, and the maximum, eight years.

On the day of the commission of the crime, and for some time prior thereto, the applicant and the deceased were employed at a stone-crushing plant. In addition to the work about the plant, the former had charge of a commissary where employes obtained food and provisions. On the day of the crime, the deceased, who had been drinking heavily for some time prior thereto and who had, about a week before, been kicked on the head by a horse in a blacksmith shop, came to the commissary and in the presence of some other workingmen, demanded drink. Petrecia refused as he was under the influence of liquor. According to Petrecia, the deceased then left and went to his shanty not far distant which he shared with a negro. A few hours later, he was found in his room, lying dead on the floor. An autopsy showed a fractured skull and a blood clot. The negro, roommate of the deceased, and the sole witness to incriminate Petrecia, became insane shortly before the trial while being detained in jail as a material witness. The symptoms of his insanity were violent delusions of people trying to kill each other, and of people trying to kill him. A few days before the trial, he was committed to a State Institution for the Insane but was produced in court when the petitioner's trial was called and testified that when the deceased, at the time instanced, was refused a drink by Petrecia, he, the deceased, insisted upon having a drink and that Petrecia then struck him on the head with a pick-handle, knocked him down, and that after that he was carried to his shanty. The witnesses present in the commissary at the time the deceased was refused a drink denied this.

The applicant heretofore has always borne a good reputation; he has been on parole for more than a year and has conducted himself in an exemplary manner. He has always maintained his innocence and we believe his guilt is doubtful, considering the mental condition of the witness on whose testimony he was found guilty. The petitioner desires a pardon not only because he maintains he is innocent, but because he wishes to marry and engage in business for himself, and because he also wishes to apply for naturalization.

We believe, that under all the circumstances of this case Executive clemency could be properly extended, and we, therefore," after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Antonio Petrecia.

Sir: At No. 1, January Term, 1909, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Clinton County, Frank Latempo was convicted of murder in the first degree. On recommendation of the Pardon Board under date of December 15, 1909, the sentence of death was commuted to life imprisonment. The circumstances of the case are briefly as follows:

The applicant's wife, running off with another man, left Latempo to take care of his three small children. He arranged with a Mrs. Curcio to temporarily take charge of them. Subsequently when he undertook to take his children away, Mrs. Curcio objected as she considered herself as being well paid for taking care of them. The applicant consulted an attorney and was advised to go to Mrs. Curcio, pay the board and take the children. When he arrived at the house the husband of Mrs. Curcio and several other men, including the deceased, were playing cards and drinking beer. The applicant neither joined the party in the game nor in the drinking. After a while a fight began among the players precipitated by the deceased's refusal to pay for some beer which he had ordered, which fight terminated in the deceased striking one of the others with a bottle. The deceased started to run from the house, and when he reached the back door a shot was fired which proved fatal. Mrs. Curcio, thinking her husband had been killed, accused the applicant, although there was no evidence that she saw him fire the shot.

The testimony taken at the trial leaves much doubt as to the guilt of this applicant. The Trial Judge has written the applicant, inter alia, as follows:

"Under the peculiar circumstances of your case, if you should decide at any time to make application for a pardon, I shall recommend that it shall be granted."

One of the Associate Judges has written the Board, inter alia, as follows:

"I wish to say that I was on the bench as one of the Associate Judges during that trial, and it was a very serious doubt in the minds of Judge Hall, Judge Bressler, who was also an Associate, and myself, as to his guilt, and I still feel that there was not sufficient evidence to convict him, and he should not have been convicted."

Judge Bressler has written that:

"After looking over the testimony we believe that you will agree with the Court that the man was not guilty. I can honestly recommend his pardon."

The District Attorney also writes in favor of the applicant.

Under all the circumstances of the case, we believe this is a proper case for clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Frank Latempo.

Sir: At Nos. 2 and 7, October Sessions, 1912, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the County of Allegheny, Anton A. Aggerbeck was convicted on two indictments for the crimes of fraudulent making and uttering of a written instrument.

On November 2, 1912, he was sentenced to an aggregate minimum term of six years, and an aggregate maximum term of ten years. He has served his full minimum sentence, and two-thirds of his maximum sentence has expired. He is now on parole. He desires a pardon that he may leave the State to visit his aged parents who are ignorant of his conviction and incarceration, and who continually ask to see him. His mother is now critically ill. He has made the application for the further reason that if it be granted, a responsible position will be given to him in the City of Chicago where he formerly resided. During his incarceration and while he has been out on parole, he has conducted himself in a commendatory manner. The present District Attorney, who was an assistant at the time of the applicant's conviction, and who prosecuted the case, writes as follows:

"Since his having served the minimum of six years of imprisonment and is now out on parole from the Western Penitentiary, and learning that he has led an honest and upright life and has an opportunity of obtaining a position of trust in the City of Chicago, we are not desirous, in any way, of taking the position which might interfere with him making a good citizen, and would therefore join in the application asking that he be granted a pardon at this time."

Several letters have been filed by prominent officials of the City of Chicago as to the former good character of the applicant.

We believe the petitioner has been sufficiently punished, and that a pardon would conduce to his future uprightness of conduct and to his own self-respect and good citizenship. Under all the circumstances of this case, we recommend "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," that a pardon be now granted to the said Anton A. Aggerbeck.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Armstrong County, at No. 1, June Sessions, 1916, Abe Dumber was charged with the crime of arson. A verdict of guilty was rendered, and on July 1, 1916, he was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000, the costs of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of seven years, and a maximum term of eight years. The following were the circumstances of the crime:

The defendant was engaged in the shoe business in the Borough of Kittanning. About January 1, 1916, he leased a store room in a village some distance removed, and shortly thereafter began to make shipments of boxes and cases to this place from his Kittanning store, and which were supposed to contain shoes and rubbers. The suspicion of the station agent at Kittanning having been aroused, he and a detective examined the contents of the cases and found them to contain shoe boxes, stuffed with paper and other materials, but containing no shoes or rubbers. The empty shoe boxes were placed on the shelves and in the windows of his leased premises, and gave the appearance of a shoe store well stocked. About two months after Dumber was placed under suspicion, a fire broke out in his village store and he was seen leaving the premises shortly thereafter. Certain statements and requests made by him in the village prior to the fire also directed suspicion as to his conduct. He was immediately arrested and notwithstanding his protestations of innocence, his trial and conviction followed. After the fire Dumber was forced into bankruptcy and his liabilities were found to greatly exceed his assets.

The petitioner has now served approximately three years of his sentence. His wife is in the first stages of epilepsy and her physician has stated, under oath, that unless the applicant is freed, the very strong probability is that her epilepsy will be incurable. The health of the applicant is greatly impaired; his throat and vocal organs have become diseased which may cause the complete loss of his voice, if not tuberculosis of the throat; he has practically lost the use of one of his eyes. The receiver in bankruptcy, the representative of the creditors, the chief prosecuting officer, and many reputable persons have joined in the application for clemency. The District Attorney who tried the case has written to the Board recommending a pardon.

Impelled by the foregoing reasons, we "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Abe Dumber.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lancaster County, at Nos. 35 and 36, November Sessions, 1918, Charles Jeffries, aged seventeen years, was indicted for larceny, and on November 9, 1918, was sentenced to imprisonment in the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory at Huntingdon, Pennsylvania.

The crime for which he was convicted consisted in taking several revolvers and watches from an employer on one occasion; and, on another occasion, articles such as razors, pocket-knives, fountain pens and wearing apparel, aggregating fifteen dollars in value. All the articles stolen have been recovered, or restitution made. The application is made by the defendant's guardian who has informed the Board that the defendant has lately inherited a sum of money which will aid him in acquiring a living. A brother-in-law has promised to look after the defendant after discharged, and will aid him in securing employment. The defendant has never heretofore been convicted of any crime. He is now in an incipient stage of tuberculosis. The Judge who tried the case has written to the guardian as follows:

C. H. RUHL, Esq.,
Berks County Trust Co.,
Reading, Pa.

My dear Mr. Ruhl:-

Judge Landis handed me your letter of April 8, which he reported he had answered. I sentenced Charles Jeffries to Huntingdon. I have never paroled a prisoner sent to Huntingdon, and I find on examination of the Acts of Assembly that I have no authority to do it. I believe it would be for the best interests of the boy to be paroled and taken into the home of his brother-in-law at Wilmington, Delaware, and if I had the authority to parole him I would do so. That power, in my opinion rests only with the Board of Inspectors, and your application will have to be made to them. I am perfectly satisfied that you shall use this letter of mine in connection with that application.

Yours truly,

A. B. HASSLER."

Under the foregoing circumstances, we believe this is a proper case for Executive clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Charles Jeffries.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Chester County, Pennsylvania, at January Sessions, 1918, Luigi Mouti and Samuel Talbert were convicted of aggravated assault and battery, and attempt to rob. On April 1, 1918, they were sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred ($100.00) dollars, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for not less than two nor more than three years.

The circumstances of the crime were the following.

The prosecutor was a shoemaker, carrying on his trade in the Borough of West Chester. On a certain evening, between eight and nine o'clock, two men came into the prosecutor's shop, assaulted him and attempted to commit robbery. He struggled with the men, but they escaped. An alarm was given and within a short time the two petitioners were arrested, as they were waiting in a trolley station a short distance west of West Chester, on the Coatesville trolley line for a car to take them to Coatesville. The petitioners claimed at the time of the trial and still assert that they are innocent. The Commonwealth at the time of the trial relied mainly upon the identification of the two petitioners by the shoemaker. No one else saw them in or near his place. When first arrested the shoemaker was positive in his identification, but at the hearing before the Squire and during the trial he expressed strong doubt as to whether these petitioners were the men who committed the crime. The petitioners resided in Coatesville for sometime; they were well known as law-abiding citizens, and they have never heretofore been convicted of any crime.

The District Attorney who tried the case has written to the Board, in which, after stating the facts surrounding the crime, he states:

"Since then however certain information has reached us which causes us to feel very doubtful whether these men were the persons who committed the crime, and the prosecutor himself has made open declarations to the effect that he was never sure in his own mind that these were the guilty parties. Under these circumstances justice compels us to say that we believe that these defendants should be given the benefit of the doubt and we accordingly recommend the pardon as prayed for."

By reason of the foregoing, we are impelled to the conclusion that this is a proper case for Executive clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Luigi Mouti and Samuel Talbert.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace for Philadelphia County, at No. 145 March Sessions 1918, Ike Orenstein, pleaded guilty to the charge of receiving stolen goods. On April 12, 1918, he was sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and six months, and a maximum term of three years.

A summary of the facts show that on January 30, 1918, detectives of the City of Philadelphia visited a certain premises in that city and there found one Philip Taylor and the petitioner packing some goods in preparation of hauling them away in a wagon which stood outside of the building. Among these goods was a bale of leather identified as having been in transit in the care of the Merchants and Miners Transportation Company, and having been stolen therefrom. The store in which the goods were found was not opened for business; the curtains were pulled down and the appearance of it was that it was closed. The owner of the property was unable to say who had rented his premises, but did testify that neither Taylor nor the petitioner was the one who had done so. Both Taylor and the petitioner, at the time of the former's trial testified that they had been hired by another man whom they could not identify, to come to the store and there pack some goods for removal. Both testified that they had no knowledge as to where the goods came from or who owned them, and that they had no other connection with them than as above described. Taylor was pardoned on a recommendation of the Board of Pardons in May, 1918. The District Attorney recommended that pardon and is not opposing the present application. The petitioner never secured or concealed any goods which were stolen. He has now served about a year and three months. The Vice-President of a reputable business concern has written the Board that if the petitioner be pardoned, he will furnish him with employment and look after his welfare.

We are impelled, under the foregoing facts, to the belief that the petitioner has been sufficiently punished, and, this in addition to the fact that Taylor has been pardoned "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", we recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Ike Orenstein.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Venango County, at No. 2, November Sessions, 1918, H. C. Vollman alias Harold Serrel, pleaded guilty to the crime of stealing an automobile and was, on October 3, 1918, sentenced to the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years, and three months; and a maximum term of two years and six months.

The facts surrounding the case are many and their recital in detail would serve no good purpose. The applicant pleaded guilty without the advice of counsel, motivated by the desire to avoid dragging the woman who owned the automobile into the proceeding, and by the belief that no prison sentence would be imposed. He alleged that the automobile was placed in his possession for the purpose of sale, with the right in him to use it until such sale had been effected. The owner of the car has filed an affidavit stating her disbelief of any intent on the part of the applicant to commit a crime. The District Attorney, concerning this affidavit, has written the Board, stating as follows:

"I will say that this is the first time that I have had an opportunity to learn her version of this matter, and will say further that in view of this testimony if produced on the trial of the case I would frankly inform the court and jury that in my opinion a conviction would not have been justified."

The petitioner has a wife and family and, since his incarceration, his wife has been compelled to earn a living. Impelled by the foregoing circumstances, we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be granted to the said H. C. Vollman alias Harold Serrel.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery for the County of York, at Nos. 2, 3 and 4, August Sessions, 1916, Frederick Wiseman, pleaded not guilty to the crimes of sodomy and buggery; rape, carnally knowing and abusing a woman child under sixteen years of age; and taking a female child for sexual intercourse.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty on all of the bills of indictments, and the following sentences were imposed. On the first indictment, a minimum term of five years and a maximum term of ten years to commence September 11, 1916. On the second indictment, a minimum term of five years and a maximum term of fifteen years to commence from the same time; and, on the third indictment, a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of five years to commence at the expiration of the second sentence. The place of commitment in all the sentences was to the Eastern Penitentiary.

Without a recitation of the circumstances of the crime, it appears that the conviction on the indictment for taking a female child for sexual intercourse is not supported by any evidence and the testimony of the girl's mother clearly shows that she had agreed to the employment of her daughter. On the other charges, a reputable surgeon testified that his physical examination of the child disclosed that she had not had sexual intercourse at all. The girl visited her mother a short time after the alleged inception of the intercourse, and did not complain about improper conduct by her employer. The mother, at the time of the trial, stated that her daughter did not always tell the truth. The petitioner has continually denied that he ever committed or attempted to commit the crimes for which he was found guilty. After he was sentenced, the applicant received a letter from the mother expressing absolute disbelief of her daughter's testimony at the trial, and regretting his unjust punishment.

The petitioner was defended by the now District Attorney, who has written recommending a pardon and stating as follows:

"I have talked this matter over with his Honor, President Judge Wanner, who tried the case, and he agrees with me that there was not sufficient evidence to convict him of felonious Rape or Sodomy, and that a conviction, perhaps of technical assault and battery with intent to ravish might have been the proper one, and that he has suffered punishment for what offence he committed.

"I think it is only fair to state that I defended this man at that time and I have never changed my opinion as to what ought to have been the proper conviction."

The District Attorney also appeared at the hearing and orally recommended Executive clemency.

The foregoing impel us to the belief that Executive clemency should be exercised in this case, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Frederick Wiseman.

Sir: At No. 384, July Sessions, 1908, in the court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County, Robert E. Brown, thirty-four years of age, unmarried, and a butcher by trade was convicted of murder in the first degree. On March 8th, 1909, the sentence of death was imposed, but on June 1 of that year it was commuted to life imprisonment. The circumstances of the crime were as follows:

For some time prior to its commission, the applicant and the deceased, a girl friend, had maintained an illicit sexual relation, which continued after her marriage and after she had separated from her husband seven or eight months later. She persisted against his wish in visiting him on all manner of occasions. At one time she went to his home and was ordered away after his mother discovered them in sexual intercourse; she interrupted him at his place of business so frequently and in such a manner that he was discharged from two positions. Repeated requests to her to desist from such visits were unavailing, and finally the applicant determined to bring them to an end by enlisting in the army.

On the night of the crime he told her of his decision and urged her to return to and live with her husband. She would not consent to do this, and told him that if he went away she would at once adopt the life of a prostitute. The applicant became greatly agitated over the girl's statement of her intention, and argued and pleaded that she promise not to carry it out. She reiterated her resolution and the conversation grew more spirited. Finally, the applicant exclaiming he would rather see her dead than resorting to such a life, drew a small knife which butchers not infrequently carry on their persons, and stabbed her with fatal results. Immediately thereafter he sought an officer and stated what he had done.

From the evidence it seems that he was suddenly seized with a belief that he had been called upon by a power above to prevent the girl from adopting a life of shame. We are not convinced that the element of premeditation exists in this case. There seems grave doubt as to whether the crime rose higher than manslaughter, and having now been imprisoned for more than eleven years, the applicant has been confined longer than the maximum term prescribed by law for the last named offense.

The applicant has never before been accused of any crime and comes from a family of excellent reputation.

The Assistant District Attorney orally stated to the Board that he interposed no objection to a pardon.

Under all the foregoing circumstances, we are impelled to the conclusion that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Robert E. Brown.

Sir: At No. 44, February Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Philadelphia County, Demetrious A. Yankon, was found guilty on an indictment charging fraudulent conversion. On May 25, 1920, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Philadelphia County Prison for a term of nine months. The applicant was a furrier by trade, and for many years prior to his arrest conducted a store in the city of Philadelphia. On a certain day the prosecutrix took a fur coat to the applicant and inquired as to the cost of remodeling it. Not satisfied with the price she left the store, but returned the next day, left the coat and accepted the defendant's receipt. Subsequently upon her presentation of this receipt, the defendant gave her a sealine coat. This she refused to accept and demanded a coat made of Alaska seal fur, which she claimed was the kind of a coat she had left with him. Her demand being refused, the petitioner's arrest and conviction followed.

The applicant was not represented at the trial by counsel. Facts disclosed by subsequent investigation leave no doubt but that the coat which the prosecutrix left was a sealine coat and not one made of Alaska seal.

The applicant has never heretofore been accused of any crime. He has now been confined for almost four months. A representative of the District Attorney's office orally stated he did not oppose a pardon and that, in his judgment, there existed meager evidence of a criminal intent.

Under the foregoing circumstances, we are impelled to the conclusion that this is a proper case for clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Demetrious A. Yankon.

Sir: At No 26, June Sessions, 1916, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lebanon County, Blaine S. Biecher, twenty-six years of age, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging aggravated assault and battery, assault with intent to kill, and carrying concealed deadly weapons. On June 5, 1916, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a period of not less than five, nor more than seven, years.

The circumstances of the crime were briefly as follows:

The applicant and a companion, after consuming a large amount of intoxicating liquor, entered a certain pool room and attempted to bowl. Their conduct became so disorderly that the proprietor ordered them from his premises, and when they refused to leave summoned an officer, who took them away. Later in the evening of the same day the two youths re-entered the establishment, and the petitioner, drawing his revolver, shot the proprietor.

The petitioner has never heretofore been accused of any crime. He has now been confined for considerably more than four years. Both the District Attorney and the Trial Judge do not oppose clemency.

Under all the circumstances of the case we are impelled to the conclusion that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Blaine S. Biecher.

Sir: At No. 43 December Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lycoming County, Samuel Dawson, thirty-six years of age, was convicted on an indictment charging larceny. On March 7, 1919, he was sentenced to pay a fine of twenty-five dollars ($25.00), the costs of prosecution and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a period of not less than two and one-half years nor more than three years.

For about three weeks prior to his arrest the petitioner had been excessively indulging in intoxicants, and his crime consisted of extracting small sums of money from public telephone pay station cash boxes.

He has heretofore borne a good reputation, and has now been confined for more than a year and six months. The Judge who imposed the sentence has written, inter alia, as follows:

"I have no objection whatever to the granting of a pardon to Samuel Dawson. Perhaps he has been punished enough, and no harm could come to the public if he were paroled or pardoned.

Respectfully yours,

H. W. WHITEHEAD."

From the foregoing we are impelled to the conclusion that the petitioner has been sufficiently punished, and that a pardon would restore him to his sense of self-respect and conduce to his future good citizenship.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Samuel Dawson.

Sir: At No. 1, December Sessions, 1914, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Indiana County, Wassil Cherenko, alias Wassil Schrenko, thirty-three years of age, was convicted of murder in the second degree.

On March 15, 1915, he was sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred dollars ($100.00), and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a term of not less than twelve, nor more than twenty, years.

The circumstances surrounding the case were briefly as follows:

The petitioner discovered his brother and the deceased engaged in a fight and undertook to separate them. As a result the petitioner and his brother were cut several times by the deceased, and were disabled for more than a week. About a month later the petitioner, coming home from work, was stoned by the deceased. After many stones had been thrown by the latter, Cherenko himself picked up a stone threw it at the deceased, and struck him, from the effect of which he subsequently died. The petitioner then went to his home, was arrested the next day, and his trial and conviction followed.

The District Attorney does not oppose the application. The Warden of the Penitentiary states that the applicant's deportment has been good, and that during his incarceration he has acquired considerable education. ..

The Trial Judge has written, inter alia, as follows:

"The circumstances might be interpreted not as resulting from a deliberate intent on the part of the defendant to take life or even to inflict serious bodily harm, but perhaps to prevent the deceased from following him. The defendant afterwards made no effort to escape, went to his home and remained there until arrested without resistance, and as I am informed has been a good prisoner. In view of the case no good will be accomplished by extending his sentence, and I therefore join in this application for pardon.

Very respectfully,

P. J. TEXFORD."

The County Detective and the prosecutor have also written, urging clemency. The applicant has now been confined for considerably more than five years. By reason of the foregoing we are of the opinion that he has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Wassil Cherenko.

Sir: At No. 781, September Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Schuylkill County, Joe Palumbo and Ralph Palumbo were called for trial on an indictment charging murder, along with three other defendants. The District Attorney's offer to accept a plea of guilty of manslaughter, first refused by the applicants, was later accepted, on the advice of counsel, when their co-defendants threatened to take the stand and swear that they, the petitioners, committed the murder. On September 4, 1918, they were sentenced each to pay a fine of one hundred dollars and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of not less than eleven nor more than twelve years. Ralph's sentence was later reduced to five years.

The night of the killing the petitioners and their co-defendants congregated at a store, when one of the latter was heard to threaten bodily harm to the deceased. Later that evening, after the Palumbos had left, deceased and a companion joined the crowd. The deceased and his companion suggested that they go up the mountainside, where they would relate some of their escapades. On the way up the mountain a fight ensued, in which the deceased was killed with a rock and his companion was injured with a hatchet. The co-defendants were arrested shortly after the commission of the crime, on the description of the injured man. The petitioners do not seem to have been brought into the case until about six months later. No convincing evidence of their connection with the offense appears.

Mr. Harvey J. Smith, at that time a member of the State Constabulary, investigated the case with much detail, and in a communication to the Board states, inter alia, as follows:

"In my investigation I finally learned that the Palumbo brothers had been at Bell's store early in the eve of the murder and having stated this to the prisoners they then began to implicate the Palumbos and they were arrested within twenty-four hours after their names were mentioned. I do not believe that the Palumbo boys were guilty. In conclusion in answer to your second request for my opinion as to whether the Palumbos should be pardoned I unhesitatingly answer yes."

Sometime after their sentence Mr. Smith was at the Penitentiary, when one of the petitioners' co-defendants told him he would like to make a statement. All the defendants were summoned and Frank Scianna, one of the co-defendants, being sworn, stated, inter alia, as follows:

"The Palumbo brothers had no connection with the murder and they were not on the hill at the scene of the crime at the time of its commission."

Frank DelDucca, another co-defendant, swore, inter alia, as follows:

"When up at the mine hole I heard some kind of a noise behind me. When I turned around I saw Domenick Ingenure fall down. Then I turned around and I saw Luigi who had a hatchet in his hand. As far as I know Joe and Ralph Palumbo did not have anything to do with this crime."

Luigi Scianna, another co-defendant, then swore, inter alia, as follows:

"On the night of March 19th, 1918, at which time Carmine Bardisciana was murdered on a hill at a place known as the Rocks, near Shenandoah, Pa., and also at the time when Domenick Ingenure, who was struck on the head and leg with a hatchet in my hands, the two brothers, Joe and Ralph Palumbo, were not present at that time and I do not know them to have any connection with the crime."

These affidavits were made voluntarily, and so far as can be ascertained without ulterior purpose.

Under the foregoing circumstances, we are of the opinion that these cases merit Executive clemency, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joe Palumbo and Ralph Palumbo.

Sir: At No. 6, September Term, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Somerset County, James Albright, thirty-one years of age, single and the sole support of his aged parents, pleaded guilty to the crimes of resisting an officer and mayhem.

On the morning of July 13, 1916, in company with Vasil Drabich and a Mr. MacMurdy, the petitioner went to a hotel at Meyersdale, Pennsylvania, where they drank a considerable amount of liquor, and started for a visit to some other friends east of Meyersdale. While on their way they became involved in some difficulties and MacMurdy took a sum of money from Drabich and divided it with the petitioner. MacMurdy fled from the jurisdiction of the Court and has never been heard of since.

The petitioner remained about his home in Meyersdale until the following day when the constable attempted to arrest him on a warrant. The petitioner, still under the influence of the liquor attempted to bite the constable, and successfully resisted arrest. The following day the constable placed the applicant under arrest and conveyed him to the office of the Justice of the Peace where he pleaded guilty and was committed to jail. The Grand Jury rendered a true bill as to the charge of assault and battery and robbery, and also a true bill as to the charge of resisting an officer and mayhem. The defendant pleaded guilty to both indictments. In the first case, the charge being assault and battery and robbery, and the money having been returned to Drabich, the Court suspended sentence. Upon the charge of resisting an officer and mayhem the Court admitted the defendant to parole. Some time subsequent the defendant again became intoxicated and was arrested for the violation of his parole, and on March 1, 1917, he was sentenced to pay a fine of five dollars ($5.00) and to undergo a term of imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary of Pennsylvania for not less than four years and not more than six years.

The District Attorney at the time of the sentence, has written the Board as follows:

"On September 13, 1916, a true bill was found by the Grand Jury of Somerset County, charging James Albright on the First Count with Assault and Battery and on the Second Count with Resisting an Officer or Obstructing Process. There was no Mayhem whatever in the case, so the Grand Jury did not indict him on this charge. Before trial, defendant entered a plea of guilty and was paroled in accordance with the Act of 1911, P. L. 1055. On March 1, 1917, defendant was brought in for a violation of his parole and was sentenced to pay the costs, a fine of five dollars and undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for not less than four years nor more than six years. As I recall now, the violation of the parole consisted in drunkenness and disorderly conduct. It seems some error has been made in the sentence, for the maximum period of imprisonment on each count of the indictment is one year. There was no sentence for mayhem. The Court may have meant to sentence the defendant on a charge of Robbery, having entered a plea of guilty to said charge on September 13, 1916. But the record shows that sentence was suspended on this charge, and the defendant paroled on the above charge and afterwards sentenced for a violation of his parole as above set forth. I was always of the opinion that the sentence was for the crime of robbery. But the records do not so show.

"I am not resisting the pardon because of the illegality of sentence and because of the enfeebled and helpless condition of his aged parents. Excessive use of intoxicating liquors has been the ruin of this young man and at the bottom of his crimes."

In a subsequent communication the District Attorney concludes:

"I feel no hesitancy in recommending to your Honorable Board that he be pardoned."

The petitioner's parents have been, as above stated, dependent upon him for their support. The petitioner's mother is afflicted with an incurable disease, and an affidavit of her physician sets forth that her duration of life cannot exceed a few months.

In view of the foregoing the Board is impelled to the belief that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said James Albright.

Sir: At No. 480, December Term, 1917, of the Court of Quarter Sessions, for the County of Philadelphia, Joseph Friel was convicted of larceny and was, on April 30, 1918, sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of not less than two years, nine months, and not more than three years.

No notes of testimony were taken at the trial of the case but the following facts, sworn to by the petitioner, were agreed to as being correct:

"I was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at their Camden yards, and on November 16, 1917, Daniel Raybould asked me to accompany him to a house of a friend of his in Philadelphia 1534 North Street. While we were at the house only a short time, it was surrounded and raided by detectives of the Philadelphia Police Department. I aver that I knew Raybould only because I was an associate workman for the railroad, that I did not know that he had been connected with any thefts of I would not have gone with him, that I did not know who the tenant of the house was or for what purpose it was being used. I further aver that Raybould, who could prove my innocence, was drafted into the National Army and has since died in France. I went with Raybould to the house at 1534 North Street only because he asked me to go with him as he stated he was going to see a friend. I did not know who this friend was and would never have gone with him if I had known that there was anything illegal going on.

When I was arraigned for a further hearing, the Camden authorities lodged a warrant against me and Raybould for larceny and I was held in $800.00 bail. At the time of my arrest, there were arrested two others besides myself and Raybould. I was not acquainted with the above two men who were also convicted and did not know they were engaged in illegal acts or I would not have gone with Raybould to the house on North Street, Philadelphia."

All the defendants in the case, four in number, were tried together. If the petitioner had been tried separately and had been able to avail himself of the testimony of the witness, who was in the Army, his acquittal would undoubtedly have resulted. The Judge who tried this case stated that he should have liked to have reduced the sentence, but could not do so after the expiration of the term for which the petitioner was sentenced. The Judge is now dead, but in view of the time served by the petitioner, we are inclined to agree with the statement that if he were now living he would favor Executive clemency.

Prior to this conviction the petitioner has never been accused of any crime and has always borne a good reputation.

The petitioner has agreed to contribute to the support of his sister's two children who are now maintained with difficulty, and if released a position as an elevator constructor will be given to him.

Under all the circumstances of this case, we conclude that it is one proper for the exercise of Executive clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph Friel.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Mercer County at No. 18, October Sessions, 1906, one Anebaldo Lombardi was convicted of murder of the first degree, and on October 21, 1908, the sentence of death was imposed.

On October 26, 1908, commutation was granted by Governor Edwin S. Stuart on a recommendation of the Board of Pardons. The material portion of the recommendation, which includes the circumstances of the crime is the following:

"The parties to the tragedy which resulted in the death of one of them, are natives of Italy. Pasquali Panelli, the deceased, and his wife, Marie, settled at Sharon, Pennsylvania. Later the defendant, a boy in his teens, came to Sharon, and by reason of having been a neighbor and friend of the Panellis abroad, made his home with them for three or four years. A younger brother came later, and he also made his home there. A few months before the tragedy they changed their boarding place to the house of Returno, a brother of Mrs. Panelli, living nearby. The boys were frequent visitors at the Panelli home. About midnight, September 12, 1906, the prisoner went to the railroad roundhouse to learn the cause of some trouble his younger brother had with a workman there. While talking to the latter, Panelli, who also worked on the night turn, was seen spying, which provoked the prisoner to say something in disapproval of Panelli's conduct. Panelli became furiously enraged, pursued the prisoner from the roundhouse, and, not overtaking him, went to his house, got a gun, and returned to the roundhouse. There he met Luigi Returno, a brother of his wife. Shortly thereafter Panelli and Returno were seen, the former with a revolver and the latter with a club, and were overheard plotting to go to the boarding house of the prisoner to kill him in his bed. His brother who had heard the plotting informed the prisoner of the murderous intent, and he remained away from his room and slept on a neighbor's porch. Later in the night Panelli returned to the roundhouse and said to the prisoner's brother: 'Luigi Returno and I went to Anebaldo's room to kill him, but he got word and was not there; but we will get him yet.' Luigi Returno admits this.

Sometime near noon of September 13th, the prisoner stopped at the house of Luigi Returno to drink a bottle of beer, obtained from his wife. He was sitting on the fence when Panelli and Luigi came to him. Panelli was quarrelsome, but Luigi interfered and prevented a fight. The prisoner went into Luigi's house for another bottle of beer, saying to Panelli that he had better go home and sleep. Panelli went home. The prisoner visited some friends near by until three o'clock, P. M., when he started for his boarding house. The road he followed led by Panelli's. As he passed slowly Panelli called to him to go right on. The prisoner said that he was on the public road, but he wanted to be his friend as he had always been. Panelli then said: 'Come in then, if you want to be my friend.'

The prisoner then went onto the porch where Panelli was, and said he had gone to the roundhouse last night, not to disturb him, but to find out why his brother was licked. Panelli said that no apology would be received, and rushed in at the kitchen door. Very soon the prisoner heard a scuffle and, stepping inside the door, saw Panelli with a gun and his wife holding his arm. The gun was discharged, the shot lodging in the wife's leg near the knee. The prisoner wrested the gun from Panelli, put it in his pocket, and went out of the house. He then heard the wife scream, 'Let him go; let him go.' He then saw Panelli following him, only thirteen and a half feet away with another gun. The prisoner instantly drew the gun he had taken from Panelli and fired three shots at him, in quick succession, one of which killed him. Two of the shots went wild".

We quote the letter written the Board by the Honorable A. W. Williams, the trial Judge:

"Mercer, Pa., August 26, 1908.

To the Honorable the Board of Pardons:

Gentlemen: I have been requested by a number of persons to write you in the interest of Anebaldo Lombardi, who is now awaiting execution in this County for murder.

I very much doubt the propriety of my writing you at all; but it may not be improper for me to say that during the trial of the case, and in submitting it to the jury, I felt that the evidence would warrant conviction of murder either of the first or second degree, according to which theory of the case should be accepted by the jury; the theory of the Commonwealth or that of the defense.

The jury evidently accepted the theory of the Commonwealth, and returned a verdict of murder in the first degree.

Had the verdict been murder of the second degree I would have considered that the verdict was warranted by the evidence, and that substantial justice had been done.

Under the law and evidence, however, I could not see my way clear to set aside the verdict of the jury by granting a new trial; and, of course, I had no discretion in the matter of imposing sentence.

The case as it now stands is a proper one for the consideration of your Board, and it would be improper for me to say anything to influence your action one way or the other.

My information is that the prisoner, who is a young man, about twenty-one years of age, had previously borne a good reputation, and that he has been a model prisoner ever since his confinement in jail. There seems to be considerable public sentiment in his favor, and if your Board could see its way clear to commute his sentence to life imprisonment your action would be approved by a great many people.

Respectfully,

A. W. WILLIAMS."

A further communication has been received from the Judge who tried the case in which, after referring to the communication above quoted, continues as follows:

"Assuming that his defense did not rise higher than murder in the second degree, and very strong reasons were urged in support of that view of the case after his conviction it seems to be the general opinion of people having knowledge of the case that Mr. Lombardi had been sufficiently punished for the crime committed.

Had he been convicted of murder in the second degree and given the maximum sentence for that offense, twenty years, his behavior during his imprisonment would have entitled him to the commutation provided by the Act of May 11, 1901, then in force, which would have reduced the term of his confinement to about eleven years and five months. Hence, Mr. Lombardi has already undergone imprisonment longer than he would have been confined had he been convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced for the full term of twenty years, the limit for such offense. I am, therefore, of the opinion that his application for a pardon should be granted.

Respectfully yours,

A. W. WILLIAMS."

The now President Judge of this County has also written a letter in which he states that he had much to do with preparing the testimony in the case, and that if the attorneys for the then defendant had tried their case on the theory that the murder was one of second degree instead of attempting to satisfy the jury that the killing was in self defense, and that therefore, an acquittal should be had, there could have been no doubt that no verdict higher than manslaughter or murder of the second degree could have ensued. The Judge referred to concludes his letter as follows:

"In view of all the circumstances in this case, as I remember them, I am of the opinion that the ends of justice would be satisfied if your Board should see fit to pardon him."

The District Attorney who prosecuted the case has also written urging a pardon, and the present District Attorney has written stating he has no reason to interpose any objection.

Under the foregoing we are of the opinion that the petitioner's case could have been presented to the jury in a manner which would have justified it in rendering a verdict no higher than murder of the second degree; and had such a verdict been in fact given the petitioner would have served at the present time practically the entire minimum sentence. The petitioner has now been confined eleven years and six months. We are impelled to the conclusion that he has been sufficiently punished.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Anebaldo Lombardi.

Respectfully submitted,

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lehigh County, at Nos. 138 and 141, January Sessions, 1919, one George Mercer, a silk weaver, without the advice of counsel, pleaded guilty to the crimes of attempted larceny and malicious mischief. Prior to his arraignment, his sisters called upon the Chief of Police with a view to the employment of counsel, and were advised that under the circumstances of the case, such employment was not necessary. He was sentenced on March 17, 1919, to pay fines aggregating ten dollars a month, the costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for a period of one year and six months. The following were the circumstances of the crime:

At about 6:30 P. M. on the Saturday of his arrest, the petitioner, while under the influence of liquor, and while traveling along the main street of the City of Allentown, in the heart of its business section, lost his balance and fell to the ground. In falling, he struck and broke a large plate glass window of a pawn broker's establishment. The noise attracted the attention of the Chief of Police who happened to be on the opposite side of the street, and who immediately crossed, assisted the petitioner to his feet, and conveyed him to the city lockup. He was detained there until Monday when he was charged with the crimes before stated. The following Wednesday he pleaded guilty before the committing magistrate, and on March 17, sentence was imposed.

Subsequently counsel was employed for the purpose of securing a modification of the sentence or for permission to withdraw the plea, enter a plea of not guilty and to stand trial. This application of counsel was refused by the court because it had not been made during the term in which the sentence was imposed.

The petitioner has paid the cost of replacing the window. At no time did he attempt to steal any property. He has never heretofore been charged with any crime. The Board is in receipt of a communication from the Vice Chancellor of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, in which he states that he has known the applicant for some years, and has been intimately acquainted with his family for a long time; that the petitioner has never heretofore been arrested, but that he has been accustomed to indulge too freely in intoxicating liquors.

This, in our opinion, is simply a case where an intoxicated man fell against the window with sufficient force to break it. There is no evidence of an intent on his part to commit the crimes with which he was charged. Had he stood trial, an acquittal must have necessarily resulted. Under all the circumstances of the case, Executive clemency should be granted.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said George Mercer.

Respectfully submitted,

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Erie, at No. 28, November Sessions, 1918, a certain Heiman Moritz, sixty-five years of age, and theretofore bearing a good reputation, pleaded guilty to the crime of receiving stolen goods. On November 8, 1918, he was sentenced to pay a fine of ten dollars, the costs of prosecution, to restore the property taken, or pay the value thereof, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of one year and five months, and a maximum term of three years.

The value of the goods received was approximately thirty dollars. The petitioner has now been confined about seven months. The Judge who sentenced the petitioner has written the Board as follows:

"The more I think of this sentence, the more I believe it too severe; and, that a sentence of five or six months would have been enough, and I am writing this letter to inform you that my Secretary, Ray S. Holbrook, Esq., is making an application for a pardon for him, and that I recommend that such pardon be granted; and, that the notices required to be given to the Mayor, head of Police Department, and the Judge who tried the case, the District Attorney and Sheriff, are deemed unnecessary in this case for the reason that appended to this letter is a recommendation from all of them; that the prayer of the petitioner be granted."

The request for clemency is signed by the officials above named.

We are of the opinion that the convict has been sufficiently punished for his crime.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," now recommend that a pardon be granted to the said Heiman Moritz.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Dauphin County, at No. 8, January Sessions, 1911, a certain John Parker was indicted and found guilty of murder of the second degree. On March 25, 1911, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of five years and a maximum term of twenty years. The circumstances of the crime were the following:

Shortly after midnight on October 29, 1910, the petitioner while on his way home met a boy with whom he had previously had some trouble. A fight ensued and the petitioner was knocked down. He regained his feet and started toward his home. Warner, his adversary, followed him, struck him a second time, and again knocked him down. The petitioner, when he regained his feet, drew a revolver and fired intending, according to his statement, to wound Warner in order that no further harm would be suffered at his hands. The bullet missed its object but struck a man, who, having heard the disturbance, had come to the door to ascertain its cause. The petitioner, after the shooting, went to his home ignorant of the fact that he had killed anyone. The next day he was arrested, and his trial, conviction and sentence resulted.

The applicant has never heretofore been charged with any crime; he has always borne a good reputation, and has now been confined approximately seven years. He is now on parole, but we believe the granting of a pardon would increase his self respect and conduce to his good citizenship. We believe this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted for John Parker.

Board of Pardons.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 27, 1919.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace, in and for the County of Philadelphia, Nos. 306, 307 and 308, April Sessions, 1912, one John Rogaski pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with burglary, and was by the said court, on April 22, 1912, sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten nor more than twenty years.

The crime for which Rogaski was sentenced was committed in conjunction with one Barney McElhatton, and all the circumstances of the robberies which surrounded McElhatton's case are equally applicable to the case of Rogaski.

At a prior meeting of the Board of Pardons, a petition was presented for the pardon of McElhatton, and the pardon was recommended to your Excellency on February 19, 1919. The reasons which impelled the Board to such a recommendation were the following:

"There was no testimony taken at the trial of the petitioner, but the admitted facts showed that all the offenses were committed in the neighborhood in which the defendant lived and covered a very short period of time. The total value of the goods alleged to have been taken in the twelve Bills of Indictment amounts to less than $250.00, and all the testimony showed that it was the work of a sneak thief and not an armed burglar, and in no case was there any intimidation or threats of danger or violence to the occupants of the premises.

We quote below a letter from Honorable Howard A. Davis, the judge who tried the case:

"To the Honorable the Members of the Board of Pardons of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Sirs: As the trial judge sitting in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia, April 22, 1912, I sentenced the above named defendant on twelve bills of indictment, charge burglary, to which the defendant pleaded guilty. It appears from the testimony that the defendant had entered a number of dwelling houses and stolen certain articles. It further appears that he had a criminal record prior to his indictment upon these bills. He was sentenced to a term of not less than fourteen years nor more than twenty years in the Eastern Penitentiary. He had served nearly seven years of that term.

I am informed by the Probation Officer of the City of Philadelphia that the defendant has been a model prisoner and that his imprisonment has been of vast benefit to him morally and intellectually; that he is now 31 years of age; his mother is a widow; and would be dependent to a great extent upon the support of this son.

From the information I have received I feel that the ends of justice have been served by the term of the imprisonment which defendant has undergone in the penitentiary. If no further facts appear to the contrary and the application for pardon meets with the approval of your Honorable Board, I have no objections to a favorable disposition of the petition.

The prisoner has already served nearly seven years of his sentence. The value of the goods stolen did not exceed $250.00. Considering the value of the goods taken, we believe he has been sufficiently punished."

The foregoing reasons are equally applicable to the present case.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Rogaski.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Fayette County, at No. 11, September Term, 1918, one R. A. Whitting, a colored man, was found guilty of murder of the first degree, and on December 31, 1918, was sentenced to die.

The circumstances of the crime are briefly as follows:

The petitioner, a laborer at a coke works in Fayette County, lived in a company house with a woman not his wife. She left him saying she was going to Morgantown to secure employment, but two weeks later, availing herself of the applicant's invitation made at the time of her departure, she returned, arriving on Saturday, the day before she was killed.

The following day the woman went to a neighbor's for dinner, and returned while the applicant was out buying some groceries. He returned, unlocked the front door and asked her to stop drinking, she having imbibed somewhat freely the night before, and also just before her return to his house this particular morning. She made some joking reply and went into the bedroom. The petitioner followed her, and going into the kitchen deposited his groceries, picked up a gun, pointed the barrel around the corner of the bedroom and fired.

There seems to have been no evidence of any verbal altercation between the man and the woman whatever. After the shooting the woman ran out of the room, and the petitioner, thinking that he had only frightened her, continued to work about the kitchen. Learning that she had been shot, he hurried to her assistance, called for aid, and with the help of another man, carried her back into the house. He continually asserted he had no intention of killing her; hurried to apply what he thought would be helpful medicine, and generally showed extreme remorse. He asserted that with her dead his life was not worth living, and attempted to commit suicide. He was seized before he could carry out his intent and placed under arrest.

A few years before the commission of this crime the petitioner was confined in the insane ward at Marshall Sea for approximately six months, and the records of that institution show a diagnosis of his case to be a form of insanity. There have been filed with the Board affidavits of two jail doctors stating that the applicant is now in the third and last stage of syphilis, and that the probable duration of his life is not more than two years. The District Attorney has written stating that he does not oppose commutation.

By reason of the foregoing this is a proper case for commutation, in our judgment.

We therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that the sentence of death imposed upon R. A. Whitting be now commuted to imprisonment for life.

Sir: At No. 18, March Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Butler County, Walter A. Dress, twenty-six years old, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging burglary, larceny and aggravated assault and battery.

On February 8, 1917, he was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution, a fine of one hundred dollars, restore the goods to the owner, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of three years. In August, 1917, he escaped and all efforts to discover his whereabouts were futile. It has since developed that he enlisted in January of the following year in the United States Army, sailed as a part of the American Expeditionary Forces, returned to the United States in 1919, and was honorably discharged in April of that year. While stationed in England, he married and his wife returned with him and they resided for some time in California. Reproached by his conscience and acting upon the advice of his wife, to whom he had confided his criminal record, he returned to Pittsburgh in 1920 and surrendered himself to the Warden. The expenses of his return were paid from his own earnings and the prison authorities had no intimation of his whereabouts until he appeared and surrendered.

He was taken before the court and convicted of escape from prison, but at the request of the Warden of the Western Penitentiary sentence was suspended. Prior to the conviction on which he was sentenced, the petitioner was never accused of any crime. He has been in actual confinement almost ten months. The Warden of the Western Penitentiary appeared before the Board and earnestly urged clemency by reason of the voluntary return of this petitioner.

We are of the opinion that prisoners, who in moments of weakness yield to a temptation to flee their place of confinement, but who in the afterward, when sober reflection brings out their better selves, repent and desire to return, should not be deterred by any policy which would impel them to the belief that they had forfeited all right to any consideration of leniency and that they would be dealt with harshly and to the full extent of the law, no matter how exemplary might be their future conduct nor how sincere might be the effort to efface the stigma of their breach of trust. Each case must stand on its own merits and if sufficient punishment has been suffered, or if other circumstances should appear which would justify the exercise of clemency, we believe the fact that a man has escaped should not, in every case, operate as an unconditional forfeiture of all consideration for leniency. Under all the circumstances of this particular case, we are of the opinion that Executive clemency should be extended and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon for the crimes for which the petitioner was originally sentenced be granted to the said Walter A. Dress.

Sir: At Nos. 22, 23 and 24, July Term, 1917, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace for Clinton County, Preston Seyler and William H. Seyler, brothers, neither above the age of eighteen years, waived the finding of a true bill, and, upon being arraigned, pleaded guilty to the crimes of larceny and robbery. The defendants were sentenced cumulatively on each indictment to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of three years, or an aggregate minimum sentence of six years and an aggregate maximum sentence of nine years.

One of the crimes for which the boys were sentenced was the larceny of fourteen dollars and ten cents ($14.10) worth of merchandise; another was for stealing poultry valued at three dollars and seventy-five cents ($3.75); another was for stealing property valued at two dollars and fifty cents ($2.50). All the acts of the boys consisted of petty theft and robbery, and the total amount of property taken did not exceed fifty dollars.

The petitioners have now been confined for almost three years. The present District Attorney, who appeared as counsel for the boys, has written, urging clemency.

Considering the age of the petitioners at the time these petty crimes were committed, we are of the opinion that they have been sufficiently punished.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that pardons be now granted respectively to the said Preston Seyler and William H. Seyler.

Sir: At No. 106, August Sessions, 1912, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace for York County, C. C. Wire, forty years old, was convicted on an indictment charging felonious entry. On September 23, 1912, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of three years and a maximum term of ten years. At the expiration of his minimum term, he was released on parole but having violated the same was committed to the penitentiary on March 22, 1916. On April 27, 1917, he was again released on parole, but in October of that year he was found guilty of a crime of larceny and sentenced to an imprisonment in the county jail for a term of eight months. After serving this term, he was returned to the Eastern Penitentiary where he has been confined for a period of almost two years. The acts which constituted the petitioner's original offense were the breaking into a saloon and the taking of a quantity of cigars, tobacco and ice cream. There was some evidence at the time of the commission of this crime that the petitioner was under the influence of liquor. The first violation of his parole consisted in his becoming intoxicated. The petitioner denied and still denies that he is guilty of the crime of larceny for which he was sentenced to the county jail and which constituted the second violation of his parole. He pleaded not guilty but his trial resulted in a conviction.

The petitioner has been confined in the penitentiary and in the county jail for an aggregate period of five years and eight months. The Judge who sentenced the defendant, the District Attorney who tried him, the District Attorney now in office, the prosecutor and the Justice of the Peace who held the preliminary hearing, have all written to the Board recommending clemency. We are of the opinion that this petitioner has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said C. C. Wire.

Sir: At No. 452, June Sessions, 1914, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the County of Philadelphia, Adolph Koch pleaded guilty to an indictment charging subornation of perjury. On June 24, 1914, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Philadelphia County Prison for a term of three years and three months.

He was released on parole July 18, 1916, and the full term of his sentence has expired. The petitioner desires a pardon that he may be restored to his civil rights. The acts which constituted his offense were the making of certain fraudulent bail-bonds. An investigation of the District Attorney's office disclosed the fact that he had been used as a tool by the ringleaders in a conspiracy to obstruct justice. When apprehended he at once admitted his participation in the crime and assisted the District Attorney's office in every way in the subsequent trials and convictions resulting from the investigation.

The Petitioner has never heretofore been accused of any crime. Since the date of his parole, almost four years ago, he has been engaged in the real estate business in the City of Philadelphia, and has gained the respect of all who have become acquainted with him. Many letters have been filed with the Board urging clemency, and commenting on his good conduct and standing in his community. A representative of the District Attorney's office appeared personally before the Board, and recommended favorable consideration of the petition.

We believe a pardon restoring this man to his civil rights would conduce to his sense of self-respect and his future good citizenship. His conduct since his release upon parole, and his success in a legitimate business enterprise indicate his sense of respect for the law and his desire to be an asset to his community.

From the foregoing we are of the opinion that Executive clemency should be exercised, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Adolph Koch.

Sir: At No. 208, January Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lackawanna County, Omerigo Rogo, an Italian, twenty-six years of age, was found guilty on an indictment charging perjury, and on February 7, 1917, was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and a fine of $50.00, and to undergo imprisonment in the State Penitentiary for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of four years. The circumstances of the crime are briefly as follows:

Anthony Malinaro, a friend of the petitioner, was arrested on a warrant charging murder. On the trial of Malinaro, Rogo testified that he, Rogo, talked to the mortally wounded victim while the latter was being transferred from a carriage to an ambulance enroute to the hospital, where the victim, several weeks later, died. He said that the victim had told him that he had been shot with his own firearm. This testimony was important in that a plea of self-defense had been entered, and an effort was made to show that the defendant and his victim were engaged in a scuffle and that Malinaro seized the victim's revolver, which was discharged in the altercation.

Several witnesses for the Commonwealth testified that the petitioner was not present at the place at which he swore this conversation between him and the victim occurred. The petitioner has never heretofore been accused of any crime. He has now been confined for about fifteen months. He has a wife and children, who are in destitute circumstances.

Honorable George W. Maxey, former District Attorney, and now a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Lackawanna County, has written the Board as follows:

"I am already on record, in a letter dated September 11, 1919, as favoring the granting of a pardon to Omerigo Rogo. I was District Attorney at the time he was convicted, and I personally conducted his prosecution. The prosecution, conviction and sentence were all proper under the circumstances, and I believe they had a salutary effect. However, it is my opinion that no good purpose can be served by keeping Rogo longer in prison.

I think the case is one for the exercise of the merciful functions of the Board of Pardons. Rogo was undoubtedly imposed upon by stronger-minded and stronger-willed persons and became the tool of unscrupulous suborners of perjury, without adequate realization on his part of the enormity of the offense he was committing.

Rogo's record previous to his commission of perjury was good. He belongs to a respected Italian-American family and his brother is the chief of police of Old Forge, a borough of about ten thousand inhabitants, situated a few miles from Scranton. Rogo's own wife and family are very much in need of his support, and I am confident that no harm will be done the Commonwealth, or this county, or the cause of justice, if Rogo is now released from the penitentiary, where he has already suffered nearly fifteen months imprisonment."

In a subsequent communication, Judge Maxey states as follows:

"Supplementing the letters I have already written you on this application. I am authorized to say by Judge Barber, who sentenced Rogo, that he is not opposed to the granting of the pardon."

From the foregoing, we are of the opinion that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Omerigo Rogo.

Sir: At No. 1, April Term, 1900, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery for Elk County, Bruno Rizzo, an Italian twenty-four years old, when arraigned for trial on an indictment charging murder of the first degree stood mute, and the Court accordingly directed the entry of a plea of Not Guilty. His trial resulted in his conviction, and on April 7, 1920, the sentence of death was imposed.

The applicant lived with the parents of his victim, a young girl who had been promised to him in marriage. On the strength of this promise he had, from time to time, purchased various articles for the house and had made loans of money to her parents. The girl was not disposed to marry the petitioner, so informed him and requested him to seek another home. Disputes ensued between the petitioner and the girl's mother, which at times became violent. On the day of the commission of the crime the petitioner became enraged after one of these disputes, went to his room, threw a new Victrola and about fifty records out of a window and utterly destroyed practically everything he owned in the house. He then went into the yard and jumped on the victrola and records, stamping then to pieces. The mother of the girl came out and another verbal altercation followed. During this spirited altercation the victim, returning from the Post-Office, came through a gateway a short distance from the petitioner. When he saw her he drew a revolver, which he had had for some years, and fired several shots at her and she fell. He approached and standing over her shot again. He then walked away, threw the revolver into a creek, and went to Woodlawn, in Allegheny County, where he was apprehended.

Since his conviction and sentence he has been examined by Dr. H. W. Mitchell, Superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane, at Warren, Pa., and by Dr. J. M. Murdoch, Superintendent of the State Hospital for Feeble-Minded, at Polk, Pa. Both of these eminent men personally appeared before the Board and stated orally what they had substantially advised the Petitioner's Attorney in a communication of April 21, 1920, to-wit:

"We have not found him to be suffering from any form of actual mental disease that would justify the opinion that he was insane at the time of our examination, nor do we find that there is reason to believe that he has at any previous time suffered from insanity.

"We do find, however, that he is congenitally mentally defective, though he is physically a fairly well developed young man. He is densely ignorant, displays most primitive ideas of moral or ethical concepts and in response to the recognized psychological tests in common use for the purpose of determining the mental capacity of an individual, he does not show mental development beyond that commonly found in a child eight or ten years old.

"Either in control of his own affairs or in regulating his reactions to others, it is not to be expected that he would show more than childlike judgment or self control.

"We both are willing to render any aid possible in your proposed plea to the Board of Pardons for commutation of sentence to life imprisonment.

Yours very truly,

(Signed)

H. W. MITCHELL,
Supt. Warren State Hospital for Insane,
Warren, Pa.

(Signed)

J. M. MURDOCH,
Supt. State Institution for Feeble-Minded,
Polk, Pa."

We are of the opinion that under no conditions should this Petitioner ever be given his freedom. We are also impelled to the conclusion by the statements of these State officials, recognized authorities on mental derangements, that the death penalty should not be inflicted. The petitioner should be taken to the State Penitentiary of the proper district, where he will undoubtedly be transferred to a proper State institution for persons mentally defective. If he at any future date becomes possessed of his mental faculties to such a degree as to justify his discharge from such institution, he should be returned to the Penitentiary for the remainder of his natural life.

We, therefore, in order that the same may be effected, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that the sentence of death imposed on the said Bruno Rizzo be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At No. 17, November Sessions, 1911, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County, Amaza Colbert pleaded guilty to a charge of murder. The court, on testimony taken, fixed the degree as murder of the second degree; and, on December 9, 1911, sentenced her to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of five years, and a maximum term of twenty years. The circumstances of the crime were as follows:

The applicant, an orphaned colored girl, twenty-four years old, met the deceased, some years her senior and also colored, a few months before the commission of the crime. Smith, the deceased, courted her and by the use of fervent declarations of love and promises of marriage, seduced her. On the night of the commission of the crime, she was induced by Smith to come to his room in the hotel of which he was a bar-tender, and there informed her that he would not marry her. She requested him to take her home but he refused, saying he was too tired. He locked the door of his room, lay down on his bed and fell asleep. The applicant endeavored to arouse him and persuade him to let her out of the room, but her efforts were unavailing. Finally, about midnight, she took his revolver out of his holster which he wore strapped about his waist and shot him. She found the door key, left the room, and surrendered herself to the police.

The testimony at the trial of her case showed that she bore an excellent reputation as an industrious, honest, Christian girl. She has been on parole for more than three years and a half, and has conducted herself with the highest degree of propriety. At the time of the commission of her offense, she was educating herself at night school and upon her release on parole, she took up a course of education and is still pursuing it. The District Attorney has written the Board that he does not oppose a pardon and that under all the circumstances, he is inclined to believe that she has been sufficiently punished. We are of the opinion that a pardon will tend to reinstate the petitioner in her community and will conduce to her self-respect and future good citizenship.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Amaza Colbert.

Respectfully submitted,

Sir: At No. 19, September Term, 1915, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Cambria County, John William Brooks, thirty-five years of age, pleaded guilty to indictments charging robbery and receiving stolen goods. On December 15, 1915, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of five years and a maximum term of six years. He has now served over four years and five months of his sentence. His parents, both past seventy-two years of age, are financially destitute. Satisfactory evidence has been furnished the Board that the mother, by reason of the incarceration of her son, is on the verge of insanity. The Trial Judge has written the Board, inter alia, as follows:

"I further certify that because of circumstances which have since been brought to my attention, I believe that the petitioner has been sufficiently punished for the offence committed and that if a reformation in him is to be had, it would be well fixed in his mind at this time.

"Therefore, I would most respectfully recommend to your Honorable Board that the prayer of the petitioner be granted and that the said John William Brooks be pardoned from the sentence imposed.

Yours respectfully,

MARLIN B. STEPHENS,
President Judge, Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for Cambria County,
47th Judicial District of Pennsylvania."

We are impelled by the foregoing to the conclusion that this is a proper case for Executive clemency and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John William Brooks.

Sir: At No. 19, February Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of McKean County, Arch Turner pleaded guilty to an indictment charging voluntary manslaughter. On February 26, 1918, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of six years and a maximum term of seven years.

At the time of the commission of the crime he was fifty-six years old, and for about a week prior thereto had been under the influence of liquor to such an extent that he was suffering with delirium tremens. About noon on the day of the commission of the crime while lying on the bed, in a drunken condition, he shot a revolver at random and it killed his intimate friend. After the shooting he repeatedly called the deceased and asked him to accompany him to work. He made no effort to get away, and it was several days before he became conscious of the fact that he had shot and killed his companion. With the exception of being an excessive user of intoxicants, his reputation had always been good in the communities in which he has lived. The Judge who imposed the sentence has written the Board, inter alia, as follows:

"I have known Mr. Turner for many years prior to the time he got into this trouble, he was always an honest, hardworking, peaceable man, his only fault being that he was addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors. I am of the opinion that if he is pardoned under present conditions society will not be troubled again with Mr. Turner and that the ends of justice will be met."

The District Attorney writes as follows:

"In the matter of the application for the pardon of Arch Turner, the writer, upon information and knowledge of the facts, believes it proper for a pardon to be granted."

The applicant has now been confined for almost two years and six months.

We are of the opinion that under all the circumstances of the case he has been sufficiently punished, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Arch Turner.

Sir: At No. 56, September Term, 1916, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Erie County, Joseph Zavarella was convicted of murder in the second degree. On September 25, 1916, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of eleven years and six months and a maximum term of nineteen years.

The applicant labored under an overpowering fear and apprehension of danger caused by frequent threats on the part of the deceased that he, the deceased, intended to take the petitioner's life.

On the night before the commission of the crime the deceased renewed a quarrel with the petitioner, and made certain accusations against him. The applicant entered his house and locked the door, whereupon the deceased endeavored to break down the door and force an entrance into the building, at the same time daring the former to come out and stating, if he would not that he, the deceased, would shoot him in the morning. Early the next day Zavarella was accosted by the deceased, who, with vituperative remarks, struck the applicant in the face and reached toward his pocket, apparently to draw a weapon. The petitioner, fearing for his safety, drew his revolver and fired, with fatal results.

Prior to the commission of this crime, Zavarella bore an excellent reputation in his community. He has now been confined for approximately four years. His wife and four minor children are financially destitute. The District Attorney believes that a pardon should be granted.

We are of the opinion that the applicant, in view of the circumstances in the case, has been sufficiently punished, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph Zavarella.

Sir: At Nos. 83 and 83½, April Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Luzerne County, Enoch Baranowski alias Frank Baranowski was convicted on indictments charging robbery and pointing a pistol. On May 2, 1917, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of four years and a maximum term of five years.

On the night of the commission of the crime, the applicant, accompanied by another man, entered the engine room of the colliery of a coal company and at the point of a revolver demanded of the engineer his possessions. The engineer surrendered the sum of five cents, a flash-light and a pocket-knife, whereupon the applicant and his companion left the building. The time during which Baranowski has been incarcerated in the County Jail and the Penitentiary aggregates about three years and five months; his wife, his widowed mother and a thirteen year old brother have no income except that derived from the labor of the two women. The Assistant District Attorney who tried the case, and the District Attorney now in office, have written the Board recommending clemency. The engineer has stated in a recent communication that he was subjected to no violence of any kind.

We are of the opinion that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Enoch Baranowski alias Frank Baranowski.

Sir: At No. 1, September Term, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Somerest County, Guiseppi D'Orozio on the advice of counsel agreed to plead guilty to murder in the second degree. On September 16, 1916, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of twelve years, and a maximum term of fifteen years.

He boarded with the deceased, Leonardo Gregorio, the latter having a reputation in the community as a desperate and dangerous man, and who had frequently threatened the applicant with bodily harm.

On the day of the commission of the crime the applicant had received his pay and went to his boarding house for some clothing. He was followed out of the house by the deceased who began to make threats against him. The former began walking toward a railroad station where he had intended to board a train. The deceased intercepted him and continued with his threats and abuse, which became so violent that the applicant feared bodily harm, and fired with fatal results.

He has now been confined for almost four years; prior to the commission of the crime he bore an excellent reputation; since his incarceration he has learned the trade of silversmith and has become very proficient in the arts of that trade.

The District Attorney and the County Commissioners recommend a pardon. The Judge who imposed the sentence writes as follows:

"In reapplication of Guiseppi D'Orozio for pardon:

"The sentence in the above case was unusually severe. So far as I have been able to learn the defendant was in no trouble or infractions of the law previously. He has been a good prisoner as shown by the present record.

"I think under all the circumstances and in view of his conduct that the defendant has been sufficiently punished and should be conceded the leniency he seeks."

We are impelled to the belief that this is a proper case for the exercise of clemency, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Guiseppi D'Orozio.

Sir: At No. 32, September Term, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lebanon County, Charles Reddinger pleaded guilty to an indictment charging larceny of some chickens. On September 16, 1918, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of one year and six months and a maximum term of three years, "to commence and be computed from the 16th day of September, 1918." At the time of the commission of this offense the applicant was out on parole, having been convicted in 1912 of burglary and felonious entry of a school-house, and larceny therefrom of a bucket, some lead pencils, a clock, etc. On that conviction he had been sentenced to a minimum term of two and one-half years and a maximum term of ten years, and under a rule of the Attorney General's Department he would be compelled to serve out the full maximum term of his first sentence without eligibility for re-parole before beginning the second sentence.

The Trial Judge has written the Board as follows:

"To the Board of Pardons of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen: In September 1918 Charles R. Reddinger was sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary to serve not less than one year and six months and not more than three years, to be computed from September 16, 1918, upon a charge of larceny. I understand he was a paroled prisoner at the time of the imposition of this sentence and that about eight years of his prior sentence in 1912, remains unserved. The Attorney General's Department has given an opinion that under our Acts of Assembly relating to parole, this prisoner must serve the remaining eight years of his unexpired maximum sentence and thereafter the sentence as imposed by me on September 16, 1918. It was not my intention to effect any such result and its enforcement would be unduly harsh. Since the minimum of the second sentence as imposed and intended has now been served the application for a pardon does not seem to be amiss. The prisoner would then still be serving the remaining part of his first sentence and his discharge, owing to the violation of his parole, would be discretionary with the Penitentiary officials.

Yours very sincerely,

C. V. HENRY."

We are of the opinion that to compel the petitioner to serve both sentences in full would be an exceedingly severe punishment for the magnitude of the crime committed. In view of this fact and in view of the intention of the Judge as indicated by his letter, we, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Charles Reddinger.

Sir: At No. 30, April Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Chester County, Frank Johnson pleaded guilty to indictments charging assault and battery, and assault with intent to ravish. On April 30, 1919, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of three years.

This application for pardon is made by the District Attorney of Columbia County, State of New York, in order that Johnson may be extradited to that State, and placed on trial for the crimes of assault and highway robbery, a detainer having been lodged with the Eastern Penitentiary.

It appears that after Johnson had unsuccessfully tried by force to ravish a girl in Chester County, he went to New York and there, on the night of February 7, 1919, accompanied by three other persons, assaulted a man named Lansing and struck him with a weapon made of nuts from railroad rail bolts secured in a hat, with some sort of a handle attached thereto. Johnson left the State of New York and appeared in Chester County for sentence on the indictment found in that county, evidently for the purpose of escaping arrest and trial for the New York crime. After some weeks of rest and treatment, Lansing was able to aid in the apprehension of the perpetrators of the assault upon him. He was ultimately taken to the Chester County jail and there positively identified Johnson as one of his assailants. An indictment against Johnson has been found in New York. Two of the other perpetrators of the crime have confessed and have substantially stated that Johnson was the principal in the commission of the New York crime. Another person arrested in connection with this crime is held in New York awaiting the extradition of Johnson. To postpone the trial of Johnson until the expiration of his Pennsylvania sentence might be extremely prejudicial to the State of New York as Lansing is rapidly declining in health. His vision is greatly impaired, having lost entirely the sight of one eye; and his hearing is also greatly impaired, having lost entirely the use of one ear. An affidavit has been filed with the Board that his general physical condition is rapidly running down and disintegrating so that he has been compelled to give up his business and do nothing in the effort to regain health.

Under the foregoing, we believe, as a matter of comity between states, that a pardon should be granted in order that the accused may be extradited to the State of New York and be placed on trial for the serious offenses with which he is charged, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Frank Johnson.

Sir: At No. 101, December Sessions, 1915, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Berks County, Antonio Petrecia, an Italian, twenty-eight years old, was at first convicted of the crime of involuntary manslaughter and recommended to the mercy of the court. This verdict was not accepted and the court directed that it should find a verdict either of murder of the second degree of manslaughter, or of not guilty, whereupon a verdict of manslaughter was returned. On September 5, 1916, sentence was imposed, the minimum period of confinement in the Eastern State Penitentiary being two and one-half years, and the maximum, eight years.

On the day of the commission of the crime, and for some time prior thereto, the applicant and the deceased were employed at a stone-crushing plant. In addition to the work about the plant, the former had charge of a commissary where employes obtained food and provisions. On the day of the crime, the deceased, who had been drinking heavily for some time prior thereto and who had, about a week before, been kicked on the head by a horse in a blacksmith shop, came to the commissary and in the presence of some other workmen, demanded drink. Petrecia refused as he was under the influence of liquor. According to Petrecia, the deceased then left and went to his shanty not far distant which he shared with a negro. A few hours later, he was found in his room, lying dead on the floor. An autopsy showed a fractured skull and a blood clot. The negro, roommate of the deceased, and the sole witness to incriminate Petrecia, became insane shortly before the trial while being detained in jail as a material witness. The symptoms of his insanity were violent delusions of people trying to kill each other, and of people trying to kill him. A few days before the trial, he was committed to a State Institution for the Insane but was produced in court when the petitioner's trial was called and testified that when the deceased, at the time instanced, was refused a drink by Petrecia, he, the deceased, insisted upon having a drink and that Petrecia then struck him on the head with a pick-handle, knocked him down, and that after that he was carried to his shanty. The witnesses present in the commissary at the time the deceased was refused a drink denied this.

The applicant heretofore has always borne a good reputation; he has been on parole for more than a year and has conducted himself in an exemplary manner. He has always maintained his innocence and we believe his guilt is doubtful, considering the mental condition of the witness on whose testimony he was found guilty. The petitioner desires a pardon not only because he maintains he is innocent, but because he wishes to marry and engage in business for himself, and because he also wishes to apply for naturalization.

We believe, that under all the circumstances of this case Executive clemency could be properly extended, and we, therefore," after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Antonio Petrecia.

Sir: At No. 1, January Term, 1909, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Clinton County, Frank Latempo was convicted of murder in the first degree. On recommendation of the Pardon Board under date of December 15, 1909, the sentence of death was commuted to life imprisonment. The circumstances of the case are briefly as follows:

The applicant's wife, running off with another man, left Latempo to take care of his three small children. He arranged with a Mrs. Curcio to temporarily take charge of them. Subsequently when he undertook to take his children away, Mrs. Curcio objected as she considered herself as being well paid for taking care of them. The applicant consulted an attorney and was advised to go to Mrs. Curcio, pay the board and take the children. When he arrived at the house the husband of Mrs. Curcio and several other men, including the deceased, were playing cards and drinking beer. The applicant neither joined the party in the game nor in the drinking. After a while a fight began among the players precipitated by the deceased's refusal to pay for some beer which he had ordered, which fight terminated in the deceased striking one of the others with a bottle. The deceased started to run from the house, and when he reached the back door a shot was fired which proved fatal. Mrs. Curcio, thinking her husband had been killed, accused the applicant, although there was no evidence that she saw him fire the shot.

The testimony taken at the trial leaves much doubt as to the guilt of this applicant. The Trial Judge has written the applicant, inter alia, as follows:

"Under the peculiar circumstances of your case, if you should decide at any time to make application for a pardon, I shall recommend that it shall be granted."

One of the Associate Judges has written the Board, inter alia, as follows:

"I wish to say that I was on the bench as one of the Associate Judges during that trial, and it was a very serious doubt in the minds of Judge Hall, Judge Bressler, who was also an Associate, and myself, as to his guilt, and I still feel that there was not sufficient evidence to convict him, and he should not have been convicted."

Judge Bressler has written that:

"After looking over the testimony we believe that you will agree with the Court that the man was not guilty. I can honestly recommend his pardon."

The District Attorney also writes in favor of the applicant.

Under all the circumstances of the case, we believe this is a proper case for clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Frank Latempo:

Sir: At Nos. 2 and 7, October Sessions, 1912, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the County of Allegheny, Anton A. Aggerbeck was convicted on two indictments for the crimes of fraudulent making and uttering of a written instrument.

On November 2, 1912, he was sentenced to an aggregate maximum term of six years, and an aggregate maximum term of ten years. He has served his full minimum sentence, and two-thirds of his maximum sentence has expired. He is now on parole. He desires a pardon that he may leave the State to visit his aged parents who are ignorant of his conviction and incarceration, and who continually ask to see him. His mother is now critically ill. He has made the application for the further reason that if it be granted, a responsible position will be given to him in the City of Chicago where he formerly resided. During his incarceration and while he has been out on parole, he has conducted himself in a commendatory manner. The present District Attorney, who was an assistant at the time of the applicant's conviction, and who prosecuted the case, writes as follows:

"Since his having served the minimum of six years of imprisonment and is now out on parole from the Western Penitentiary, and learning that he has led an honest and upright life and has an opportunity of obtaining a position of trust in the City of Chicago, we are not desirous, in any way, of taking the position which might interfere with him making a good citizen, and would therefore join in the application asking that he be granted a pardon at this time."

Several letters have been filed by prominent officials of the City of Chicago as to the former good character of the applicant.

We believe the petitioner has been sufficiently punished, and that a pardon would conduce to his future uprightness of conduct and to his own self-respect and good citizenship. Under all the circumstances of this case, we recommend "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," that a pardon be now granted to the said Anton A. Aggerbeck.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Armstrong County, at No. 1, June Sessions, 1916, Abe Dumber was charged with the crime of arson. A verdict of guilty was rendered, and on July 1, 1916, he was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000, the costs of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of seven years, and a maximum term of eight years. The following were the circumstances of the crime:

The defendant was engaged in the shoe business in the Borough of Kittanning. About January 1, 1916, he leased a store room in a village some distance removed, and shortly thereafter began to make shipments of boxes and cases to this place from his Kittanning store, and which were supposed to contain shoes and rubbers. The suspicion of the station agent at Kittanning having been aroused, he and a detective examined the contents of the cases and found them to contain shoe boxes, stuffed with paper and other materials, but containing no shoes or rubbers. The empty shoe boxes were placed on the shelves and in the windows of his leased premises, and gave the appearance of a shoe store well stocked. About two months after Dumber was placed under suspicion, a fire broke out in his village store and he was seen leaving the premises shortly thereafter. Certain statements and requests made by him in the village prior to the fire also directed suspicion as to his conduct. He was immediately arrested and notwithstanding his protestations of innocence, his trial and conviction followed. After the fire Dumber was forced into bankruptcy and his liabilities were found to greatly exceed his assets.

The petitioner has now served approximately three years of his sentence. His wife is in the first stages of epilepsy and her physician has stated, under oath, that unless the applicant is freed, the very strong probability is that her epilepsy will be incurable. The health of the applicant is greatly impaired; his throat and vocal organs have become diseased which may cause the complete loss of his voice, if not tuberculosis of the throat; he has practically lost the use of one of his eyes. The receiver in bankruptcy, the representative of the creditors, the chief prosecuting officer, and many reputable persons have joined in the application for clemency. The District Attorney who tried the case has written to the Board recommending a pardon.

Impelled by the foregoing reasons, we "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Abe Dumber.

Respectfully submitted,

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lancaster County, at Nos. 35 and 36, November Sessions, 1918, Charles Jeffries, aged seventeen years, was indicted for larceny, and on November 9, 1918, was sentenced to imprisonment in the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory at Huntingdon, Pennsylvania.

The crime for which he was convicted consisted in taking several revolvers and watches from an employer on one occasion; and, on another occasion, articles such as razors, pocket-knives, fountain pens and wearing apparel, aggregating fifteen dollars in value. All the articles stolen have been recovered, or restitution made. The application is made by the defendant's guardian who has informed the Board that the defendant has lately inherited a sum of money which will aid him in acquiring a living. A brother-in-law has promised to look after the defendant after discharge, and will aid him in securing employment. The defendant has never heretofore been convicted of any crime. He is now in an incipient stage of tuberculosis. The Judge who tried the case has written to the guardian as follows:

C. H. RUHL, Esq.,
Berks County Trust Co.,
Reading, Pa.

"Lancaster, Pa., April 21, 1919.

My dear Mr. Ruhl:-

Judge Landis handed me your letter of April 8, which he reported he had answered. I sentenced Charles Jeffries to Huntingdon. I have never paroled a prisoner sent to Huntingdon, and I find on examination of the Acts of Assembly that I have no authority to do it. I believe it would be for the best interests of the boy to be paroled and taken into the home of his brother-in-law at Wilmington, Delaware, and if I had the authority to parole him I would do so. That power, in my opinion rests only with the Board of Inspectors, and your application will have to be made to them. I am perfectly satisfied that you shall use this letter of mine in connection with that application.

Yours truly,

A. B. HASSLER."

Under the foregoing circumstances, we believe this is a proper case for Executive clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Charles Jeffries.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Chester County, Pennsylvania, at January Sessions, 1918, Luigi Mouti and Samuel Talbert were convicted of aggravated assault and battery, and attempt to rob. On April 1, 1918, they were sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred ($100.00) dollars, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for not less than two nor more than three years.

The circumstances of the crime were the following.

The presecutor was a shoemaker, carrying on his trade in the Borough of West Chester. On a certain evening, between eight and nine o'clock, two men came into the prosecutor's shop, assaulted him and attempted to commit robbery. He struggled with the men, but they escaped. An alarm was given and within a short time the two petitioners were arrested, as they were waiting in a trolley station a short distance west of West Chester, on the Coatesville trolley line for a car to take them to Coatesville. The petitioners claimed at the time of the trial and still assert that they are innocent. The Commonwealth at the time of the trial relied mainly upon the identification of the two petitioners by the shoemaker. No one else saw them in or near his place. When first arrested the shoemaker was positive in his identification, but at the hearing before the Squire and during the trial he expressed strong doubt as to whether these petitioners were the men who committed the crime. The petitioners resided in Coatesville for sometime; they were well known as law-abiding-citizens, and they have never heretofore been convicted of any crime.

The District Attorney who tried the case has written to the Board, in which, after stating the facts surrounding the crime, he states:

"Since then however certain information has reached us which causes us to feel very doubtful whether these men were the persons who committed the crime, and the prosecutor himself has made open declarations to the effect that he was never sure in his own mind that these were the guilty parties. Under these circumstances justice compels us to say that we believe that these defendants should be given the benefit of the doubt and we accordingly recommend the pardon as prayed for."

By reason of the foregoing, we are impelled to the conclusion that this is a proper case for Executive clemency, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Luigi Mouti and Samuel Talbert.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace for Philadelphia County, at No. 145 March Sessions 1918, Ike Orenstein, pleaded guilty to the charge of receiving stolen goods. On April 12, 1918, he was sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and six months, and a maximum term of three years.

A summary of the facts show that on January 30, 1918, detectives of the City of Philadelphia visited a certain premises in that city and there found one Philip Taylor and the petitioner packing some goods in preparation of hauling them away in a wagon which stood outside of the building. Among these goods was a bale of leather identified as having been in transit in the care of the Merchants and Miners Transportation Company, and having been stolen therefrom. The store in which the goods were found was not opened for business; the curtains were pulled down and the appearance of it was that it was closed. The owner of the property was unable to say who had rented his premises, but did testify that neither Taylor nor the petitioner was the one who had done so. Both Taylor and the petitioner, at the time of the former's trial testified that they had been hired by another man whom they could not identify, to come to the store and there pack some goods for removal. Both testified that they had no knowledge as to where the goods came from or who owned them, and that they had no other connection with them than as above described. Taylor was pardoned on a recommendation of the Board of Pardons in May, 1918. The District Attorney recommended that pardon and is not opposing the present application. The petitioner never secured or concealed any goods which were stolen. He has now served about a year and three months. The Vice-President of a reputable business concern has written the Board that if the petitioner be pardoned, he will furnish him with employment and look after his welfare.

We are impelled, under the foregoing facts, to the belief that the petitioner has been sufficiently punished, and, this in addition to the fact that Taylor has been pardoned "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", we recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Ike Orenstein.

Sir: In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Venango County, at No. 2, November Sessions, 1918, H. C. Vollman alias Harold Serrel, pleaded guilty to the crime of stealing an automobile and was, on October 3, 1918, sentenced to the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years, and three months; and a maximum term of two years and six months.

The facts surrounding the case are many and their recital in detail would serve no good purpose. The applicant pleaded guilty without the advice of counsel, motivated by the desire to avoid dragging the woman who owned the automobile into the proceeding, and by the belief that no prison sentence would be imposed. He alleged that the automobile was placed in his possession for the purpose of sale, with the right in him to use it until such sale had been effected. The owner of the car has filed an affidavit stating her disbelief of any intent on the part of the applicant to commit a crime. The District Attorney, concerning this affidavit, has written the Board, stating as follows:

"I will say that this is the first time that I have had an opportunity to learn her version of this matter, and will say further that in view of this testimony if produced on the trial of the case I would frankly inform the court and jury that in my opinion a conviction would not have been justified."

The petitioner has a wife and family and, since his incarceration, his wife has been compelled to earn a living. Impelled by the foregoing circumstances, we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be granted to the said H. C. Vollman alias Harold Serrel.

Sir: In the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery for the County of York, at Nos. 2, 3 and 4, August Sessions, 1916, Frederick Wiseman, pleaded not guilty to the crimes of sodomy and buggery; rape, carnally knowing and abusing a woman child under sixteen years of age; and taking a female child for sexual intercourse.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty on all of the bills of indictments, and the following sentences were imposed. On the first indictment, a minimum term of five years and a maximum term of ten years to commence September 11, 1916. On the second indictment, a minimum term of five years and a maximum term of fifteen years to commence from the same time; and, on the third indictment, a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of five years to commence at the expiration of the second sentence. The place of commitment in all the sentences was to the Eastern Penitentiary.

Without a recitation of the circumstances of the crime, it appears that the conviction on the indictment for taking a female child for sexual intercourse is not supported by any evidence and the testimony of the girl's mother clearly shows that she had agreed to the employment of her daughter. On the other charges, a reputable surgeon testified that his physical examination of the child disclosed that she had not had sexual intercourse at all. The girl visited her mother a short time after the alleged inception of the intercourse, and did not complain about improper conduct by her employer. The mother, at the time of the trial, stated that her daughter did not always tell the truth. The petitioner has continually denied that he ever committed or attempted to commit the crimes for which he was found guilty. After he was sentenced, the applicant received a letter from the mother expressing absolute disbelief of her daughter's testimony at the trial, and regretting his unjust punishment.

The petitioner was defended by the now District Attorney, who has written recommending a pardon and stating as follows:

"I have talked this matter over with his Honor, President Judge Wanner, who tried the case, and he agrees with me that there was not sufficient evidence to convict him of felonious Rape or Sodomy, and that a conviction, perhaps of technical assault and battery with intent to ravish might have been the proper one, and that he has suffered punishment for what offence he committed.

"I think it is only fair to state that I defended this man at that time and I have never changed my opinion as to what ought to have been the proper conviction."

The District Attorney also appeared at the hearing and orally recommended Executive clemency.

The foregoing impel us to the belief that Executive clemency should be exercised in this case, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Frederick Wiseman.

Sir: At No. 384, July Sessions, 1908, in the court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County, Robert E. Brown, thirty-four years of age, unmarried, and a butcher by trade was convicted of murder in the first degree. On March 8th, 1909, the sentence of death was imposed, but on June 1 of that year it was commuted to life imprisonment. The circumstances of the crime were as follows:

For some time prior to its commission, the applicant and the deceased, a girl friend, had maintained an illicit sexual relation, which continued after her marriage and after she had separated from her husband seven or eight months later. She persisted against his wish in visiting him on all manner of occasions. At one time she went to his home and was ordered away after his mother discovered them in sexual intercourse; she interrupted him at his place of business so frequently and in such a manner that he was discharged from two positions. Repeated requests to her to desist from such visits were unavailing, and finally the applicant determined to bring them to an end by enlisting in the army.

On the night of the crime he told her of his decision and urged her to return to and live with her husband. She would not consent to do this, and told him that if he went away she would at once adopt the life of a prostitute. The applicant became greatly agitated over the girl's statement of her intention, and argued and pleaded that she promise not to carry it out. She reiterated her resolution and the conversation grew more spirited. Finally, the applicant exclaiming he would rather see her dead than resorting to such a life, drew a small knife which butchers not infrequently carry on their persons, and stabbed her with fatal results. Immediately thereafter he sought an officer and stated what he had done.

From the evidence it seems that he was suddenly seized with a belief that he had been called upon by a power above to prevent the girl from adopting a life of shame. We are not convinced that the element of premeditation exists in this case. There seems grave doubt as to whether the crime rose higher than manslaughter, and having now been imprisoned for more than eleven years, the applicant has been confined longer than the maximum term prescribed by law for the last named offense.

The applicant has never before been accused of any crime and comes from a family of excellent reputation.

The Assistant District Attorney orally stated to the Board that he interposed no objection to a pardon.

Under all the foregoing circumstances, we are impelled to the conclusion that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Robert E. Brown.

Sir: At No. 44, February Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Philadelphia County, Demetrious A. Yankon, was found guilty on an indictment charging fraudulent conversion. On May 25, 1920, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Philadelphia County Prison for a term of nine months. The applicant was a furrier by trade, and for many years prior to his arrest conducted a store in the city of Philadelphia. On a certain day the prosecutrix took a fur coat to the applicant and inquired as to the cost of remodeling it. Not satisfied with the price she left the store, but returned the next day, left the coat and accepted the defendant's receipt. Subsequently upon her presentation of this receipt, the defendant gave her a sealine coat. This she refused to accept and demanded a coat made of Alaska seal fur, which she claimed was the kind of a coat she had left with him. Her demand being refused, the petitioner's arrest and conviction followed.

The applicant was not represented at the trial by counsel. Facts disclosed by subsequent investigation leave no doubt but that the coat which the prosecutrix left was a sealine coat and not one made of Alaska seal.

The applicant has never heretofore been accused of any crime. He has now been confined for almost four months. A representative of the District Attorney's office orally stated he did not oppose a pardon and that, in his judgment, there existed meager evidence of a criminal intent.

Under the foregoing circumstances, we are impelled to the conclusion that this is a proper case for clemency.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Demetrious A. Yankon.

Sir: At No 26, June Sessions, 1916, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lebanon County, Blaine S. Biecher, twenty-six years of age, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging aggravated assault and battery, assault with intent to kill, and carrying concealed deadly weapons. On June 5, 1916, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a period of not less than five, nor more than seven, years.

The circumstances of the crime were briefly as follows:

The applicant and a companion, after consuming a large amount of intoxicating liquor, entered a certain pool room and attempted to bowl. Their conduct became so disorderly that the proprietor ordered them from his premises, and when they refused to leave summoned an officer, who took them away. Later in the evening of the same day the two youths re-entered the establishment, and the petitioner, drawing his revolver, shot the proprietor.

The petitioner has never heretofore been accused of any crime. He has now been confined for considerably more than four years. Both the District Attorney and the Trial Judge do not oppose clemency.

Under all the circumstances of the case we are impelled to the conclusion that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Blaine S. Biecher.

Sir: At No. 43 December Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lycoming County, Samuel Dawson, thirty-six years of age, was convicted on a indictment charging larceny. On March 7, 1919, he was sentenced to pay a fine of twenty-five dollars ($25.00), the costs of prosecution and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a period of not less than two and one-half years nor more than three years.

For about three weeks prior to his arrest the petitioner had been excessively indulging in intoxicants, and his crime consisted of extracting small sums of money from public telephone pay station cash boxes.

He has heretofore borne a good reputation, and has now been confined for more than a year and six months. The Judge who imposed the sentence has written, inter alia, as follows:

"I have no objection whatever to the granting of a pardon to Samuel Dawson. Perhaps he has been punished enough, and no harm could come to the public if he were paroled or pardoned.

Respectfully yours,

H. W. WHITEHEAD."

From the foregoing we are impelled to the conclusion that the petitioner has been sufficiently punished, and that a pardon would restore him to his sense of self-respect and conduce to his future good citizenship.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Samuel Dawson.

Sir: At No. 1, December Sessions, 1914, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Indiana County, Wassil Cherenko, alias Wassil Schrenko, thirty-three years of age, was convicted of murder in the second degree.

On March 15, 1915, he was sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred dollars ($100.00), and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a term of not less than twelve, nor more than twenty, years.

The circumstances surrounding the case were briefly as follows:

The petitioner discovered his brother and the deceased engaged in a fight and undertook to separate them. As a result the petitioner and his brother were cut several times by the deceased, and were disabled for more than a week. About a month later the petitioner, coming home from work, was stoned by the deceased. After many stones had been thrown by the latter, Cherenko himself picked up a stone threw it at the deceased, and struck him, from the effect of which he subsequently died. The petitioner then went to his home, was arrested the next day, and his trial and conviction followed.

The District Attorney does not oppose the application. The Warden of the Penitentiary states that the applicant's deportment has been good, and that during his incarceration he has acquired considerable education.

The Trial Judge has written, inter alia, as follows:

"The circumstances might be interpreted not as resulting from a deliberate intent on the part of the defendant to take life or even to inflict serious bodily harm, but perhaps to prevent the deceased from following him. The defendant afterwards made no effort to escape, went to his home and remained there until arrested without resistance, and as I am informed has been a good prisoner. In view of the case no good will be accomplished by extending his sentence, and I therefore join in this application for pardon.

Very respectfully,

P. J. TEXFORD."

The County Detective and the prosecutor have also written, urging clemency. The applicant has now been confined for considerably more than five years. By reason of the foregoing we are of the opinion that he has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Wassil Cherenko.

Sir: At No. 76, June Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Dauphin County, Francis Schaeffer, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging larceny, larceny by bailee and receiving stolen goods. On June 18, 1920 he was sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary for not less than twelve nor more than thirteen months.

The applicant was an employee of the Railways Express Company and his crime consisted in taking from time to time various articles of merchandise and converting the same to his own use. There were certain other defendants employed by the same Company in the same capacity who pleaded guilty to the same offences, all of whom were sentenced to an imprisonment in the Dauphin County prison by a resident Judge for a period of three months. The sentence of the applicant was imposed by a visiting Judge, whose attention, it seems, was not called to the sentences imposed on the applicant's co-defendants. All of these persons are now at liberty.

The applicant is married and has four children. He has never heretofore been charged with any crime. His punishment should not have been more severe than that of his co-defendants.

We are of opinion that clemency should be exercised, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Francis Schaeffer.

Sir: At No. 402, January Session, 1920, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia County, Samuel Vogel was found guilty of an indictment charging false pretense. On May 19th he was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and to undergo an imprisonment in the Philadelphia County prison for a period of six months.

The prisoner and the prosecutor formed a partnership for the purpose of conducting a restaurant, the former contributing the stock, fixtures and good-will of the restaurant which he had been previously conducting in the same place in his own right, and the latter contributing one thousand ($1,000) dollars in cash. Upon receipt of the money the prisoner paid over the entire amount to business creditors. A few weeks later it became apparent to both partners that the restaurant might prove a business failure, whereupon the prosecutor demanded the return of his contribution. Vogel, being unable to comply with this request, his partner caused his arrest charging him with embezzlement and obtaining money under false pretense. He was acquitted on the first charge.

Under the evidence in this case it is extremely doubtful whether the prisoner committed any crime. There seems to be no convincing evidence of the existence of criminal intent. The Assistant District Attorney, present at the hearing, stated he interposed no objection to a pardon.

We believe this to be a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency, and therefore, "after full hearing upon

Sir: At No. 14, March Term, 1919, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County, Richard McCormick, an American eighteen years of age, was convicted, with two co-defendants, on an indictment charging robbery and receiving stolen goods. On March 15, 1919, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for not less than two, nor more than five, years.

The petitioner was convicted on a confession made after the petitioner's arrest, and on the evidence of the prosecutor, who testified he had been knocked down and robbed by four men who took flight in an automobile.

McCormick claimed that the confession did not state the facts, and that it had been wrung from him by "third degree" methods. He further claimed that he was not present at the time and place at which the crime was alleged to have been committed, and has filed several affidavits in substantiation of his allegation.

The petitioner was the only one of the defendants who was sentenced to a penitentiary. One was sent to the county jail and is now out on parole, and the other to the Industrial Reformatory at Huntingdon. The prosecution as to a fourth defendant was nol. proded.

The defendant has now been confined for more than one year and seven months.

The District Attorney has written, inter alia, as follows:

"As we recall it, McCormick was but eighteen years of age at the time of the commission of these offenses. In view of the fact that he has served more than one year, and that the terms of the other boys have expired we do not at this time oppose his application for pardon.

Very respectfully yours,

In view of all the circumstances of the case we are of the opinion that Executive clemency should be exercised, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Richard McCormick.

Sir: At No. 137, September Term, 1917, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Dauphin County, Charles C. Cranford was convicted on an indictment charging fraudulently making a written instrument. On January 5, 1920 sentence was suspended and the defendant ordered to enter his own recognizance in the sum of three hundred dollars ($300) for his appearance at the March Sessions, 1920, of said Court.

He is forty-five years of age and has resided in and about Dauphin County all his life. He is married and has seven children now residing with him in said County. He has never heretofore been charged with any crime, and several gentlemen whose opinions are entitled to great respect, and who have known him for many years, have written the Board stating that he was a man respected in his community and among business acquaintances.

Prior to April 1, 1917, the petitioner and Thomas Stevenson were a partnership engaged in a general hauling business. After a disagreement the partnership was terminated by mutual agreement, Stevenson receiving the firm's assets and assuming its liabilities. Some time subsequent to the dissolution, the petitioner discovered certain partnership papers at his home, among which was a bill in the sum of fifty-nine dollars ($59) or thereabouts, for certain hauling and excavating, and on which were written the words "received payment, Kistler Brothers." These papers were delivered by the petitioner to his former partner about the time Kistler Brothers rendered a bill which included the item receipted for. Kistler Brothers insisted the account was not paid, and when the petitioner was interviewed he said the receipt resembled very much his style of writing, but that he did not remember having written the words, and that to the best of his knowledge the item covered by the bill had not been paid. He was nevertheless accused and his indictment and conviction followed.

Notwithstanding the fact that his sentence was suspended, we are of the opinion that a full pardon should be granted in order that the petitioner may resume his rightful place in society. We find no evidence which could have justified a jury in finding the petitioner guilty, and we believe his conviction was a miscarriage of justice.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Charles C. Cranford.

Sir: At No. 1, September Term 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Armstrong County, Andrew Cravener was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter. On September, 1916, he was sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred ($100) dollars, the costs of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a period of not less than eight nor more than eleven years.

The deceased, the applicant's wife, was killed after she had broken her promise to give up forever the immoral life she had been leading prior to her marriage. The Trial Judge has written in the applicant's favor as follows:

"At this writing he has served not quite one-half of the minimum term of sentence, but as I understand the full one-half time will have been served by the time the matter is laid before you. This man's early training was of a very inferior order and as a result he grew up without high notions of right and wrong, especially without well developed character with regard to obedience to the law. In addition to this he acquired, quite naturally under the circumstances, a disposition to indulge in intoxicating liquors. While an excellent worker, and in this respect enjoyed the good will of his employers, yet at times he would indulge in drunken sprees to such an extent as to render him almost, if not altogether, irresponsible. I do not mean to leave the inference that such was his condition at the time he committed the crime for which he was convicted and sentenced.

"His wife, whom he killed, was a notoriously bad character, and while in no sense justified in taking her life, there was great aggravation and provocation. His conviction was warranted under the facts and his punishment was deserved. From what I learn, he has realized the justice of his punishment, and I am of the opinion that longer confinement would not result in a more material, personal benefit to him.

"Insofar as a warning to others, I am also of the opinion that this end has been accomplished.

"Since the temptation to drink and drunkenness has been largely removed by the recent ban upon the sale of intoxicating liquors, and since in all probability his appetite therefor has been eradicated, it is probable that he will not again fall into crime.

"In view of all the circumstances, believing the ends of justice subserved, I would suggest favorable consideration on the part of your Honorable Board of his application.

Yours very respectfully,
J. W. KING."

The District Attorney has written, inter alia as follows:

"I do not intend to interpose any objection to favorable action upon Cravener's petition, and I join Judge King in the recommendations made by him in his letter for the reason therein stated by him."

We are of the opinion that this is a proper case for Executive clemency, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Andrew Cravener.

Sir: At No. 488, December Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia, Louis Wesler was convicted on each of five counts of an indictment charging larceny and receiving stolen goods. He was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for not less than two years and nine months nor more than three years. An appeal was had to the Superior Court, with the result that judgment on the verdict as to four counts was reversed, but the indictment was sustained as to the fifth count. The prisoner was called again for sentence on June 6, 1919, and, the Judge who originally imposed sentence having died, another Judge sentenced the prisoner on the one count which the Appellate Court sustained to the same period of confinement as he had been sentenced on all five counts.

The prisoner with his brother originally conducted a business under the name of Wesler Brothers, but as the result of a disastrous fire they were compelled to liquidate. A certain Herman Jackson, an acquaintance of the prisoner, offered him a partnership interest in a merchandise business conducted under the name of "H. Jackson." The offer was accepted, and the prisoner did most of the purchasing for the firm. On the day of the arrest an amount of merchandise had been delivered to the place of business, which, contrary to the understanding between the partners, had been purchased by Jackson. Shortly after the delivery Detectives entered the store and arrested Wesler and several other men therein. All were discharged except the prisoner, and he was accused and convicted upon the theory of the Commonwealth that he alone was proprietor of the store and that Herman Jackson was a myth. At the trial considerable discussion occurred between the Court and the prisoner's Counsel, which resulted in the latter requesting a general exception and resting his case, without offering a full defense. There seems to be ample evidence of the existence of Herman Jackson as a member of the firm, and had evidence been presented of this fact undoubtedly the prisoner would have been acquitted.

The Assistant District Attorney orally stated to the Board that in his judgment there existed scant evidence of the prisoner's guilt. He had never heretofore been in trouble; he has now been confined for more than a year and three months.

Under all the circumstances of this case we are of the opinion that Executive clemency should be exercised, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Louis Wesler.

Sir: At No. 11, June Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Potter County, John Spetich, and Joe Fortur, Austrians, were convicted of manslaughter and on September 16, 1918, were sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a period of not less than two years and six months, nor more than three years.

The petitioners, woodcutters in the camp of a certain chemical company, were co-employees of the deceased and his brother, also Austrians. While the deceased was away in another State, the brother became engaged in an altercation with a certain boarding housekeeper and threatened to stab him. Spetich interfered and stopped the quarrel with the result that the brother became intensely angry and threatened Spetich's life. Some time later, the deceased returned to this State and while intoxicated made numerous threats against Spetich. The sheriff was informed and protection was asked, but he stated nothing could be done by him unless a warrant was first sworn out. Fortur, the other petitioner who had overheard the threats and had made the appeal to the sheriff, traveled some miles distance to the place where Spetich was stopping to tell him of the return of the deceased and to warn him of his danger. The brothers and the petitioners subsequently met in a hotel and menacing words were exchanged. Later the four men met again when Spetich inquired of the deceased why he had returned to kill him, whereupon the deceased replied, "I will cut you from the left to the right with a knife", and at the same time made a motion toward his hip pocket. A companion of Spetich struck the deceased with his fist whereupon the latter started to run away. Fortur threw an ax handle at the retreating man which hit him in the back. He continued to run, however, until he stumbled and fell against an iron railing and some stone steps. The petitioners went away, not knowing the man had been fatally injured. About a half hour later they were arrested and were informed that the man died.

From the evidence it is not clear whether the death was caused by the fall, or by being struck in the back. There appears no evidence of a malicious intent on the part of the petitioners. They have now been confined for more than two years.

The Trial Judge has written as follows:

"I am of the opinion that no real reason in the administration of justice will be served by the further incarceration of the petitioners and therefore I recommend that their petition for a pardon be granted.

A. S. HECK,
Trial Judge."

In view of the foregoing circumstances, we are of the opinion that this is a proper case for the exercise of clemency and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Spetich and Joe Fortur.

Sir: At No. 15, June Term, 1919, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Allegheny County, Charles E. Scherer, was found guilty of murder of the first degree. On July 10, 1919, the sentence of death was imposed.

Some years subsequent to his marriage the applicant discovered that the deceased, his wife, was unduly intimate with another man. This discovery so affected the applicant that he quit his work for nearly a month prior to the murder concerned himself with nothing other than keeping watch upon the conduct of the deceased, with the result that he became emaciated, weak, nervous and unable to sleep. He witnessed many meetings between his wife and the man which continued notwithstanding his importunities to her to desist from her course of conduct.

The day before the murder after the husband had seen his wife and the man together, a verbal altercation occurred in which the wife pointed a revolver at him and threatened to shoot. His mother intervening, the deceased left the room without firing. That night the wife slept on a davenport on the second floor, while the husband retired to his room on the floor above. Early in the morning he went down to the living room to get warm, sat down in front of a gas stove and fell asleep. Suddenly awakened by a noise, he jumped to his feet, drew a revolver, which he had put into his pocket the day before, in order, as he testified, to prevent his wife from getting it after she had threatened to kill him, and fired in the direction of the noise. He shot his wife who had arisen and was partly dressed. Seeing what had occurred, he went to an engine-house a few doors away and related what had occurred.

The application was heard by the Board at its May Session and clemency was asked on the ground of insanity. The case was continued and Dr. Frank Woodbury was requested to examine into the applicant's mental condition. We are in possession of his report which concludes as follows:

"The conclusion that I have reached from my examination of Charles E. Scherer is that he is now a psychopathic subject, and suffers with Manic depressive conditions, during which he is insane. At the time of the present examination he was in a quiet period, but still has systematic delusions, and falsification of memory, without hallucinations of sight or hearing. The persistence of the delusions indicate the presence of insanity. The conditions found at this time, in my opinion, indicate present mental abnormality, and would warrant his removal to an institution for the insane where further mental tests may be made, under more favorable conditions than those existing in the condemned department of a prison.

FRANK WOODBURY."

We are impelled by this report to the belief that the death sentence should not be carried into execution, but that the applicant should be confined for the rest of his natural life in the proper State institution.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that the sentence of death imposed on the said Charles E. Scherer be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At No. 73, August Term, 1910, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Philadelphia County, Henry Morgan, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging forgery. On August 4, 1910, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two years and six months nor more than ten years.

He was paroled, but on October 26, 1916, he violated the same by committing a crime of forgery in the State of Iowa. He was imprisoned in the penitentiary of that state, but has been recently recommended for parole by its Parole Board.

Under the law of this Commonwealth he should be returned to this State when he finishes his term in Iowa to serve out the unexpired maximum term. The Board of Inspectors of the Eastern Penitentiary have caused this petition for a pardon to be filed for the reason that to return him to this Commonwealth would occasion a considerable expense, and that there is no good reason why he should be returned for confinement here, as the Iowa Parole Board will exercise control over him for a considerable period of time.

The reasons of the Board of Inspectors are convincing and we, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Henry Morgan.

Sir: At No. 155 September Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Berks County, Benjamin Boyd, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging the operation of a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. On September 13, 1920, he was sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred dollars, the costs of prosecution and to undergo an imprisonment in the Berks County Prison for a term of three months.

The applicant after driving along one of the State highways stopped at a garage for the purpose of securing oil. A complaint was made that he was under the influence of liquor, and his arrest followed. No crime was committed under any aggravating circumstances, no accident occurred and the fact that he was under the influence of liquor was not apparent while he was operating the car.

He is a salesman by occupation, has a family and has never heretofore been charged with any crime. He has now been confined for more than a month and a half, and his license to operate a motor vehicle has been revoked for the year.

We are of the opinion that he has been sufficiently punished, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Benjamin Boyd.

Sir: At No. 11, February Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Franklin County, Merle Glee, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging larceny and receiving stolen goods. On February 7, 1920, he was committed to the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory at Huntingdon.

The applicant is an American, eighteen years of age, and has usually been engaged as a farm hand or a day laborer in the neighborhood of his residence. At the time of his arrest he was employed by a man much his senior in years to haul wood in and about Chambersburg. On a certain day the applicant and another employe were sent out into the country where they stole a set of harness and about half a dozen chickens from a farmer.

The applicant was ignorant of the object of the trip. He was directed to accompany his companion who was in charge of the team and did the driving. Although he took no active part in stealing the goods, he remained with his companion and made no protest.

He was arrested a short time afterward, and at once admitted his guilt, and, relating the circumstances of the crime, gave the names of his companion and employer, which resulted in the goods being recovered. The applicant's companion was convicted. The employer fled and has not yet been apprehended.

The case of this applicant was before the Board at its April meeting, and it was suggested to counsel that he withdraw his application and present it later during the year, as the only consideration and present it later during the year, as the only consideration for clemency could be the length of his confinement.

We are of the opinion that under the foregoing circumstances the applicant has now been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Merle Glee.

Sir: At Nos. 1083 and 1086 January Sessions in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of the County of Philadelphia, William J. O'Neill pleaded guilty to indictments charging larceny, receiving stolen goods, assault and battery and assault and battery with intent to kill. On February 4, 1918 he was sentenced on indictment No. 1086 to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern penitentiary for a term of not less than two years and three months and not more than two years and six months. On February 3, 1918 he was sentenced on indictment No. 1083 to undergo an imprisonment in the same Institution for a minimum term of two years and three months and a maximum term of two years and six months to begin at the expiration of the other sentence.

The applicant and a friend had been drinking continuously for two days. In company with some friends they started to "do Chinatown." While on their way they observed an automobile standing in front of a house, crowded into it and drove it for about a square when a person, who was afterwards discovered to be the owner's chauffeur, was seen pursuing them. O'Neill, who was driving, immediately stopped the car, turned it over to the chauffeur and joined his companions who had fled into a nearby saloon. An officer was notified who requested the chauffeur to accompany him and identify O'Neill. Instead of obeying these instructions the chauffeur rushed into the saloon and began assaulting O'Neill. A free-for-all fight followed during which O'Neill drew a revolver and began to shoot wildly. One of the bullets struck the officer as he came through the doorway of the saloon, but was nevertheless able to place the applicant under arrest and stop the disorder. On his way to the station house the prisoner said he had never intended to shoot the officer, that he never even knew he was in the room, and the said officer has stated that he believes this to be the fact.

The Assistant District Attorney stated orally to the Board that in his judgment there was small evidence, either of an intent to steal the car or of an intent to kill; that the only crime for which the applicant was guilty of, was aggravated assault and battery, the maximum term of imprisonment for which is three years. The applicant has now been confined for more than two years and six months.

Under the foregoing circumstances we are impelled to the conclusion that he had been sufficiently punished, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session." recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said William J. O'Neill.

Sir: At No. 120 September Sessions, 1918, in the court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Berks County, John Soltysik was found guilty on an indictment charging felonious entry and recommended to the mercy of the Court. On September 11, 1918 he was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00, the costs of prosecution and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a period of not less than five years nor more than ten years.

The applicant, an Austrian Pole thirty-four years of age, was arrested in the shipping department of the Carpenter Steel Company, Reading, Pa., early in the morning, being found in a mill next to the one at which his work required him to be. A special policeman, who arrested him, claimed he saw the applicant enter the mill stealthily, and that when he called upon him to stop he threw away a steel bar similar to those which had been on two occasions placed in certain rolls in the mill, and fled. The applicant claimed that he entered the mill from a different side from that stated by the officer; that he did not run along the rolls; that he went directly to a gang of men who were loading a freight car at the other end of the mill, and asked one of them, John Lachowski by name, where he could get some wire to fix his work bench; that Lachowski pointed out some wire near by; that he was cutting a piece of wire off when the officer seized him; that he did not run and that he never had nor saw the bar of steel which the officer said he threw away.

Lachowski was in Court and would have testified to this fact, but could not understand English, and he was not called because the applicant's counsel did not know that he could so testify. The District Attorney has written the Board, inter alia, as follows:—

"We feel our prosecution was warranted at the time, even though there appears to be a doubt as to the guilt of this man at this time, and possibly it would be well to pardon him."

The Carpenter Steel Company was not the prosecutor, and its General Superintendent has stated in a communication addressed to the applicant's wife that,

"We have found your husband to be a sober and conscientious workman up to the time of his commitment, and if the authorities see fit to release him we shall be pleased to re-engage him."

We are impelled, under the foregoing, to the conclusion that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency, and, we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Soltysik.

Sir: At No. 204, August Sessions, 1915, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Philadelphia County, Lemuel Hamlett, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging murder. The Court fixed the crime as murder of the second degree, and on December 2, 1915, imposed a sentence to the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of sixteen years and a maximum term of eighteen years. He had been in the first instance found guilty of murder of the first degree, but a new trial was granted, pursuant to which the plea and sentence aforesaid followed.

The deceased had, shortly before his death, served a sentence of twenty years for second degree murder.

He tried to induce Hamlett to gamble with him, and when the latter refused became vituperative and threatening. Later on the same day he met Hamlett, said "Now I have got you", drew a gun and began shooting. The applicant turned and ran, drew his own revolver, and, while still in flight, without taking aim, fired one shot, killing his pursuer.

Honorable Joseph E. Rogers, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas No. 2 of Philadelphia, was at that time the Assistant District Attorney, and prosecuted the case against the applicant.

He has written the Board as follows:

"I was the Assistant District Attorney who prosecuted Lemuel Hamlett on October 21st, 1915. The jury returned the verdict of Guilty of First Degree Murder, and on my motion the trial Judge set the verdict aside, as in my judgment it was not a proper verdict on the evidence. The defendant then pleaded Guilty of Murder and of course under the circumstances the Judge determined the crime as Murder in the Second Degree, and sentenced Hamlett to not less than sixteen years nor more than eighteen years.

"I am frank in saying that his case was not properly presented, and his defense should have been one of self-defense. The man he killed had just served a term of twenty years for Second Degree Murder, less commutation, and was known as a bad man. He provoked the trouble which resulted in his death. Of course Hamlett armed himself after having been threatened by the dead man and for that reason I felt that he should be punished after his counsel advised him to plead guilty.

"But I believe that the five years and three months that he has served in prison since his arrest is sufficient punishment, and the ends of justice have been fully satisfied, and I thereupon join in the application to your Board in the petition for a Pardon of Hamlett at this time."

The present District Attorney has stated he interposes no objection to clemency.

We are of the opinion that sufficient punishment has been suffered in this case, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Lemuel Hamlett.

Sir: At No. 43 December Sessions, 1914, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lycoming County, Charles A. Phillips, who had just been found guilty of murder in the first degree, but allowed a new trial, pleaded guilty, upon the advice of his counsel, to murder. The Court fixed the degree as of murder of the second degree, and on March 7, 1916, sentenced him to pay a fine of $25.00, the costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of nine years and a maximum term of twelve years.

The deceased was an aged man who lived as a recluse in a small house some distance from the City of Williamsport. He had an illegitimate son who lived with his mother in that City, but who at times visited his father. The applicant was formerly a boarder at the mother's home, and was indebted to the deceased in the sum of $25.00.

On the morning of the crime Phillips went to the house of the deceased for the purpose of making a partial payment of his debt, and there he found the son with whom he was not at that time on good terms. The applicant was cordially received by the deceased, and when Phillips said he wanted to pay off part of the loan the deceased went into an adjoining room and returned with the note. After some conversation between them the son appeared in the doorway and without a word shot the applicant, the bullet penetrating his lip, knocking out two teeth and lodging in the roof of his mouth. The applicant, as he claims, then drew his revolver and fired, and the deceased, who had arisen from the table and evidently rushed toward the doorway, received the bullet, which proved fatal. The son testified that a dispute had arisen between the applicant and his father; that he heard two shots, and when he opened the door his father came through and fell mortally wounded. Phillips left the house. He did not attempt to flee, but started toward Williamsport. He was arrested before he reached the city. There was no doubt that he had been shot through the mouth as he stated. There were no other witnesses present and the actual circumstances of the shooting depend upon the veracity of the applicant and the son.

Phillips has heretofore borne a good reputation, while that of the son was not good. The Clerk of the Court at the first trial and the clerk at the time of his sentence have written that they were present, heard the testimony and saw the parties and there is grave doubt in their minds as to the guilt of the applicant. The County Detective who made the arrest has written that no motive for the crime could be found. The judge who imposed the sentence has written, inter alia, as follows:

"At the time of his first trial in June, 1915, when the jury found him guilty of murder in the first degree, the circumstances of the case and the character of the witnesses against him raised such a doubt in my mind of his guilt that I granted him a new trial.

"At the time of his second trial he entered a plea of guilty, but upon careful consideration of the testimony I adjudged him guilty of murder in the second degree. The chief witness against him did not bear a good reputation, and in view of the protests of innocence made by Phillips there is a possibility that a mistake was made, and I therefore, have no objections to the granting of a pardon to him

Very respectfully yours,

H. W. WHITEHEAD,

President Judge of the 29th Judicial District."

The applicant has now been confined for more than four years and a half, and under all the circumstances of the case we believe that he has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Charles A. Phillips.

Sir: At No. 504 December Sessions, 1916, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Philadelphia County, Frank Sack pleaded guilty to an indictment charging assault and battery and aggravated assault and battery with intent to kill. On January 31, 1917 he was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of three years and a maximum term of four years.

The circumstances of the crime are briefly as follows:

The defendant became enamored with the wife of an acquaintance. She, returning the applicant's affection, planned with him to dispose of her husband. In December 1916 the husband and wife came to Philadelphia and visited a friend of the applicant. On a certain evening thereafter the four persons went for a walk. When they crossed a bridge over a creek the applicant threw carbolic acid, which he had previously purchased, into the face of the husband, after which the husband was thrown into the creek. As the water was shallow he did not drown. All of these four persons were deaf mutes.

The applicant has served his minimum sentence and is now out on parole, has conducted himself in an irreproachable manner, and is engaged to be married. He desires that the stigma connected with his conviction may be removed in his own and his future wife's account.

The Trial Judge has written that he interposes no objection to clemency. We are of the opinion that a pardon will conduce to the applicant's self respect and his future good citizenship, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Frank Sack.

Sir: At No. 18, January Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of York County, Harry Forry, an American, thirty-five years of age, was found guilty on an indictment charging assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery, and assault and battery with intent to kill. On April 30, 1917, he was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a period of not less than three years, nor more than five years.

About four-thirty on a certain evening, a young lady left a trolley car and started to walk along a road to her home, about two miles distant. After she had traveled about half of the way, she observed a man following her. She quickened her pace, but by the time she had reached a woods, he was but a few yards away. Suddenly, without any warning, without laying hands on her, and without uttering a word, the man fired, the bullet lodging in one of her lower limbs. The woman was unacquainted with the applicant, had never seen him before, and was unable to identify him as the man who had fired the shot. She testified that her pursuer was dressed like him. The crime was committed in the evening when it had become dark. No motive was shown, no proof was presented that Forry had possessed a weapon. Several witnesses, however, did testify to the identity of the applicant as the woman's pursuer. He pleaded not guilty to the indictment and still maintains his innocence. He has never heretofore been accused of any crime. He is now on parole and desires a pardon in order that the odium of the conviction may be removed. Neither the Trial Judge nor the District Attorney opposes clemency.

We are of the opinion that a pardon will restore the applicant to his former respected place in society and will conduce to his future good citizenship. Under all the circumstances of the case we are of the opinion that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Harry Forry.

Sir: At No. 104 May Term, 1915, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County, Alexander Shawne alias Alexander Louis Thiel pleaded guilty to an indictment charging receiving stolen goods. On June 11, 1915, he was sentenced to the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two years, nor more than three years. He was paroled, but violated the same by leaving the state without permission of the authorities of the Penitentiary. On December 3, 1919, he was sentenced by a court of the State of Illinois to a term of one year in the Chicago House of Correction, having been convicted in that state of the crime of petty larceny. Under the provisions of the Parole Law of this Commonwealth, he is subject to return to the Eastern Penitentiary when he has completed his imprisonment in the Illinois Institution. This application is made by the Parole Officer of the Eastern State Penitentiary who believes the return of the prisoner would be unwise. He states that the cost of returning the prisoner to this state would be considerable, and also that the prisoner has contracted pulmonary tuberculosis, and that if he be allowed to remain in Chicago where his relatives reside the Assistant Deputy Superintendent of the House of Correction has promised that he will be placed in a suitable institution in that city for the treatment of his disease.

We are of the opinion that by reason of the foregoing, it is to the advantage of the Commonwealth, and also to the prisoner, that he shall not be brought back to Pennsylvania at the expiration of his term of imprisonment in the House of Correction in Chicago, Illinois, and we, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Alexander Shawne alias Alexander Louis Thiel.

Sir: At No. 13 April Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Lackawanna County, Joseph Busch, a Pole, twenty-seven years old, was found guilty on an indictment charging voluntary manslaughter. On May 23, 1919 he was sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred dollars ($100), and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of six years.. He has, therefore about six months yet to serve before he is eligible for parole.

The following are the circumstances of the crime:

The applicant became engaged in a bar room brawl which resulted in physical altercation. The applicant drew a pen knife and cut another man several times on the head. Some time later the man died, the cause thereof being, as testified to by physicians, a fracture of the skull. There was conflicting testimony as to whether the knife wounds caused the fracture, or whether it had been occasioned by a fall which took place while the men were fighting. The jury, however, decided this fact against the applicant.

A wife and five children, the oldest of whom is eight years, have been living within this State in destitute circumstances ever since the applicant's conviction. During the winter their condition has been described as extremely pitiable.

We are of the opinion, owing to the plight of the family, the season of the year and the brevity of the time the applicant must remain in the Penitentiary before he can be paroled, that this is a proper case for the exercise of clemency, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph Busch.

Sir: At No. 791, January Session, 1915, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County, Clarence Smith alias John Smith colored, was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter and sentenced on March 25, 1915, to the Eastern Penitentiary for not less than eleven years nor more than twelve years. He is twenty-four years of age and unmarried. The circumstances of the crime are as follows:

About half-past six on the evening of December 15, 1914, the applicant, then eighteen years old, arrived in the City of Philadelphia from the South. Being without friends, and without a knowledge of the City, he inquired of a porter at the railroad station as to a respectable lodging. He was directed to another porter who took him to the latter's home where he was given a room at the rear of the second floor and thereupon retired for the night. He was awakened by a sound that seemed to him like the firing of a gun, and heard what he thought were the voices of several people, ascending the stairs. He imagined he heard some one say, "we will get poor Smith tonight", and then his door was opened about six inches. Fearful that he was about to be robbed, he sprang from the bed, procured a revolver from his suitcase, and fired into the hall. He fled down the stairs, carrying some of his clothing in his arm, and firing blindly ahead of him reached the first floor, rushed to the street and sought a policeman. He was brought back to the house and there found that one of the shots had struck a woman who lived in the third floor of the building, and who had started up the stairs at the time he fired. The act seems to have been a terror stricken colored boy, suddenly awakened while spending his first night in a strange city. The representative from the District Attorney's office stated he doubted whether the crime rose higher than involuntary manslaughter. The applicant has now been confined for more than five years. He has never been convicted of any crime either in this Commonwealth or elsewhere.

We are of the opinion that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Clarence Smith alias John Smith.

Sir: At No. 27 June Session, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Lawrence County, Angelo Lamarca an Italian, twenty-seven years old, married and never heretofore charged with any offense, was convicted of the crimes of larceny by servant and fraudulent conversion of money and property. On March 17, 1920 he was sentenced to pay a fine of fifty dollars ($50), the costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a minimum term of one year and three months and a maximum term of one year and six months.

It seems that the facts were not fully disclosed at the time of the trial. It now appears that the applicant and prosecutor were friends and had formed a partnership for the purpose of purchasing and selling grapes, and that after several cars had been purchased and sold a dispute arose between them as to the settlements of accounts. The prosecutor, evidently believing the applicant had kept more money than belonged to him, accused him of the crimes for which he was convicted.

The Trial Judge has written, inter alia, as follows:

"Since pronouncing the above sentence I have learned some facts in connection with this case which, unfortunately for the defendant, were not brought out at time of trial, and I may say, had they been presented to the jury, trying the case very probably would have resulted in an acquittal of the defendant.

"I therefore feel now that my sentence was more severe than subsequent developments justified and have no hesitancy in joining with the petitioner, Angelo Lamarca, in asking that he be pardoned. I remain,

Very sincerely yours,

Sir: At No. 67 and 68 December Term, 1913 in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Northumberland County, John Brennan then eighteen years of age, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with aiding a person in an attempt to escape, and conspiracy. He was sentenced to a term of two years on each indictment, to run consecutively and to begin on December 8, 1913. On December 3, 1917, five days before the expiration of his term, he was sentenced on an indictment charging felonious breaking, entry and larceny, to the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of four years.

The application is made by the Parole Officer of the Penitentiary, and a pardon is sought for the offense occurring in 1913 in order that the prisoner may be entitled to the commutation provided by law of the sentence imposed for the subsequent offense. He has served the second sentence, less commutation, and had his conviction occurred six days later, he would have been eligible for release on November 3, 1920.

The prisoner and a companion, while in the County jail on a charge of breaking open a railroad car, of which crime they were later acquitted, became acquainted with another person convicted of murder of the first degree. After their release at the request of a friend of the man awaiting the infliction of the death penalty, Brennan purchased a saw and gave it to the companion in order that an escape from prison could be effected. The saw was discovered before it was successfully employed, and Brennan's arrest and conviction followed.

The Trial Judge has written the Parole Officer, inter alia, as follows:

"In my opinion this young man ought to be released. I think he has served sufficient time to bring about all the good that can be accomplished by imprisonment. I will heartily approve of his pardon immediately, and would suggest that you present this letter to the Board at the time of the application if you so desire.

Yours very truly,

FRED B. MOSER."

We are of the opinion that this is a proper case for the exercise of Executive clemency, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Brennan.

Sir: At No 1 January Term, 1920, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Lackawanna County, Albert Yates, twenty-six years old, unmarried and residing with his parents, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging burglary. On September 29, 1920 sentence was suspended. The crime was committed while the applicant was on parole for a prior offense for which he had been sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary on January 17, 1916 for a minimum term of three years and a maximum term of ten years. He, must, therefore, under the law, serve out the full unexpired term of the original sentence without commutation, unless the conviction for the second offence, and consequently the violation of the parole be effaced in contemplation of law by a pardon.

The following are briefly the circumstances of the two crimes:

On December 20, 1915 the applicant, accompanied by two companions, started for the Lake Winola region in Wyoming County to look for employment. Night overtook them, and having little money in their pockets, they forced an entrance into an unoccupied cottage at the lake, and spent the night there. A quantity of liquor was found in the house and they became intoxicated. The next morning they left the place and took with them a quantity of personal property which they endeavored to sell. They were eventually apprehended and sentenced, one to the Reformatory and the other two to the Penitentiary. The property which the young men were endeavoring to sell was recovered and returned to the owner.

After the applicant had been out on parole for some time he happened to pass in the day time a house of a certain Italian in Scranton, and saw through an open window a one hundred dollar Liberty Bond lying on a bureau. He entered the house through the window, took the bond and sold it for the purpose of using the proceeds to relieve the wants of his parents, his father at that time having been stricken so as to be able to work only at intervals, and his mother being compelled to work out by the day in order to obtain the necessities of life. The theft was soon discovered and the applicant's arrest and conviction followed.

The Liberty Bond has been recovered and returned to its owner, and the man who purchased it has been reimbursed. The parents are greatly in need of the applicant's help. If pardoned and again paroled he will remain under the supervision of the parole officer for approximately six years. The District Attorney has written recommending that the application be granted.

Under all the circumstances we are impelled to the conclusion that this is a proper case for Executive clemency, and therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Albert Yates for the crime committed in Lackawanna County to which he pleaded guilty as aforesaid on February 3, 1920.

Sir: At No. 46 October Term, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Lackawanna County,

Gerald Canivan and Carl Korner, aged twenty-four years and thirty-three years, respectively, pleaded guilty of the crime of burglary. On October 15, 1919, they were sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for an indefinite term, the minimum time of which was fixed at five years.

The circumstances of the crime were as follows:

At a late hour on a certain night the applicants, having become intoxicated, started for their homes. Passing a store they tried one of its side windows, and, finding it unfastened, effected an entrance and stole six pairs of shoes.

Neither of the applicants had ever before been charged with any crime. They have now been confined for more than a year.

The Trial Judge has written as follows:

"The minimum term of imprisonment imposed upon defendants reflected the belief then current that they had been connected with a series of thefts with which the borough of Dunmore had been plagued. This belief was widely entertained at the time in that community. It seemed to rest upon grounds well calculated to support it, and was shared by the Chief of the borough police force a very efficient officer who had charge of the prosecution.

"Yet it eventually turned out to have been erroneous. Hence, some misgivings of mind on my own part. Petitioners may have just cause to feel that their punishment was more severe than the occasion called for. Therefore their relief at this time would be entirely satisfactory to the Court."

By reason of the foregoing we are of the opinion that the applicants have been sufficiently punished, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that pardons be now granted to the said Gerald Canivan and Carl Korner.

Sir: At No. 15 December Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Lackawanna County, Clarence E. Abbey, an American forty-seven years old, was found guilty of the crime of assault with intent to commit rape. On April 21, 1920, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a minimum term of two years and a maximum term of five years.

For many years prior to his arrest the applicant had lived in this vicinity, and had never theretofore been convicted of any crime. For about a year prior to the arrest the prosecutrix, with her three children, lived in the house of her aunt, now the petitioner's wife, where he was at that time rooming. The house in which the offense was alleged to have been committed was the usual type of country house, two stories in height and with open stairways. It was located directly opposite a railroad station, about twenty-five feet distant therefrom. The room in which one of the children testified the offense had been committed was on the second floor, facing the railroad station, and the windows of which were on a level with the station platform. A person standing on the platform could look directly into the room. The time of the crime, as fixed by the children, was about two o'clock in the afternoon, just after a train had arrived and when many people were on the station platform; the windows were open, as was the door leading down the stairs to the kitchen, and there was at that time in the kitchen the hired girl, the mother, and the aunt. Neither the child upon whom the assault was alleged to have been made, who was about seven years old, nor her sister, who was about nine years old, who testified she witnessed it, made any outcry. Neither of them made any complaint to their mother or to any one else until nine months had elapsed. A medical examination disclosed that neither child had been defiled.

The defendant testified that he left the house early that morning and did not return during the day. He was corroborated in this by the aunt, who testified that he had on that morning borrowed money from her to have his horse shod, and that she had made a record of the loan in a book which she kept in the regular course of her grocery business, which she conducted on a small scale in a building adjoining her home. The servant testified that she had been in the house all that day, and that the applicant had left in the morning and did not return during the day.

Under the facts of this case we are of the opinion that clemency should be exercised, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Clarence E. Abbey.

Respectfully submitted,

Board of Pardons.

Harrisburg, Pa., December 20, 1920.

His Excellency, William C. Sproul, Governor.

Sir: At No. 278 June Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia County, Hugh McDonald, was convicted on an indictment charging attempted robbery, with a recommendation to the mercy of the Court. On September 24, 1919, he was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a period of not less than three years and six months nor more than five years.

The following written statement of the District Attorney who tried the case contains the circumstances of the crime:

"The defendant was tried and convicted of attempted highway robbery. The prosecutor made out a complete case of an attempt to rob him, as he was about to enter his door on the night of May 10th, 1919.

"The defendant testified that he and the prosecutor has been taking a drink in a saloon in the neighborhood, prior to the occurrence, and that there had been a quarrel, and that the incident described by the prosecutor and the Commonwealth's witnesses was a continuation of the barroom 'brawl'. Unfortunately for the defendant, the barkeeper was not produced in his behalf. The jury, very properly under the evidence, brought in a verdict of guilty.

"A man by the name of Joseph Yurski was also charged with highway robbery, and being a companion of McDonald at the time. He was not apprehended until later. Upon his trial, the bartender was produced, and witnesses testified to the quarrel that took place between the prosecutor and the defendant, in the barroom. The jury feeling that the defendant's story was correct, acquitted him. The testimony produced against McDonald was exactly the same as produced against Yurski, but the defendant, however, in the case of Yurski was able to produce the witnesses that were not present at the time McDonald was convicted. After the acquittal of Yurski, I felt that if the jury passing upon McDonald's case, had had the witnesses to tell of the barroom quarrel, the verdict would have been different. Certainly, I myself, would have felt that the case was not one of highway robbery, but rather one of a personal quarrel.

"In view of all these facts, I feel that sufficient justice would be served by permitting the defendant, McDonald, to be paroled."

The Trial Judge has written as follows:

"I feel justified, upon a reexamination of the record and a further investigation of this case, in joining with the Assistant District Attorney who tried it in recommending the favorable consideration of this application by the Board of Pardons."

Under the foregoing, we are of the opinion that this is a proper case for the exercise of clemency, and, therefore, "after full hearing upon public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Hugh McDonald.

Respectfully submitted,

E. E. BEIDLEMAN,
Lieutenant Governor.

CERTIFICATE OF AUDITORS APPOINTED BY THE COURT.

The undersigned, Auditors appointed by the President Judges of the Courts of Common Pleas of Philadelphia to audit and settle the accounts of The Western Saving Fund of Philadelphia, for the year 1919, having been duly sworn according to law, faithfully so to do, certify, that the Assets of the said Society, at the close of business on the thirty-first day of December, 1920 have been examined and verified by them, and that the cost thereof as set forth in the above schedule agrees with the books and the balance sheet of the Society.

The amount due to depositors, including interest, on the first day of January, 1920, and the Surplus or Contingent Fund are correctly stated and are in agreement with the books and the balance sheet.
January 15, 1921.

JOHN C. HINCKLEY,
THOMAS RIDGWAY,
CHAS. J. BIDDLE.

The Society also holds for 9564 depositors U. S. of America Liberty Loan Bonds, deposited severally by them for safe-keeping, of which the par value is $2,951,250.

JOHN C. HINCKLEY,
THOMAS RIDGWAY,

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION ON CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT AND REVISION.

TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA.

To the Members of the Senate and House of Representatives:

Your Commission was appointed by the governor on November 22, 1919, under the act of June 4, 1919, P. L. 388. The second section of the act states our duties as follows:

"It shall be the duty of the Commission on Constitutional Amendment and Revision to study comprehensively and in detail the provisions of the present constitution in the light of modern thought and conditions with especial view of the necessity or advisability of changing or omitting any such provisions, in order to obtain and secure for the people of this Commonwealth a form of government best suited to their needs and most conducive to their welfare. If the commission find a change in the constitution advisable, it shall determine the best means of affecting such change, whether by amendment of particular sections or articles or by general revision.

"The commission shall report to the general assembly at its next session of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, not later than the first Monday of February. The report shall contain in detail such recommendations as to the continuance, discontinuance, or modification of existing provisions, or the adoption of new provisions, as the commission, from its investigations and study, shall deem advisable and proper. The report shall further contain drafts of any proposed amendments, or may contain the draft of a general revision."

PART I.

Introductory Summary.

The first meeting of the Commission was held on December 9, 1919. This and all subsequent meetings have been public, and, with the exception of one meeting at Scranton, have been held in the Senate Chamber at Harrisburg.

In April, a series of public hearings was held at which any citizen of the commonwealth who desired was given an opportunity to make suggestions. The suggestions thus received were most helpful.

The draft of a revised constitution which appears as Part II of this report was prepared after a comprehensive study of the present constitution "in the light of modern thought and conditions." This draft embodies those changes in the present constitution which we believe will "obtain and secure for the people of this commonwealth a form of government best suited to their needs and most conducive to their welfare."

No changes are recommended with respect to the general form of our state government. The division of powers among the executive, legislative and judicial branches is, in our opinion, wise and necessary. Although great changes in thought and conditions have taken place since the last constitutional convention, they do not make necessary new experiments in the machinery of law-making or lessen the value of representative government.

We find no necessity for any change in the Bill of Rights. Today, as throughout our history as a state, it expresses the fundamental principles upon which rest the right of the citizen to the protection of his person and property. Study and reflection convince us that no alteration should be made either in substance or in form and therefore Article 1 of the constitution as proposed is identical with Article 1 of the present constitution.

The remaining articles in the draft submitted propose in effect, one hundred and thirty-two changes of substance in the present constitution. A considerable number of important changes are suggested in the provisions set forth in the articles on The General Assembly, Legislation, The Executive The Judiciary, Suffrage and Elections, and Taxation and Finance. The changes of substance in the other articles are so numerous that it has been necessary to re-arrange and re-write them. In the draft submitted all the provisions of Article XII, Social Welfare, are new; and those of Article XI, Education, are also new with the exception of the provisions of one section. Article XIII contains the scattered provisions of the present constitution in respect to municipalities, with several changes and with a number of new provisions of great importance.

Great care has been taken to express the provisions of the constitution as proposed in clear and simple English. Inaccurate language inevitably gives rise to doubt and litigation. It is of the greatest importance, therefore, that each section of the constitution should be so expressed as to put its meaning beyond the possibility of dispute. To this end, care has been exercised throughout the proposed constitution to use words and phrases uniformly. As a result, an idea is always expressed by the same word or phrase and a word or phrase always expresses the same idea.

Pains have been taken to avoid the use of unnecessary words. The proposed constitution is shorter than the present constitution, although it contains many new provisions.

In a number of cases where the provisions of the present constitution have been adopted, "clarifying changes" have been made in order to resolve ambiguities. In such cases the meaning of existing provisions has been interpreted in the light of judicial decisions, or, in the absence of such decisions, in accordance with what we judge to be the correct interpretation.

In Part II in the notes to the constitution as proposed, will be found cross-references to the corresponding sections of the present and prior constitutions of the commonwealth.

In Exhibit A will be found an explanation of the exact sense in which certain technical words, such as "officer," "commonwealth," and "state" are used.

In Exhibit B will be found, in parallel columns, the text of the constitution as proposed and the text of the corresponding provisions of the present constitution.

In Exhibit C will be found the text of the constitution as proposed, with a note to each section giving the text of the corresponding provisions of the present constitution and explaining the changes of substance and clarifying changes embodied in the new section.

Exhibit D contains the text of the present constitution with cross-references to the corresponding provisions of the constitution as proposed.

Exhibit E is an index to the proposed constitution.

The published records of the Commission include a full stenographic report of all meetings, the reports of committees and the memoranda and briefs submitted by the secretary containing information pertinent to the subjects considered. In order that all the information which has been gathered on constitutional amendment and revision may be accessible in convenient form, we have directed our secretary to prepare a synopsis of the material collected and of the suggestions made.

BRIEF STATEMENT OF PRINCIPAL CHANGES RECOMMENDED.

A brief statement of the principal substantive changes recommended will suggest the extent to which we believe that it is necessary to revise the present constitution.

Organization of State Government.

We have found occasion for substantive changes in the articles dealing with the organization of the state government.

Judicial Organization.

Thus, in the article on The Judiciary, the draft submitted suggests a number of important changes:

Superior Court.

The superior court is established as a constitutional court with jurisdiction as prescribed by law.

Philadelphia Common Pleas.

The several numbered courts of common pleas in the county of Philadelphia are combined in a single court thus conforming with the system which now prevails in the other counties.

Associate Judges.

The office of associate judge, not learned in law, which now exists in many of the counties, is abolished.

Justices of Peace.

A total change is made in the method of selecting and removing justices of the peace so that every county will be divided into districts, each district having a single justice who will be paid a salary only for judicial services and will be subject to removal by the court of common pleas for cause shown.

Philadelphia Magistrates.

In Philadelphia, the system of magistrates is abolished and there is substituted a system of justices of the peace learned in the law somewhat similar to that suggested for the other counties, subject, however, to changes as prescribed by law.

Pleading and Practice.

The duty of regulating pleading and practice in courts of record is imposed upon the supreme court as the body best fitted to deal with these problems.

Duties of Judges.

The provision of the present constitution which forbids the imposition of non-judicial duties upon the justices of the supreme court is extended to the judges of all courts, excepting, however, the supervision of elections and certain powers of appointment which, it is submitted, may be properly entrusted to the judiciary.

Executive Appointments.

In the article on The Executive it is recommended that the governor should appoint the secretary of internal affairs; that, so far as practicable, the governor should be forbidden to fill vacancies without the consent of the senate, and that the "civil service system" should be extended to employees of the state government.

Powers and Duties of State Government.

Other and more numerous changes are suggested in the provisions dealing with the powers and duties of the state government.

Budget and Charitable Appropriations.

Modern conceptions of efficiency in the conduct of government, and the necessity for the expenditure of large sums of money annually in the support of institutions for the care of the sick, the defective and the insane have led us to recommend the establishment of a complete budget system for the state government and of an entirely new method of appropriating money to charities.

Pensions.

We recommend the expansion of the powers of the state government so that it can pay pensions not only for military services but to any class of retired servants of the state government and to school teachers.

State Highways.

The increased necessity for the construction of public highways is recognized by a provision permitting the state government to borrow one hundred and fifty million dollars for that purpose.

State Forests.

The obligation to conserve and develop the natural resources of the state is recognized and its discharge is made possible by a provision permitting the state government to borrow twenty-five million dollars for forest purposes.

State Debt.

A debt created for either of these purposes must have the consent of two-thirds of each house of the general assembly and of the electors of the commonwealth voting on the question.

Amortization of State Debt.

Provision is made for the amortization of such loans by the issue of serial bonds.

Printing and Supplies.

The restrictions in the present constitution prohibiting the state government from doing its own printing and from providing supplies necessary for the capitol buildings are removed, and the provisions affecting contracts for printing and supplies are revised.

Taxation.

The principal changes in the constitution as proposed affecting taxation are the recognition of the right of the state government, in levying an income or inheritance tax, to exempt incomes and estates below a minimum specified in the tax law, of the right to levy a special tax on anthracite coal, and of the right to appropriate money from the state treasury for the relief of persons, corporations or municipalities injured or damaged by surface subsidence resulting from past or future mining of anthracite coal. The first change is in accordance with modern thought and practice. The other two will, we hope, enable the state government to take care of an existing condition in the Lackawanna coal district which is at present beyond the ability of the municipalities concerned to deal with in a way fair to all the public and private interests affected.

Suffrage and Elections.Race, Color or Sex.

In the article on Suffrage and Elections, we have inserted a provision expressly declaring that the right to vote or to hold office shall not be denied on account of race, color or sex.

Payment of Tax.

The tax qualification for voting is omitted.

Corporations.

The present constitution contains many wise provisions relating to corporations which it would be most unfortunate to alter, but it also contains prohibitions which experience has shown serve no public interest and hamper legitimate enterprise.

Holding Real Estate.

We have omitted the present restriction with respect to corporate ownership of real estate.

Stock Issues.

A change is suggested in the provisions with respect to issuing stock, so that it will be possible to issue new stock for less than par if the market value is below par.

Investment by Trustees.

The proposed constitution permits the investment by trustees in corporate bonds, provided such bonds are approved by an agency created by law.

Public Utilities.

In the article on public utilities, alterations and additions are suggested to meet the growing importance of the subject.

Regulation.

In the constitution as proposed, it is declared that all public utilities, and not merely railroads, canals and telegraphs, as in the present constitution, may be regulated by law or by an agency created by law, and the principles stated in the present constitution relating to the obligations of railroad, canal and telegraph corporations to the public and to each other have been amplified and extended to all utilities engaged in the transportation or transmission of passengers, freight or messages.

Consolidation of Corporations.

It is proposed to permit the consolidation of public service corporations, subject to proper regulation.

Surplus Electricity.

A provision is inserted permitting a common carrier to sell to others its surplus electricity for light, heat or power.

Rights in Waters.

We recommend that neither the state government nor a municipality should be permitted to grant a right in waters for more than fifty years or without just compensation.

Education.Public Educational System.

The improvement of the educational system of the commonwealth is a matter of immediate necessity. The suggested article on this subject requires the creation of a system of education no more than adequate, though far in advance of that which exists today. The system is to include free elementary, secondary and vocational education for all children, free mental and vocational training for persons under mental or physical disability, free education in American citizenship for adults, schools for the training of teachers, public libraries and one or more universities. The system is to be administered by a state council of education appointed by the governor with a commissioner of education as its chief executive officer.

School Fund.

A permanent state school fund is provided.

English Language.

There is a provision requiring the basic instruction in public and private schools to be given in the English language and from English text books.

Social Welfare.

As a people we have grown conscious to a degree in which we were not conscious fifty years ago of the obligation of the commonwealth to care for those who, on account of physical or mental infirmities, cannot care for themselves. The article on Social Welfare in the constitution as proposed declares that laws shall be enacted providing for the maintenance of an efficient system of institutions and agencies to care for residents of the commonwealth who cannot care for and support themselves on account of physical or mental infirmities or other misfortunes. It also provides that those sentenced to imprisonment shall be employed at useful labor and compensated for their employment. Finally, provision is made for subjecting charitable, correctional and penal institutions and agencies to governmental inspection and supervisory control and for vesting the power to enforce the law with respect to such institutions in one or more departments of the state government or in such agencies as may be prescribed by law.

Municipalities.

The increase of urban population since the last constitutional convention and the growth of two great metropolitan districts of which Philadelphia and Pittsburgh are the centers, present many constitutional problems which did not exist in 1873. The article on Municipalities in the constitution as proposed therefore necessarily contains a large number of important changes of substance, while many of its sections deal with subjects on which the present constitution is silent.

Classification.

It is suggested that, on the basis of population, cities, counties and school districts should be divisible into seven classes and that other municipalities should be divisible into five classes.

Home Rule for Cities.

A "home rule" section provides that laws may be enacted giving to cities of a particular class authority to frame, adopt an damend charters for their organization and government.

Change of Boundaries.

It is recommended that the boundaries of cities and boroughs should be changed only with the consent of the inhabitants of the territory affected.

Appointment of Officers.

To make "ripper legislation" impossible, a section is suggested providing that appointive municipal officers must be appointed by an officer or agent of the municipality.

Philadelphia County Officers.

To meet problems peculiar to Philadelphia, it is proposed that, in a county co-extensive with a city, county officers may be abolished and their duties may be imposed upon city officers. In order to eliminate the "mandamus evil," it is further suggested that in such counties the salaries and expenses of county officers and the expenses of local judges should be controlled by the municipal authorities.

Borrowing Power.

The provisions of the present constitution with respect to the borrowing power of municipalities and the amortization of municipal loans are completely revised. We believe that the suggested provisions will enable municipalities to borrow sufficient money for all necessary public improvements without a constant resort to the process of constitutional amendment.

Assessments of Benefits.

To facilitate further the erection of public improvements, it is suggested that it should be possible to enact laws providing for the assessment of benefits against property specially and particularly benefited by such improvements even though not actually abutting on the improvements.

Excess Condemnation.

It is also suggested that the state government and municipalities should be permitted to acquire, by right of eminent domain, more land than it is proposed to retain and to dispose of the surplus subject to appropriate restrictions.

Zoning Regulations.

Zoning regulations are declared to be within the scope of municipal powers.

Contracts between Municipalities.

To meet the needs of municipalities with mutual interests, it is recommended that two or more municipalities should be permitted to contract for the joint conduct of public enterprises.

Future Amendments and Revision.

In the article on amendments and revision, a new section is suggested providing for a method of erecting constitutional conventions, to frame new constitutions or to suggest amendments or revisions.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION RECOMMENDED.

If a considerable number of changes of substance are, as we believe necessary to make the constitution of the commonwealth conform to modern thought and conditions, it is evident that the present constitution should be revised—not burdened with a large number of additional amendments.

The constitution as proposed is, in effect, a revision of the present constitution.

There are two methods of changing the constitution: one, by constitutional convention; the other, by the adoption of amendments in the manner prescribed by Article XVIII of the present constitution.

The commonwealth has had four constitutions,—those of 1776, 1790, 1838 and 1874. Each of these constitutions was drafted by a constitutional convention, the members of which were elected by the people.

The method of amendment provided in Article XVIII of the present constitution is first found in the constitution of 1838. It was inserted not as a substitute for the constitutional convention, but to provide a means by which the provisions of some one section could be amended without the necessity of calling a convention to propose the amendment. This being the manifest purpose of Article XVIII, there is grave doubt whether the machinery of amendment provided for in that article can be used to adopt, under the form of one or more amendments, what is in effect a general revision of the constitution.

We believe in representative government as a fundamental American institution. It is one of the essentials of representative government that the whole people, through representatives duly selected in a manner authorized by the people, shall have the right to frame their fundamental law. A constitutional convention, composed of duly selected representatives, is the only practical way in which the citizens of the great Commonwealth can frame a constitution. It is also one of the essentials that the revision of the fundamental law, so made by a representative convention, constituted in accordance with the wish of the citizens, should be submitted to the people for their approval or disapproval.

We, therefore, recommend the enactment of laws necessary to provide for

(1) The submission to the people of the question of calling a constitutional convention, and the method of selection of the members of the proposed convention.

(2) The reference to the convention of the constitution here proposed.

(3) The submission to the people of the proposals of the convention.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTION.

PREAMBLE.

We, the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, grateful to Almighty God for the blessings of civil and religious liberty, and humbly invoking his guidance, do ordain and establish this Constitution.

ARTICLE I.

DECLARATION OF RIGHTS.

That the general, great and essential principles of liberty and free government may be recognized and unalterably established, we declare that—

Natural Rights of Mankind.

Section 1. All men are born equally free and independent, and have certain inherent and indefeasible rights, among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty, of acquiring, possessing and protecting property and reputation, and of pursuing their own happiness.

Corresponding provisions in—

- Constitution of 1776, Dec. of Rights, cl. I.
- Constitution of 1790, Art. IX, sec. 1, (Verbatim).
- Constitution of 1838, Art. IX, sec. 1, (Verbatim).
- Constitution of 1874, Art. I, sec. 1, (Verbatim).

Power of People.

Section 2. All power is inherent in the people, and all free governments are founded on their authority and instituted for their peace, safety and happiness. For the advancement of these ends they have at all times an inalienable and indefeasible right to alter, reform or abolish their government in such manner as they may think proper.

Corresponding provisions in—

- Constitution of 1776, Dec. of Rights, cl. V.
- Constitution of 1790, Art. IX, sec. 2.
- Constitution of 1838, Art. IX, sec. 2.
- Constitution of 1874, Art. I, sec. 2, (Verbatim).

Rights of Conscience.—Freedom of Religious Worship.

Section 3. All men have a natural and indefeasible right to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their own consciences; no man can of right be compelled to attend, erect or support any place of worship or to maintain any ministry against his consent; no human authority can, in any case whatever, control or interfere with the rights of conscience and no preference shall ever be given by law to any religious establishments or modes of worship.

- Constitution of 1776, Dec. of Rights, cl. II.
- Constitution of 1790, Art. IX, sec. 3, (Verbatim).
- Constitution of 1838, Art. IX, sec. 3, (Verbatim).
- Constitution of 1874, Art. I, sec. 3, (Verbatim).

No Disqualification for Religious Belief.

Section 4. No person who acknowledges the being of a God and a future state of rewards and punishments shall, on account of his religious sentiments, be disqualified to hold any office or place of trust or profit under this commonwealth.

Corresponding provisions in—

- Constitution of 1776, Dec. of Rights, cl. II.

- Constitution of 1838, Art. IX, sec. 4, (Verbatim).
- Constitution of 1874, Art. I, sec. 4, (Verbatim).

Freedom of Elections.

Section 5. Elections shall be free and equal; and no power, civil or military, shall at any time interfere to prevent the free exercise of the right of suffrage.

Corresponding provisions in—

- Constitution of 1776, Dec. of Rights, cl. VII.
- Constitution of 1790, Art. IX, sec. 5.
- Constitution of 1838, Art. IX, sec. 5.
- Constitution of 1874, Art. I, sec. 5, (Verbatim).

Trial by Jury.

Section 6. Trial by jury shall be as heretofore; and the right thereof remain inviolate.

Corresponding provisions in—

- Constitution of 1776, Dec. of Rights, cl. XI; sec. 25.
- Constitution of 1790, Art. IX, sec. 6, (Verbatim).

- Constitution of 1874, Art. I, sec. 6, (Verbatim).

Freedom of the Press.—Libel.

Section 7. The printing press shall be free to every person who may undertake to examine the proceedings of the legislature or any branch of government and no law shall ever be made to restrain the right thereof. The free communication of thoughts and opinions is one of the invaluable rights of man, and every citizen may freely speak, write and print on any subject, being responsible for the abuse of that liberty. No conviction shall be had in any prosecution for the publication of papers relating to the official conduct of officers or men in public capacity, or to any other matter proper for public investigation or information, where the fact that such publication was not maliciously or negligently made shall be established to the satisfaction of the jury; and in all indictments for libels the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts, under the direction of the court, as in other cases.

- Constitution of 1874, Art. I, sec. 7, (Verbatim).

Searches and Seizures.

Section 8. The people shall be secure in their persons, houses, papers and possessions from unreasonable searches and seizures, and no warrant to search any place or to seize any person or things shall issue without describing them as nearly as may be, nor without probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation subscribed to by the affiant.

Rights of Accused in Criminal Prosecutions.

Section 9. In all criminal prosecutions the accused hath a right to be heard by himself and his counsel, to demand the nature and cause of the accusation against him, to meet the witnesses face to face, to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and, in prosecutions by indictment or information, a speedy public trial by an impartial jury of the vicinage; he cannot be compelled to give evidence against himself, nor can he be deprived of his life, liberty or property, unless by the judgment of his peers or the law of the land.

- Constitution of 1874, Art. I, sec. 9, (Verbatim).

Criminal Information.—Twice in Jeopardy.—Eminent Domain.

Section 10. No person shall, for any indictable offence, be proceeded against criminally for information, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service, in time of war or public danger, or by leave of the court for oppression or misdemeanor in office. No person shall, for the same offense, be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall private property be taken or applied to public use, without authority of law and without just compensation being first made or secured.

Courts to be Open.—Suits Against Commonwealth.

Section 11. All courts shall be open; and every man for an injury done him in his lands, goods, person or reputation shall have remedy by due course of law, and right and justice administered without sale, denial or delay. Suits may be brought against the commonwealth in such manner, in such courts and in such cases as the legislature may by law direct.

Constitution of 1838, Art. I, secs. 4, 6, 7.
Constitution of 1874, Art. II, sec. 18.

Senatorial Districts.

Section 3. The state shall be divided into fifty senatorial districts of compact and contiguous territory as nearly equal in population as may be, and each district shall be entitled to elect one Senator. The senatorial ratio shall be obtained by dividing the whole population of the state, as ascertained by the most recent United States decennial census, by the number fifty. A county containing one or more ratios of population shall be entitled to one senator for each ratio, and to an additional senator for an excess of population exceeding three-fifths of a ratio. No county shall form a separate district unless it shall contain four-fifths of a ratio, except where the adjoining counties are each entitled to one or more senators, when such county may be assigned a senator on less than four-fifths and exceeding one-half of a ratio. No county shall be divided unless entitled to two or more senators. No city or county shall be entitled to separate representation exceeding one-sixth of the whole number of senators. No ward, borough or township shall be divided in the formation of a district.

Representative Districts.

Section 4. The members of the house of representatives shall be apportioned among the several counties, on a ratio obtained by dividing the population of the state as ascertained by the most recent United States decennial census by the number two hundred. A county containing less than five ratios shall have one representative for each full ratio, and an additional representative when the excess exceeds half a ratio; but each county shall have at least one representative. A county containing five ratios or more shall have one representative for each full ratio. A city containing a population equal to a ratio shall elect separately its proportion of the representatives allotted to the county in which it is located. A city entitled to more than four representatives and a county having over one hundred thousand inhabitants shall be divided into districts of compact and contiguous territory. A district shall elect its proportion of representatives according to its population, but no district shall elect more than four representatives.

Qualification of Members.

Section 5. A senator shall be at least twenty-five years of age and a representative shall be at least twenty-one years of age. Each shall have been a citizen of the commonwealth and a resident of the state for four years and a resident of his district for one year next before his election, unless absent on the public business of the United States, of the state government or of a municipality of the commonwealth. He shall reside in his district during his term of service.

Election and Terms of Members.

Section 6. Members of the general assembly shall be chosen at the general election. Their terms of service shall begin on the first day of December after their election. Senators shall serve for four years and representatives for two years. When a vacancy shall occur in either house, the presiding officer thereof shall issue a writ of election to fill such vacancy for the remainder of the term.

Compensation of Members.

Section 7. The members of the general assembly shall receive salary and mileage for regular and special sessions as prescribed by law and no other compensation, whether for services upon committee or otherwise. No member of the general assembly shall, during the term for which he has been elected, receive an increase of salary or mileage allowance under a law enacted during such term.

Powers of Each House.

Section 11. Each house shall have power to make its rules of procedure, to judge of the election and qualifications of its members, to punish for contempt or disorderly behavior in its presence, to enforce obedience to its processes, to protect its members against violence, officers of bribes or private solicitation, and by a vote of two-thirds of the members, to expel a member, but not a second time for the same cause, and shall have all other powers necessary for the legislature of a free commonwealth. A member expelled for corruption shall not thereafter be eligible to either house. Punishment for contempt or disorderly behavior shall not bar an indictment for the same offense.

 Constitution of 1790, Art. I, sec. 20.
 Constitution of 1838, Art. I, sec. 21.
 Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 14.

Printing and Reference of Bills.

Section 3. Before consideration, a bill shall be referred to a committee, returned therefrom, and printed for the use of the members.

Corresponding provisions in—
 Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 2.

Member Interested in Bill Not to Vote.

Section 4. A member of the general assembly who has a private interest in a measure or bill shall disclose the fact to the house of which he is a member, and shall not vote thereon.

Corresponding provisions in—
 Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 33.

Amendments and Conference Committees.

Section 5. An amendment to a bill shall be printed for the use of the members before the final vote is taken on the bill. An amendment by one house shall be concurred in by the other and a report of a committee of conference shall be adopted by either house only by the vote of a majority of the members taken by yeas and nays. The names of the members voting for and of those voting against such amendment or report shall be entered on the journal. A bill shall not be so altered or amended on its passage through either house as to change its original purpose.

Corresponding provisions in—
 Constitution of 1776, sec. 15.
 Constitution of 1874, Art. III, secs. 1, 4, 5.

Notice of Local or Special Bills.

Section 6. At least thirty days before the introduction of a local or special bill, notice of the intention to introduce the same shall be published in the locality where the matter or thing to be effected shall be situated. No such bill shall be finally acted on by either house until the evidence of such notice having been published has been exhibited therein. Notice shall not be required of the intention to introduce a general bill for the repeal of a local or special law.

Corresponding provisions in—
 Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 8.

Final Passage of Bills.

Section 7. Before a bill shall be passed, it shall be read at length on three different days in each house; on its final passage the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, the names of the members voting for and of those voting against shall be entered on the journals, and a majority of the members elected to each house shall be recorded thereon as voting in its favor.

Corresponding provisions in—
 Constitution of 1776, sec. 15.
 Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 4.

Signing of Bills by Presiding Officers.

Section 8. The presiding officer of each house shall, in the presence of the house over which he presides, sign bills and joint resolutions passed by the general assembly, after their titles have been publicly read immediately before signing. The fact of signing shall be entered on the journal.

Corresponding provisions in—
 Constitution of 1874, Article III, sec. 9.

One Subject in Each Law.

Section 9. A law shall contain only one subject. A general appropriation law, a codification, and a compilation or general revision of statutory law shall be deemed to contain only one subject.

Corresponding provisions in—
 Constitution of 1838, Art. XI, sec. 8, (Amended 1864).
 Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 3.

Titles of Laws.

Section 10. The subject of a law shall be clearly expressed in its title. A law may in the body thereof set forth a short title by which it may be cited. A law amending, reviving or extending a law shall set forth in its title the title or the short title of the law affected.

Corresponding provisions in—
 Constitution of 1838, Art. XI, sec. 8, (Amended 1864).
 Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 3.

Form of Amending, Reviving or Extending Laws.

Section 11. A law amending, reviving or extending a law or conferring the provisions thereof shall set forth in full the part of the law affected, and an amending law shall also set forth in full the part of the law affected as amended.

Corresponding provisions in—
 Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 6.

Budget and Appropriation Bills.

Section 12. The governor shall submit to the general assembly a budget on or before March 1 of each year in which it shall be in regular session. The budget shall contain a complete plan of proposed appropriations and complete estimates of the revenues and funds available for appropriation for the two ensuing fiscal years, including appropriations for charitable, educational and benevolent purposes. In submitting proposals for appropriations to charitable, educational or benevolent institutions not under the absolute control of the state government, the governor shall at the same time submit a plan of distribution among the classes of institutions to be benefited.

When the governor presents the budget to the house of representatives, he shall submit a general appropriation bill containing the proposed appropriations for the fiscal years covered by the budget and may also submit any bill embodying recommendations as to sources of revenue.

The presiding officer of the house of representatives shall immediately cause such bills to be introduced.

The general assembly may increase, decrease, strike out or otherwise alter any item in the general appropriation bill, or may add new items thereto.

Until the general appropriation law has been enacted neither house shall consider an appropriation bill other than the general appropriation bill unless the appropriation shall be solely for the immediate needs of the general assembly or unless the governor shall request the general assembly to act upon the bill in advance of the general appropriation bill.

After the general appropriation law has been enacted, no appropriation shall be made for any purpose, object or item included therein or in the general appropriation bill as submitted by the governor, unless the governor shall request the general assembly to pass a bill making such appropriation.

The general assembly shall not finally adjourn for ten days after the general appropriation bill has been presented to the governor.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 15.

Appropriations to Charitable and Educational Institutions.

Section 13. An appropriation for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes may be made to a class of corporations, associations or institutions not under the absolute control of the state government, engaged in work or service for the public good, as such classes may be defined by law. Such work or service shall conform to standards of excellence prescribed by law or by an agency created by law.

An appropriation to such a class shall be divided among its members in accordance with a plan uniform in its application to them as prescribed by law. No law shall designate such a corporation, association or institution as the beneficiary of an appropriation.

Each item containing such an appropriation shall be voted on separately in each house before final action is taken upon the bill of which it is a part and shall be stricken from the bill unless it shall receive the support of two-thirds of the members elected. The votes of each house shall be taken by yeas and nays and the names of the members voting for and of those voting against the item shall be entered on the journal.

Corporations, associations and institutions receiving such appropriations shall account therefor to the general assembly or to an agency prescribed by law and shall be subject to inspection by the state government.

After the establishment of one or more state universities, no appropriation for an educational purpose shall be made by the state government to a corporation, association or institution, or to a class of corporations, associations or institutions, not under the absolute control of the state government or of a municipality.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 17.

Appropriations to Denominational Institutions.

Section 14. No appropriations shall be made for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes to any denominational or sectarian institution, corporation or association.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 18.

Certain Appropriations Permitted.

Section 15. Appropriations may be made for the payment of pensions and gratuities for military services; for the payment of pensions for the retirement of classes of officers and employees of the state government and school districts; for the relief of persons or municipalities injured or damaged by surface subsidence resulting from past or future mining of anthracite coal; for relief consequent upon grave public disasters or calamities; for the payment to funds under control for the benefit of classes of persons who are to be the recipients of public assistance; and for the payment of the debts of municipalities contracted to enable the commonwealth to repel invasion, suppress domestic insurrection or defend itself in time of war.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 18.

Gratuities and Extra Compensation Forbidden.

Section 16. Except as in this constitution expressly provided, no appropriation shall be made by the state government for charitable, benevolent or educational purposes to any person or community, and no law shall authorize a gratuity by the state government, give extra compensation after services have been rendered or contract made, or appropriate money to pay a claim against the commonwealth without previous authority of law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. III, secs. 11, 18.

Approval and Veto by Governor.

Section 17. Every order, resolution or vote to which the concurrence of both houses shall be necessary, except on the question of adjournment or of agreement to an amendment to this constitution shall be passed by the general assembly be presented to the governor. If he approves it, he shall sign it and it shall then become a law. If he shall not approve it, he shall return it with his objections to the house in which it originated, which house shall enter the objections at large upon its journal. If, after reconsideration two-thirds of the members elected to that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent with the governor's objections to the other house and if approved by two-thirds of the members elected to that house shall become law. The votes of each house shall be taken by yeas and nays and the names of the members voting for and of those voting against the bill shall be entered on the journal.

If a bill shall not be returned by the governor within ten days after it has been presented to him, it shall become law unless the general assembly by its adjournment prevents its return. In case of such adjournment the bill shall become law unless within thirty days after adjournment the governor shall file it with his objections in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth and shall give notice thereof by public proclamation.

Approval and Veto of Appropriation Bills.

Section 18. The governor may indicate his approval or disapproval of an appropriation bill by signing or vetoing it as in the case of other bills. If he shall approve one or more items and shall disapprove or reduce one or more other items, he shall return the bill to the house in which it originated setting forth his reasons. The items which he approves shall become law. The items which he disapproves or reduces may be passed over his objections by separate action on each item in the manner prescribed for the passage of bills over his veto. Such items not passed over his objections shall, in accordance with his recommendation, be stricken from the bill or shall become law as reduced by him.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. IV, sec. 16.

When Laws Shall Take Effect.

Section 19. A law shall become effective on the first day of January after its enactment unless otherwise provided therein.

Local and Special Laws Forbidden.

Section 20. No local or special law shall be enacted:

- (a) Regulating the affairs of a municipality;
- (b) Changing the names of persons or places;
- (c) For the creation or regulation of highways, ferries or bridges, except bridges across streams which form state boundaries;
- (d) Regulating burial grounds or public grounds not belonging to the commonwealth;
- (e) Granting divorces or authorizing the adoption or legitimation of children;
- (f) Regulating elections, except that laws regulating the registration of electors may be applied to cities or boroughs of a specified class only;
- (g) Regulating the organization, jurisdiction and powers of courts of the same class or grade, judicial process, or the administration of justice;
- (h) Regulating liens, the collection of debts or the effect of judicial sales of real estate;
- (i) Regulating schools;
- (j) Fixing the rate of interest;
- (k) Regulating the estates of decedents, minors or persons under disability;
- (l) Regulating labor, trade, mining or manufacturing;
- (m) Creating corporations, or amending, renewing or extending their charters;
- (n) Exempting property from taxation;
- (o) Granting a benefit, privilege or power.

No local or special law shall be indirectly enacted by the partial repeal of a general law. Laws repealing local or special laws may be enacted.

Appointing Power.

Section 8. The governor shall appoint a secretary of the commonwealth, an attorney general, a secretary of internal affairs and a commissioner of education, to serve during his pleasure, and other officers as prescribed by law.

When the senate is in regular session, the governor shall exercise the power to appoint an officer only after nomination to the senate and by and with the advice and consent of a majority of its members, except where he shall appoint to fill a vacancy occurring within ten days before final adjournment of the session.

The governor may fill by appointment a vacancy in an office to which he may appoint. If he shall appoint to an appointive office during a recess of the senate or to fill a vacancy occurring within ten days before final adjournment of a regular session thereof, such appointment shall be valid until the end of the next regular session of the senate, and the person so appointed shall be deemed to have been rejected by the senate at such session unless nominated by the governor and confirmed by the senate.

The governor may fill by appointment a vacancy in the office of auditor general or of state treasurer and in any other elective office which he may be authorized to fill. Such vacancy shall be filled by election on the next election day appropriate to the office which shall fall not less than sixty days after the occurrence of the vacancy. Such appointee shall serve until the person so elected shall take office as prescribed by law.

If a power of appointment to an appointive or elective office shall arise during a session of the senate and not within ten days before final adjournment, the governor shall, at such session, nominate a proper person for the office. If a power of appointment to an appointive office shall arise within ten days before final adjournment of a session of the senate or during a recess of the senate, he shall, at the next session of the senate nominate a proper person for the office. In either case, if the senate shall reject a nomination and shall notify the governor that it will not adjourn within ten days he shall nominate another person for the office. If he shall fail to nominate as herein required, he may not appoint to the office except after nomination to the senate and by and with the advice and consent of a majority of its members.

If the nomination of a person to an office shall be rejected by the senate he shall not be appointed to such office before the next session of the senate.

In acting on executive nominations, the senate shall sit with open doors. The vote shall be taken by yeas and nays and shall be entered on the journal.

Jurisdiction of Courts of Common Pleas.

Section 9. The court of common pleas of each county shall have original jurisdiction in civil cases except where such jurisdiction shall be vested by law in other courts. It shall have power to issue writs of certiorari to justices of the peace and to inferior courts not of record and, except where otherwise prescribed by law, shall have jurisdiction in appeals from justices of the peace. It shall have the chancery jurisdiction vested in the courts of common pleas when this constitution becomes effective.

In addition to the powers conferred in this section, and until otherwise prescribed by law, the courts of common pleas shall have the jurisdiction vested in them when this constitution becomes effective.

A judge of a court of common pleas shall be, in the county, a justice of the peace as to criminal matters.

Common Pleas Court in Philadelphia.

Section 10. In the county of Philadelphia the jurisdiction of the several courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas. Until otherwise prescribed by law, the court shall be composed of fifteen judges. The first judges shall be those holding office in the several courts of common pleas when this constitution becomes effective. The judge longest in continuous service shall be president judge.

Criminal Courts.

Section 11. In each county there shall be a court of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery and a court of quarter sessions of the peace. The judges of the court of common pleas of the county shall be judges of such courts.

Orphans' Courts.

Section 12. In each county there shall be an orphans' court.

In a county having more than one hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants there may be a separate orphans' court with the jurisdiction of orphans' courts when this constitution becomes effective and with other jurisdiction as prescribed by law. Such courts shall consist of one or more judges learned in the law, chosen by the electors of the county. They shall hold office for ten years. The judge longest in continuous service shall be president judge.

In a county with a separate orphans' court, the register of wills of the county shall be the clerk thereof. He shall appoint assistant clerks only with the approval of the court. Accounts filed with him as register or as clerk shall be audited by the court without expense to the parties, unless the court shall appoint, in its discretion, an auditor nominated by all parties in interest represented in the proceeding.

In a county without a separate orphans' court, the judges of the court of common pleas shall be the judges of the orphans' court, but only until the establishment of a separate orphans' court.

Justices of the Peace Not in Philadelphia.

Section 13. Each county, except the county of Philadelphia, shall be divided by its court of common pleas into justice of the peace districts. A borough, township or city with a population of fifty thousand or less shall not be divided. A district may be composed of two or more townships or boroughs or any borough or township may be attached to a district comprising all or a portion of a city. In a city with a population of more than fifty thousand, the number of inhabitants shall be divided by fifty thousand and the number of districts to which the city shall be entitled shall be the quotient. Population shall be determined by the latest United States decennial census. After each decennial census the court of common pleas may create new districts and may change the boundaries of districts. After any such revision of the districts, no new district shall be created and no change of boundary shall be made prior to the next decennial census.

In each district one justice of the peace shall be chosen by the electors at a municipal election. He shall have been a resident of his district for two years next preceding the election unless absent on the public business of the United States, of the state government or of a municipality of the commonwealth. He shall hold office for six years from the first Monday after his election. Upon petition of at least two hundred electors of the district setting forth a reasonable cause for his removal, he shall be removed from office by the court of common pleas if the court, after hearing finds such cause to exist. In such event a justice of the peace may appeal to the superior court. A vacancy in the office of justice of the peace shall be filled by the governor.

For services rendered in judicial proceedings a justice of the peace shall receive a salary prescribed by law and paid by the county, and no other compensation. Fees, fines and penalties received in judicial proceedings by a justice of the peace shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of the county.

Until otherwise prescribed by law, justices of the peace in any county shall have the jurisdiction and powers of the justices of the peace of the county existing when this constitution becomes effective.

Justices of the peace in office when this constitution becomes effective shall serve their unexpired terms. On the expiration of such terms, the office of justice of the peace as theretofore existing is abolished. Vacancies occurring prior to the expiration of such terms shall not be filled.

Justices of the Peace in Philadelphia.

Section 14. The county of Philadelphia shall be divided by its court of common pleas into eighteen justice of the peace districts as nearly equal in population as possible. After each United State decennial census, the court of common pleas may create new districts and may alter the boundaries of districts. After any such revision of the districts, no new district shall be created and no change of boundary shall be made prior to the next decennial census. The number of districts shall not exceed one for each one hundred thousand of population.

In each district one justice of the peace learned in the law shall be chosen by the electors of the district at a municipal election. His other qualifications, his term, and the method of his removal and of filling a vacancy in his office shall be as in the case of justices of the peace in other counties. For services rendered in judicial proceedings, he shall receive a salary prescribed by law and paid by the county and no other compensation. Fees, fines and penalties received in judicial proceedings by a justice of the peace shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of the county.

A justice of the peace shall hold a court not of record of police and civil causes. His jurisdiction in civil matters shall be limited to matters involving three hundred dollars or less and except as otherwise provided in this section shall be similar to that of justices of the peace in other counties. No political duties shall be imposed on him.

Rules of the procedure for the justices of the peace not inconsistent with law or with the regulation of the supreme court shall be prescribed by the court of common pleas of the county of Philadelphia. Magistrates in office when this constitution becomes effective shall serve their unexpired terms. On the expiration of such terms, the office of magistrate as theretofore existing is abolished. Vacancies occurring prior to the expiration of such terms shall not be filled.

The provisions of this section may be changed or abolished by law.

Judgeships to be Numbered.

Section 15. In every court composed of two or more judges required to be learned in the law, each judgeship shall, for the purpose of election or appointment thereto, be deemed a separate office and be distinguished by number from the other judgeships in the same court. Judgeships existing when this constitution becomes effective shall be taken to be numbered in the respective courts in the order or the seniority in commission of the judges occupying them.

Determining Priority.

Section 16. Before two or more judges of the same court begin service on the same day, they shall cast lots to determine who shall be deemed first to have begun service and shall certify the result to the governor.

The costs of litigation may be classified or graded by law according to the amounts in controversy.

ARTICLE VI.

SUFFRAGE AND ELECTIONS.

Qualifications of Electors.

Section 1. A citizen of the commonwealth shall be entitled to vote at elections who has:

1. Reached the age of twenty-one;
2. Been a citizen of the United States at least thirty days;
4. Resided for sixty days next preceding the election in the election district where he shall offer to vote;
5. Complied with the law regulating the registration of electors.

The right to vote and to hold office shall not be denied on account of race, color or sex.

Election Offenses.

Section 5. A person who shall give, or promise or offer to give a valuable consideration or reward for a vote at an election or for the withholding thereof, or who shall receive or agree to receive, for himself or for another, a valuable consideration or reward for a vote at an election or for the withholding thereof, shall forfeit the right to vote at such election. An elector whose right to vote shall be challenged for such cause before the election officers shall be required to swear or affirm that the subject matter of the challenge is untrue before his vote shall be received.

A person convicted of wilful violation of an election law shall, in addition to the penalties prescribed by law, lose for four years the right to vote.

In a trial of contested election and in an investigation of elections, no testimony shall be withheld on the ground that it may criminate the witness or subject him to infamy. Such testimony shall not afterwards be used against him in a judicial proceeding except in a prosecution for perjury in giving such testimony.

Election Districts.

Section 6. Townships and wards of cities or boroughs shall form or shall be divided into election districts of compact and contiguous territory as the court of quarter sessions may direct.

An election district in a city of over one hundred thousand inhabitants shall be divided by the court of quarter sessions when at the next preceding election more than two hundred and fifty votes have been polled therein. Any other election district shall be divided when the court of quarter sessions shall be of opinion that the convenience of the electors and the public interests will be promoted thereby.

Corresponding provisions in—
 Constitution of 1874, Art. VIII, sec. 11.

Election Officers.

Section 7. In each election district there shall be an election board consisting of a judge and two inspectors chosen by the electors of the district. They shall hold office for two years. Each elector may vote for one candidate for judge and for one candidate for inspector. Vacancies in election boards shall be filled and election boards in new districts shall be created as prescribed by law. Each inspector shall appoint one clerk at each election. An election officer or clerk shall be privileged from arrest upon days of election and while engaged in making up and transmitting returns, except upon warrant of a court of record or of a judge thereof for election fraud, for felony, or for wanton breach of the peace. In a city he shall be exempt from jury duty.

Overseers of Elections.

Section 8. The courts of common pleas shall appoint two persons, of different political parties, qualified to serve on an election board, to be overseers of election in a district on petition of five electors of the county, setting forth that such appointment is a reasonable precaution to secure the purity and fairness of the election. All the judges of the court able to act at the time shall concur in the appointment.

The overseers of election, if they shall agree, shall decide any question with respect to the conduct of the election on which the members of the election board shall differ.

Corresponding provisions in—
 Constitution of 1874, Art. VIII, sec. 16.

Time of Holding Elections.

Section 9. The general election shall be held in each even-numbered year and the municipal election shall be held in each odd-numbered year. Each shall be held on the Tuesday next following the first Monday in November unless, with the consent of two thirds of the members of each house of the general assembly, a different day shall be prescribed by law.

Incompatible Offices.

Section 2. No person shall be a member of the general assembly or shall hold under the state government or under a municipality an office or place of trust or profit in respect of which he shall receive compensation, if he is a member of the congress or if he holds under the United States an office or place of trust or profit in respect of which he shall receive compensation.

No person who holds the office of governor or, except as expressly provided in this constitution, of lieutenant governor shall hold under the state government or under a municipality another office of trust or profit.

No person who holds under the state government the office of judge learned in the law shall hold under a municipality an office or place of trust or profit in respect of which he shall receive compensation.

No member of the general assembly shall, during the term for which he has been elected, hold under the state government or under a municipality an appointive office or place of trust or profit.

The office of attorney-at-law and office in the militia shall not be deemed an office or place of trust or profit within the meaning of this section.

Laws may be enacted declaring what other offices or places of trust or profit are incompatible with each other or with membership in the general assembly.

Official Oath.

Section 4. Members of the general assembly, officers of the state government and county officers shall, before entering on the duties of their offices, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support, obey and defend the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the commonwealth, and that I will discharge the duties of my office with fidelity."

The foregoing oath shall be administered by a person authorized to administer oaths. In the case of judges of the supreme court and of the superior court and of executive officers of the state government, the oath shall be filed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth. In the case of other judicial officers and of county officers, the oath shall be filed in the office of the prothonotary of the county in which it is taken. A person refusing to take such oath or affirmation shall forfeit his office. A person who shall be convicted of having sworn or affirmed falsely, or of having violated such oath or affirmation, shall be guilty of perjury, and shall be forever disqualified from holding any office of trust or profit in the commonwealth. The oath shall be administered to a member of the general assembly by a judge of the supreme court or of a court of common pleas, in the hall of the house to which the affiant has been elected.

Constitution of 1874, Art. IX, sec. 6.

Municipal Debt Not to be Assumed by State.

Section 8. The state government shall not assume the debt of a municipality unless contracted to enable the commonwealth to repel invasion, to suppress insurrection or to defend itself in war.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1838, Art. XI, sec. 6 (amended 1857).
Constitution of 1874, Art. IX, sec. 9.

Reserve Funds.

Section 9. The money held as necessary reserve by the state government shall be limited by law to the amount required for current expenses and shall be secured and kept as prescribed by law. Monthly statements shall be published showing the amount of such money, where it is deposited, and how it is secured.

Paying Out Public Money.

Section 10. Money shall be paid out of the state treasury only on appropriations made by law and on warrant by the proper officer in pursuance thereof.

Misuse of Public Money.

Section 11. An officer or an employee of the state government or of a municipality or a member of the general assembly who shall make or attempt to make a profit out of the money of the state government or of a municipality or shall use it for an unauthorized purpose, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished as prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IX.

CORPORATIONS.

Corporate Powers.

Section 1. A corporation shall engage only in the business authorized by its charter.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVI, sec. 6.

Stocks and Bonds.

Section 2. Subject to such regulations as to issue and sale as may be prescribed by law or by an agency established by law, shares of stock may be issued with or without par value. Shares of stock having par value shall be issued as full paid only for the equivalent of such par value in money, labor done or property received, except that a corporation may issue additional full paid shares as prescribed by law or by an agency created by law for a consideration in money, labor or property equal to the current market value of its shares theretofore issued. Neither the stock nor the indebtedness of corporations shall be increased except in pursuance of general law or without the consent of the holders of the larger amount in value of the stock first obtained at a meeting to be held after thirty days' notice given in pursuance of law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVI, sec. 7.

Investment of Trust Funds.

Section 3. No law shall authorize fiduciaries to invest in stock or securities issued by a corporation except in bonds approved by an agency created by law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 22.

Bank Notes and Bills.

Section 4. A note or bill issued for circulation by a banking corporation shall be registered and countersigned by an officer of the state government, and its payment shall be secured by the deposit of security to the full amount thereof with the state treasurer. The method of registering, countersigning and securing payment shall be prescribed by law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVI, sec. 9.

Cumulative Voting.

Section 5. In elections for directors or managers of a corporation each member or voting stockholder may cast his votes for one candidate, or may distribute them among two or more candidates.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVI, sec. 4.

Foreign Corporations.

Section 6. A foreign corporation shall not do business in this state without having in the state a known place of business and without making the secretary of the commonwealth an agent of the corporation upon whom process may be served.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVI, sec. 5.

Commonwealth's Rights of Eminent Domain and Police Power.

Section 7. The exercise of the right of eminent domain shall not be abridged or so constructed as to prevent the taking by law of the property and franchise of corporations and subjecting them to public use the same as the property of individuals. The exercise of the police power shall not be abridged or so construed as to permit corporations to conduct their business in such manner as to infringe the equal rights of individuals or the general well-being of the state.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVI, sec. 3.

Corporate Obligations Owned by State.

Section 8. Except as prescribed by law, an obligation of a corporation held or owned by the state government shall not be exchanged, transferred, remitted, postponed, diminished or discharged except by payment thereof into the state treasury.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 24.

Statutes of Limitations.

Section 9. No law shall discriminate between corporations and individuals with respect to the time in which suit may be brought against either.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 21 (amended 1915).

Revocation and Alteration of Corporate Charters.

Section 10. Laws may be enacted for the alteration, revocation, or amendment of corporate charters revocable when this constitution becomes effective or thereafter granted when such charters shall be deemed injurious to the citizens of the commonwealth in such manner however that no injustice shall be done.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1838, Art. I, secs. 25, 26 (sec. 26 amended 1857).

Conditions Imposed on Benefits to Corporations.

Section 11. No law shall remit the forfeiture of the charter of a corporation now existing, or amend the same, or otherwise benefit such corporation, except upon condition that it shall thereafter hold its charter subject to the provisions of this constitution.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVI, sec. 2.

Banks and Trust Companies.

Section 12. Laws may be enacted to provide for the incorporation of banks and trust companies and to prescribe the powers thereof.

Definition of "Corporation."

Section 13. The term "corporation" as used in this constitution includes joint stock companies or associations having any of the powers or privileges of corporations not possessed by individuals or partnerships.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVI, sec. 13.

ARTICLE X.

PUBLIC UTILITIES.

Regulation of Public Utilities.

Section 1. Public service and the business of those therein may be regulated by law or by an agency created by law.

Eminent Domain.

Section 2. A corporation, association, individual or municipality invested with the privilege of taking private property for public use shall make just compensation for property taken, injured or destroyed. The compensation shall be paid or secured before such taking, injury or destruction. No law shall deprive a person of an appeal from a preliminary assessment of damages, and, on appeal, either party may have the damages assessed by a jury according to the course of the common law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1838, Art. VII, sec. 4.
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVI, sec. 8.

Common Carriers, Telegraph and Telephone Lines.

Section 3. Railroads and canals shall be public highways and railroad and canal corporations shall be common carriers. Such corporations may construct and operate railroads and canals between any points within the state and may cross and connect with other railroads and canals within the state and at the state line. They shall receive, at connecting points, and shall transport, each other's passengers and freight without delay or discrimination. Railroad corporations shall receive at connecting points and transport each other's cars and canal corporations shall likewise receive and transport each other's vessels.

A corporation organized for the purpose shall have the right to construct lines of telegraph and telephone within the state. The owners or operators of telegraph or telephone lines may connect them with the telegraph and telephone lines of others. They shall receive at connecting points and shall transmit each other's messages.

The rights and obligations set forth in this section shall be exercised only as prescribed by law or by an agency created by law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVI, sec. 12; Art. XVII, sec. 1.

Construction of Canals to Conform to Fixed Standards.

Section 4. Provisions shall be made by law for the construction of canals in accordance with standards prescribed by law or by an agency created by law.

No Discrimination in Services or Charges.

Section 5. All individuals, associations and corporations shall have equal rights to have persons and property transported over railroads and canals and to have messages transmitted over telegraph and telephone lines. There shall be no undue or unreasonable discrimination, in facilities or charges, for such transportation or transmission within the state or coming from or going to another state. A charge for such transportation or transmission within the state shall not exceed the charge for a similar service in the same direction to a more distant point, but excursion or commutation tickets may be issued at special rates.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVII, sec. 3.

Preferences and Rebates Prohibited.

Section 6. No discrimination in charges or facilities for transportation shall be made between transportation corporations and individuals, or in favor of either, by abatement, drawback or otherwise, and no railroad or canal corporation, or any lessee, manager or employee thereof, shall make preferences in furnishing service.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVII, sec. 7.

Consolidation Permitted.

Section 7. A public service corporation, when authorized by law or by an agency created by law, may consolidate with another public service corporation or may acquire its stock property or franchises.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVII, sec. 4.

Powers of Common Carriers.

Section 8. A corporation being a common carrier shall not transport over facilities which it owns or operates articles which it has directly or indirectly mined or manufactured for sale.

It shall engage in the business of a common carrier, except that if it uses electricity as a motive power, it may, when authorized by an agency created by law, furnish electricity to others for light, heat or power.

A mining or manufacturing corporation shall not be deemed a common carrier for the purposes of this section by reason of carrying its products on its railroad or canal not exceeding fifty miles in length.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVII, sec. 5.

Passes Prohibited.

Section 9. A corporation being a common carrier shall not grant free passes or reduce rates to any person except to its own officers or employees.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVII, sec. 8.

Water Rights.

Section 10. A right in waters shall not be granted by the state government or by a municipality for more than fifty years or without reasonable compensation.

At the expiration of the first or of any subsequent grant, the state government or the municipality shall make a new grant to the holder of the right, or pay, or cause to be paid, compensation for all property necessary to the exercise of the right and upon such payment title to said property shall vest in the state government or municipality or corporation making the payment.

Enforcement of This Article.

Section 11. Laws shall be enacted to enforce the provisions of this article.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVII, sec. 12.

ARTICLE XI.

EDUCATION.

Educational System of the Commonwealth.

Section 1. Laws shall be enacted providing for the operation and maintenance of a public educational system for the commonwealth. This shall include public schools for the elementary, secondary and vocational education of all children of the commonwealth, for the free mental and vocational education of persons under mental or physical disability, for the free education in American citizenship of adults, and for the training of teachers, a system of public libraries, one or more public universities, and such other public educational institutions and agencies as may be wise and necessary for the improvement of the citizenship of the commonwealth.

State Council of Education.

Section 2. Laws shall be enacted providing for a state council of education appointed by the governor. The council shall have the powers and duties prescribed by law. Its chief executive officer shall be the commissioner of education.

Support of Educational System.

Section 3. Laws shall be enacted making adequate provision by appropriation and through general or special forms of taxation the effective and equitable support of the public educational system of the commonwealth.

No Appropriations to Sectarian Institutions.

Section 4. Money raised for the support of the public educational system of the commonwealth shall not be appropriated to or used for the support of any sectarian school or institution.

State School Fund.

Section 5. The net receipts from state forests, unclaimed funds derived by the commonwealth either by escheat or otherwise, and money or property designated for the purpose and derived from any source shall constitute the state school fund to be used only for the benefit of the public educational system of the commonwealth in such manner as may be prescribed by law.

Basic Instruction to be in English.

Section 6. The basic instruction in public and private schools shall be given in the English language and from English texts.

ARTICLE XII.

SOCIAL WELFARE AND PUBLIC HEALTH.

Charitable Institutions and Agencies.

Section 1. Laws shall be enacted providing for the maintenance of an efficient system of institutions and agencies to care for residents of the commonwealth who cannot care for and support themselves on account of physical or mental infirmities or other misfortune and to prevent such infirmities and misfortunes so far as possible.

Penal and Correctional Institutions.

Section 2. Laws shall be enacted providing for the maintenance of an efficient system of penal and correctional institutions and agencies.

Employment and Treatment of Prisoners.

Section 3. Humanity, sound public economy and just consideration for the innocent dependents of persons deprived of their liberty, by judgment, decree or sentence of any court, require that all such persons should, during their imprisonment, be afforded an opportunity for remunerative labor, and the conditions of imprisonment shall always be such as to promote the physical, mental and moral welfare of the prisoner. Such laws shall accordingly be enacted as may be necessary to give effect to this provision.

Supervision of Charitable, Correctional and Penal Institutions and Agencies.

Section 4. Charitable, correctional and penal institutions and agencies and other institutions and agencies for the care, relief or treatment of persons having physical or mental infirmities, shall be subject to governmental inspection and supervisory control. The power to enforce the laws with respect to such institutions shall be vested in one or more departments of the state government or in such agencies as may be prescribed by law.

Health.

Section 5. The protection and promotion of the public health under modern social, economic and industrial conditions is essential to the well-being of the commonwealth and is hereby declared to be a primary duty of government.

ARTICLE XIII.

MUNICIPALITIES.

Definition.

Section 1. Municipalities shall be counties, cities, boroughs, townships, school districts, poor districts and other divisions of the commonwealth for the purpose of local government.

Classification.

Section 2. Municipalities may be classified upon the basis of conditions requiring special regulation. The classification of municipalities according to population shall not divide cities, counties or school districts into more than seven classes or other municipalities into more than five classes. A class must contain more municipalities than one except where the basis of classification is population or the coincidence of the boundaries of two or more municipalities.

A law otherwise general shall not be local because applicable only to municipalities adopting it.

Proportional Representation.

Section 3. Proportional representation may be prescribed by law for the election of representative bodies in municipalities in which that method of election shall be approved by a majority of the electors voting on the question.

New Counties.

Section 4. A new county shall not be established if it would have less than three hundred square miles and fifty thousand inhabitants or if a line thereof would pass within ten miles of the boundary of the county seat of a county proposed to be divided or if its establishment would reduce another county below such area or population. A new county shall not be established without the consent of a majority of the electors resident within the proposed boundaries thereof voting on the question.

City Charters.

Section 5. Laws may be enacted giving to cities or to cities of a particular class, authority to frame, adopt and amend charters for their organization and government.

Creation and Change of Boundaries of Cities and Boroughs.

Section 6. A city or borough shall not be established or its boundaries changed except with the consent of a majority of the electors resident within the proposed boundaries voting on the question, and of a majority of the electors in the proposed added or excluded area voting on the question.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XV, sec. 1.

Appointive Municipal Officers.

Section 7. Appointive officers in counties, cities, boroughs and townships shall be appointed by an officer or agency of the municipality as prescribed by law, except as in this constitution otherwise provided.

Accountability of Municipal Officers.

Section 8. Laws shall be enacted providing for the strict accountability of municipal officers, as well for the fees which may be collected by them as for all public or municipal moneys which may be paid to them.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XIV, sec. 6.

County Officers.

Section 9. The officers of a county shall be three commissioners, three auditors or a controller, a sheriff, a coroner, a prothonotary, a register of wills, a recorder of deeds, a treasurer, a surveyor, a clerk of the orphan's court, a clerk of the court of quarter sessions of the peace and of the court of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, a district attorney, and other officers prescribed by law.

In a county co-extensive with a city or included therein, any constitutional county office may be abolished by law and its duties and powers may be transferred to a city officer or officers.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XIV, sec. 1.

Election of Certain County Officers.

Section 10. Except as in this constitution expressly provided, county officers shall be chosen by the electors of the county. Each shall hold office for four years from the first Monday of January succeeding his election or until his successor shall qualify. Vacancies shall be filled as prescribed by law. The sheriff and the treasurer shall not be eligible for the succeeding term.

County Commissioners and County Auditors.

Section 11. Three county commissioners shall be elected in each county in the year 1923, one to serve for two years and two to serve for four years. Every four years thereafter, two commissioners shall be elected to serve for four years. In the year 1925 and every four years thereafter, one commissioner shall be elected to serve for four years. An elector shall vote for one candidate for commissioner except in the year 1923, when he shall vote for one candidate to serve for two years and for one candidate to serve for four years. A vacancy in the office of commissioner shall be filled by the governor by the appointment of an elector of the county who has voted for the commissioner whose place is to be filled. In a county having auditors, they shall be elected and vacancies in the office of auditor shall be filled as in the case of commissioners.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XIV, sec. 7 (Amended 1909).

Philadelphia Prothonotary.

Section 12. The prothonotary of the county of Philadelphia shall be appointed by the judges of the court of common pleas of the county. He shall hold office for three years, but may be removed at the pleasure of the court. He shall appoint assistants only with the approval of the court. The salaries of the prothonotary and of his assistants shall be paid by the county.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. V, sec. 7.

Residence of County Officers.

Section 13. An appointive county officer shall have been a citizen and resident of the county for one year before his appointment, if the county has been so long established, but if it has not been so long established, then within the limits of the county or counties out of which it has been taken.

Corresponding provisions in—

Compensation of County Officers.

Section 15. County officers shall be paid only by salary for services performed for the state government or for the county or for any other official service. Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, such salaries shall be prescribed by law. Fees received by county officers shall be paid in to the treasury of the county or into the state treasury as prescribed by law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XIV, sec. 5.

Salaries and Expenses of County Officers in a County Co-Extensive With a City.

Section 16. In a county co-extensive with a city or included therein, the county treasury and the city treasury shall be united in a single city treasury. The funds and obligations of the county shall be those of the city. The officers of the state government or of the county whose salaries or the expenses of whose offices or courts shall be paid in whole or in part by the city, shall at such times as may be required in the case of city offices submit to the chief executive of the city estimates of their needs. The city shall control the amount to be expended for such salaries and expenses except salaries prescribed by law, and the expenses of the courts of common pleas and of the orphan's courts.

Municipal Borrowing Capacity.

Section 17. A municipality may incur debt by borrowing money as prescribed by law if its aggregate debt for borrowed money would not then exceed the sum of:

(a) Ten per centum of the assessed value of the property therein taxable by or for the benefit of the municipality.

(b) An amount equal to that capital sum which, at the legal rate of interest and at such amortization charges as shall be prescribed by law would yield an amount equal to the next revenue derived by the municipality during the last preceding fiscal year from its public improvements.

(c) The amount of debt secured by liens on public improvements and imposing no obligation on the municipality, if the net revenue derived from such improvements has not been taken into account under paragraph (b).

(d) So much of any debt incurred within five years to acquire public improvements as shall be likely to be allowable under paragraph (b) within six years thereafter, if the net revenue derived from such improvements has not been taken into account under paragraph (b), and if such debt has not been taken into account under paragraph (c).

(e) The par value of the evidences of debt of the municipality owned by it and pledged toward the payment of the principal of its debt.

(f) The amount of cash and the marked value of investments owned by the municipality and the amount of the collectible debts due or to fall due owned by the municipality, in so far as such assets are pledged toward the payment of the principal of its debt.

(g) Eighty per centum of the amount which it is estimated as prescribed by law that the municipality will receive within five years from assessments against property benefited by public improvements, if such amount is pledged toward the payment of the principal of its debt and if it has not been taken into account under paragraph (f).

An indebtedness incurred by a municipality in excess of three per centum of the assessed value of the taxable property therein shall be approved by a majority of the electors thereof at a public election held as prescribed by law.

The term "incur debt," as used in this section, shall include an incurrence of new indebtedness, an extension of the maturity of a debt, a deferment of the payment of a debt, a change in the form of a debt, and an assumption of a debt.

A debt shall be deemed to be incurred at the time the obligation to pay is entered into or the contract to extend, defer, change or assume an existing debt is made.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. IX, secs. 8 (Amended 1911 and 1915), 15.

Duration and Payment of Debts.

Section 18. A municipality shall not incur a debt maturing more than fifty years thereafter. The aggregate amount of principal and interest payable in respect of a debt in any year shall not be less than the amount payable in any later year unless the sinking fund method of amortization is authorized by law. Such sinking fund shall be sufficient to pay the accruing interest on such debt and annually to reduce the principal by a sum not less than three per centum of such principal. The money in such sinking fund shall be invested in the bonds of the United States, of the state government or of a municipality thereof.

On or before incurring a debt by borrowing money, the municipality shall provide for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the principal and interest as they fall due.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. IX, secs. 8 (Amended 1911 and 1915), 10, 15; Art. XV, sec. 3.

Debts Other Than for Money Borrowed.

Section 19. A municipality shall not incur a debt otherwise than by the borrowing of money unless there has been an appropriation to pay the debt.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XV, sec. 2.

Municipalities Not to Pledge Credit.

Section 20. A municipality shall not pledge or lend its credit to a corporation, association or individual and shall not be a stockholder or owner in a corporation or association. Except to discharge municipal liabilities, it shall not appropriate money to assist a private business enterprise.

The provisions of this section shall not be construed to apply to the lease by a municipality to a corporation of a public service facility for a rental dependent on the earnings of the lessee if the corporation covenants to operate the facility and an agency created by law to regulate public utilities approves the lease.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1838, Art. XI, sec. 7 (Amended 1857).
Constitution of 1874, Art. IX, sec. 7.

Special Commissions Prohibited.

Section 21. No law shall delegate to a special commission, corporation or association power to perform a municipal function or to make, supervise or interfere with a municipal improvement, or with municipal property or money, whether held in trust or otherwise.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. III, sec. 20.

Assessments of Benefits for Public Improvements.

Section 22. Laws may be enacted authorizing assessments against properties which are specially and particularly benefited by public improvements made by the state government or by a municipality, whether or not such properties abut upon such public improvements.

Extent of Land Permitted to be Taken for Public Improvements.

Section 23. When the public purpose for which the land is taken can best be attained by acquiring more land than the state government or the municipality proposes to retain, the state government or the municipality, subject to regulations prescribed by law, may take all the land which in its judgment is needed for the attainment of such purpose and may dispose of portions thereof, subject to restrictions protective of the public purpose.

Zoning of Municipalities.

Section 24. Municipalities may be authorized by law to promote the general welfare by regulating the location, size and use of buildings. For the purpose of such regulations, a municipality may divide its territory into districts to each of which special regulations may be applied.

Contracts Between Municipalities.

Section 25. A municipality may, as prescribed by law, contract with one or more municipalities for the joint acquisition, construction, maintenance, supervision or operation of public property, for the creation of agencies to effect any of such purposes, and for the creation of such agencies as may be mutually agreed upon for the good government of the municipalities. Such agencies shall not levy taxes or borrow money. Every such contract shall name arbitrators.

Street Passenger Railways in Cities, Boroughs or Townships.

Section 26. A street passenger railway shall not be constructed in a city, borough or township except with the consent of the municipality.

The provisions of this section shall not be construed to permit a restriction on the power of the state government to regulate the operation of such a railway.

Corresponding provisions in—
Constitution of 1874, Art. XVII, sec. 9.

One Place of Paying Taxes in Cities and Boroughs.

Section 27. Laws shall be enacted to enable a taxpayer in each city and borough to pay all municipal taxes at one office.

ARTICLE XIV.

AMENDMENT AND REVISION.

Amendments.

Section 1. An amendment to this constitution may be proposed in the general assembly. If agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each house, it shall be entered on the journals with the names of the members voting for and of those voting against, and the secretary of the commonwealth shall cause it to be published once a week for four weeks immediately preceding the next general election in at least two newspapers in every county in which newspapers shall be published. If it shall be likewise agreed to by the next general assembly, the secretary of the commonwealth shall cause it to be published in the manner aforesaid for four weeks immediately preceding the first general or municipal election which shall first occur not less than three months after such agreement, and it shall be submitted at such election to the electors of the commonwealth in such manner as the general assembly shall prescribe. If it shall be approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon, it shall become a part of the constitution. When two or more amendments are submitted to the electors at the same time, they shall be voted upon separately.

Constitutional Conventions.

Section 2. The general assembly may recommend to the electors of the commonwealth to vote for or against a convention for the framing of a new constitution or of amendments to this constitution or of a revision thereof. Such convention shall be held only with the approval of a majority of the electors voting on the question. It shall be composed of delegates chosen by the electors of the commonwealth. The new constitution, the amendments or the revised constitution proposed by the convention shall become effective only when ratified by a majority of the electors of the commonwealth voting thereon. The times and methods of such voting and election and the composition of the convention shall be determined by the general assembly with the consent of a majority of the members elected to each house.

CONCLUDING SECTION.

Wherever a term in the masculine form is used in this constitution, it refers to men and women alike.

EXHIBIT A.

RULES OF STYLE.

Used in Drafting the Proposed Constitution.

The commission has been very careful to state the proposed constitution in the most accurate language possible. The need of expressing both new provisions and old in an accurate and uniform style is apparent even to a casual student of the subject. In drafting new provisions the commission was confronted at the outset with the necessity of adopting uniform phraseology. To produce entire uniformity throughout the whole constitution it has been necessary in many instances to change the language of the present constitution even where no change has been made in the substance. Only a precise and uniform use of words and an orderly arrangement of material can present a number of related principles and rules in such a way as to avoid confusion.

Except in the Bill of Rights which is unchanged in substance and in form the Commission has followed the following rules of style:

RULE I. A word or phrase should have a single meaning throughout the whole constitution; and, conversely, an idea or thing should always be expressed by the same word or phrase.

Examples:

1. State.—The territory included within the boundaries of Pennsylvania.

2. Commonwealth.—The residents of the state as a political and social unit.

Note: In the present constitution the words "state" and "commonwealth" are used interchangeably.

3. Municipality.—Defined in article XIII, section 1 as "counties, states, boroughs, townships, school districts, poor districts and other divisions of the commonwealth for the purpose of local government."

4. State government.—All government dealt with in the constitution except that of municipalities.

5. Enact.—To make law.

Note: In the present constitution the words "pass" and "enact" are used interchangeably.

6. Corporation.—An association having any of the powers or privileges usually conferred upon private corporations. The word is not used to denote a municipality.

7. Branch.—One of the three divisions of the state government, e. g. the legislative branch.

8. General assembly.—The senate and the house of representatives.

Note: In the present constitution, "general assembly" and "legislature" are used interchangeably.

9. Law.—Statutory law enacted by the state government.

10. Prescribed by law.—Provided, regulated or prescribed by statutory law.

11. No law shall.—This takes the place of such expressions as "no law shall ever be made," "no law shall be passed," and "the general assembly is hereby prohibited."

12. Laws shall (may) be enacted.—These expressions take the place of such expressions as "the general assembly shall provide by law," and "the general assembly may enact laws."

13. When this constitution becomes effective.—The date upon which the constitution by its own provisions is to become effective.

14. Officer.—This word does not include members of the general assembly. When these are intended to be included they are specially mentioned, as in article VII, section 3 of the constitution as proposed. The word "officer" does not include judges, as appears by article VII, section 7 of the constitution as proposed in which reference is made to elected officers of the state government "except judges." Such expressions as "officers of the commonwealth" have been avoided by the use of language which will make it clear whether it is intended to include officers of municipalities or officers of the state government only.

The difference between an officer and an employe is a difference of degree only. It is therefore impossible to define the word "officer" so as clearly to distinguish it from employe. As under the present constitution it will be necessary for the courts to decide, where the constitution plainly describes a position as an "office" whether a public servant is an officer or simply an employe.

15. Office or place of trust or profit.—This expression includes all public positions except membership in the congress or in the general assembly, both of which are specially mentioned when intended to be included. In a number of instances the difficulty of drawing the line between an officer and an employe has been avoided by using the comprehensive expression "office or place of trust or profit" to cover both.

RULE II. Unnecessary language should be eliminated.

Examples:

1. Emphasizing words or expressions are omitted in connection with absolute permissions or prohibitions. This avoids the use of the words "all" and "any" in many instances and avoids the use of such words and expressions as "in any way," "ever" and "never."

2. In many instances a section or sentence of the present constitution has been re-written so as to present the thought in fewer words. Compare for instance:

Article V, section 2 of the constitution as proposed with article V, section 2 of the present constitution.

Article VI, section 3 of the constitution as proposed with article VIII, section 6 of the present constitution.

Article IX, section 8 of the constitution as proposed with article III, section 24 of the present constitution.

RULE III. Related provisions should be grouped together so far as possible.

1. Article VII of the constitution as proposed includes matter with respect to public servants now found in articles II, III, IV, V, VI, VII, VIII and XII.

2. Article XIII of the constitution as proposed is a new article including all matter both new and old with respect to municipalities.

RULE IV. An orderly arrangement of sentences, sections and articles should be followed and where possible, the arrangement of sentences and sections should follow the order of time.

Examples:

1. In article IV, the sections covering various subject matters are arranged in the following order:—(1) Vesting executive power; (2) governor; (3) lieutenant-governor; (4) vacancy in office of governor or lieutenant-governor; (5) secretary of the commonwealth; (6) secretary of internal affairs; (7) auditor general and state treasurer; (8) state contracts; (9) seal and commissions.

2. Article III, section 6 has been re-written so as to state the required proceedings in chronological order.

The Commission recommend that the Declaration of Rights be adopted without change. The text will be found in the Proposed Constitution, Part II of the report of the Commission.

ARTICLE II.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Proposed Constitution	Corresponding provisions in present Constitution
Legislative Power. Section 1. The legislative power of the commonwealth shall be vested in a general assembly which shall consist of a senate and a house of representatives.	The legislative power of this commonwealth shall be vested in a general assembly which shall consist of a senate and a house of representatives.—(Article II, section 1.)
Legislative Apportionment. Section 2. At the first session of the general assembly after this constitution becomes effective and at the first session of the general assembly after each United States decennial census, the state shall be divided by law into senatorial and representative districts.	The general assembly at its first session after the adoption of this constitution, and immediately after each United States decennial census, shall apportion the state into senatorial and representative districts agreeably to the provisions of the two next preceding sections.—(Article II, section 18.)
Senatorial Districts. Section 3. The state shall be divided into fifty senatorial districts of compact and contiguous territory as nearly equal in population as may be, and each district shall be entitled to elect one senator. The senatorial ratio shall be obtained by dividing the whole population of the state, as ascertained by the most recent United States decennial census, by the number fifty. A county containing one or more ratios of population shall be entitled to one senator for each ratio, and to an additional senator for an excess of population exceeding three-fifths of a ratio. No county shall form a separate district unless it shall contain four-fifths of a ratio, except where the adjoining counties are each entitled to one or more senators, when such county may be assigned a senator on less than four-fifths and exceeding one-half of a ratio. No county shall be divided unless entitled to two or more senators. No city or county shall be entitled to separate representation exceeding one-sixth of the whole number of senators. No ward, borough or township shall be divided in the formation of a district.	The state shall be divided into fifty senatorial districts of compact and contiguous territory as nearly equal in population as may be, and each district shall be entitled to elect one senator. Each county containing one or more ratios of population shall be entitled to one senator for each ratio, and to an additional senator for a surplus of population exceeding three-fifths of a ratio, but no county shall form a separate district unless it shall contain four-fifths of a ratio, except where the adjoining counties are each entitled to one or more senators, when such county may be assigned a senator on less than four-fifths and exceeding one-half of a ratio; and no county shall be divided unless entitled to two or more senators. No city or county shall be entitled to separate representation exceeding one-sixth of the whole number of senators. No ward, borough or township shall be divided in the formation of a district. The senatorial ratio shall be ascertained by dividing the whole population of the state by the number fifty.—(Article II, section 16.)
Representative Districts. Section 4. The members of the house of representatives shall be apportioned among the several counties, on a ratio obtained by dividing the population of the state as ascertained by the most recent United States decennial census by the number two hundred. A county containing less than five ratios shall have one representative for each full ratio, and an additional representative when the excess exceeds half a ratio; but each county shall have at least one representative. A county containing five ratios or more	The members of the house of representatives shall be apportioned among the several counties, on a ratio obtained by dividing the population of the state as ascertained by the most recent United States census by two hundred. Every county containing less than five ratios shall have one representative for every full ratio, and an additional representative when the surplus exceeds half a ratio; but each county shall have at least one representative. Every county containing five ratios or more shall have one repre-

shall have one representative for each full ratio. A city containing a population equal to a ratio shall elect separately its proportion of the representatives allotted to the county in which it is located. A city entitled to more than four representatives and a county having over one hundred thousand inhabitants shall be divided into districts of compact and contiguous territory. A district shall elect its proportion of representatives according to its population, but no district shall elect more than four representatives.	representative for every full ratio. Every city containing a population equal to a ratio shall elect separately its proportion of the representatives allotted to the county in which it is located. Every city entitled to more than four representatives, and every county having over one hundred thousand inhabitants shall be divided into districts of compact and contiguous territory, each district to elect its proportion of representatives according to its population, but no district shall elect more than four representatives.—(Article II, section 17.)
Qualifications of Members. Section 5. A senator shall be at least twenty-five years of age and a representative shall be at least twenty-one years of age. Each shall have been a citizen of the commonwealth and a resident of the state for four years and a resident of his district for one year next before his election unless absent on the public business of the United States, of the state government or of a municipality of the commonwealth. He shall reside in his district during his term of service.	Senators shall be at least twenty-five years of age and representatives twenty-one years of age. They shall have been citizens and inhabitants of the state four years, and inhabitants of their respective districts one year next before their election (unless absent on the public business of the United States or of this state), and shall reside in their respective districts during their term of service.—(Article II, section 5.)
Election and Terms of Members. Section 6. Members of the general assembly shall be chosen at the general election. Their terms of service shall begin on the first day of December after their election. Senators shall serve for four years and representatives for two years. When a vacancy shall occur in either house, the presiding officer thereof shall issue a writ of election to fill such vacancy for the remainder of the term.	Members of the general assembly shall be chosen at the general election every second year. Their term of service shall begin on the first day of December next after their election. Whenever a vacancy shall occur in either house, the presiding officer thereof shall issue a writ of election to fill such vacancy for the remainder of the term.—(Article II, section 2.)
Compensation of Members. Section 7. The members of the general assembly shall receive salary and mileage for regular and special sessions as prescribed by law and no other compensation, whether for services upon committee or otherwise. No member of the general assembly shall, during the term for which he has been elected, receive an increase of salary or mileage allowance under a law enacted during such term.	Senators shall be elected for the term of four years and representatives for the term of two years.—(Article II, section 3.) The members of the general assembly shall receive such salary and mileage for regular and special sessions as shall be fixed by law, and no other compensation whatever, whether for service upon committee or otherwise. No member of either house shall during the term for which he may have been elected, receive any increase of salary, or mileage, under any law passed during such term.—(Article II, section 8.)
Privileges of Members. Section 8. A member of the general assembly shall be privileged from arrest during attendance at the sessions thereof and in going to and returning from the same, except in cases of treason, felony, violation of his oath of office and breach or surety of the peace. For a speech or debate in the general assembly he shall not be questioned in any other place.	The members of the general assembly shall in all cases, except treason, felony, violation of their oath of office, and breach of surety of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sessions of their respective houses and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place.—(Article II, section 15.)
Times of Sessions. Section 9. The general assembly shall meet at twelve o'clock noon, on the first Tuesday of January in each odd-numbered year and at other times when convened by the governor. It shall hold no adjourned annual session.	The general assembly shall meet at twelve o'clock noon, on the first Tuesday of January every second year, and at other times when convened by the governor, but shall hold no adjourned annual session after the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight. In case of a vacancy in the office of United States senator from this commonwealth, in a recess between sessions, the governor shall convene the two houses, by proclamation on notice not exceeding sixty days, to fill the same.—(Article II, section 4.)
Quorums. Section 10. In each house a majority of the members shall constitute a quorum. A smaller number may adjourn from day to day and compel the attendance of absent members.	A majority of each house shall constitute a quorum, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day and compel the attendance of absent members.—(Article II, section 10.)
Powers of Each House. Section 11. Each house shall have power to make its rules of procedure, to judge of the election and qualifications of its members, to punish for contempt or disorderly behavior in its presence, to enforce obedience to its processes, to protect its members against violence, offers of bribes or private solicitation, and by a vote of two-thirds of the members, to expel a member, but not a second time for the same cause, and shall have all other powers necessary for the legislature of a free commonwealth. A member expelled	Each house shall have power to determine the rules of its proceedings and punish its members or other persons for contempt or disorderly behavior in its presence, to enforce obedience to its process, to protect its members against violence or offers of bribes or private solicitation, and with the concurrence of two-thirds, to expel a member, but not a second time for the same cause, and shall have all other powers necessary for the legislature of a free state. A member expelled for corruption shall not thereafter be for corruption shall not thereafter be eligible to either house. Punishment for contempt or disorderly behavior shall not bar an indictment for the same offense.

Choice of Officers.

Section 12. The senate shall, at the beginning and close of each regular session and at other necessary times, elect one of its members as president pro tempore. The house of representatives shall elect one of its members as speaker. Each house shall choose its other officers.

Officers and Employes.

Section 13. The Officers and employes of each house shall have active duties and shall be selected and compensated in pursuance of laws prescribing their number, duties and compensation.

Journals.

Section 14. Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and shall publish so much thereof as shall not require secrecy. At the request of two members, the yeas and nays on a question shall be entered on the journal.

Sessions to be Open.

Section 15. The sessions of each house and of committees of the whole shall be open unless the business ought to be kept secret.

Adjournments.

Section 16. Neither house shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, or to a place other than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.

Each house shall choose its other officers * * * —(Article II, section 9.)

The general assembly shall prescribe by law the number, duties and compensation of the officers and employes of each house, and no payment shall be made from the state treasury, or be in any way authorized to any person, except to an acting officer or employe elected or appointed in pursuance of law.—(Article III, section 10.)

Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings and from time to time publish the same, except such parts as require secrecy, and the yeas and nays of the members on any question shall, at the desire of any two of them, be entered on the journal.—(Article II, section 12.)

The sessions of each house and of committees of the whole shall be open, unless when the business is such as ought to be kept secret.—(Article II, section 13.)

Neither house shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.—(Article II, section 14.)

ARTICLE III.

LEGISLATION.

Method of Enacting Laws.

Section 1. Laws shall be enacted by bill only.

Bills for Raising Revenue.

Section 2. Bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives. The senate may propose amendments.

Printing and Reference of Bills.

Section 3. Before consideration, a bill shall be referred to a committee, returned therefrom, and printed for the use of the members.

Members Interested in Bill Not to Vote.

Section 4. A member of the general assembly who has a private interest in a measure or bill shall disclose the fact to the house of which he is a member, and shall not vote thereon.

Amendments and Conference Committees.

Section 5. An amendment to a bill shall be printed for the use of the members before the final vote is taken on the bill. An amendment by one house shall be concurred in by the other and a report of a committee of conference shall be adopted by either house only by the vote of a majority of the members taken by yeas and nays. The names of the members voting for and of those voting against such amendment or report shall be entered on the journal. A bill shall not be so altered or amended on its passage through either house as to change its original purpose.

No law shall be passed except by bill, * * * .—Article III, section 1.)

All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives, but the senate may propose amendments as in other bills.—(Article III, section 14.)

No bill shall be considered unless referred to a committee, returned therefrom, and printed for the use of the members.—(Article III, section 2.)

A member who has a personal or private interest in any measure or bill proposed or pending before the general assembly shall disclose the fact to the house of which he is a member, and shall not vote thereon.—(Article III, section 33.)

* * * all amendments made thereto shall be printed for the use of the members before the final vote is taken on the bill.—(Article III, section 4.)

No amendment to bills by one house shall be concurred in by the other, except by the vote of a majority of the members elected thereto, taken by yeas and nays, and the names of those voting for and against recorded upon the journal thereof; and reports of committees of conferences shall be adopted in either house only by the vote of a majority of the members elected thereto, taken by yeas and nays, and the names of those voting recorded upon the journals.—(Article III, section 5.)

* * * no bill shall be so altered or amended, on its passage through either house, as to change its original purpose.—(Article III, section 1.)

Proposed Constitution	Corresponding provisions in present Constitution
Notice of Local or Special Bills. Section 6. At least thirty days before the introduction of a local or special bill, notice of the intention to introduce the same shall be published in the locality where the matter or thing to be affected shall be situated. No such bill shall be finally acted on by either house until the evidence of such notice having been published has been exhibited therein. Notice shall not be required of the intention to introduce a general bill for the repeal of a local or special law.	No local or special bill shall be passed unless notice of the intention to apply therefor shall have been published in the locality where the matter or the thing to be affected may be situated, which notice shall be at least thirty days prior to the introduction into the general assembly of such bill and in the manner to be provided by law; the evidence of such notice having been published shall be exhibited in the general assembly before such act shall be passed.—(Article III, section 8.)
Final Passage of Bills. Section 7. Before a bill shall be passed, it shall be read at length on three different days in each house; on its final passage the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, the names of the members voting for and of those voting against shall be entered on the journals, and a majority of the members elected to each house shall be recorded thereon as voting in its favor.	Every bill shall be read at length on three different days in each house; * * * and no bill shall become a law, unless on its final passage the vote be taken by yeas and nays, the names of the persons voting for and against the same be entered on the journal, and a majority of the members elected to each house be recorded thereon as voting in its favor.—(Article III, section 4.)
Signing of Bills by Presiding Officers. Section 8. The presiding officer of each house shall, in the presence of the house over which he presides, sign bills and joint resolutions passed by the general assembly, after their titles have been publicly read immediately before signing. The fact of signing shall be entered on the journal.	The presiding officer of each house shall, in the presence of the house over which he presides, sign all bills and joint resolutions passed by the general assembly, after their titles have been publicly read immediately before signing; and the fact of signing shall be entered on the journal.—(Article III, section 9.)
One Subject in Each Law. Section 9. A law shall contain only one subject. A general appropriation law, a codification, and a compilation or general revision of statutory law shall be deemed to contain only one subject.	No bill, except general appropriation bills, shall be passed containing more than one subject * * * —(Article III, section 3.)
Titles of Laws. Section 10. The subject of a law shall be clearly expressed in its title. A law may in the body thereof set forth a short title by which it may be cited. A law amending, reviving or extending a law shall set forth in its title the title or the short title of the law affected.	No bill * * * shall be passed containing more than one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in its title.—(Article III, section 3.)
Form of Amending, Reviving or Extending Laws. Section 11. A law amending, reviving or extending a law or conferring the provisions thereof shall set forth in full the part of the law affected, and an amending law shall also set forth in full the part of the law affected as amended.	No law shall be revived, amended, or the provisions thereof extended or conferred, by reference to its title only, but so much thereof as is revived, amended, extended or conferred shall be re-enacted and published at length.—(Article III, section 6.)
Budget and Appropriation Bills. Section 12. The governor shall submit to the general assembly a budget on or before March 1 of each year in which it shall be in regular session. The budget shall contain a complete plan of proposed appropriations and complete estimates of the revenues and funds available for appropriation for the two ensuing fiscal years, including appropriations for charitable, educational and benevolent purposes. In submitting proposals for appropriations to charitable, educational or benevolent institutions not under the absolute control of the state government, the governor shall at the same time submit a plan of distribution among the classes of institutions to be benefited. When the governor presents the budget to the house of representatives, he shall submit a general appropriation bill containing the proposed appropriations for the fiscal years covered by the budget and may also submit any bill embodying recommendations as to sources of revenue. The presiding officer of the house of representatives shall immediately cause bills to be introduced. The general assembly may increase, decrease, strike out or otherwise alter any item in the general appropriation bill, or may add new items thereto. Until the general appropriation law has been enacted neither house shall consider an appropriation bill other than the general appropriation bill unless the appropriation shall be solely for the immediate needs of the general assembly or unless the governor shall request the general assembly to act upon the bill in advance of the general appropriation bill.	The general appropriation bill shall embrace nothing but appropriations for the ordinary expenses of the executive, legislative and judicial departments of the commonwealth, interest on the public debt and for public schools; all other appropriations shall be made by separate bills, each embracing but one subject.—(Article III, section 15.)

Proposed Constitution

Corresponding provisions in present Constitution

After the general appropriation law has been enacted, no appropriation shall be made for any purpose, object or item included therein or in the general appropriation bill as submitted by the governor, unless the governor shall request the general assembly to pass a bill making such appropriation.

The general assembly shall not finally adjourn for ten days after the general appropriation bill has been presented to the governor.

Appropriations to Charitable and Educational Institutions.

Section 13. An appropriation for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes may be made to a class of corporations, associations or institutions not under the absolute control of the state government, engaged in work or service for the public good, as such classes may be defined by law. Such work or service shall conform to standards of excellence prescribed by law or by an agency created by law.

An appropriation to such a class shall be divided among its members in accordance with a plan uniform in its application to them as prescribed by law. No law shall designate such a corporation, association or institution as the beneficiary of an appropriation.

Each item containing such an appropriation shall be voted on separately in each house before final action is taken upon the bill of which it is a part and shall be stricken from the bill unless it shall receive the support of two-thirds of the members elected. The votes of each house shall be taken by yeas and nays and the names of the members voting for and of those voting against the item shall be entered on the journal.

Corporations, associations and institutions receiving such appropriations shall account therefor to the general assembly or to an agency prescribed by law and shall be subject to inspection by the state government.

After the establishment of one or more state universities, no appropriation for an educational purpose shall be made by the state government to a corporation, association or institution, or to a class of corporations, associations, or institutions, not under the absolute control of the state government or of a municipality.

Appropriations to Denominational Institutions.

Section 14. No appropriations shall be made for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes to any denominational or sectarian institution, corporation or association.

Certain Appropriations Permitted.

Section 15. Appropriations may be made for the payment of pensions and gratuities for military services; for the payment of pensions for the retirement of classes of officers and employes of the state government and school districts; for the relief of persons or municipalities injured or damaged by surface subsidence resulting from past or future mining of anthracite coal; for relief consequent upon grave public disasters or calamities; for the payment to funds under public control for the benefit of classes of persons who are to be the recipients of public assistance; and for the payment of the debts of municipalities contracted to enable the commonwealth to repel invasion, suppress domestic insurrection or defend itself in time of war.

Gratuities and Extra Compensation Forbidden.

Section 16. Except as in this constitution expressly provided, no appropriation shall be made by the state government for charitable, benevolent or educational purposes to any person or community, and no law shall authorize a gratuity by the state government, give extra compensation after services have been rendered or contract made, or appropriate money to pay a claim against the commonwealth without previous authority of law.

Approval and Veto by Governor.

Section 17. Every order, resolution or vote to which the concurrence of both houses shall be necessary, except on the question of adjournment or of agreement to an amendment

No appropriation shall be made to any charitable or educational institution not under the absolute control of the commonwealth, other than normal schools established by law for the professional training of teachers for the public schools of the state, except by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house.—(Article III, section 17.)

No appropriations, * * * shall be made for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes * * * to any denominational or sectarian institution, corporation or association.—(Article III, section 18.)

No appropriations, except for pensions or gratuities for military services, shall be made for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes, to any person or community * * * —Article III, section 18.)

No appropriations, except for pensions or gratuities for military services, shall be made for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes, to any person or community * * * —(Article III, section 18.)

No bill shall be passed giving any extra compensation to any public officer, servant, employe, agent or contractor, after services shall have been rendered or contract made, nor providing for the payment of any claim against the commonwealth without previous authority of law.—(Article III, section 11.)

Every order, resolution or vote, to which the concurrence of both houses may be necessary, except on the question of adjournment, shall be presented to the governor and before

to this constitution shall if passed by the general assembly be presented to the governor. If he approves it, he shall sign it and it shall then become a law. If he shall not approve it, he shall return it with his objections to the house in which it originated, which house shall enter the objections at large upon its journal. If, after reconsideration, two-thirds of the members elected to that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent with the governor's objections to the other house and if approved by two-thirds of the members elected to that house shall become law. The votes of each house shall be taken by yeas and nays and the names of the members voting for and of those voting against the bill shall be entered on the journal.	it shall take effect be approved by him, or being disapproved, shall be repassed by two-thirds of both houses, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in case of a bill.—(Article III, section 26.)
If a bill shall not be returned by the governor within ten days after it has been presented to him, it shall become law unless the general assembly by its adjournment prevents its return. In case of such adjournment the bill shall become law unless within thirty days after adjournment the governor shall file it with his objections in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth and shall give notice thereof by public proclamation.	Every bill which shall have passed both houses shall be presented to the governor; if he approve it he shall sign it, but if he shall not approve it he shall return it with his objections to the house in which it shall have originated, which house shall enter the objections at large upon their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of all the members elected to that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent with the objections to the other house by which likewise it shall be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of all the members elected to that house it shall be a law; but in such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the members voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journals of each house, respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within ten days after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the general assembly, by their adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall be a law, unless he shall file the same with his objections, in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth, and give notice thereof by public proclamation within thirty days after such adjournment.—(Article IV, section 15.)
Approval and Veto of Appropriation Bills.
Section 18. The governor may indicate his approval or disapproval of an appropriation bill by signing or vetoing it as in the case of other bills. If he shall approve one or more items and shall disapprove or reduce one or more other items, he shall return the bill to the house in which it originated setting forth his reasons. The items which he approves shall become law. The items which he disapproves or reduces may be passed over his objections by separate action on each item in the manner prescribed for the passage of bills over his veto. Such items not passed over his objections shall, in accordance with his recommendation, be stricken from the bill or shall become law as reduced by him.	The governor shall have power to disapprove of any item or items of any bill, making appropriations of money, embracing distinct items, and the part or parts of the bill approved shall be the law, and the item or items of appropriation disapproved shall be void, unless repassed according to the rules and limitations prescribed for the passage of other bills over the executive veto.—(Article IV, section 16.)
When Laws Shall Take Effect.
Section 19. A law shall become effective on the first day of January after its enactment unless otherwise provided herein.	New.
Local and Special Laws Forbidden.
Section 20. No local or special law shall be enacted: - Regulating the affairs of the municipality; - Changing the names of persons or places; - For the creation or regulation of highways, ferries or bridges, except bridges across streams which form state boundaries; - Regulating burial grounds or public grounds not belonging to the commonwealth; - Granting divorces or authorizing the adoption or legitimation of children; - Regulating elections, except that laws regulating the registration of electors may be applied to cities or boroughs of a specified class only; - Regulating the organization, jurisdiction and powers of courts of the same class or grade, judicial process, or the administration of justice; - Regulating liens, the collection of debts or the effect of judicial sales of real estate; - Regulating schools; - Fixing the rate of interest; - Regulating the estates of decedents, minors or persons under disability; - Regulating labor, trade, mining or manufacturing; - Creating corporations, or amending, renewing or extending their charters; - Exempting property from taxation; - Granting a benefit, privilege or power.	The general assembly shall not pass any local or special law: - Authorizing the creation, extension or impairing of liens; - Regulating the affairs of counties, cities, townships, wards, boroughs, or school districts; - Changing the names of persons or places; - Changing the venue in civil or criminal cases; - Authorizing the laying out, opening, altering or maintaining, roads, highways, streets or alleys; - Relating to ferries or bridges, or incorporating ferry or bridge companies, except for the erection of bridges crossing streams which form boundaries between this and any other state; - Vacating roads, town plats, streets or alleys; - Relating to cemeteries, graveyards, or public grounds not of the state; - Authorizing the adoption or legitimation of children; - Locating or changing county seats, erecting new counties or changing county lines; - Incorporating cities, towns, villages, or changing their charters; - For the opening and conducting of elections, or fixing or changing the place of voting; - Granting divorces; - Erecting new townships or boroughs, changing township lines, borough limits, or school districts; - Creating offices, or prescribing the powers and duties of officers in counties, cities, boroughs, townships, election or school districts;
No local or special law shall be indirectly enacted by the partial repeal of a general law. Laws repealing local or special laws may be enacted.

Regulating the practice or jurisdiction of, or changing the rules of evidence in, any judicial proceeding or inquiry before courts, aldermen, justices of the peace, sheriffs, commissioners, arbitrators, auditors, 18. masters in chancery or other tribunals, or providing or changing methods for the collection of debts, or the enforcing of judgments, or prescribing the effect of judicial sales of real estate: 19. Regulating the fees, or extending the powers and duties of aldermen, justices of the peace, magistrates or constables: 20. Regulating the management of public schools, the building or repairing of school houses, and the raising of money for such purposes: 21. Fixing the rate of interest: 22. Affecting the estates of minors or persons under disability except after due notice to all parties in interest, to be recited in the special enactment: 23. Remitting fines, penalties, and forfeitures, or refunding moneys legally paid into the treasury: 24. Exempting property from taxation: 25. Regulating labor, trade, mining or manufacturing: 26. Creating corporations, or amending, renewing or extending the charters thereof: 27. Granting to any corporation, association or individual any special or exclusive privilege or immunity, or to any corporation, association or individual the right to lay down a railroad track: 28. Nor shall the general assembly indirectly enact such special or local law by the partial repeal of a general law: but laws repealing local or special acts may be passed. 29. Nor shall any law be passed granting powers or privileges in any case where the granting of such powers and privileges shall have been provided for by general law, nor where the courts have jurisdiction to grant the same or give the relief asked for.—(Article III, section 7.) All laws regulating the holding of elections by the citizens or for the registration of electors shall be uniform throughout the state; but laws regulating and requiring the registration of electors may be enacted to apply to cities only, provided that such laws be uniform for cities of the same class.—(Article VIII, section 7.) All laws relating to courts shall be general and of uniform operation, and the organization, jurisdiction and powers of all courts of the same class or grade, so far as regulated by law, and the force and effect of the process and judgment of such courts shall be uniform; * * * (Article V, section 26.)
Damages for Injuries. Section 21. Laws may be enacted requiring the payment by employers, or by employers and employes jointly, of reasonable compensation for injuries to employes arising in the course of their employment and for occupational diseases of employes, whether or not such injuries or diseases result in death and regardless of fault of employer or employe, fixing the basis of ascertainment of such compensation and its maximum and minimum limits, and providing special or general remedies for the collection thereof. In no other case shall a limit be set by law upon the amount to be recovered for injuries to persons or property. In case of death from injuries, the right of action therefor shall survive and shall be exercised by persons designated by law.	The general assembly may enact laws requiring the payment by employers, or employers and employes jointly, of reasonable compensation for injuries to employes arising in the course of their employment and for occupational diseases of employes, whether or not such injuries or diseases result in death and regardless of fault of employer or employe, and fixing the basis of ascertainment of such compensation and the maximum and minimum limits thereof, and providing special or general remedies for the collection thereof; but in no other cases shall the general assembly limit the amount to be recovered for injuries resulting in death, or for injuries to persons or property, and in case of death from such injuries, the right of action shall survive, and the general assembly shall prescribe for whose benefit such actions shall be prosecuted. * * * (Article III, section 21, amendment of November 2, 1915.)
Land Titles. Section 22. Laws may be enacted providing that the state government or the counties may register, transfer, insure or guarantee titles to lands, and providing for the determination of interests in such lands and for the creation of indemnity funds. For such purposes courts may be established and judicial powers may be conferred upon officers of the state government or of the counties subject to the right of appeal by the parties interested to the courts.	Laws may be passed providing for a system of registering, transferring, insuring of and guaranteeing land titles by the state, or by the counties thereof, and for settling and determining adverse or other claims to and interest in lands the titles to which are so registered, transferred, insured and guaranteed; and for the creation and collection of indemnity funds; and for carrying the system and powers hereby provided for into effect by such existing

Term of Governor.	The governor shall hold his office during four years from the third Tuesday of January next ensuing his election, and shall not be eligible to the office for the next succeeding term.—(Article IV, section 3.)
Section 5. The governor shall hold office for four years from the third Tuesday of January succeeding his election or until his successor shall qualify. A person elected governor shall not be eligible for the succeeding term.	* * * The governor and lieutenant-governor shall exercise the duties of their respective offices until their successors shall be duly qualified.—(Article IV, section 17.)
Supreme Executive Power.	The supreme executive power shall be vested in the governor, who shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed. * * * *—(Article IV, section 2.)
Section 6. The supreme executive power shall be vested in the governor, who shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.
Military Power.	The governor shall be commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the commonwealth, and of the militia, except when they shall be called into the actual service of the United States.—(Article IV, section 7.)
Section 7. The governor shall be the commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the commonwealth, and of the militia, except when they shall be called into the service of the United States.
Appointing Power.	He shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of all the members of the senate, appoint a secretary of the commonwealth and an attorney general during pleasure, a superintendent of public instruction for four years, and such other officers of the commonwealth as he is or may be authorized by the constitution or by law to appoint; he shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen, in offices to which he may appoint during the recess of the senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session; he shall have power to fill any vacancy that may happen, during the recess of the senate, in the office of auditor general, state treasurer, secretary of internal affairs or superintendent of public instruction, in a judicial office, or in any other elective office which he is or may be authorized to fill; if the vacancy shall happen during the session of the senate, the governor shall nominate to the senate, before their final adjournment, a proper person to fill said vacancy; but in any such case of vacancy, in an elective office, a person shall be chosen to said office on the next election day appropriate to such office according to the provisions of this constitution, unless the vacancy shall happen within two calendar months immediately preceding such election day, in which case the election for said office shall be held on the second succeeding election day appropriate to such office. In acting on executive nominations the senate shall sit with open doors, and in confirming or rejecting the nominations of the governor, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays and shall be entered on the journal.—(Article IV, section 8, amendment of November 2, 1919.)
Section 8. The governor shall appoint a secretary of the commonwealth, an attorney general a secretary of internal affairs and a commissioner of education, to serve during his pleasure, and other officers as prescribed by law.	Any vacancy happening by death, resignation or otherwise, in any court of record, shall be filled by appointment by the governor, to continue till the first Monday of January next succeeding the first general election, which shall occur three or more months after the happening of such vacancy.—(Article V, section 25.)
When the senate is in regular session, the governor shall exercise the power to appoint an officer only after nomination to the senate and by and with the advice and consent of a majority of its members, except where he shall appoint to fill a vacancy occurring within ten days before final adjournment of the session.	and shall be entered on the journal.
The governor may fill by appointment a vacancy in an office to which he may appoint. If he shall appoint to an appointive office during a recess of the senate or to fill a vacancy occurring within ten days before final adjournment of a regular session thereof such appointment shall be valid until the end of the next regular session of the senate, and the person so appointed shall be deemed to have been rejected by the senate at such session unless nominated by the governor and confirmed by the senate.	and shall be entered on the journal.
The governor may fill by appointment a vacancy in the office of auditor general or of state treasurer and in any other elective office which he may be authorized to fill.	and shall be entered on the journal.
Such vacancy shall be filled by election on the next election day appropriate to the office which shall fall not less than sixty days after the occurrence of the vacancy. Such appointee shall serve until the person so elected shall take office as prescribed by law.	and shall be entered on the journal.
If a power of appointment to an appointive or elective office shall arise during a session of the senate and not within ten days before final adjournment, the governor shall, at such session, nominate a proper person for the office. If a power of appointment to an appointive office shall arise within ten days before final adjournment of a session of the senate or during a recess of the senate, he shall at the next session of the senate nominate a proper person for the office. In either case, if the senate shall reject a nomination and shall notify the governor that it will not adjourn within ten days, he shall nominate another person for the office. If he shall fail to nominate as herein required, he may not appoint to the office except after nomination to the senate and by and with the advice and consent of a majority of its members.
If the nomination of a person to an office shall be rejected by the senate he shall not be appointed to such office before the next session of the senate.
In acting on executive nominations, the senate shall sit with open doors. The vote shall be taken by yeas and nays and shall be entered on the journal.
Pardoning Power.
Section 9. The governor may remit fines and forfeitures, and may grant reprieves, commutations of sentence and pardons, except in cases of impeachment. He shall commute a sentence or grant a pardon only on the recommendation in writing of the lieutenant-governor, the secretary of the commonwealth, the attorney general and the secretary of internal affairs, or of any three of them after full hearing, upon due public notice and in open session. Such recommendation, with the reasons therefor at length, shall be recorded and filed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth.	cept in cases of impeachment; but no pardon shall be granted, nor sentence commuted, except upon the recommendation in writing of the lieutenant-governor, secretary of the commonwealth, attorney general and secretary of internal affairs, or any three of them, after full hearing, upon due public notice and in open session, and such recommendation, with the reasons therefor at length, shall be recorded and filed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth.—(Article IV, section 9.)

Power to Require Information.
Section 10. The governor may require information in writing from the executive officers of the state government with respect to their duties.	He may require information in writing from the officers of the executive department, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices.—(Article IV, section 10.)
Duty to Inform General Assembly.
Section 11. The governor shall from time to time, give to the general assembly information of the state of the commonwealth, and shall recommend to its consideration such measures as he may judge expedient.	He shall from, time to time, give to the general assembly information of the state of the commonwealth, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he may judge expedient.—(Article IV, section 11.)
Power to Adjourn or Convene General Assembly.
Section 12. The governor, in case of disagreement between the two houses of the general assembly, with respect to the time of adjournment, may adjourn them to such time as he may think proper not exceeding four months. He may on extraordinary occasions convene, by proclamation, the general assembly and he may convene, by proclamation, the senate for the transaction of executive business.	He may on extraordinary occasions, convene the general assembly, and in case of disagreement between the two houses with respect to the time of adjournment, adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper, not exceeding four months. He shall have power to convene the senate in extraordinary session by proclamation for the transaction of executive business.—(Article IV, section 12.)
Lieutenant-Governor.
Section 13. The lieutenant-governor shall have the same qualifications and shall be chosen at the same time, in the same manner, and for the same term as the governor. He shall not be eligible to the office of lieutenant-governor for the succeeding term. A contested election of lieutenant-governor shall be conducted in the same manner as a contested election of governor. The lieutenant-governor shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote unless the senate be equally divided.	A lieutenant-governor shall be chosen at the same time, in the same manner, for the same term, and subject to the same provisions as the governor; he shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.—(Article IV, section 4.)
Succession to Governorship.	Note.
Section 14. If the office of governor shall be vacant the lieutenant-governor shall become governor. If the governor shall fail to qualify or shall be under a disability, the powers, duties and emoluments of his office until the end of the governor's term or until he shall qualify or his disability shall be removed shall devolve on the lieutenant-governor, or, if his office shall be vacant or he shall be under a disability, then on the president pro tempore of the senate, or if his office shall be vacant or he shall be under a disability, then on a person elected by a majority of the members of the general assembly. For the purpose of such election, the general assembly may convene in special session without a proclamation of the governor upon a call signed by five members of each house.	Article IV, section 17, of the present constitution relative to contested elections, which has been transferred to Article IV, section 4, as proposed omitting references to the lieutenant-governor, has, in the section here proposed been expressly applied to the lieutenant-governor.
Succession to Lieutenant-Governorship.
Section 15. If the office of lieutenant-governor shall be vacant or if he shall fail to qualify or shall be absent or under a disability, the powers, duties and emoluments of his office, until the end of his term or until he shall qualify or return or his disability shall be removed, shall devolve on the president pro tempore of the senate. In such event the seat in the senate of the president pro tempore of the senate shall become vacant.	In case of death, conviction on impeachment, failure to qualify, resignation, or other disability of the governor, the powers, duties and emoluments of the office, for the remainder of the term, or until the disability be removed, shall devolve upon the lieutenant-governor.—(Article IV, section 13.) In case of a vacancy in the office of lieutenant-governor, or when the lieutenant-governor shall be impeached by the house of representatives, or shall be unable to exercise the duties of his office, the powers, duties and emoluments thereof for the remainder of the term, or until the disability be removed, shall devolve upon the president pro tempore of the senate; and the president pro tempore of the senate shall in like manner become governor if a vacancy or disability shall occur in the office of governor; * * * —(Article IV, section 14.)
Determination of Disability.
Section 16. The fact of disability of the governor or of the lieutenant-governor or of a person upon whom the	In case of a vacancy in the office of lieutenant-governor or when the lieutenant-governor shall be impeached by the house of representatives, or shall be unable to exercise the duties of his office, the powers, duties and emoluments thereof for the remainder of the term, or until the disability be removed, shall devolve upon the president pro tempore of the senate; and the president pro tempore of the senate shall in like manner become governor if a vacancy or disability shall occur in the office of governor; his seat as senator shall become vacant whenever he shall become governor, and shall be filled by election as any other vacancy in the senate.—(Article IV, section 14.) powers and duties of either office would otherwise devolve, shall be determined only by the supreme court on the address of the general assembly, agreed to by a majority of the members of each house, or, if the general assembly be not in session, on the written address of such majority.
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
Section 17. The secretary of the commonwealth shall keep a record of the official acts and proceedings of the governor, and preform other duties as prescribed by law. He may be required by either house of the general assembly to exhibit his record with the papers, minutes and vouchers relating thereto.	The secretary of the commonwealth shall keep a record of all official acts and proceedings of the governor, and when required lay the same, with all papers, minutes and vouchers relating thereto, before either branch of the general assembly, and perform such other duties as may be enjoined upon him by law.—(Article IV, section 18.)
Secretary of Internal Affairs.
Section 18. Until otherwise prescribed by law, the secretary of internal affairs shall exercise the powers and perform the duties prescribed by law when this constitution becomes effective. His department shall embrace a bureau of industrial statistics.	The secretary of internal affairs shall exercise all the powers and perform all the duties of the surveyor general, subject to such changes as shall be made by law. His department shall embrace a bureau of industrial statistics, and he shall discharge such duties relating to corporations, to the charitable institutions, agricultural, manufacturing, mining, mineral, timber and other material or business interests of the state as may be prescribed by law. He shall annually, and at such other times as may be required by law, make report to the general assembly.—(Article IV, section 19.)
Auditor General and State Treasurer.
Section 19. The auditor general and the state treasurer shall be chosen by the electors of the commonwealth. Each shall hold his office for four years and neither shall be eligible for the succeeding term.	The terms of the secretary of internal affairs, the auditor general, and the state treasurer shall each be four years; and they shall be chosen by the qualified electors of the state at general elections, but a state treasurer, elected in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine, shall serve for three years, and his successors shall be elected at the general election in the year one thousand nine hundred and twelve, and in very fourth year thereafter. No person elected to the office of auditor general or state treasurer shall be capable of holding the same office for two consecutive terms.—(Article IV, section 21, amendment of November 2, 1909.)
State Contracts
Section 20. No member of the general assembly or officer or employe of the state government shall be interested in a contract with the state government, or in furnishing thereto materials or supplies.	* * * no member or officer of any department of the government shall be in any way interested in such contracts (contracts for stationery, printing, paper and fuel used in the legislative and other departments of the state government, for printing and binding and for repairing and furnishing the halls and rooms used by the general assembly and its committees) * * * (Article III, section 12.)
Public Printing and Supplies
Section 21. The printing and binding for the state government shall be done under contract or by the state government. Furnishings and fuel for the capitol buildings and paper and stationery for the state government shall be made or produced by the state government or procured under contract. Contracts for work or material designated in this section shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder subject to the approval of the auditor general and of the state treasurer.	All stationery, printing, paper and fuel used in the legislative and other departments of government shall be furnished, and the printing, binding and distributing of the laws, journals, department reports and all other printing and binding, and the repairing and furnishing the halls and rooms used for the meetings of the general assembly and its committees, shall be performed under contract to be given to the lowest responsible bidder below such maximum price and under such regulations as shall be prescribed by law; * * * (Article III, section 12.)
Seal and Commissions.
Section 22. The present great seal of Pennsylvania shall be the seal of the commonwealth. Commissions shall be in the name and by the authority of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. They shall be sealed with the seal of the commonwealth and signed by the governor.	The present great seal of Pennsylvania shall be the seal of the state. All commissions shall be in the name and by authority of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and be sealed with the state seal and signed by the governor.—(Article IV, section 22.)

ARTICLE V.

THE JUDICIARY.

Judicial Power.

Section 1. The judicial power of the commonwealth shall be vested in a supreme court, a superior court, courts of common pleas, courts of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, courts of quarter sessions of the peace, orphans' courts, justices of the peace, and in such other courts as may from time to time be established by law.

The judicial power of this commonwealth shall be vested in a supreme court, in courts of common pleas, courts of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, courts of quarter sessions of the peace, orphans' courts, magistrates' courts, and in such other courts as the general assembly may from time to time establish.—(Article V, section 1.)

Proposed Constitution	Corresponding provisions in present Constitution
Supreme Court.
Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of seven judges learned in the law, who shall have the title of justice, chosen by the electors of the commonwealth. They shall hold office for twenty-one years and shall not again be eligible. The judge longest in continuous service shall be chief justice.	The supreme court shall consist of seven judges, who shall be elected by the qualified electors of the state, at large. They shall hold their offices for the term of twenty-one years, if they so long behave themselves well, but shall not be again eligible. The judge whose commission shall first expire shall be chief justice, and thereafter each judge whose commission shall first expire shall in turn be chief justice.—(Article V, section 2.)
Jurisdiction of Supreme Court.
Section 3. The jurisdiction of the supreme court shall extend over the state, and the judges thereof shall, by virtue of their offices, be justices of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery in the several counties. It shall have original jurisdiction in cases of injunction where a corporation is a party defendant, of habeas corpus, of mandamus to courts of inferior jurisdiction, and of quo warranto as to officers of the commonwealth whose jurisdiction extends over the state, but shall not exercise other original jurisdiction.	The jurisdiction of the supreme court shall extend over the state, and the judges thereof shall, by virtue of their offices, be justices of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery in the several counties; they shall have original jurisdiction in cases of injunction where a corporation is a party defendant, of habeas corpus, of mandamus to courts of inferior jurisdiction, and of quo warranto as to all officers of the commonwealth whose jurisdiction extends over the state, but shall not exercise any other original jurisdiction; they shall have appellate jurisdiction by appeal, certiorari or writ of error in all cases, as is now or may hereafter be provided by law.—(Article V, section 3.)
The supreme court shall have jurisdiction to review in all cases the action of other courts and until otherwise prescribed by law the manner of exercising such jurisdiction shall be that prescribed when this constitution becomes effective.
Regulative Power and Duty of Supreme Court.
Section 4. The supreme court shall regulate procedure in courts of record and shall adapt the processes of justice to the necessities of all litigants.	New.
In the discharge of these duties it may regulate forms of action, pleading and practice, the keeping of judicial records, and the conditions under which fees and costs may be remitted and counsel assigned without expense to litigants.
Regulations, when promulgated by the chief justice, shall have the force of law until modified by law and shall operate to repeal laws theretofore enacted inconsistent with such regulations.
Subject to law and to such regulations, courts of record shall have the power to make their own rules.
Superior Court.
Section 5. The superior court shall consist of seven judges learned in the law, chosen by the electors of the commonwealth. They shall hold office for twenty-one years and shall not again be eligible. The judge longest in continuous service shall be president judge.	New.
Jurisdiction of Superior Court.
Section 6. Until otherwise prescribed by law, the superior court shall have the jurisdiction vested in it when this constitution becomes effective.	New.
Judicial Districts.
Section 7. The state shall be divided by law into judicial districts. A county having fifty thousand inhabitants may constitute a separate district. No county shall be divided in the formation of a district and not more than four counties shall be included in a district.	Whenever a county shall contain fifty thousand inhabitants it may constitute a separate judicial district * * * Counties containing a population less than is sufficient to constitute separate districts shall be formed into convenient single districts, or, if necessary, may be attached to contiguous districts, as the general assembly may provide. * * * —(Article V, section 5.)
Courts of Common Pleas.	* * * * Not more than four counties shall at any time be included in one judicial district organized for such courts.—(Article V, section 4.)
Section 8. In each county there shall be a court of common pleas consisting of one or more judges learned in the law, chosen by the electors of the judicial district in which the county is situated. They shall hold office for ten years. The judge longest in continuous service shall be the president judge. The office of associate judge not learned in the law is abolished, but associate judges in office when this constitution becomes effective shall hold office for their unexpired terms.	Until otherwise directed by law, the courts of common pleas shall continue as at present established, except as herein changed; * * * —(Article V, section 4.) Whenever a county shall contain forty thousand inhabitants it * * * shall elect one judge learned in the law and the general assembly shall provide for additional judges as the business of the said districts may require. * * * —(Article V, section 5.) All judges required to be learned in the law, except the judges of the supreme court shall be elected by the qualified electors of the respective districts over which they

Section 9. The court of common pleas of each county shall have original jurisdiction in civil cases except where such jurisdiction shall be vested by law in other courts. It shall have power to issue writs of certiorari to justices of the peace and to inferior courts not of record and, except where otherwise prescribed by law shall have jurisdiction in appeals from justices of the peace. It shall have the chancery jurisdiction vested in the courts of common pleas when this constitution becomes effective.	Judges of the courts of common pleas learned in the law * * * within their respective districts shall be justices of the peace as to criminal matters.—(Article V, section 9.) The judges of the courts of common pleas, within their respective counties, shall have power to issue writs of certiorari to justices of the peace and other inferior courts not of record, and to cause their proceedings to be brought before them, and right and justice to be done.—(Article V, section 10.)
In addition to the powers conferred in this section, and until otherwise prescribed by law, the courts of common pleas shall have the jurisdiction vested in them when this constitution becomes effective.	The several courts of common pleas, besides the powers herein conferred, shall have and exercise, within their respective districts, subject to such changes as may be made by law, such chancery powers as are now vested by law in the several courts of common pleas of this commonwealth, or as may hereafter be conferred upon them by law.—(Article V, section 20.)
A judge of a court of common pleas shall be, in the county, a justice of the peace as to criminal matters.	New.
Common Pleas Court in Philadelphia.	Judges of the courts of common pleas learned in the law shall be judges of the courts of oyer and terminer, quarter sessions of the peace and general jail delivery, and of the orphans' court, * * * —(Article V, section 9.)
Section 10. In the county of Philadelphia the jurisdiction of the several courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas. Until otherwise prescribed by law, the court shall be composed of fifteen judges. The first judges shall be those holding office in the several courts of common pleas when this constitution becomes effective. The judge longest in continuous service shall be president judge.	In every county wherein the population shall exceed one hundred and fifty thousand, the general assembly shall, and in any other county may, establish a separate orphans' court, to consist of one or more judges who shall be learned in the law, which court shall exercise all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in or which may hereafter be conferred upon the orphans' courts, and thereupon the jurisdiction of the judges of the court of common pleas within such county, in orphans' court proceedings shall cease and determine. In any county in which a separate orphans' court shall be established, the register of wills shall be clerk of such court, and subject to its directions, in all matters pertaining to his office; he may appoint assistant clerks, but only with the consent and approval of said court. All accounts filed with him as register or as clerk of the said orphans' court shall be audited by the court without expense to parties, except where all parties in interest in a pending proceeding shall nominate an auditor whom the court may, in its discretion, appoint. In every county orphans' courts shall possess all the powers and jurisdiction of a registers' court, and separate registers' courts are hereby abolished.—(Article V, section 22.)

justice of the peace districts. A borough, township or city with a population of fifty thousand or less shall not be divided. A district may be composed of two or more township or boroughs or any borough or township may be attached to a district comprising all or a portion of a city. In a city with a population of more than fifty thousand, the number of inhabitants shall be divided by fifty thousand and the number of districts to which the city shall be entitled shall be the quotient. Population shall be determined by the latest United States decennial census. After each decennial census the court of common pleas may create new districts and may change the boundaries of districts. After any such revision of the districts, no new district shall be created and no change of boundary shall be made prior to the next decennial census. In each district one justice of the peace shall be chosen by the electors at a municipal election. He shall have been a resident of his district for two years next preceding the election unless absent on the public business of the United States, of the state government or of a municipality of the commonwealth. He shall hold office for six years from the first Monday after his election. Upon petition of at least two hundred electors of the district setting forth a reasonable cause for his removal, he shall be removed from office by the court of common pleas if the court, after hearing, finds such cause to exist. In such event a justice of the peace may appeal to the superior court. A vacancy in the office of justice of the peace shall be filled by the governor. For services rendered in judicial proceedings a justice of the peace shall receive a salary prescribed by law and paid by the county, and no other compensation. Fees, fines and penalties received in judicial proceedings by a justice of the peace shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of the county. Until otherwise prescribed by law, justices of the peace in any county shall have the jurisdiction and powers of the justices of the peace of the county existing when this constitution becomes effective. Justices of the peace in office when this constitution becomes effective shall serve their unexpired terms. On the expiration of such terms, the office of justice of the peace as theretofore existing is abolished. Vacancies occurring prior to the expiration of such terms shall not be filled. Justices of the Peace in Philadelphia. Section 14. The county of Philadelphia shall be divided by its court of common pleas into eighteen justice of the peace districts as nearly equal in population as possible. After each United States decennial census, the court of common pleas may create new districts and may alter the boundaries of districts. After any such revision of the districts, no new district shall be created and no change of boundary shall be made prior to the next decennial census. The number of districts shall not exceed one for each one hundred thousand of population. In each district one justice of the peace learned in the law shall be chosen by the electors of the district at a municipal election. His other qualifications, his term, and the method of his removal and of filling a vacancy in his office shall be as in the case of justices of the peace in other counties. For services rendered in judicial proceedings, he shall receive a salary prescribed by law and paid by the county and no other compensation. Fees, fines and penalties received in judicial proceedings by a justice of the peace shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of the county. A justice of the peace shall hold a court not of record of police and civil cases. His jurisdiction in civil matters shall be limited to matters involving three hundred dollars or less and except as otherwise provided in this section shall be similar to that of justices of the peace in other counties. No political duties shall be imposed on him. Rules of procedure for the justices of the peace not inconsistent with law or with the regulations of the supreme	wards, districts, boroughs and townships, by the qualified electors thereof, at the municipal election, in such manner as shall be directed by law, and shall be commissioned by the governor for a term of six years. No township, ward, district or borough shall elect more than two justices of the peace or aldermen without the consent of a majority of the qualified electors within such township, ward or borough; no person shall be elected to such office unless he shall have resided within the township, borough, ward or district for one year next preceding his election. In cities containing over fifty thousand inhabitants, not more than one alderman shall be elected in each ward or district.—(Article V, section 11, amendment of Nov. 2, 1909.) All fees, fines and penalties in said courts shall be paid into the county treasury.—(Article V, section 13). In Philadelphia there shall be established, for each thirty thousand inhabitants, one court, not of record, of police and civil causes, with jurisdiction not exceeding one hundred dollars; such courts shall be held by magistrates whose term of office shall be six years and they shall be elected on general ticket at the municipal election, by the qualified voters at large; and in the election of said magistrates no voter shall vote for more than two-thirds of the number of persons to be elected when more than one are to be chosen; they shall be compensated only by fixed salaries to be paid by said county; and shall exercise such jurisdiction, civil and criminal, except as herein provided, as is now exercised by aldermen, subject to such changes, not involving an increase of civil jurisdiction or conferring political duties, as may be made by the law. In Philadelphia the office of alderman is abolished.—(Article V, section 12, amendment of November 2, 1909.) All fees, fines and penalties in said courts shall be paid into the county treasury.—(Article V, section 13.)

court shall be prescribed by the court of common pleas of the county of Philadelphia.
Magistrates in office when this constitution becomes effective shall serve their unexpired terms. On the expiration of such terms, the office of magistrate as theretofore existed is abolished. Vacancies occurring prior to the expiration of such terms shall not be filled.
The provisions of this section may be changed or abolished by law.
Judgeships to be Numbered.
Section 15. In every court composed of two or more judges required to be learned in the law, each judgeship shall, for the purpose of election or appointment thereto, be deemed a separate office and be distinguished by number from the other judgeships in the same court. Judgeships existing when this constitution becomes effective shall be taken to be numbered in the respective courts in the order of the seniority in commission of the judges occupying them.	New.
Determining Priority.
Section 16. Before two or more judges of the same court begin service on the same day, they shall cast lots to determine who shall be deemed first to have begun service and shall certify the result to the governor.	Should any two or more judges of the supreme court, or any two or more judges of the court of common pleas for the same district, be elected at the same time, they shall, as soon after the election as convenient, cast lots for priority of commission, and certify the result to the governor, who shall issue their commissions in accordance therewith.—(Article V, section 17.)
Residence of Judges.
Section 17. The judges of the supreme court and of the superior court shall reside in the state. A judge of another court or a justice of the peace shall reside in the district for which he has been elected.	The judges of the supreme court, during their continuance in office, shall reside within this commonwealth; and the other judges, during their continuance in office, shall reside within the districts for which they shall be respectively elected.—(Article V, section 19.)
Compensation of Judges and of Justices of the Peace.
Section 18. A judge or a justice of the peace required to be learned in the law shall receive for his services an adequate salary prescribed by law, and no other compensation. A judge required to be learned in the law shall be paid by the state government.	The judges of the supreme court and the judges of the several courts of common pleas, and all other judges required to be learned in the law, shall at stated times receive for their services an adequate compensation which shall be fixed by law, and paid by the state. They shall receive no other compensation, fees, or perquisites of office for their services from any source; * * * (Article V, section 18.)
Duties of Courts to be Judicial Only.
Section 19. No duties shall be imposed on a court or judge except such as relate to the administration of justice, to the conduct of the business of the court, or to the conduct of elections. After the adjournment of the first session of the general assembly following the time when this constitution becomes effective, no powers of appointment shall be exercised by the court or judge except such as relate to their duties or to the management of public law libraries, the inspection and management of prisons, the visitation of public institutions, the condemnation of private property, and the administration of public trusts, of public parks or of public works. Other powers of appointment vested in a court or judge shall be abolished or vested elsewhere by law.	No duties shall be imposed by law upon the supreme court or any of the judges thereof, except such as are judicial, nor shall any of the judges thereof exercise any power of appointment except as herein provided. The court of nisi prius is hereby abolished, and no court of original jurisdiction to be presided over by any one or more of the judges of the supreme court shall be established.—(Article V, section 21.)
Power to Change Venue.
Section 20. The power to change the venue shall be vested in the courts and exercised as prescribed by law.	The power to change the venue in civil and criminal cases shall be vested in the courts, to be exercised in such manner as shall be provided by law.—(Article III, section 23.)
Appeals to Supreme Court in Homicide Cases.
Section 21. A person sentenced for felonious homicide may remove the indictment, record and all proceedings to the supreme court for review.	In all cases of felonious homicide, and in such other criminal cases as may be provided for by law, the accused, after conviction and sentence may remove the indictment, record and all proceedings, to the supreme court for review.—(Article V, section 24.)
Appeals From Courts Not of Record.
Section 22. A person summarily convicted, or a party to a suit for a penalty before a justice of the peace or in a court not of record, may appeal to a court of record in the manner prescribed by law.	In all cases of summary conviction in this commonwealth, or of judgement in suit for a penalty before a magistrate, or court not of record, either party may appeal to such court of record as may be prescribed by law, upon allowance of the appellate court or judge thereof upon cause shown.—(Article V, section 14.)

Process and Indictments. Section 23. The style of process shall be "The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania." Prosecutions shall be carried on in the name and by the authority of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Indictments shall conclude "against the peace and dignity of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania." Trial Without Jury. Section 24. If the parties to a civil case shall agree to dispense with a trial by jury, the court shall hear the case and shall deliver a judgment having the same effect as if there had been such trial by jury. Employment of Counsel and Graded Costs. Section 25. Laws shall be enacted, applicable to courts of record and to such other courts as may be deemed proper, providing that the counties shall compensate counsel assigned to serve without expense to litigants. The cost of litigation may be classified or graded by law according to the amounts in controversy.	The style of all process shall be "The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania." All prosecutions shall be carried on in the name and by the authority of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and conclude "against the peace and dignity of the same."—(Article V, section 23.) The parties, by agreement filed, may in any civil case dispense with trial by jury, and submit the decision of such case to the court having jurisdiction thereof, and such court shall hear and determine the same; and the judgment thereon shall be subject to writ of error as in other cases.—(Article V, section 27.) New.

ARTICLE VI.

SUFFRAGE AND ELECTIONS.

Qualifications of Electors.

Section 1. A citizen of the commonwealth shall be entitled to vote at elections who has:

1. Reached the age of twenty-one;
2. Been a citizen of the United States at least thirty days;
4. Resided for sixty days next preceding the election in the election district where he shall offer to vote;
5. Complied with the law regulating the registration of electors.

The right to vote and to hold office shall not be denied on account of race, color or sex.

Residence of Electors.

Section 2. For the purpose of voting no person shall be deemed to have gained a residence by reason of his presence or to have lost it by reason of his absence while in the service of the United States, of the state government or of a municipality of the commonwealth, or while navigating the waters of the United States or the high seas, or while a student of an institution of learning, or while kept in an institution at public expense, or while confined in prison.

Voting in Military or Naval Service.

Section 3. When an elector shall be absent in the military or naval service of the commonwealth or of the United States under a requisition by the President, he may vote as if he were present in his place of residence, subject to regulations prescribed by law.

Privileges of Electors.

Section 4. Electors shall, except in cases of treason, felony and breach or surety of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance on elections, and in going to and returning from them.

Election Offenses.

Section 5. A person who shall give, or promise or offer to give a valuable consideration or reward for a vote at an election or for the withholding thereof, or who shall receive

Every male citizen of twenty-one years of age, possessing the following qualifications, shall be entitled to vote at all elections, subject, however, to such laws requiring and regulating the registration of electors as the general assembly may enact:

1. He shall have been a citizen of the United States at least one month.
2. He shall have resided in the state one year (or, having previously been a qualified elector or native-born citizen of the state, he shall have removed therefrom and returned, then six months) immediately preceding the election.
3. He shall have resided in the election district where he shall offer to vote at least two months immediately preceding the election.
4. If twenty-two years of age and upwards, he shall have paid within two years a state or county tax, which shall have been assessed at least two months and paid at least one month before the election.—(Article VIII, section 1, amendment of November 5, 1901.)

For the purpose of voting no person shall be deemed to have gained a residence by reason of his presence, or lost it by reason of his absence, while employed in the service, either civil or military, of this state or of the United States, nor while engaged in the navigation of the waters of the state or of the United States, or on the high seas, nor while a student of any institution of learning, nor while kept in any poorhouse or other asylum at public expense, nor while confined in public prison.—(Article VIII, section 13.)

Whenever any of the qualified electors of this commonwealth shall be in actual military service, under a requisition from the President of the United States or by the authority of this commonwealth, such electors may exercise the right of suffrage in all elections by the citizens, under such regulations as are or shall be prescribed by law, as fully as if they were present at their usual places of election.—(Article VIII, section 6.)

Electors shall in all cases except treason, felony and breach or surety of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance on elections, and in going to and returning therefrom.—(Article VIII, section 5.)

Any person who shall give, or promise or offer to give, to an elector, any money, reward or other valuable consideration for his vote at an election, or for withholding the

Proposed Constitution

Corresponding provisions in present Constitution

or agree to receive, for himself or for another, a valuable consideration or reward for a vote at an election or for the withholding thereof, shall forfeit the right to vote at such election. An elector whose right to vote shall be challenged for such cause before the election officers shall be required to swear or affirm that the subject matter of the challenge is untrue before his vote shall be received.

A person convicted of wilful violation of an election law shall, in addition to the penalties prescribed by law, lose for four years the right to vote.

In a trial of a contested election and in an investigation of elections, no testimony shall be withheld on the ground that it may criminate the witness or subject him to infamy. Such testimony shall not afterwards be used against him in a judicial proceeding except in a prosecution for perjury in giving such testimony.

Election Districts.

Section 6. Townships and wards of cities or boroughs shall form or shall be divided into election districts of compact and contiguous territory as the court of quarter sessions may direct.

An election district in a city of over one hundred thousand inhabitants shall be divided by the court of quarter sessions when at the next preceding election more than two hundred and fifty votes have been polled therein. Any other election district shall be divided when the court of quarter sessions shall be of opinion that the convenience of the electors and the public interests will be promoted thereby.

Election Officers.

Section 7. In each election district there shall be an election board consisting of a judge and two inspectors chosen by the electors of the district. They shall hold office for two years. Each elector may vote for one candidate for judge and for one candidate for inspector. Vacancies in election boards shall be filled and election boards in new districts shall be created as prescribed by law. Each inspector shall appoint one clerk at each election. An election officer or clerk shall be privileged from arrest upon days of election and while engaged in making up and transmitting returns, except upon warrant of a court of record or of a judge thereof for election fraud, for felony, or for wanton breach of the peace. In a city he shall be exempt from jury duty.

Overseers of Elections.

Section 8. The courts of common pleas shall appoint two persons, of different political parties, qualified to serve on an election board, to be overseers of election in a district on petition of five electors of the county setting forth that such appointment is a reasonable precaution to secure the purity and fairness of the election. All the judges of the court able to act at the time shall concur in the appointment.

The overseers of election, if they shall agree, shall decide any question with respect to the conduct of the election on which the members of the election board shall differ.

Time of Holding Elections.

Section 9. The general election shall be held in each even-numbered year and the municipal election shall be held in each odd-numbered year. Each shall be held on the Tuesday next following the first Monday in November unless, with the consent of two-thirds of the members of same, or who shall give or promise to give such consideration to any other person or party for such electors' vote or for the withholding thereof, and any elector who shall receive or agree to receive, for himself or for another, any money, reward or other valuable consideration for his vote at an election, or for withholding the same, shall thereby forfeit the right to vote at such election, and any elector whose right to vote shall be challenged for such cause before the election officers, shall be required to swear or affirm that the matter of the challenge is untrue before his vote shall be received.—(Article VIII, section 8.)

* * * and any person convicted of wilful violation of the election laws shall, in addition to any penalties provided by law, be deprived of the right of suffrage absolutely for a term of four years.—(Article VIII, section 9.)

In trials of contested elections and in proceedings for the investigation of elections, no person shall be permitted to withhold his testimony upon the ground that it may criminate himself or subject him to public infamy; but such testimony shall not afterwards be used against him in any judicial proceedings except for perjury in giving such testimony.—(Article VIII, section 10.)

Townships, and wards of cities or boroughs, shall form or be divided into election districts of compact and contiguous territory, in such manner as the court of quarter sessions of the city or county in which the same are located may direct; but districts in cities of over one hundred thousand inhabitants shall be divided by the courts of quarter sessions, having jurisdiction therein, whenever at the next preceding election more than two hundred and fifty votes shall have been polled therein; and other election districts whenever the court of the proper county shall be of opinion that the convenience of the electors and the public interests will be promoted thereby.—(Article VIII, section 11.)

District election boards shall consist of a judge and two inspectors, who shall be chosen annually by the citizens. Each elector shall have the right to vote for the judge and one inspector, and each inspector shall appoint one clerk. The first election board for any new district shall be selected, and vacancies in election boards filled, as shall be provided by law. Election officers shall be privileged from arrest upon days of election, and while engaged in making up and transmitting returns, except upon warrant of a court of record or judge thereof, for an election fraud, for felony, or for wanton breach of the peace. In cities they may claim exemption from jury duty during their terms of service.—(Article VIII, section 14.)

The courts of common pleas of the several counties of the commonwealth shall have power, within their respective jurisdictions, to appoint overseers of election to supervise the proceedings of election officers and to make report to the court as may be required; such appointments to be made for any district in a city or county upon petition of five citizens, lawful voters of such election district, setting forth that such appointment is a reasonable precaution to secure the purity and fairness of elections; overseers shall be two in number for an election district, shall be residents therein, and shall be persons qualified to serve upon election boards, and in each case members of different political parties; whenever the members of an election board shall differ in opinion the overseers, if they shall be agreed thereon, shall decide the question of difference; in appointing overseers of election all law judges of the proper court, able to act at the time, shall concur in the appointments made.—(Article VIII, section 16.)

The general election shall be held biennially on the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each even-numbered year; but the general assembly may by law fix a different day, two-thirds of all the members of each house consenting thereto provided, that such election shall

each house of the general assembly, a different day shall be prescribed by law.	always be held in an even-numbered year.—(Article VIII, section 2.) * * * All elections (for certain offices enumerated) be held on the municipal election day; namely, the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each odd-numbered year, but the general assembly may by law fix a different day, two-thirds of all the members of each house, consenting thereto: provided, that such elections shall be held in an odd-numbered year * * *.—(Article VIII, section 3.)
Secrecy in Voting. Section 10. Elections by the citizens shall be by ballot or by other methods as prescribed by law. Secrecy in voting shall be preserved.	All elections by the citizens shall be by ballot or by such other method as may be prescribed by law: provided, that secrecy in voting be preserved.—(Article VIII, section 4, amendment of Nov. 5, 1901.)
Trial of Contested Elections. Section 11. The courts shall determine in the first instance contested elections of members of the general assembly, of governor and of lieutenant-governor. They shall finally determine all other contested elections. Laws shall be enacted designating the courts and judges by whom the several classes of election contests shall be tried, and regulating the manner of trial and matters incident thereto. No law assigning jurisdiction, or regulating its exercise, shall apply to a contest arising out of an election held before its enactment.	The trial and determination of contested elections of electors of president and vice president, members of the general assembly, and of all public officers, whether state, judicial, municipal or local, shall be by the courts of law, or by one or more of the law judges thereof; the general assembly shall, by general law, designate the courts and judges by whom the several classes of election contests shall be tried, and regulate the manner of trial and all matters incident thereto; but no such law assigning jurisdiction, or regulating its exercise, shall apply to any contest arising out of an election held before its passage.—(Article VIII, section 17.)
Elections by Representative Bodies. Section 12. Elections by representative bodies shall be viva voce.	All elections by persons in a representative capacity shall be viva voce.—(Article VIII, section 12.)

ARTICLE VII.

PUBLIC SERVANTS.

Times of Elections.

Section 1. Judges elected by the electors of the commonwealth at large may be elected at general or municipal elections as prescribed by law.

Other officers elected by the electors of the commonwealth at large shall be elected at general elections.

Officers not elected by the electors of the commonwealth at large shall be elected at municipal elections.

Special election days to fill unexpired terms may be prescribed by law.

Incompatible Offices.

Section 2. No person shall be a member of the general assembly or shall hold under the state government or under a municipality an office or place of trust or profit in respect of which he shall receive compensation, if he is a member of the congress or if he holds under the United States an office or place of trust or profit in respect of which he shall receive compensation.

No person who holds the office of governor or, except as expressly provided in this constitution, of lieutenant-governor shall hold under the state government or under a municipality another office of trust or profit.

No person who holds under the state government the office of judge learned in the law shall hold under a municipality an office or place of trust or profit in respect of which he shall receive compensation.

No member of the general assembly shall, during the term for which he has been elected, hold under the state government or under a municipality an appointive office or place of trust or profit.

The office of attorney-at-law and office in the militia shall not be deemed an office or place of trust or profit within the meaning of this section.

All judges elected by the electors of the state at large may be elected at either a general or municipal election, as circumstances may require. All elections for judges of the courts for the several judicial districts, and for county, city, ward, borough, and township officers, for regular terms of service, shall be held on the municipal election day * * *.—(Article VIII, section 3, amendment of November 4, 1913.)

* * * elections of state officers shall be held on a general election day and elections of local officers shall be held on a municipal election day, except when, in either case, special elections may be required to fill unexpired terms.—(Article XII, section 1, amendment of November 2, 1909.)

No member of congress from this state, or any person holding or exercising any office or appointment of trust or profit under the United States, shall at the same time hold or exercise any office in this state to which a salary, fees or perquisites shall be attached. The general assembly may by law declare what offices are incompatible.—(Article XI, section 2.)

No member of congress or person holding any office under the United States or this state shall exercise the office of governor or lieutenant-governor.—(Article IV, section 6.)

The justices of the supreme court, and the judges of the several courts of common pleas, and all other judges required to be learned in the law, * * * shall receive no other compensation * * * nor hold any other office of profit under the United States, this state or any other state.—(Article V, section 18.)

No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he shall have been elected, be appointed to any civil office under this commonwealth, and no member of congress or other person holding any office (except of attorney-at-law or in the militia) under the United States or this commonwealth shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office.—(Article II, section 6.)

Laws may be enacted declaring what other offices or places of trust or profit are incompatible with each other or with membership in the general assembly.	No person shall be qualified to serve as an election officer who shall hold, or shall within two months have held, any office, appointment or employment in or under the government of the United States or of this state, or of any city, or county, or of any municipal board, commission or trust in any city, save only justices of the peace and aldermen, notaries public and persons in the militia service of the state * * * *—(Article VIII, section 15.)
Disqualifications From Holding Office. Section 3. No person shall be a member of the general assembly or shall hold, under the state government or under a municipality, an office or place of trust or profit if he has - Been convicted of embezzlement of public money, of bribery, of attempted bribery, of perjury or other infamous crime, or of fraud in connection with an election while a candidate for office, or of wilful violation of an election law while a candidate for office; - Been convicted of having within five years, being a member of the general assembly or an officer of the state government, used the money of the state government for an unauthorized purpose or made a profit therefrom; - Been convicted upon impeachment; - Served as an election officer at the election at which such position of member of the general assembly or office or place of trust or profit was filled, except in the case of such municipal officers, other than county or city officers, as may be prescribed by law.	No person hereafter convicted of embezzlement of public moneys, bribery, perjury or other infamous crime shall be eligible to the general assembly or capable of holding any office of trust or profit in this commonwealth.—(Article II, section 7.) * * * any person convicted of either of the offenses aforesaid (i. e., bribery or corrupt solicitation) shall, as part of the punishment therefor, be disqualified from holding any office or position or honor, trust or profit in this commonwealth.—(Article III, section 32.) Any person who shall, while a candidate for office, be guilty of bribery, fraud or wilful violation of any election law, shall be forever disqualified from holding an office of trust or profit in this commonwealth; * * *—(Article VIII, section 9.) The making of profit out of the public moneys or using the same for any purpose not authorized by law by any officer of the state, or member or officer of the general assembly * * * but part of such punishment shall be disqualification to hold office for a period of not less than five years.—(Article IX, section 14.) * * * but judgment in such cases (cases of impeachment) shall not extend further than to removal from office and disqualification to hold any office of trust or profit under this commonwealth * * *—(Article VI, section 3.) * * * any person (i. e., a member of the general assembly, officers of the state government and county officers) refusing to take said oath or affirmation shall forfeit his office; and any person who shall be convicted of having sworn or affirmed falsely or of having violated said oath or affirmation (oath of office) shall be * * * forever disqualified from holding office of trust or profit within this commonwealth * * *—(Article VII, section 1.) * * * nor shall any election officer be eligible to any civil office to be filled at an election at which he shall serve, save only to such subordinate municipal or local offices, below the grade of city or county offices, as shall be designated by general law.—(Article VIII, section 15.)
Official Oath. Section 4. Members of the general assembly, officers of the state government and county officers shall before entering on the duties of their offices, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support, obey and defend the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the commonwealth, and that I will discharge the duties of my office with fidelity." The foregoing oath shall be administered by a person authorized to administer oaths. In the case of judges of the supreme court and of the superior court and of executive officers of the state government, the oath shall be filed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth. In the case of other judicial officers and to county officers, the oath shall be filed in the office of the prothonotary of the county in which it is taken. A person refusing to take such oath or affirmation shall forfeit his office. A person who shall be convicted of having sworn or affirmed falsely, or of having violated such oath or affirmation, shall be guilty of perjury, and shall be forever disqualified from holding any office of trust or profit in the commonwealth. The oath shall be administered to a member of the general assembly by a judge of the supreme court or of a court of common pleas, in the hall of the house to which the affiant has been elected.	Senators and representatives and all judicial, state and county officers shall, before entering on the duties of their respective offices, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support, obey and defend the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of this Commonwealth; and that I will discharge the duties of my office with fidelity; that I have not paid or contributed, or promised to pay or contribute, either directly or indirectly any money or other valuable thing to procure my nomination or election (or appointment), except for necessary and proper expenses expressly authorized by law; that I have not knowingly violated any election law of this commonwealth, or procured it to be done by others in my behalf; that I will not knowingly receive, directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing for the performance or nonperformance of any act or duty pertaining to my office, other than the compensation allowed by law." The foregoing oath shall be administered by some person authorized to administer oaths, and in the case of state officers and judges of the supreme court, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth, and in the case of other judicial and county officers, in the office of the prothonotary of the county in which the same is taken; any person refusing to take said oath or affirmation shall forfeit his office; and any person who shall be convicted of having sworn or affirmed falsely, or of having violated said oath or affirmation, shall be guilty of perjury,

Extension of Term and Change of Compensation. Section 5. The term of a public officer shall not be extended and his compensation shall not be increased or decreased after his election or appointment except that the compensation of a judge required to be learned in the law may be increased.	and be forever disqualified from holding any office of trust or profit within this commonwealth. The oath to the members of the senate and house of representatives shall be administered by one of the judges of the supreme court or of a court of common pleas learned in the law in the hall of the house to which the members shall be elected.—(Article VII, section 1.)
Impeachment. Section 6. All officers of the state government shall be liable to impeachment for a misdemeanor in office. The power of impeachment shall be vested in the house of representatives. An impeachment shall be tried by the senate after each senator has been put on special oath or affirmation. The person impeached can be convicted only with the consent of two-thirds of the senators present. Such conviction shall operate to remove from office the person convicted and to disqualify him from holding a public office or place of trust or profit, but shall extend no further. The person impeached, whether acquitted or convicted, may be liable to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment as prescribed by law.	No law shall extend the term of any public officer, or increase or diminish his salary or emoluments, after his election or appointment.—(Article III, section 13.) The house of representatives shall have the sole power of impeachment.—(Article VI, section 1.) All impeachments shall be tried by the senate; when sitting for that purpose the senators shall be upon oath or affirmation; no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.—(Article 6, section 2.)
Removal Otherwise Than by Impeachment. Section 7. An officer who shall be convicted of an infamous crime or of a crime the commission of which involves the violation of an obligation imposed on him as an officer, shall thereby forfeit his office and shall be otherwise punished as prescribed by law. Appointed officers, other than judges of courts of record, may be removed at the pleasure of the appointing power. Elected officers of the state government, except the governor, the lieutenant-governor, and judges of the courts of record, shall be removed by the governor for reasonable cause, after due notice and full hearing, on the address of two-thirds of the senate. Judges of courts of record, other than the judges of the supreme and superior courts, may be removed by the governor for reasonable cause, after due notice and full hearing on the address of two-thirds of each house of the general assembly.	The governor and all other civil officers shall be liable to impeachment for any misdemeanor in office, but judgment in such cases shall not extend further than to removal from office and disqualification to hold any office of trust or profit under this commonwealth; the person accused, whether convicted or acquitted, shall nevertheless be liable to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law.—(Article VI, section 3.) All judges required to be learned in the law except the judges of the supreme court * * * for any reasonable cause, which shall not be sufficient ground for impeachment, the governor may remove any of them on the address of two-thirds of each house of the general assembly.—(Article V, section 15.) All officers * * * shall be removed on conviction of misbehavior in office, or of any infamous crime. Appointed officers, other than judges of the courts of record and the superintendent of public instruction, may be removed at the pleasure of the power by which they shall have been appointed. All officers elected by the people, except governor, lieutenant-governor, members of the general assembly and judges of the courts of record learned in the law, shall be removed by the governor for reasonable cause, after due notice and full hearing, on the address of two-thirds of the senate.—(Article VI, section 4.)
Appointments and Promotions. Section 8. Appointments and promotions in the civil service of the state government and of municipalities shall be according to merit and fitness to be ascertained, so far as practicable, by competitive examination.	New.
Bribery. Section 9. A member of the general assembly, or an officer or employe of the state government or of a municipality, who shall receive or agree or offer to receive for himself or for another any money, office appointment, employment, testimonial, reward, thing of value or enjoyment, or of personal advantage or promise thereof to influence the performance of a public duty, or a person who shall give or promise or offer to give any money, or thing of value, testimonial, privilege, or personal advantage to a member of the general assembly or to an officer or employe of the state government or of a municipality, to influence him in the performance of a public duty shall be guilty of bribery, and shall be punished as prescribed by law. In a prosecution for bribery or attempted bribery, or in an investigation thereof, no witness except the accused shall be permitted to withhold his testimony on the ground that it may criminate him or subject him to infamy. Such testimony shall not afterwards be used against the witness in a judicial proceeding except in a prosecution for perjury in giving such testimony.	A member of the general assembly who shall solicit, demand, or receive, or consent to receive, directly or indirectly, for himself or for another, from any company, corporation, or person, any money, office, appointment, employment, testimonial, reward, thing of value or enjoyment, or of personal advantage, or promise thereof, for his vote or official influence, or for withholding the same, or with an understanding, expressed or implied, that his vote or official action shall be in any way influenced thereby, or who shall solicit or demand any such money or other advantage, matter or thing aforesaid for another, as the consideration of his vote or official influence, or for withholding the same, or shall give or withhold his vote or influence in consideration of the payment or promise of such money, advantage, matter or thing, to another, shall be held guilty of bribery within the meaning of this constitution, and shall incur the disabilities provided thereby for said offense, and such additional punishment as is or shall be provided by law.—(Article III, section 29.) ficer, or member of the general assembly, to influence him in the performance of any of his public or official duties, shall be guilty of bribery and be punished in such manner as shall be provided by law.—(Article III, section 30.)

The offense of corrupt solicitation of members of the general assembly or of public officers of the state or of any municipal division thereof, and any occupation or practice of solicitation of such members or officers to influence their official action, shall be defined by law and shall be punished by fine and imprisonment.—(Article III, section 31.)

Any person may be compelled to testify in any lawful investigation or judicial proceeding against any person who may be charged with having committed the offense of bribery or corrupt solicitation, or practices of solicitation, and shall not be permitted to withhold his testimony upon the ground that it may criminate himself or subject him to public infamy; but such testimony shall not afterwards be used against him in any judicial proceeding, except for perjury in giving such testimony, * * *—(Article III, section 32.)

ARTICLE VIII.

TAXATION AND FINANCE.

Method of Taxation.

Section 1. Taxes shall be levied and collected only as prescribed by general law. A tax shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects within the territorial limits of the taxing authority, except that an income or a decedent's estate below a minimum prescribed by law may be exempted from income and inheritance taxes.

Laws may be enacted providing for the levying and collecting of a special tax on anthracite coal when prepared for market. An appropriation not exceeding the amount of the proceeds of such tax may be made by law for the relief of persons, corporations, associations and municipalities injured or damaged by surface subsidence resulting from past or future mining of anthracite coal.

Exemption from Taxation.

Section 2. Laws may exempt from taxation only public property used for public purposes, places used for religious worship, places of burial not used or held for private profit, and institutions of purely public charity. Private property used for a part or all of the time for educational purposes shall only be exempted if the basic language of instruction is English and if the educational standards are as high as in the public institutions with which it is intended to compete.

Power to Tax not to be Surrendered.

Section 3. The power to tax shall not be surrendered or suspended by contract or grant.

Limitation on State Debt.

Section 4. A debt shall be created by the state government only to supply casual deficiencies of revenue not exceeding one million dollars, to repel invasion, to suppress insurrection, to defend the commonwealth in war, to pay existing debts, to improve and rebuild highways in the state and to acquire land in the state for forest purposes. A debt for highways shall not be incurred in excess of one hundred and fifty million dollars, or for forest purposes in excess of twenty-five million dollars. A debt for highway or forest purposes shall be created only with the consent of two-thirds of each house of the general assembly and with the consent of a majority of the electors of the commonwealth voting on the question; except that the adoption of this constitution by the electors shall be taken to authorize a law providing for the issuance of bonds for forest purposes not in excess of three million, one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars annually for eight years.

Law shall State Purpose of Loan.

Section 5. A law authorizing the borrowing of money by the state government shall specify the purposes of the

All taxes shall be uniform, upon the same class of subjects, within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax, and shall be levied and collected under the general law; * * *—(Article IX, section 1.)

* * * the general assembly may, by general laws, exempt from taxation public property used for public purposes, actual places of religious worship, places of burial not used or held for private or corporate profit, and institutions of purely public charity.—(Article IX, section 1.)

All laws exempting property from taxation, other than the property above enumerated, shall be void.—(Article IX, section 2.)

The power to tax corporations and corporate property shall not be surrendered or suspended by any contract or grant to which the state shall be a party.—(Article IX, section 3.)

No debt shall be created by or on behalf of the state, except to supply casual deficiencies of revenue, repel invasion, suppress insurrection, defend the state in war, or to pay existing debt; and the debt created to supply deficiencies in revenue shall never exceed in the aggregate, at any one time, one million dollars: Provided, however, That the general assembly, irrespective of any debt, may authorize the state to issue bonds to the amount of fifty millions of dollars for the purpose of improving and rebuilding the highways of the commonwealth.—(Article IX, section 4, amendment of November 5, 1918.)

All laws, authorizing the borrowing of money by and on behalf of the state, shall specify the purpose for which the Amortization of State Debt.

Section 6. The state government shall not incur a debt maturing more than fifty years thereafter.	To provide for the payment of the present state debt, and any additional debt contracted as aforesaid, the general assembly shall continue and maintain the sinking fund, sufficient to pay the accruing interest on such debt, and annually to reduce the principle thereof by a sum not less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; the said sinking fund shall consist of the proceeds of the sales of the public works or any part thereof, and of the income or proceeds of the sale of any stocks owned by the commonwealth, together with other funds and resources that may be designated by law, and shall be increased from time to time by assigning to it any part of the taxes or other revenues of the state not required for the ordinary and current expenses of government; and unless in case of war, invasion or insurrection, no part of the said sinking fund shall be used or applied otherwise than in the extinguishment of the public debt.—(Article IX, section 11.)
If serial bonds are issued for a debt, the aggregate amount of principal and interest payable in respect to the debt in any year shall not be less than the amount payable in any later year.	* * * and the monies of the sinking fund shall never be invested in or loaned upon the security of anything, except the bonds of the United States or of this state.—(Article IX, section 12.)
If serial bonds are not issued, the state government shall maintain by law a sinking fund sufficient to pay the accruing interest on such debt and annually to reduce the principal by a sum not less than three per centum of such principal. The money of the sinking fund shall be invested only in the bonds of the United States or of the state government.
State Credit Not to be Pledged.
Section 7. The state government shall not pledge or lend its credit to an individual, corporation or association and shall not become a stockholder or an owner in a corporation or association.	The credit of the commonwealth shall not be pledged or loaned to any individual, company, corporation or association, nor shall the commonwealth become a joint owner or stockholder in any company, association or corporation.—(Article IX, section 6.)
Municipal Debt Not to be Assumed by State.
Section 8. The state government shall not assume the debt of a municipality unless contracted to enable the commonwealth to repeal invasion, to suppress insurrection or to defend itself in war.	The commonwealth shall not assume the debt, or any part thereof, of any city, county, borough or township, unless such debt shall have been contracted to enable the state to repel invasion, suppress domestic insurrection, defend itself in time of war, or to assist the state in the discharge of any portion of its present indebtedness.—(Article IX, section 9.)
Reserve Funds.
Section 9. The money held as necessary reserve by the state government shall be limited by law to the amount required for current expenses and shall be secured and kept as prescribing by law. Monthly statements shall be published showing the amount of such money, where it is deposited, and how it is secured.	The moneys held as necessary reserve shall be limited by law to the amount required for current expenses, and shall be secured and kept as may be provided by law. Monthly statements shall be published showing the amount of such moneys, where the same are deposited, and how secured.—(Article IX, section 13.)
Paying Out Public Money.
Section 10. Money shall be paid out of the state treasury only on appropriations made by law and on warrant by the proper officer in pursuance thereof.	No money shall be paid out of the treasury, except upon appropriations made by law, and on warrant by the proper officer in pursuance thereof.—(Article III, section 16.)
Misuse of Public Moneys.
Section 11. An officer or an employe of the state government or of a municipality or a member of the general assembly who shall make or attempt to make a profit out of the money of the state government or of a municipality or shall use it for any authorized purpose, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished as prescribed by law.	The making of profit out of the public moneys or using the same for any purpose not authorized by law by any officer of the state, or member or officer of the general assembly, shall be a misdemeanor and shall be punished as may be provided by law * * *.—(Article IX, section 14.)
Corporate Powers.
Section 1. A corporation shall engage only in the business authorized by its charter.	No corporation shall engage in any business other than that expressly authorized in its charter, nor shall it take or hold any real estate except such as may be necessary and proper for its legitimate business.—(Article XVI, section 6.)
Stocks and Bonds.
Section 2. Subject to such regulations as to issue and sale as may be prescribed by law or by an agency established by law, shares of stock may be issued with or without par value. Shares of stock having par value shall be issued as full paid only for the equivalent of such par value in money, labor done or property received, except that a corporation may issue additional full paid shares as pre-	No corporation shall issue stocks or bonds except for money, labor done, or money or property actually received; and all fictitious increase of stock or indebtedness shall be void. The stock and indebtedness of corporations shall not be increased except in pursuance of general law, nor without the consent of the persons holding the larger amount in value of the stock, first obtained at a meeting to be held scribed by law or by an agency created by law for a consideration in money, labor or property equal to the current market value of its shares theretofore issued. Neither the stock nor the indebtedness of corporations shall be increased except in pursuance of general law or without the consent of the holders of the larger amount in value of the stock first obtained at a meeting to be held after thirty days' notice given in pursuance of law.	after sixty days' notice given in pursuance of law.—(Article XVI, section 7.)

Investment of Trust Funds. Section 3. No law shall authorize fiduciaries to invest in stock or securities issued by a corporation except in bonds approved by an agency created by law.	No act of the general assembly shall authorize the investment of trust funds by executors, administrators, guardians or other trustees, in the bonds or stock of any private corporation, and such acts now existing are avoided saving investments heretofore made.—(Article III, section 22.)
Bank Notes and Bills. Section 4. A note or bill issued for circulation by a banking corporation shall be registered and countersigned by an officer of the state government and its payment shall be secured by the deposit of security to the full amount thereof with the state treasurer. The method of registering countersigning and securing payment shall be prescribed by law.	Every banking law shall provide for the registry and countersigning, by an officer of the state, of all notes or bills designed for circulation, and that ample security to the full amount thereof shall be deposited with the auditor general for the redemption of such notes or bills.—(Article XVI, section 9.)
Cumulative Voting. Section 5. In elections for directors or managers of a corporation each member or voting stockholder may cast his votes for one candidate, or may distribute them among two or more candidates.	In all elections for directors or managers of a corporation each member or share holder may cast the whole number of his votes for one candidate, or distribute them upon two or more candidates, as he may prefer.—(Article XVI, section 4.)
Foreign Corporations. Section 6. A foreign corporation shall not do business in this state without having in the state a known place of business and without making the secretary of the commonwealth an agent of the corporation upon whom process may be served.	No foreign corporation shall do any business in this state without having one or more known places of business and an authorized agent or agents in the same upon whom process may be served.—(Article XVI, section 5.)
Commonwealth's Right of Eminent Domain and Police Power. Section 7. The exercise of the right of eminent domain shall not be abridged or so construed as to prevent the taking by law of the property and franchise of corporations and subjecting them to public use the same as the property of individuals. The exercise of the police power shall not be abridged or so construed as to permit corporations to conduct their business in such manner as to infringe the equal rights of individuals or the general well-being of the state.	The exercise of the right of eminent domain shall never be abridged or so construed as to prevent the general assembly from taking the property and franchise of incorporated companies, and subjecting them to public use, the same as the property of individuals; and the exercise of the police power of the state shall never be abridged or so construed as to permit corporations to conduct their business in such manner as to infringe the equal rights of individuals or the general well-being of the state.—(Article XVI, section 3.)
Corporate Obligations Owned by State. Section 8. Except as prescribed by law, an obligation of a corporation held or owned by the state government shall not be exchanged, transferred, remitted, postponed, diminished or discharged except by payment thereof into the state treasury.	No obligation or liability of any railroad or other corporation, held or owned by the commonwealth, shall ever be exchanged, transmitted, remitted, postponed or in any way diminished by the general assembly nor shall such liability or obligation be released, except by payment thereof into the state treasury.—(Article III, section 24.)
Statutes of Limitations. Section 9. No law shall discriminate between corporations and individuals with respect to the time in which suit may be brought against either.	* * * No act shall prescribe any limitations of time within which suits may be brought against corporations for injuries to persons or property, or for other causes, different from those fixed by general laws regulating actions against natural persons, and such acts now existing are avoided.—(Article III, section 1, amendment of November 2, 1915.)
Revocation and Alteration of Corporate Charters. Section 10. Laws may be enacted for the alteration, revocation, or annulment of corporate charters revocable when this constitution becomes effective or thereafter granted when such charters shall be deemed injurious to the citizens of the commonwealth, in such manner, however, that no injustice shall be done.	The general assembly shall have the power to alter, revoke or annul any charter of incorporation now existing and revocable at the adoption of this constitution, or any that may hereafter be created, whenever in their opinion it may be injurious to the citizens of this commonwealth, in such manner, however, that no injustice shall be done to the corporations. No law hereafter enacted shall create, renew or extend the charter of more than one corporation.—(Article XVI, section 10.)
Conditions Imposed on Benefits to Corporations. Section 11. No law shall remit the forfeiture of the charter of a corporation now existing, or amend the same,	The general assembly shall not remit the forfeiture of the charter of any corporation now existing, or alter or

or otherwise benefit such corporation, except upon condition that it shall thereafter hold its charter subject to the provisions of this constitution.	amend the same, or pass any other general or special law for the benefit of such corporation, except upon the condition that such corporation shall thereafter hold its charter subject to the provisions of this constitution.—(Article XVI, section 2.)
Banks and Trust Companies.
Section 12. Laws may be enacted to provide for the incorporation of banks and trust companies and to prescribe the powers thereof.	The general assembly shall have the power by general law to provide for the incorporation of banks and trust companies, and to prescribe the powers thereof.—(Article XVI, section 11.)
Definition of "Corporation".
Section 13. The term "corporation" as used in this constitution includes joint stock companies or associations having any of the powers or privileges of corporations not possessed by individuals or partnerships.	The term "corporations," as used in this article, shall be construed to include all joint stock companies or associations having any of the powers or privileges of corporations not possessed by individuals or partnerships.—(Article XVI, section 13.)

PUBLIC UTILITIES.

Regulation of Public Utilities.

Section 1. Public service and the business of those engaged therein may be regulated by law or by an agency created by law.

New.

Eminent Domain.

Section 2. A corporation, association, individual or municipality invested with the privilege of taking private property for public use shall make just compensation for property taken, injured or destroyed. The compensation shall be paid or secured before such taking injury or destruction. No law shall deprive a person of an appeal from a preliminary assessment of damages, and, on appeal, either party may have the damages assessed by a jury according to the course of the common law.

Municipal and other corporations and individuals invested with the privilege of taking private property for public use shall make just compensation for property taken, injured or destroyed by the construction or enlargement of their works, highways or improvements, which compensation shall be paid or secured before such taking, injury or destruction. The general assembly is hereby prohibited from depriving any person of an appeal from any preliminary assessment of damages against any such corporations or individuals made by viewers or otherwise; and the amount of such damages in all cases of appeal shall on the demand of either party be determined by a jury according to the course of the common law.—(Article XVI, section 8.)

Common Carriers, Telegraph and Telephone Lines.

Section 3. Railroads and canals shall be public highways and railroad and canal corporations shall be common carriers. Such corporations may construct and operate railroads and canals between any points within the state and may cross and connect with other railroads and canals within the state and at the state line. They shall receive, at connecting points, and shall transport, each other's passengers and freight without delay or discrimination. Railroad corporations shall receive at connecting points and transport each other's cars and canal corporations shall likewise receive and transport each other's vessels.

All railroads and canals shall be public highways, and all railroad and canal companies shall be common carriers. Any association or corporation organized for the purpose shall have the right to construct and operate a railroad between any points within the state, and to connect at the state line with railroads of other state. Every railroad company shall have the right with its road to intersect, connect with or cross any other railroad; and shall receive and transport each the other's passengers, tonnage and cars loaded or empty, without delay or discrimination.—(Article XVII, section 1.)

A corporation organized for the purpose shall have the right to construct lines of telegraph and telephone within the state. The owners or operators of telegraph or telephone lines may connect them with the telegraph and telephone lines of others. They shall receive at connecting points and shall transmit each other's messages.

Any association or corporation organized for the purpose, or any individual, shall have the right to construct and maintain lines of telegraph within this state, and to connect the same with other lines, and the general assembly shall, by general law of uniform operation, provide reasonable regulations to give full effect to this section. * *—(Article XVI, section 12.)

The rights and obligations set forth in this section shall be exercised only as prescribed by law or by an agency created by law.

Preferences and Rebates Prohibited. Section 6. No discrimination in charges or facilities for transportation shall be made between transportation corporations and individuals, or in favor of either, by abatement, drawback or otherwise, and no railroad or canal corporation, or any lessee, manager or employe thereof, shall make preferences in furnishing service.	No discrimination in charges or facilities for transportation shall be made between transportation companies and individuals, or in favor of either, by abatement, drawback or otherwise, and no railroad or canal company, or any lessee, manager or employe thereof, shall make any preferences in furnishing cars or motive power.—(Article XVII, section 7.)
Consolidation Permitted. Section 7. A public service corporation, when authorized by law or by an agency created by law, may consolidate with another public service corporation or may acquire its stock, property or franchises.	No railroad, canal or other corporation, or the lessees, purchasers or managers of any railroad or canal corporation, shall consolidate the stock, property or franchises of such corporation with, or lease, or purchase the works or franchises of, or in any way control any other railroad or canal corporation owning or having under its control a parallel or competing line; nor shall any officer of such railroad or canal corporation act as an officer of any other railroad or canal corporation owning or having the control of a parallel or competing line; and the question whether railroads or canals are parallel or competing lines shall, when demanded by the party complainant, be decided by a jury as in other civil issues.—(Article XVII, section 4.)
Powers of Common Carriers. Section 8. A corporation being a common carrier shall not transport over facilities which it owns or operates articles which it as directly or indirectly mined or manufactured for sale. It shall engage only in the business of a common carrier, except that if it uses electricity as a motive power, it, may, when authorized by an agency created by law, furnish electricity to others for light, heat or power. A mining or manufacturing corporation shall not be deemed a common carrier for the purposes of this section by reason of carrying its products on its railroad or canal not exceeding fifty miles in length.	No incorporated company doing the business of a common carrier shall, directly or indirectly, prosecute or engage in mining or manufacturing articles for transportation over its works; nor shall such company directly or indirectly engage in any other business than that of common carriers, or hold or acquire lands, freehold or leasehold, directly or indirectly, except such as shall be necessary for carrying on its business; but any mining or manufacturing company may carry the products of its mines and manufactories on its railroad or canal not exceeding fifty miles in length.—(Article XVII, section 5.)
Passes Prohibited. Section 9. A corporation being a common carrier shall not grant free passes or reduced rates to any person except to its own officers or employes.	No railroad; railway or other transportation company shall grant free passes, or passes at a discount, to any person except officers or employes of the company.—(Article XVII, section 8.)
Water Rights. Section 10. A right in waters shall not be granted by the state government or by a municipality for more than fifty years or without reasonable compensation. At the expiration of the first or of any subsequent grant, the state government or the municipality shall make a new grant to the holder of the right, or pay, or cause to be paid, compensation for all property necessary to the exercise of the right and upon such payment title to said property shall vest in the state government or municipality or corporation making the payment.	New.
Enforcement of This Article. Section 11. Laws shall be enacted to enforce the provisions of this article.	The general assembly shall enforce by appropriate legislation the provisions of this article.—(Article XVII, section 12.)

ARTICLE XI.

EDUCATION.

Educational System of the Commonwealth.

Section 1. Laws shall be enacted providing for the operation and maintenance of a public educational system for the commonwealth. This shall include public schools for the free elementary, secondary and vocational education of all children of the commonwealth, for the free mental and vocational education of persons under mental or physical disability, for the free education in American or mental infirmities, shall be subject to governmental inspection and supervisory control. The power to enforce the laws with respect to such institutions shall be vested in one or more departments of the state government or in such agencies as may be prescribed by law. Health. Section 5. The protection and promotion of the public health under modern social, economic and industrial conditions, is essential to the well-being of the commonwealth and is hereby declared to be a primary duty of government.	New.

ARTICLE XIII. MUNICIPALITIES.
Definition. Section 1. Municipalities shall be counties, cities, boroughs, townships, school districts, poor districts and other divisions of the commonwealth for the purpose of local government.	New.
Classification. Section 2. Municipalities may be classified upon the basis of conditions requiring special regulation. The classification of municipalities according to population shall not divide cities, counties or school districts into more than seven classes or other municipalities into more than five classes. A class must contain more municipalities than one except where the basis of classification is population or the coincidence of the boundaries of two or more municipalities. A law otherwise general shall not be local because applicable only to municipalities adopting it.	New.
Proportional Representation. Section 3. Proportional representation may be prescribed by law for the election of representative bodies in municipalities in which that method of election shall be approved by a majority of the electors voting on the question.	New.
New Counties. Section 4. A new county shall not be established if it would have less than three hundred square miles and fifty thousand inhabitants or if a line thereof would pass within ten miles of the boundary of the county seat of a county proposed to be divided or if its establishment would reduce another county below such area or population. A new county shall not be established without the consent of a majority of the electors resident within the proposed boundaries thereof voting on the question.	No new county shall be established which shall reduce any county to less than four hundred square miles, or to less than twenty thousand inhabitants; nor shall any county be formed of less area, or containing a less population; nor shall any line thereof pass within ten miles of the county seat of any county proposed to be divided.—(Article XIII, section 1.)
City Charters. Section 5. Laws may be enacted giving to cities or to cities of a particular class, authority to frame, adopt and amend charters for their organization and government.	New.
Creation and Change of Boundaries of Cities and Boundaries. Section 6. A city or borough shall not be established or its boundaries changed except with the consent of a majority of the electors resident within the proposed boundaries voting on the question and of a majority of the electors in the proposed added or excluded area voting on the question.	Cities may be chartered whenever a majority of the electors of any town or borough having a population of at least ten thousand shall vote at any general election in favor of the same.—(Article XV, section 1.)
Appointive Municipal Officers. Section 7. Appointive officers in counties, cities, boroughs and townships shall be appointed by an officer or agency of the municipality as prescribed by law, except as in this constitution otherwise provided.	New.
Accountability of Municipal Officers. Section 8. Laws shall be enacted providing for the strict accountability of municipal officers, as well for the	The general assembly shall provide by law for the strict accountability of all county, township and borough officers,

County Officers. Section 9. The officers of a county shall be three commissioners three auditors or a controller, a sheriff, a coroner, a prothonotary, a register of wills, a recorder of deeds, a treasurer, a surveyor, a clerk of the orphans' court, a clerk of the court of quarter sessions of the peace and of the court of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, a district attorney, and other officers prescribed by law. In a county co-extensive with a city or included therein, any constitutional county office may be abolished by law and its duties and powers may be transferred to a city officer or officers.	County officers shall consist of sheriffs, coroners, prothonotaries, registers of wills, recorders of deeds, commissioners, treasurers, surveyors, auditors, or controllers, clerks of the courts, district attorneys, and such others as may from time to time be established by law * * *.—(Article XIV, section 1.)
Election of Certain County Officers. Section 10. Except as in this constitution expressly provided, county officers shall be chosen by the electors of the county. Each shall hold office for four years from the first Monday of January succeeding his election or until his successor shall qualify. Vacancies shall be filled as prescribed by law. The sheriff and the treasurer shall not be eligible for the succeeding term.	County officers shall be elected at the municipal elections and shall hold their offices for the term of four years, beginning on the first Monday of January next after their election, and until their successors shall be duly qualified; all vacancies not otherwise provided for, shall be filled in such manner as may be provided by law.—(Article XIV, section 2, amendment of November 2, 1909.) * * * no sheriff or treasurer shall be eligible for the term next succeeding the one for which he may be elected.—(Article XIV, section 1.,
County Commissioners and County Auditors. Section 11. Three county commissioners shall be elected in each county in the year 1923, one to serve for two years and two to serve for four years. Every four years thereafter two commissioners shall be elected to serve for four years. In the years 1925 and every four years thereafter, one commissioner shall be elected to serve for four years. An elector shall vote for one candidate for commissioner except in the year 1923, when he shall vote for one candidate to serve for two years and for one candidate to serve for four years. A vacancy in the office of commissioner shall be filled by the governor by the appointment of an elector of the county who has voted for the commissioner whose place is to be filled. In a county having auditors, they shall be elected and vacancies in the office of auditor shall be filled as in the case of commissioners.	Three county commissioners and three county auditors shall be elected in each county where such officers are chosen, in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven and every fourth year thereafter; and in the election of said officers each qualified elector shall vote for no more than two persons, and the three persons having the highest number of votes shall be elected: any casual vacancy in the office of county commissioners or county auditor shall be filled, by the court of common pleas of the county in which such vacancy shall occur, by the appointment of an elector of the proper county who shall have voted for the commissioner or auditor whose place is to be filled.—(Article XIV, section 7, amendment of November 2, 1909.)
Philadelphia Prothonotary. Section 12. The prothonotary of the county of Philadelphia shall be appointed by the judges of the court of common pleas of the county. He shall hold office for three years but may be removed at the pleasure of the court. He shall appoint assistants only with the approval of the court. The salaries of the prothonotary and of his assistants shall be paid by the county.	For Philadelphia there shall be one prothonotary's office, and one prothonotary for all said courts, to be appointed by the judges of said courts, and to hold office for three years, subject to removal by a majority of the said judges; the said prothonotary shall appoint such assistants as may be necessary and authorized by said courts; and he and his assistants shall receive fixed salaries, to be determined by law and paid by said county; all fees collected in said office, except such as may be by law due to the commonwealth, shall be paid by the prothonotary in to the county treasury. Each court shall have its separate dockets, except the judgment docket, which shall contain the judgments and liens of all the said courts, as is or may be directed by law.—(Article V, section 7.)
Residence of County Officers. Section 13. An appointive county officer shall have been a citizen and resident of the county for one year before his appointment, if the county has been so long established, but if it has not been so long established, then within the limits of the county or counties out of which it has been taken.	No person shall be appointed to any office within any county who shall not have been a citizen and an inhabitant therein one year next before his appointment, if the county shall have been so long erected, but if it shall not have been so long erected, then within the limits of the county or counties out of which it shall have been taken.—(Article XIV, section 3.)
Certain County Officers to Keep Offices in County Seat. Section 14. The prothonotary, the clerk of the orphans' court, the clerk of the court of quarter sessions of the peace and of the court of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, the recorder of deeds, the register of wills, the surveyor, and the sheriff shall keep their offices in the county seat.	Prothonotaries, clerks of the courts, recorders of deeds, registers of wills, county surveyors and sheriffs, shall keep their offices in the county town of the county in which they respectively shall be officers.—(Article XIV, section 4.)
Compensation of County Officers. Section 15. County officers shall be paid only by salary for services performed for the state government or for	The compensation of county officers shall be regulated by law, and all county officers who are or may be salaried

In counties containing over one hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants all county officers shall be paid by salary, and the salary of such officer and his clerks, heretofore paid by fees, shall not exceed the aggregate amount of fees earned during his term and collected by or for him. —(Article XIV, section 5.)
Salaries and Expenses of County Officers in a County. Co-Extensive With a City.
Section 16. In a county co-extensive with a city or included therein, the county treasury and the city treasury shall be united in a single city treasury. The funds and obligations of the county shall be those of the city. The officers of the state government or of the county whose salaries or the expenses of whose offices or courts shall be paid in whole or in part by the city, shall at such times as may be required in the case of city offices submit to the chief executive of the city estimates of their needs. The city shall control the amount to be expended for such salaries and expenses except salaries prescribed by law and expenses of the courts of common pleas and of the orphans courts.	New.
Municipal Borrowing Capacity.
Section 17. A municipality may incur debt by borrowing money as prescribed by law if its aggregate debt for borrowed money would not then exceed the sum of:
(a) Ten per centum of the assessed value of the property therein taxable by or for the benefit of the municipality.
(b) An amount equal to that capital sum which, at the legal rate of interest and at such amortization charges as shall be prescribed by law would yield an amount equal to the net revenue derived by the municipality during the last preceding fiscal year from its public improvements.	The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as provided herein, and in section fifteen of this article, shall never exceed seven (7) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, but the debt of the city of Philadelphia may be increased in such amount that the total city debt of said city shall not exceed ten (10) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two (2) per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the consent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law. In ascertaining the borrowing capacity of the said city of Philadelphia, at any time, there shall be excluded from the calculation and deducted from such debt so much of the debt of said city as shall have been incurred, and the proceeds thereof invested, in any public improvements of any character which shall be yielding to the said city an annual current net revenue. The amount of such deduction shall be ascertained by capitalizing the annual net revenue from such improvement during the year immediately preceding the time of such ascertainment; and such capitalization shall be estimated by ascertaining the principal amount which would yield such annual, current net revenue, at the average rate of interest, and sinking fund charges payable upon the indebtedness incurred by said city for such purposes, up to the time of such ascertainment. The method of determining such amount, so as to be deducted, may be prescribed by the general assembly.
(c) The amount of debt secured by liens on public improvements and imposing no obligation on the municipality, if the net revenue derived from such improvements has not been taken into account under paragraph (b).	* * * (Article IX, section 8, amendment of November 4, 1918.)
(d) So much of any debt incurred within five years to acquire public improvements as shall be likely to be allowable under paragraph (b) within six years thereafter, if the net revenue derived from such improvements has not been taken into account under paragraph (b), and if such debt has not been taken into account under paragraph (c).
(e) The par value of the evidences of debt of the municipality owned by it and pledged toward the payment of the principal of its debt.
(f) The amount of cash and the market value of investments owned by the municipality and the amount of the collectible debts due or to fall due owned by the municipality, in so far as such assets are pledged toward the payment of the principal of its debt.
(g) Eighty per centum of the amount which it is estimated as prescribed by law that the municipality will receive within five years from assessments against property benefited by public improvements, if such amount is pledged toward the payment of the principal of its debt and if it has not been taken into account under paragraph (f).
An indebtedness incurred by a municipality in excess of three per centum of the assessed value of the taxable property therein shall be approved by a majority of the electors thereof at a public election held as prescribed by law.
The term "incur debt," as used in this section, shall include an incurrence of new indebtedness, an extension of the maturity of a debt, a deferment of the payment of a debt, a change in the form of a debt, and an assumption of a debt.
A debt shall be deemed to be incurred at the time the obligation to pay is entered into or the contract to extend, defer, change or assume an existing debt is made.	No obligations which have been heretofore issued, or which may hereafter be issued, by any county or municipality, other than Philadelphia, to provide for the construction or acquisition of water-works, subways, underground railways, or the appurtenances thereof, shall be considered as a debt of a municipality, within the meaning of section eight of article nine of the constitution of Pennsylvania or of this amendment, if the net revenue derived from said property for a period of five years, either before or after the acquisition thereof, or where the same is constructed by the county or municipality, after the completion thereof, shall have been sufficient to pay interest and sinking fund charges during said period upon said obligations, or if the said obligations shall be secured by liens upon the respective properties, and shall impose no municipal liability. * * *
	Any of the said municipalities or counties may incur indebtedness in excess of seven per centum, and not exceeding ten per centum, of the assessed valuation of the taxable property therein, if said increase of indebtedness shall have been assented to by three-fifths of the electors

Duration and Payment of Debts. Section 18. A municipality shall not incur a debt maturing more than fifty years thereafter. The aggregate amount of principal and interest payable in respect of a debt in any year shall not be less than the amount payable in any later year unless the sinking fund method of amortization is authorized by law. Such sinking fund shall be sufficient to pay the accruing interest on such debt and annually to reduce the principal by a sum not less than three pre centum of such principal. The money in such sinking fund shall be invested in the bonds of the United States, of the state government or of a municipality thereof. On or before incurring a debt by borrowing money, the municipality shall provide for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the principal and interest as they fall due.	voting at a public election, in such manner as shall be provided by law.—(Article IX, section 15, amendment of November 4, 1913.) Any county, township, school district or other municipality incurring any indebtedness shall, at or before the time of so doing, provide for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest and also the principal thereof within thirty years.—(Article IX, section 10.) Every city shall create a sinking fund, which shall be inviolably pledged for the payment of its funded debt.—Article XV, section 3.) * * * In incurring indebtedness for any purpose, the city of Philadelphia may issue its obligations maturing not later than fifty years from the date thereof, with provision for a sinking fund sufficient to retire said obligations at maturity, the payment to such sinking fund to be in equal or graded annual or other periodical installments. Where any indebtedness shall be or shall have been incurred by said city of Philadelphia for the purpose of the construction or improvement of public wrks of any character, from which income or revenue is to be derived by said city, or for the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of wharves or docks owned or to be owned by said city, such obligations may be in an amount sufficient to provide for, and may include the amount of, the interest and sinking fund charges accruing and which may accrue thereon throughout the period of construction, and until the expiration of one year after the completion of the work for which said indebtedness shall have been incurred; and said city shall not be required to levy a tax to pay said interest and sinking fund charges as required by section ten, article nine, of the constitution of Pennsylvania, until the expiration of said period of one year after the completion of said work.—(Article IX, section 8, amendment of November 5, 1918.) * * * Where municipalities or counties shall issue obligations to provide for the construction of property, as herein provided (i. e., water-works, subways, underground railways or street railways or appurtenances thereto), said municipalities or counties may also issue obligations to provide for the interest and sinking fund charges accruing thereon until said properties shall have been completed and in operation for a period of one year; and said municipalities and counties shall not be required to levy a tax to pay said interest and sinking fund charges, as required by section ten of article nine of the constitution of Pennsylvania, until after said properties shall have been operated by said municipalities during said period of one year.—(Article IX, section 15, amendment of November 4, 1913.)
Debts Other Than for Money Borrowed. Section 19. A municipality shall not incur a debt otherwise than by borrowing the money unless there has been an appropriation to pay the debt.	No debt shall be contracted or liability incurred by any municipal commission, except in pursuance of an appropriation previously made therfor by the municipal government.—(Article XV, section 2.)
Municipalities Not to Pledge Credit. Section 20. A municipality shall not pledge or lend its credit to a corporation, association or individual and shall not be a stockholder or owner in a corporation or association. Except to discharge municipal liabilities, it shall not appropriate money to assist a private business enterprise. The provisions of this section shall not be construed to apply to the lease by a municipality to a corporation of a public service facility for a rental dependent on the earnings of the lessee if the corporation covenants to operate the facility and an agency created by law to regulate public utilities approves the lease.	The general assembly shall not authorize any county, city, borough, township or incorporated district to become a stockholder in any company, association or corporation, or to obtain or appropriate money for, or to loan its credit to, any corporation, association, institution or individual.—(Article IX, section 7.)
Special Commissions Prohibited. Section 21. No law shall delegate to a special commission, corporation or association power to perform a municipal function or to make, supervise or interfere with a municipal improvement, or with municipal property or money, whether held in trust or otherwise.	The general assembly shall not delegate to any special commission, private corporation or association, any power to make, supervise or interfere with any municipal improvement, money, property or effects, whether held in trust or otherwise, or to levy taxes or perform any municipal function whatever.—(Article III, section 20.)

Extent of Land Permitted to be Taken for Public Improvements
Section 23. When the public purpose for which land is taken can best be attained by acquiring more land than the state government or the municipality proposes to retain, the state government or the municipality, subject to regulations prescribed by law, may take all the land which in its judgment is needed for the attainment of such purpose and may dispose of portions thereof, subject to restrictions protective of the public purpose.	New.
Zoning of Municipalities.
Section 24. Municipalities may be authorized by law to promote the general welfare by regulating the location, size and use of buildings. For the purpose of such regulations, a municipality may divide its territory into districts, to each of which special regulations may be applied.	New.
Contracts between Municipalities.
Section 25. A municipality may, as prescribed by law, contract with one or more municipalities for the joint acquisition, construction, maintenance, supervision or operation of public property, for the creation of agencies to effect any of such purposes, and for the creation of such agencies as may be mutually agreed upon for the good government of the municipalities. Such agencies shall not levy taxes or borrow money. Every such contract shall name arbitrators.	New.
Street Passenger Railways in Cities, Boroughs or Townships.
Section 26. A street passenger railway shall not be constructed in a city, borough or township except with the consent of the municipality.	No street passenger railway shall be constructed within the limits of any city, borough or township, without the consent of its local authorities.—(Article XVIII, section 9.)
The provisions of this section shall not be construed or permit a restriction on the power of the state government to regulate the operation of such a railway.
One Place of Paying Taxes in Cities and Boroughs.
Section 27. Laws shall be enacted to enable a taxpayer in each city or borough to pay all municipal taxes at one office.	New.

ARTICLE XIV.

AMENDMENT AND REVISION.

Constitutional Conventions.

Section 1. An amendment to this constitution may be proposed in the general assembly. If agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each house, it shall be entered on the journals with the names of the members voting for and of those voting against, and the secretary of the commonwealth shall cause it to be published once a week for four weeks immediately preceding the next general election in at least two newspapers in every county in which newspapers shall be published. If it shall be likewise agreed to by the next general assembly, the secretary of the commonwealth shall cause it to be published in the manner aforesaid for four weeks immediately preceding the first general or municipal election which shall first occur not less than three months after such agreement, and it shall be submitted at such election to the electors of the commonwealth in such manner as the general assembly shall prescribe. If it shall be approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon, it shall become a part of the constitution. When two or more amendments are submitted to the electors at the same time, they shall be voted upon separately.

Any amendment or amendments to this constitution may be proposed in the senate or house of representatives; and if the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each house, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be entered on their journals with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and the secretary of the commonwealth shall cause the same to be published three months before the next general election, in at least two newspapers in every county in which such newspapers shall be published; and if, in the amendment or amendments shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each house, the secretary of the commonwealth shall cause the same again to be published in the manner aforesaid; and such proposed amendment or amendments shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the state in such manner, and at such time at least three months after being so agreed to by the two houses, as the general assembly shall prescribe; and, if such amendment or amendments shall be approved by a majority of those voting thereon, such amendment or amendments shall become a part of the constitution; but no amendment or amendments shall be sub-

Amendments. Section 2. The general assembly may recommend to the electors of the commonwealth to vote for or against a convention for the framing of a new constitution or of amendments to this constitution or of a revision thereof. Such convention shall be held only with the approval of a majority of the electors voting on the question. It shall be composed of delegates chosen by the electors of the commonwealth. The new constitution, the amendments or the revised constitution proposed by the convention shall become effective only when ratified by a majority of the electors of the commonwealth voting thereon. The times and methods of such voting and election and the composition of the convention shall be determined by the general assembly with the consent of a majority of the members elected to each house.	mitted oftener than once in five years. When two or more amendments shall be submitted they shall be voted upon separately.—(Article XVIII, section 1.) New.

EXHIBIT C.

THE PROPOSED CONSTITUTION.

With a note to each section giving the text of the corresponding provisions of the present constitution and an explanation of any changes of substance and clarifying changes.

ARTICLE I.

DECLARATION OF RIGHTS.

Note.

The Commission recommend that the Declaration of Rights be adopted without change. The text will be found in Part II of the Report of the Commission.

ARTICLE II.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

PRELIMINARY NOTE.

Source: Article II.

Arrangement: The order of subjects is as follows:

- Vesting of legislative power—section 1.
- Senatorial and legislative districts—sections 2, 3, 4.
- Qualifications, election and term of members—sections 5, 6.
- Compensation and privileges of members—section 7, 8.
- Dates of sessions—section 9.
- Quorum and power of each house—sections 10, 11.
- Choice and compensation of officers—sections 12, 13.
- Keeping of Journals—section 14.
- Open sessions—section 15.
- Adjournment—section 16.

Legislative Power.

Section 1. The legislative power of the commonwealth shall be vested in a general assembly which shall consist of a senate and a house of representatives.

Note.

Source: Article II, section 1:

"The legislative power of this commonwealth shall be vested in a general assembly which shall consist of a senate and a house of representatives."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: "This" has been changed to "the" because throughout the constitution as proposed the expression "the commonwealth" is employed.

Legislative Apportionment.

Section 2. At the first session of the general assembly after this constitution becomes effective and at the first session of general assembly after each United States decennial census, the state shall be divided by law into senatorial and representative districts.

Note.

Source: Article II, section 18:

"The general assembly at its first session after the adoption of this constitution, and immediately after each United States decennial census, shall apportion the state into senatorial and representative districts agreeably to the provisions of the two next preceding sections."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Senatorial Districts.

Section 3. The state shall be divided into fifty senatorial districts of compact and contiguous territory as nearly equal in population as may be, and each district shall be entitled to elect one senator. The senatorial ratio shall be obtained by dividing the whole population of the state, as ascertained by the most recent United States decennial census, by the number fifty. A county containing one or more ratios of population shall be entitled to one senator for each ratio, and to an additional senator for an excess of population exceeding three-fifths of a ratio. No county shall form a separate district unless it shall contain four-fifths of a ratio, except where the adjoining counties are each entitled to one or more senators, when such county may be assigned a senator on less than four-fifths and exceeding one-half of a ratio. No county shall be divided unless entitled to two or more senators. No city or county shall be entitled to separate representation exceeding one-sixth of the whole number of senators. No ward, borough or township shall be divided in the formation of a district.

Note.

Source: Article II, section 16:

"The state shall be divided into fifty senatorial districts of compact and contiguous territory as nearly equal in population as may be, and each district shall be entitled to elect one senator. Each county containing one or more ratios of population shall be entitled to one senator for each ratio, and to an additional senator for a surplus of population exceeding three-fifths of a ratio, but no county shall form a separate district unless it shall contain four-fifths of a ratio, except where the adjoining counties are each entitled to one or more senators, when such county may be assigned a senator on less than four-fifths and exceeding one-half of a ratio; and no county shall be divided unless entitled to two or more senators. No city or county shall be entitled to separate representation exceeding one-sixth of the whole number of senators. No ward, borough or township shall be divided in the formation of a district. The senatorial ratio shall be ascertained by dividing the whole population of the state by the number fifty."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: The words "as ascertained by the most recent United States decennial census" have been added to avoid any possibility of dispute in regard to the number of persons in the state, and also to make the provision in regard to senatorial districts correspond to the provisions of section 4 of this article, relating to the division of the state into representative districts.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Representative Districts.

Section 4. The members of the house of representatives shall be apportioned among the several counties, on a ratio obtained by dividing the population of the state as ascertained by the most recent United States decennial census by the number two hundred. A county containing less than five ratios shall have one representative for each full ratio, and an additional representative when the excess exceeds half a ratio; but each county shall have at least one representative. A county containing five ratios or more shall have one representative for each full ratio. A city containing a population equal to a ratio shall elect separately its proportion of the representatives allotted to the county in which it is located. A city entitled to more than four representatives and a county having over one hundred thousand inhabitants shall be divided into districts of compact and contiguous territory. A district shall elect its proportion of representatives according to its population, but no district shall elect more than four representatives.

Note.

Source: Article II, section 17:

"The members of the house of representatives shall be apportioned among the several counties on a ratio obtained by dividing the population of the state as ascertained by the most recent United States census by two hundred. Every county containing less than five ratios shall have one representative for every full ratio, and an additional representative when the surplus exceeds half a ratio; but each county shall have at least one representative. Every county containing five ratios or more shall have one representative for every full ratio. Every city containing a population equal to a ratio shall elect separately its proportion of the representatives allotted to the county in which it is located. Every city entitled to more than four representatives, and every county having over one hundred thousand inhabitants shall be divided into districts of compact and contiguous territory, each district to elect its proportion of representatives according to its population, but no district shall elect more than four representatives.

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Qualifications of Members.

Section 5. A senator shall be at least twenty-five years of age and a representative shall be at least twenty-one years of age. Each shall have been a citizen of the commonwealth and a resident of the state for four years and a resident of his district for one year next before his election, unless absent on the public business of the United States, of the state government or of a municipality of the commonwealth. He shall reside in his district during his term of service.

Note.

Source: Article II, section 5:

"Senators shall be at least twenty-five years of age and representatives twenty-one years of age. They shall have been citizens and inhabitants of the state four years, and inhabitants of their respective districts one year next before their election (unless absent on the public business of the United States or of this state), and shall reside in their respective districts during their term of service."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Change: Under the present constitution it is not clear whether the absence on public business referred to in section 5 includes not only public business of the State government, but also public business of a municipality.

For instance, if a man had been for some years in Europe investigating highway conditions for the city of Pittsburgh would he be eligible to the general assembly? This proposed form answers this question in the affirmative.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Election and Terms of Members.

Section 6. Members of the general assembly shall be chosen at the general election. Their terms of service shall begin on the first day of December after their election. Senators shall serve for four years and representatives for two years. When a vacancy shall occur in either house, the presiding officer thereof shall issue a writ of election to fill such vacancy for the remainder of the term.

Note.

Source: (1) Article II, section 2:

"Members of the general assembly shall be chosen at the general election every second year. Their terms of service shall begin on the first day of December next after their election. Whenever a vacancy shall occur in either house, the presiding officer thereof shall issue a writ of election to fill such vacancy for the remainder of the term."

(2) Article II, section 3:

"Senators shall be elected for the term of four years and representatives for the term of two years."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The provisions of Article II, section 3 of the present constitution in regard to length of service have been incorporated in this section, so that all matter pertaining to terms shall be treated in one section.

Compensation of Members.

Section 7. The members of the general assembly shall receive salary and mileage for regular and special sessions as prescribed by law and no other compensation, whether for services upon committee or otherwise. No member of the general assembly shall, during the term for which he has been elected, receive an increase of salary or mileage allowance under a law enacted during such term.

No member of either house shall during the term for which he may have been elected, receive any increase of salary, or mileage, under any law passed during such term."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Privileges of Members.

Section 8. A member of the general assembly shall be privileged from arrest during attendance at the sessions thereof and in going to and returning from the same, except in cases of treason, felony, violation of his oath of office and breach or surety of the peace. For a speech or debate in the general assembly he shall not be questioned in any other place.

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Times of Sessions.

Section 9. The general assembly shall meet at twelve o'clock noon, on the first Tuesday of January in each odd-numbered year and at other times when convened by the governor. It shall hold no adjourned annual session.

Note.

Source: Article II, section 4:

"The general assembly shall meet at twelve o'clock, noon, on the first Tuesday of January every second year, and at other times when convened by the governor, but shall hold no adjourned annual session after the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight. In case of a vacancy in the office of United States senator from this commonwealth, in a recess between sessions, the governor shall convene the two houses, by proclamation on notice not exceeding sixty days, to fill the same."

Changes in Substance: The provisions of the 17th amendment of the constitution of the United States, providing for the election of the United States senators by the people have rendered obsolete the provisions in Article II, section 4, of the present constitution relating to convening the general assembly for the purpose of electing a United States senator and, therefore, they have been omitted.

Changes in Style: "Every second year" has been changed to "in each odd-numbered year" for the sake of exactness.

Quorums.

Section 10. In each house a majority of the members shall constitute a quorum. A smaller number may adjourn from day to day and compel the attendance of absent members.

Note.

Powers of Each House.

Section 11. Each house shall have power to make its rules of procedure, to judge of the election and qualification of its members, to punish for contempt or disorderly behavior in its presence, to enforce obedience to its processes, to protect its members against violence, offers of bribes or private solicitation, and by a vote of two-thirds of the members, to expel a member, but not a second time for the same cause, and shall have all other powers necessary for the legislature of a free commonwealth. A member expelled for corruption shall not thereafter be eligible to either house. Punishment for contempt or disorderly behavior shall not bar an indictment for the same offense.

Note.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Choice of Officers.

Section 12. The senate shall, at the beginning and at the close of each regular session and at other necessary times, elect one of its members as president pro tempore. The house of representatives shall elect one of its members as speaker. Each house shall choose its other officers.

Note.

"The senate shall, at the beginning and close of each regular session and at such other times as may be necessary, elect one of its members president pro tempore. * * * The house of representatives shall elect one of its members as speaker. Each house shall choose its other officers, * * *"

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The reference to the duties of the president pro tempore of the senate has been omitted because covered by Article IV, section 15 of this article.

(2) The provisions of the final clause have been transferred to section 11 of this article.

Officers and Employees.

Section 13. The officers and employees of each house shall have active duties and shall be elected and compensated in pursuance of laws prescribing their number, duties and compensation.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 10:

"The general assembly shall prescribe by law the number, duties and compensation of the officers and employees of each house, and no payment shall be made from the state treasury, or be in any way authorized, to any person, except to an acting officer or employe elected or appointed in pursuance of law."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: The language of the present constitution is ambiguous. Strictly interpreted, it would prevent paying money out of the state treasury to anyone except to officers and employes of the two houses of the general assembly. The Commission have re-worded the section on the assumption that it is intended to prevent two things: (a) the appointment of a particular person by special law to a position in either house; (b) the appointment of and payment of salaries to inactive officers or employes of either house.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Journals.

Section 14. Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and shall publish so much thereof as shall not require secrecy. At the request of two members, the yeas and nays on a question shall be entered on the journal.

Note.

Source: Article II, section 12:

"Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings and from time to time publish the same, except such parts as require secrecy, and the yeas and nays of the members on any question shall, at the desire of any two of them, be entered on the journal."

Sessions to be Open.

ARTICLE III.

LEGISLATION.

Preliminary Note.

Source: Article III.

Arrangement: The order of subjects is as follows:

Bills—sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7.

Form of laws—sections 8, 9, 10, 11.

Budget and appropriations—sections 12, 13, 14, 15, 16.
Governor's approval and veto of bills—sections 17, 18.
Time when laws shall take effect—section 19.
Laws prohibited—section 20.
Laws permitted—sections 21, 22.
Laws directed to be enacted—sections 23, 24.
Laws permitted at special sessions—section 25.
Referendum on law changing capital—section 26.

Method of Enacting Laws.

Section 1. Laws shall be enacted by bill only.

Note.

Source: Part of Article III, section 1:

"No law shall be passed except by bill, * * *."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The last part of Article III, section 1, of the present constitution, referring to alteration and amendment of bills, has been transferred to section 5 of this article.

The expression "laws shall be enacted" is employed throughout the constitution as proposed because it more accurately expresses the intended meaning. The general assembly passes a bill embodying a proposed law but the constitutional provisions in respect to the action of the governor on bills have to be fulfilled before a law is enacted.

Bills for Raising Revenue.

Section 2. Bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives. The senate may propose amendments.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 14:

"All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives, but the senate may propose amendments as in other bills."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Printing and Reference of Bills.

Section 3. Before consideration, a bill shall be referred to a committee, returned therefrom, and printed for the use of the members.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 2:

"No bill shall be considered unless referred to a committee, returned therefrom, and printed for the use of the members."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Members Interested in Bill Not to Vote.

Section 4. A member of the general assembly who has a private interest in a measure or bill shall disclose the fact to the house of which he is a member, and shall not vote thereon.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 33:

"A member who has a personal or private interest in any measure or bill proposed or pending before the general assembly shall disclose the fact to the house of which he is a member, and shall not vote thereon."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Change: The words "personal or" have been omitted because they do not help to express the plain meaning of the section. The distinction sought to be made is between public and private interests. A personal interest as, for instance, a personal interest in a particular hospital seeking an appropriation, is not objectionable, and it was not the intent of the section that a member should expose such a personal interest to the house of which he is a member.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Amendments and Conference Committee.

Section 5. An amendment to a bill shall be printed for the use of the members before the final vote is taken on the bill. An amendment by one house shall be concurred in by the other and a report of a committee of conference shall be adopted by either house only by the vote of a majority of the members taken by yeas and nays. The names of the members voting for and of those voting against such amendment or report shall be entered on the journal. A bill shall not be so altered or amended on its passage through either house as to change its original purpose.

Note.

Source: (1) Part of Article III, section 4:

"* * * all amendments made thereto shall be printed for the use of the members before the final vote is taken on the bill."

(2) Article III, section 5:

"No amendment to bills by one house shall be concurred in by the other, except by the vote of a majority of the members elected thereto, taken by yeas and nays, and the names of those voting for and against recorded upon the journal thereof; and reports of committees of conference shall be adopted in either house only by the vote of a majority of the members elected thereto, taken by yeas and nays, and the names of those voting recorded upon the journals."

(3) Part of Article III, section 1:

"* * * no bill shall be so altered or amended, on its passage through either house, as to change its original purpose."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Notice of Local or Special Bills.

Section 6. At least thirty days before the introduction of a local or special bill, notice of the intention to introduce the same shall be published in the locality where the matter or thing to be affected shall be situated. No such bill shall be finally acted on by either house until the evidence of such notice having been published has been exhibited therein. Notice shall not be required of the intention to introduce a general bill for the repeal of a local or special law.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 8:

"No local or special bill shall be passed unless notice of the intention to apply therefore shall have been published in the locality where the matter or the thing to be affected may be situated, which notice shall be at least thirty days prior to the introduction into the general assembly of such bill and in the manner to be provided by law; the evidence of such notice having been published shall be exhibited in the general assembly before such act shall be passed."

Changes in Substance: The provision that "Notice shall not be required of the intention to introduce a general bill for the repeal of a local or special law" is new. The Commission regard the requirement in the present constitution, that notice of the intention to introduce a bill for the repeal of a local or special law shall be published in the locality affected, as unnecessary, and as most burdensome when the general assembly is asked to adopt a general revision or compilation of the laws on a particular subject including the repeal of all prior enactments, whether local or general, relating to the subject.

Changes in Style: The section has been re-written so that the acts mentioned are stated in the order in which they are required to be done.

Final Passage of Bills.

Section 7. Before a bill shall be passed it shall be read at length on three different days in each house; on its final passage the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, the names of the members voting for and of those voting against shall be entered on the journals, and a majority of the members elected to each house shall be recorded thereon as voting in its favor.

Note.

Source: Part of Article III, section 4:

"Every bill shall be read at length on three different days in each house; * * * and no bill shall become a law, unless on its final passage the vote be taken by yeas and nays, the names of the persons voting for and against the same be entered on the journal, and a majority of the members elected to each house be recorded thereon as voting in its favor."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: The statement in the present constitution that "every bill shall be read at length on three different days" means that it must be so read before it can be passed. This is made clear in the proposed section.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Signing of Bills by Presiding Officers.

Section 8. The presiding officer of each house shall, in the presence of the house over which he presides, sign bills and joint resolutions passed by the general assembly, after their titles have been publicly read immediately before signing. The fact of signing shall be entered on the journal.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 9:

"The presiding officer of each house shall, in the presence of the house over which he presides, sign all bills and joint resolutions passed by the general assembly, after their titles have been publicly read immediately before signing; and the fact of signing shall be entered on the journal."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

One Subject in Each Law.

Section 9. A law shall contain only one subject. A general appropriation law, a codification, and a compilation or general revision of statutory law shall be deemed to contain only one subject.

Note.

Source: Part of Article III, section 3:

"No bill, except general appropriation bills, shall be passed containing more than one subject * * *."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Change: The provision that a codification, compilation or general revision shall be deemed to contain only one subject is inserted so as to clear the present uncertainty as to whether or not such laws contain more than one subject.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Titles of Laws.

Section 10. The subject of a law shall be clearly expressed in its title. A law may in the body thereof set forth a short title by which it may be cited. A law amending, reviving or extending a law shall set forth in its title the title or the short title of the law affected.

Note.

Source: Part of Article III, section 3:

"No bill * * * shall be passed containing more than one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in its title."

Changes in Substance: (1) The second sentence is inserted so as to give constitutional sanction to a common and convenient practice.

(2) The purpose of the provisions of the final sentence is to give notice to persons interested of the effect of law upon existing laws specially affected.

There is a distinction between an amendment and an extension of an act. The former merges into the act to which it is an amendment, while an extending statute does not merge, but is a separate and independent enactment. Judge Endlich, in his "Interpretation of Statutes," paragraph 196, lays down the rule that an amendment is so much an integral part of the original act and so complete is the merger that the repeal of the amendment does not revive, but carries down the portion of the original act amended, and vice versa, a repeal of such portion of the original act also repeals the amendment thereto. On the other hand, the Supreme Court in Wetling v. Kelley, 201 Pa. 12, decided that an amending act has no effect whatever on a prior act extending the provisions of the original act, nor has the repeal of such amending act any effect upon the extending statute.

Changes in Style: The section is practically new and has been written in accordance with the Commission's rules of style.

Form of Amending, Reviving or Extending Laws.

Section 11. A law amending, reviving or extending a law or conferring the provisions thereof shall set forth in full the part of the law affected, and an amending law shall also set forth in full the part of the law affected as amended.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 6:

"No law shall be revived, amended, or the provisions thereof extended or conferred, by reference to its title only, but so much thereof as is revived, amended, extended or conferred shall be re-enacted and published at length."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Budget and Appropriation Bills.

Section 12. The governor shall submit to the general assembly a budget on or before March 1 of each year in which it shall be in regular session. The budget shall contain a complete plan of proposed appropriations and complete estimates of the revenues and funds available for appropriation for the two ensuing fiscal years, including appropriations for charitable, educational and benevolent purposes. In submitting proposals for appropriations to charitable, educational or benevolent institutions not under the absolute control of the state government, the governor shall at the same time submit a plan of distribution among the classes of institutions to be benefited.

When the governor presents the budget to the house of representatives, he shall submit a general appropriation bill containing the proposed appropriations for the fiscal years covered by the budget and may also submit any bill embodying recommendations as to sources of revenue.

The presiding officer of the house of representatives shall immediately cause such bills to be introduced.

The general assembly may increase, decrease, strike out or otherwise alter any item in the general appropriation bill, or may add new items thereto.

Until the general appropriation law has been enacted neither house shall consider an appropriation bill other than the general appropriation bill unless the appropriation shall be solely for the immediate needs of the general assembly or unless the governor shall request the general assembly to act upon the bill in advance of the general appropriation bill.

After the general appropriation law has been enacted, no appropriation shall be made for any purpose, object or item included therein or in the general appropriation bill as submitted by the governor, unless the governor shall request the general assembly to pass a bill making such appropriation.

The general assembly shall not finally adjourn for ten days after the general appropriation bill has been presented to the governor.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter and takes the place of the provisions of Article III, section 15, in the present constitution:

The general appropriation bill shall embrace nothing but appropriations for the ordinary expenses of the executive, legislative and judicial departments of the commonwealth, interest on the public debt and for public schools: all other appropriations shall be made by separate bills, each embracing but one subject."

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has no budget system. At least forty-four of the states have such a system, either by statute or by constitutional requirements.

The Commission have embodied in the proposed section the following fundamental principles of a practical budget system:

(1) The governor is required to submit to the general assembly at each regular session a plan of proposed appropriations and an estimate of revenues.

(2) The governor is required at the same time to submit a general appropriation bill covering all proposed appropriations and not simply those for the ordinary expenses of government as provided by Article III, section 15, of the present constitution.

(3) The general assembly is required to consider this bill immediately and may alter it in any or every particular. Until a general appropriation law has been enacted, the general assembly cannot consider any appropriation bill other than the general appropriation bill unless for the needs of the general assembly or at the special request of the governor.

(4) After the general appropriation law has been enacted, the matter covered by it cannot again be considered except at the special request of the governor.

(5) The general assembly cannot adjourn for ten days after the general appropriation bill has been presented to the governor. This makes it impossible for the general assembly to lose its opportunity to pass the bill over the governor's veto. In other words, it provides that both the general assembly and the governor must take a full share of the responsibility for the appropriation laws.

Appropriations to Charitable and Educational Institutions.

Section 13. An appropriation for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes may be made to a class of corporations, associations or institutions not under the absolute control of the state government, engaged in work or service for the public good, as such classes may be defined by law. Such work or service shall conform to standards of excellence prescribed by law or by an agency created by law.

An appropriation to such a class shall be divided among its members in accordance with a plan uniform in its application to them, as prescribed by law. No law shall designate such a corporation, association or institution as the beneficiary of an appropriation.

Each item containing such an appropriation shall be voted on separately in each house before final action is taken upon the bill unless it shall receive the support of two-thirds of the members elected. The votes of each house shall be taken by yeas and nays and the names of the members voting for and of those voting against the item shall be entered on the journal.

Corporations, associations and institutions receiving such appropriations shall account therefor to the general assembly or to an agency prescribed by law and shall be subject to inspection by the state government.

After the establishment of one or more state universities, no appropriation for an educational purpose shall be made by the state government to a corporation, association or institution, or to a class of corporations, associations or institutions, not under the absolute control of the state government or of a municipality.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 17:

"No appropriation shall be made to any charitable or educational institution not under the absolute control of the commonwealth, other than normal schools established by law for the professional training of teachers for the public schools of the state, except by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house."

Changes in Substance: This is practically a new section.

Upon the question whether private charity should receive state aid at all, the Commission is divided, but a majority favor giving such aid.

The Commission is unanimously of the opinion that if such aid is to be given, it should be given in accordance with the system set forth in the proposed section. A survey of the commonwealth's charitable institutions and an impartial determination of their actual needs will place the whole matter of charitable appropriations upon a sounder basis than at present.

Under Article III, section 15, of the present constitution, charitable appropriations are required to be by separate bills. The Commission are unanimously of the opinion that this system is inefficient and therefore undesirable.

The special reference to normal schools in Article III, section 17, of the present constitution, has been omitted because all normal schools are now under the absolute control of the commonwealth.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Appropriations to Denominational Institutions.

Section 14. No appropriations shall be made for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes to any denominational or sectarian institution, corporation or association.

Note.

Source: Part of Article III, section 18:

"No appropriations, * * * shall be made for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes * * * to any denominational or sectarian institution, corporation or association."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The substance of the clauses in section 18 of the present constitution which refer to appropriations to persons or communities has been transferred to sections 15 and 16 of this article. The provisions in this section relating to appropriations to denominational and sectarian institutions are taken verbatim from the present constitution.

Certain Appropriations Permitted.

Section 15. Appropriations may be made for the payment of pensions and gratuities for military services; for the payment of pensions for the retirement of classes of officers and employees of the state government and school districts; for the relief of persons or municipalities injured or damaged by surface subsidence resulting from past or future mining of anthracite coal; for relief consequent upon grave public disasters or calamities; for the payment to funds under public control for the benefit of classes of persons who are to be the recipients of public assistance; and for the payment of the debts of municipalities contracted to enable the commonwealth to repel invasions, suppress domestic insurrection or defend itself in time of war.

Note.

Source: Part of Article III, section 18:

"No appropriations except for pensions for gratuities for military services shall be made for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes to any person or community * * *"

Changes in Substance: (1) Provision validating payment of pensions for the retirement of officers and employees of the state government and school districts. Article III, section 20, clause (o) would prevent an act giving a pension to a designated judge or other officer.

(2) Provision validating appropriations for the relief of persons or municipalities hereafter injured or damaged by the surface subsidence resulting from the past or future mining of anthracite coal.

Clarifying Changes: This section covers appropriations in the nature of gifts which would otherwise be held unconstitutional because of the provisions in the proposed section 16 (Article III, section 18, of the present constitution, as quoted above).

The final clause in regard to the debt of municipalities is inserted because of the provisions of Article VIII, section 8, as proposed (Article IX, section 9, of the present constitution), prohibiting the state government from assuming the debt of a municipality except to enable the commonwealth to repel invasion, to suppress insurrection or to defend itself in war. If the state government can assume the debt of a municipality under certain circumstances, it must also be able to appropriate money to pay the debt.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed in a language of the section.

Gratuities and Extra Compensation Forbidden.

Section 16. Except as in this constitution expressly provided, no appropriation shall be made by the state government for charitable, benevolent or educational purposes to any person or community, and no law shall authorize a gratuity by the state government, give extra compensation after services have been rendered or contract made, or appropriate money to pay a claim against the commonwealth without previous authority of law.

Note.

Source: (1) Article III, section 11:

"No bill shall be passed giving any extra compensation to any public officer, servant, employee, agent or contractor, after services shall have been rendered or contract made, nor providing for the payment of any claim against the commonwealth without previous authority of law."

(2) Part of Article III, section 18:

"No appropriations, except for pensions or gratuities for military services, shall be made for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes, to any person or community * * *"

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: The language of Article III, section 18, of the present constitution, is ambiguous. It is not clear whether it is intended to prevent all gifts to persons or communities or simply to prevent appropriations to persons or communities to be used by them for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes.

The proposed section is drawn so as to cover both of these contingencies.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Approval and Veto by Governor.

Section 17. Every order, resolution or vote to which the concurrence of both houses shall be necessary, except on the question of adjournment or of agreement to an amendment to this constitution shall, if passed by the general assembly, be presented to the governor. If he approves it, he shall sign it and it shall then become a law. If he shall not approve it, he shall return it with his objections to the house in which it originated, which house shall enter the objections at large upon its journal. If, after reconsideration, two-thirds of the members elected to that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent with the governor's objections to the other house and if approved by two-thirds of the members elected to that house shall become law. The votes of each house shall be taken by yeas and nays and the names of the members voting for and of those voting against the bill shall be entered on the journal.

If a bill shall not be returned by the governor within ten days after it has been presented to him, it shall become law unless the general assembly by its adjournment prevents its return. In case of such adjournment the bill shall become law unless within thirty days after adjournment the governor shall file it with his objections in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth and shall give notice thereof by public proclamation.

Note.

Source: (1) Article III, section 26:

"Every order, resolution or vote, to which the concurrence of both houses may be necessary, except on the question of adjournment, shall be presented to the governor and before it shall take effect be approved by him, or being disapproved, shall be repassed by two-thirds of both houses, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in case of a bill."

(2) Article IV, section 15:

"Every bill which shall have passed both houses shall be presented to the governor; if he approve it he shall sign it, but if he shall not approve it he shall return it with his objections to the house in which it shall have originated, which house shall enter the objections at large upon their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of all the members elected to that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent with the objections to the other house by which likewise it shall be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of all the members elected to that house it shall be a law; but in such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the members voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journals of each house, respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within ten days after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the general assembly, by their adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall be a law, unless he shall file the same with his objections, in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth, and give notice thereof by public proclamation within thirty days after such adjournment."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Approval and Veto of Appropriation Bills.

Section 18. The governor may indicate his approval or disapproval of an appropriation bill by signing or vetoing it as in the case of other bills. If he shall approve one or more items and shall disapprove or reduce one or more other items, he shall return the bill to the house in which it originated setting forth his reasons. The items which he approves shall become law. The items which he disapproves or reduces may be passed over his objections by separate action on each item in the manner prescribed for the passage of bills over his veto. Such items not passed over his objections shall, in accordance with his recommendation, be stricken from the bill or shall become law as reduced by him.

Note.

Source: Article IV, section 16:

"The governor shall have power to disapprove of any item or items of any bill, making appropriations of money, embracing distinct items, and the part or parts of the bill approved shall be the law, and the item or items of appropriation disapproved shall be void, unless repassed according to the rules and limitations prescribed for the passage of other bills over the executive veto."

Changes in Substance: In practice, under the present constitution, the governor pares down various items of appropriation after the adjournment of the general assembly. It will be noted that under section 12 of this article, as proposed, the general assembly cannot adjourn for ten days after the general appropriation bill has been submitted to the governor. This obliges the governor either to approve or to disapprove all items of such a bill before adjournment of the general assembly and in case of his approval of all or part of an item, requires the general assembly, in turn, to reconsider the matter and to decide whether or not to pass the item in spite of the governor's disapproval.

Clarifying Changes: It is made clear that the governor can cut down a single appropriation; that he can, for example, send back to the general assembly an appropriation bill carrying $100,000 to a class of hospitals with the statement that he approves it in the sum of $60,000. Under the present constitution, the governor's power to do this depends upon an opinion of the supreme court which gives to the word "item" the meaning of "any fraction of a lump sum." (Commonwealth v. Barnett, 199 Pa. 161.)

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

When Laws Shall Take Effect.

Section 19. A law shall become effective on the first day of January after its enactment unless otherwise provided therein.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. The Commission believe that in ordinary cases some time should elapse between the enactment of a law and the time when it becomes effective, so that the public will have an opportunity to learn its provisions and to accommodate themselves in advance to the changes contemplated.

Local and Special Laws Forbidden.

Section 20. No local or special law shall be enacted:

- (a) Regulating the affairs of a municipality;
- (b) Changing the names of persons or places;
- (c) For the creation or regulation of highways, ferries or bridges, except bridges across streams which form state boundaries;
- (d) Regulating burial grounds or public grounds not belonging to the commonwealth;
- (e) Granting divorces or authorizing the adoption or legitimization of children;
- (f) Regulating elections, except that laws regulating the registration of electors may be applied to cities or boroughs of a specified class only;
- (g) Regulating the organization, jurisdiction and powers of courts of the same class or grade, judicial process, or the administration of justice;
- (h) Regulating liens, the collection of debts or the effect of judicial sales of real estate;
- (i) Regulating schools;
- (j) Fixing the rate of interest;
- (k) Regulating the estates of decedents, minors or persons under disability;
- (l) Regulating labor, trade, mining or manufacturing;
- (m) Creating corporations, or amending, renewing or extending their charters;
- (n) Exempting property from taxation;
- (o) Granting a benefit, privilege or power;

No local or special law shall be indirectly enacted by the partial repeal of a general law. Laws repealing local or special laws may be enacted.

Note.

Source: (1) Article III, section 7:

"The general assembly shall not pass any local or special law:

- 1 Authorizing the creation, extension or impairing of liens;
- 2 Regulating the affairs of counties, cities, townships, wards, boroughs or school districts;
- 3 Changing the names of persons or places;
- 4 Changing the venue in civil or criminal cases;
- 5 Authorizing the laying out, opening, altering or maintaining, roads, highways, streets or alleys;
- 6 Relating to ferries or bridges, or incorporating ferry or bridge companies, except for the erection of bridges crossing streams which form boundaries between this and any other state;
- 7 Vacating roads, town plats, streets or alleys;
- 8 Relating to cemeteries, graveyards, or public grounds not of the state;
- 9 Authorizing the adoption or legitimation of children;
- 10 Locating or changing county seats, erecting new counties or changing county lines;
- 11 Incorporating cities, towns or villages, or changing their charters;
- 12 For the opening and conducting of elections, or fixing or changing the place of voting;
- 13 Granting divorces;
- 14 Erecting new townships or boroughs, changing township lines, borough limits or school districts;
- 15 Creating offices, or prescribing the powers and duties of officers in counties, cities, boroughs, townships, election or school districts;
- 16 Changing the law of descent or succession;
- 17 Regulating the practice or jurisdiction of, or changing the rules of evidence in, any judicial proceeding or inquiry before courts, aldermen, justices of the peace, sheriffs, commissioners, arbitrators, auditors, masters in chancery or other tribunals, or providing or changing methods for the collection of debts, or the enforcing of judgments, or prescribing the effect of judicial sales of real estate;
- 18 Regulating the fees, or extending the powers and duties of aldermen, justices of the peace, magistrates or constables;
- 19 Regulating the management of public schools, the building or repairing of school houses, and the raising of money for such purposes;
- 20 Fixing the rate of interest;
- 21 Affecting the estates of minors or persons under disability, except after due notice to all parties in interest, to be recited in the special enactment;
- 22 Remitting fines, penalties, and forfeitures, or refunding moneys legally paid into the treasury;
- 23 Exempting property from taxation;
- 24 Regulating labor, trade, mining or manufacturing;
- 25 Creating corporations, or amending, renewing or extending the charters thereof;
- 26 Granting to any corporation, association or individual any special or exclusive privilege or immunity, or to any corporation, association or individual the right to lay down a railroad track;
- 27 Nor shall the general assembly indirectly enact such special or local law by the partial repeal of a general law; but laws repealing local or special acts may be passed;
- 28 Nor shall any law be passed granting powers, or privileges in any case where the granting of such powers and privileges shall have been provided for by general law, nor where the courts have jurisdiction to grant the same or give the relief asked for."

(2) Article VIII, section 7:

"All laws regulating the holding of elections by the citizens or for the registration of electors shall be uniform throughout the state; but laws regulating and requiring the registration of electors may be enacted to apply to cities only, provided that such laws be uniform for cities of the same class."

(3) Part of Article V, section 26;

"All laws relating to courts shall be general and of uniform operation, and the organization, jurisdiction and powers of all courts of the same class or grade, so far as regulated by law, and the force and effect of the process and judgment of such courts, shall be uniform; * * *

Changes in Substance: (1) In clause (a) "a municipality" has been substituted for "counties, cities, townships, wards, boroughs or school districts." This makes the clause cover poor districts under the present organization of the state and cover also any other kind of municipality which may be created in the future.

(2) In clause (f) boroughs as well as cities are included. There would appear to be no valid reason why the exception should not apply to boroughs as well as to cities.

(3) Clause (1) takes the place of clause 20 in the present constitution, omitting the word "public" so that the section will apply also to private schools.

(4) The exception in clause 22 in the present constitution has been omitted.

Clarifying Changes: Clause 16, of the present constitution, "changing the law of descent or succession" refers, strictly speaking, only to devolution of property in cases of intestacy. The commission have assumed that it was intended to have a wider application and have therefore used in clause (k) the words "regulating the estates of decedents."

Changes in Style: The section has been very considerably shortened, without omitting any substantive provision. The following analysis will show to which of the new clauses the substance of each of the clauses of the present constitution has been transferred. (The numerals refer to the number of the clauses in the present constitution.)

1 to (h)

2 to (a). The provisions of clauses 10, 11, 14, 15, and 19 are also included in (a), since the phrase "affairs of a municipality" covers "whatever affects the interest or welfare of the inhabitants." (See opinions of the Supreme Court in Morrison v. Bachert, 112 Pa. 322; Frost v. Cherry, 122 Pa. 417; Sample v. Pittsburgh, 212 Pa. 533; Montgomery v. Commonwealth, 91 Pa. 125; In re Pottstown Borough, 117 Pa. 538.)

3 to (b)

4 to (g)

5 to (c). The words "laying out, opening, altering or maintaining" are included in the words "creation or regulation." The word "highways" has been used to cover the different kinds of highways named in the present constitution.

6 to (c). The words "relating to" have been included in the words "creation or regulation," which are more accurate. The clause "or incorporating ferry or bridge companies" has been omitted because included in clause (m).

7 to (c). "Vacating" is included in the word "regulation." Specific reference to town plats has been omitted because vacating a town plat must have the effect either of regulating highways or of regulating the affairs of a municipality. In one event the situation is covered by clause (c) and in the other event by clause (a).

8 to (d)

9 to (e)

10 to (a)

11 to (a)

12 to (f). The exception in (f) with respect to registration laws is taken from Article VIII, section 7, of the present constitution.

13 to (e)

14 to (a)

15 to (a) except that the reference to election districts is covered by (f).

16 to (k)

17 to (g). It will be noted that in the present clause the grammar is defective although the meaning is fairly clear. There is no such thing as "the practice of any judicial proceeding." The provisions of the first part of Article X, section 26, of the present constitution, are also included in (g).

18 to (h). "The collection of debts" includes "the enforcing of judgments."

19 to (g)

20 to (i)

21 to (j)

22 to (k)

- 23 to (o)
 24 to (o)
 25 to (l)
 26 to (m)
 27 to (o)
 28 to final unlettered paragraph.
 29 to section 26-D, of Article III.

The language of clause 27. was probably intended to apply only to special benefits, powers and privileges, such, for instance, as the granting of a divorce. If this is the correct interpretation of the provision of the present constitution, it is included in clause (o), as proposed, which forbids a special law "granting a benefit, privilege or power." If the language quoted from the present constitution means more than this, the exact meaning is not clear to us. If it is intended to express the idea that a general law cannot grant a benefit, privilege or power which the courts are empowered to grant, it simply repeats the principle expressed in Article V, section 1, that "the judicial power of the commonwealth is vested" in the courts and cannot therefore be exercised by the law-making authority. If it is intended to prevent administrative officers from exercising concurrent jurisdiction with the courts, it can apply only to matters relating to "the conduct of elections" (Article V, section 19, as proposed; Article V, section 21, of the present constitution), since all other powers of the courts are necessarily exclusive because either judicial or appointive.

Damages for Injuries.

Section 21. Laws may be enacted requiring the payment by employers, or by employers and employes jointly, of reasonable compensation for injuries to employes arising in the course of their employment and for occupational diseases of employes, whether or not such injuries or diseases result in death and regardless of fault of employer or employe, fixing the basis of ascertainment of such compensation and its maximum and minimum limits, and providing special or general remedies for the collection thereof. In no other case shall a limit be set by law upon the amount to be recovered for injuries to persons or property. In case of death from injuries, the right of action therefor shall survive and shall be exercised by persons as designated by law.

Note.

Source: Part of Article III, section 21:

"The general assembly may enact laws requiring the payment by employers, or employes and employes jointly, of reasonable compensation for injuries to employes arising in the course of their employment, and for occupational diseases of employes, whether or not such injuries or diseases result in death and regardless of fault of employer or employe, and fixing the basis of ascertainment of such compensation and the maximum and minimum limits thereof, and providing special or general remedies for the collection thereof but in no other cases shall the general assembly limit the amount to be recovered for injuries resulting in death, or for injuries to persons or property, and in case of death from such injuries, the right of action shall survive, and the general assembly shall prescribe for whose benefit such actions shall be prosecuted * * *" (Amendment of November 2, 1915.)

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The substance of the last sentence of Article III, section 21 of the present constitution, is transferred to Article IX, section 9-E, because in the constitution as proposed all provisions pertaining exclusively to corporations are placed under Article IX.

Land Titles.

Section 22. Laws may be enacted providing that the state government or the counties may register, transfer, insure or guarantee titles to lands, and providing for the determination of interests in such lands and for the creation of indemnity funds. For such purposes courts may be established and judicial powers may be conferred upon officers of the state government or of the counties, subject to the right of appeal by the parties interested to the courts.

Note.

Source: Amendment of November 2, 1915, which has no article or section number:

"Laws may be passed providing for a system of registering, transferring, insuring of and guaranteeing land titles by the state, or by the counties thereof, and for settling and determining adverse or other claims to and interest in lands the titles to which are so registered, transferred, insured and guaranteed; and for the creation and collection of indemnity funds; and for carrying the system and powers hereby provided for into effect by such existing courts as may be designated by the legislature, and by the establishment of such new courts as may be deemed necessary. In matters arising in and under the operation of such system, judicial powers, with right of appeal, may be conferred by the legislature upon county recorders and upon other officers by it designated. Such laws may provide for continuing the registering, transferring, insuring, and guaranteeing such titles after the first or original registration has been perfected by the court, and provision may be made for raising the necessary funds for expenses and salaries of officers, which shall be paid out of the treasury of the several counties."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The section has been considerably shortened by the elimination of unnecessary phrases.

Militia.

Section 23. Laws shall be enacted to provide for the arming, organization, maintenance and discipline of the citizens of the commonwealth for its defense. Persons having conscientious scruples against bearing arms may be exempted by law from military service.

Note.

Source: Article XI, section 1:

"The freemen of this commonwealth shall be armed, organized and disciplined for its defense when and in such manner as may be directed by law. The general assembly shall provide for maintaining the militia by appropriations from the treasury of the commonwealth, and may exempt from military service persons having conscientious scruples against bearing arms."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: In the constitution of 1874 this section for the first time appeared as a separate article, with one section. The Commission regard it as unnecessary to treat this subject in a separate article because it can be completely dealt with in one section and because, in its general nature, it is like other provisions in Article III. The word citizen is employed rather than freemen because all persons in this state are free.

The language has been changed in accordance with the Commission's rules of style.

Streams.

Section 24. Laws shall be enacted to provide for maintaining the purity of streams.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter, inserted so as to impose upon the law-making power a constitutional mandate to perform what the Commission consider a very important duty.

Legislation at Special Sessions.

Section 25. At a special session, there shall be no legislation upon subjects other than those designated in the proclamation of the governor calling such session.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 25:

"When the general assembly shall be convened in special session, there shall be no legislation upon subjects other than those designated in the proclamation of the governor calling such session."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Change of Capital.

Section 26. No law changing the location of the capital shall be valid unless ratified by a majority of the electors of the commonwealth voting on the question.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 28:

"No law changing the location of the capital of the state shall be valid until the same shall have been submitted to the qualified electors of the commonwealth at a general election and ratified and approved by them."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Change: It has been made clear that only a majority of the electors voting on the question, not a majority of all the electors who vote, must ratify the proposed law.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

ARTICLE IV.
THE EXECUTIVE.

Preliminary Note.

Source: Article IV.

Arrangement: The order of subjects is as follows:

Vesting of executive power—section 1.

Governor—sections 2 to 12, inclusive.

Lieutenant-Governor—section 13.

Vacancy in office of governor or of lieutenant-governor—sections 14, 15, 16.

Secretary of the commonwealth—section 17.

Secretary of internal affairs—section 18.

Auditor general and state treasurer—section 19.

State contracts—sections 20, 21.

Seal and commissions—section 22.

Executive Power.

Section 1. The executive power of the commonwealth shall be vested in a governor, a lieutenant-governor, a secretary of the commonwealth, an attorney general, an auditor general, a state treasurer, a secretary of internal affairs, a commissioner of education, and in other executive officers as prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: Article IV, section 1, which reads:

"The executive department of this commonwealth shall consist of a governor, lieutenant-governor, secretary of the commonwealth, attorney general, auditor general, state treasurer, secretary of internal affairs and a superintendent of public instruction."

Changes in Substance: The clause "other executive officers as prescribed by law" is new. It permits the creation of new executive departments co-ordinate with those specifically mentioned. The experience of the federal government shows that it is wise to allow for this kind of growth.

Changes in Style: (1) The section is made to conform to the first sections of the legislative and judicial articles by vesting the executive power of the commonwealth in certain officers, being all the executive officers named in the constitution, and in "other executive officers as prescribed by law." The present constitution states that the executive department consists of certain officers. This is inaccurate, because the executive department or branch of the state government consists of all of its officers.

(2) The title of superintendent of public instruction is changed to commissioner of education because a state council of education with a state commissioner of education as its chief executive officer is provided for in Article XI, section 2.

Qualifications of Governor.

Section 2. The governor shall be a citizen of the United States at least thirty years of age. He shall have been a resident of the state for seven years next preceding his election unless absent on the public business of the United States or of the state government.

Note.

Source: Article IV, section 5, which reads:

"No person shall be eligible to the office of governor or lieutenant-governor except a citizen of the United States, who shall have attained the age of thirty years, and have been seven years next preceding his election an inhabitant of the state, unless he shall have been absent on the public business of the United States or of this state."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Change: Under the present constitution it is not clear whether the absence on public business referred to in section 5 includes not only public business of the state government, but also public business of a municipality. For instance, if a man had been for some years in Europe investigating highway conditions for the city of Pittsburgh, would he be eligible to the governorship? The proposed form answers this question in the negative.

Changes in Style: (1) The lieutenant-governor is not mentioned because his qualifications are covered by section 13 of this article.

(2) "Inhabitant" is changed to the more common word "resident." The fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States makes all persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof "citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside." Since it is intended that the governor should be not only a citizen of the United States, but also a citizen of the commonwealth, he should be required to reside in the state, so as to conform to the language of the federal constitution.

Election of Governor.

Section 3. The governor shall be chosen by the electors of the commonwealth at the places where they shall vote for representatives. The returns of the election shall be sealed up and transmitted to the seat of government, directed to the president of the senate, who shall open and publish them in the presence of the members of both houses of the general assembly. The person having the highest number of votes shall be governor. If two or more shall have the same and the highest number of votes, one of them shall be chosen governor by the joint vote of the members of both houses.

Note.

Source: Part of Article IV, section 2, which reads:

"* * * he shall be chosen on the day of the general election, by the qualified electors of the commonwealth, at the places where they shall vote for representatives. The returns of every election for governor shall be sealed up and transmitted to the seat of government, directed to the president of the senate, who shall open and publish them in the presence of the members of both houses of the general assembly. The person having the highest number of votes shall be governor, but if two or more be equal and highest in votes, one of them shall be chosen governor by the joint vote of the members of both houses. * * *"

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: (1) The reference to the general elections is omitted because covered by Article VIII, section 1, of the constitution as proposed.

Contested Election of Governor.

Section 4. A contested election of a governor shall be determined by a committee selected from both houses of the general assembly and formed and regulated as prescribed by law.

The chief justice of the supreme court shall preside at the trial of such a contested election. He shall determine questions regarding the admissibility of evidence and shall, upon request of the committee, pronounce his opinion upon other questions of law.

Note.

Source: (1) Part of Article IV, section 2, as follows:

"* * * Contested elections (governor and lieutenant-governor) shall be determined by a committee, to be selected from both houses of the general assembly, and formed and regulated in such manner as shall be directed by law."

(2) Part of Article IV, section 17, which reads:

"The chief justice of the supreme court shall preside upon the trial of any contested election of governor or lieutenant-governor, and shall decide questions regarding the admissibility of evidence, and shall, upon request of the committee, pronounce his opinion upon other questions of law involved in the trial * * *."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: (1) The reference to the lieutenant-governor in Article IV, section 2 of the present constitution is omitted because covered by section 13.

(2) The last sentence of Article IV, section 17, of the present constitution, is transferred to Article IV, section 5, of the constitution as proposed, thus leaving this section to deal only with contested elections.

Term of Governor.

Section 5. The governor shall hold office for four years from the third Tuesday of January succeeding his election or until his successor shall qualify. A person elected governor shall not be eligible for the succeeding term.

Note.

Source: (1) Article IV, section 3, which reads:

"The governor shall hold his office during four years from the third Tuesday of January next ensuing his election, and not be eligible to the office for the next succeeding term."

(2) Part of Article IV, section 17, as follows:

"* * * The governor and lieutenant-governor shall exercise the duties of their respective offices until their successors shall be duly qualified."

Clarifying Changes: In the second sentence the words "A person elected governor" are used so as to make it clear that a lieutenant-governor who has discharged the duties of governor because of the governor's death or disability may nevertheless be elected governor at the next gubernatorial election.

Changes in style: The reference to the lieutenant-governor, in Article IV, section 17, of the present constitution, is omitted because covered by section 13.

Supreme Executive Power.

Section 6. The supreme executive power shall be vested in the governor, who shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

Note.

Source: The first clause of Article IV, section 2:

"The supreme executive power shall be vested in the governor, who shall take care that the law be faithfully executed; * * *"

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The wording of the present constitution is copied verbatim.

Military Power.

Section 7. The governor shall be the commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the commonwealth, and of the militia, except when they shall be called into the service of the United States.

Note.

Source: Article IV, section 7, which reads:

"The governor shall be commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the commonwealth, and of the militia, except when they shall be called into the actual service of the United States."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The word "actual" is omitted because it adds nothing to the meaning.

Appointing Power.

Section 8. The governor shall appoint a secretary of the commonwealth, an attorney general, a secretary of internal affairs and a commissioner of education, to serve during his pleasure and other officers as prescribed by law.

When the senate is in regular session, the governor shall exercise the power to appoint an officer only after nomination to the senate and by and with the advice and consent of a majority of its members, except where he shall appoint to fill a vacancy occurring within ten days before final adjournment of the session.

The governor may fill by appointment a vacancy in an office to which he may appoint. If he shall appoint to an appointive office during a recess of the senate or to fill a vacancy occurring within ten days before the final adjournment of a regular session thereof, such appointment shall be valid until the end of the next regular session of the senate, and the person so appointed shall be deemed to have been rejected by the senate at such session unless nominated by the governor and confirmed by the senate.

The governor may fill by appointment a vacancy in the office of auditor general or of state treasurer and in any other elective office which he may be authorized to fill. Such vacancy shall be filled by election on the next election day appropriate to the office which shall fall not less than sixty days after the occurrence of the vacancy. Such appointee shall serve until the person so elected shall take office as prescribed by law.

If a power of appointment to an appointive or elective office shall arise during a session of the senate and not within ten days before final adjournment, the governor shall at such session, nominate a proper person for the office. If a power of appointment to an appointive office shall arise within ten days before final adjournment of a session of the senate or during a recess of the senate, he shall, at the next session of the senate nominate a proper person for the office. In either case, if the senate shall reject a nomination and shall notify the governor that it will not adjourn within ten days, he shall nominate another person for the office. If he shall fail to nominate as herein required, he may not appoint to the office except after nomination to the senate and by and with the advice and consent of a majority of its members.

If the nomination of a person to an office shall be rejected by the senate he shall not be appointed to such office before the next session of the senate.

In acting on executive nominations, the senate shall sit with open doors. The vote shall be taken by yeas and nays and shall be entered on the journal.

Note.

Source: (1) Article IV, section 8, which reads:

"He shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of all the members of the senate, appoint a secretary of the commonwealth and an attorney general during pleasure, a superintendent of public instruction for four years, and such other officers of the commonwealth as he is or may be authorized by the constitution or by law to appoint; he shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen, in offices to which he may appoint, during the recess of the senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session; he shall have power to fill any vacancy that may happen, during the recess of the senate, in the office of auditor general, state treasurer, secretary of internal affairs or superintendent of public instruction, in a judicial office, or in any other elective office which he is or may be authorized to fill; if the vacancy shall happen during the session of the senate, the governor shall nominate to the senate, before their final adjournment, a proper person to fill said vacancy; but in any such case of vacancy, in an elective office, a person shall be chosen to said office on the next election day appropriate to such office according to the provisions of this constitution, unless the vacancy shall happen within two calendar months immediately preceding such election day, in which case the election for said office shall be held on the second succeeding election day appropriate to such office. In acting on executive nominations the senate shall sit with open doors, and in confirming or rejecting the nominations of the governor, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays and shall be entered on the journal." (Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

(2) Article V, section 25, which reads:

"Any vacancy happening by death, resignation or otherwise in any court of record, shall be filled by appointment by the governor, to continue till the first Monday of January next succeeding the first general election, which shall occur three or more months after the happening of such vacancy."

Changes in Substance: (1) The secretary of internal affairs is to be appointed by the governor, and not elected as at present. His election is by inference a constitutional mandate, since in Article IV, section 8, of the present constitution, above quoted, he is placed in a list ending with the words "or in any other elective office." The Commission believe that he should be appointed because he is simply a subordinate executive officer having the same relation to the governor as the attorney general or the secretary of the commonwealth. The state treasurer and auditor general are in a very different position because of their financial responsibilities.

(2) A majority of the members of the senate is required to consent to appointments, instead of two-thirds, as heretofore. The Commission believe that to require consent of two-thirds is to increase the probability of deadlocks and that the majority rule, as established by Article II, section 2, of the constitution of the United States, is better.

(3) New provisions have been introduced so as to carry into effect the principle that the governor should, so far as possible, obtain the consent of the senate to all appointments. The operation of these provisions can best be explained by the following illustrations:

(a) The secretary of the commonwealth dies while the senate is in recess. The governor immediately appoints A to fill the vacancy. During its next session the senate refuses to consent to the appointment of A.

Under the present constitution the governor can wait until the end of the session and can then reappoint A for two more years. Under the proposed new section (lines 40 to 42) the governor could not appoint a person who had been so rejected.

(b) A vacancy is filled as in (a). During the next session of the senate the governor fails to send in any nomination for the office.

Under the present constitution he can wait until the end of the session and can then reappoint A or appoint B. Under the proposed new section he would lose his power of appointment by the provisions of lines 36 to 39.

(c) A vacancy is filled as in (a). During the next session of the senate the governor sends several nominations to the senate, but does not nominate A. All the nominations are rejected.

Under the present constitution, the governor can wait until the end of the session and can then reappoint A. Under the proposed new section he could not do this, because by lines 40 to 42, A would be in the position of a rejected nominee.

(d) Under the present constitution, if the secretary of the commonwealth dies just before the senate convenes, it is doubtful whether the governor can wait until after the senate convenes and then appoint a successor without the senate's consent. Probably he cannot.

In the proposed section it is made clear that the governor must try to obtain the consent of the senate if the appointment is made or the vacancy occurs during a session of the senate and that in either case he cannot after adjournment appoint a person rejected by the senate.

(4) In paragraph 4, line 23, "two calendar months" has been changed to "sixty days."

(5) In paragraph 4, the provision in the present constitution, Article V, section 25, that the appointee of the governor to a judicial vacancy shall hold office until the first Monday in January next preceding the first general election has been changed for the sake of uniformity with the provisions relating to other appointees of the governor, to the provision that such appointee shall serve until the person elected to the vacancy shall take office as prescribed by law.

(6) It is provided (lines 20 to 24) that judicial vacancies ("any other elective office which he may be authorized to fill") shall be filled by election on the next appropriate election day falling not less than sixty days after the occurrence of the vacancy. The time limit set by the present constitution (Article IX, section 25) is three months. The change is in the interest of uniformity and to avoid the conflict now existing between Article IV, section 8, and Article V, section 25, of the present constitution.

(7) In the present constitution there is no express statement as to the duration of an appointment to an elective office. In the proposed new section it is provided (lines 24 and 25) that such an appointment shall be valid until the person elected to fill the vacancy shall take office.

Changes in Style: The provisions of the section have been arranged as follows:

- (a) Duty to appoint constitutional officers.
- (b) Duty to obtain consent of senate if in session.
- (c) Vacancies in appointive offices.
- (d) Vacancies in appointive offices.
- (e) Duty to obtain consent of senate in all cases so far as possible.
- (f) Disqualification of a rejected nominee.
- (g) Procedure of senate.

Pardoning Power.

Section 9. The governor may remit fines and forfeitures, and may grant reprieves, commutations of sentence and pardons, except in cases of impeachment. He shall commute a sentence or grant a pardon only on the recommendation in writing of the lieutenant-governor, the secretary of the commonwealth, the attorney general and the secretary of internal affairs, or for any three of them, after full hearing, upon due public notice and in open session. Such recommendation, with the reasons therefor at length, shall be recorded and filed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth.

Source: Article IV, section 9, which reads:

"He shall have power to remit fines and forfeitures, to grant reprieves, commutations of sentence and pardons, except in cases of impeachment; but no pardon shall be granted, nor sentence commuted, except upon the recommendation in writing of the lieutenant-governor, secretary of the commonwealth, attorney general and secretary of internal affairs, or any three of them, after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session, and such recommendation, with the reasons therefor at length, shall be recorded and filed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Power to Require Information.

Section 10. The governor may require information in writing from the executive officers of the state government with respect to their duties.

Note.

Source: Article IV, section 10, which reads:

"He may require information in writing from the officers of the executive department, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: "Executive officers of the state government" has been used because the word "department" has been employed to mean a principal sub-division of the executive branch of the government.

Duty to Inform General Assembly.

Section 11. The governor shall, from time to time, give to the general assembly information of the state of the commonwealth, and shall recommend to its consideration in such measures as he may judge expedient.

Note.

Source: Article IV, section 11, which reads:

"He shall, from time to time, give to the general assembly information of the state of the commonwealth, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he may judge expedient."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Power to Adjourn or Convene General Assembly.

Section 12. The governor in case of disagreement between the two houses of the general assembly with respect to the time of adjournment, may adjourn them to such time as he may think proper not exceeding four months. He may on extraordinary occasions convene, by proclamation, the general assembly and he may convene, by proclamation, the senate for the transaction of executive business.

Note.

Source: Article IV, section 12, which reads:

"He may, on extraordinary occasions, convene the general assembly, and in case of disagreement between the two houses with respect to the time of adjournment, adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper, not exceeding four months. He shall have power to convene the senate in extraordinary occasions by proclamation for the transaction of executive business."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: The language of the present constitution suggests that the governor can only adjourn the general assembly if the two houses fail to agree upon the time of adjourning a special session. The principle that the governor's power extends to regular as well as special sessions is made clear in the section as proposed.

Changes in Style: The commission's rules of style have been followed.

Lieutenant-Governor.

Section 13. The lieutenant-governor shall have the same qualifications and shall be chosen at the same time, in the same manner, and for the same term as the governor. He shall not be eligible to the office of lieutenant-governor for the succeeding term. A contested election of lieutenant-governor shall be conducted in the same manner as a contested election of governor. The lieutenant-governor shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote unless the senate be equally divided.

Source: (1) Article IV, section 4:

"A lieutenant-governor shall be chosen at the same time, in the same manner, for the same term, and subject to the same provisions as the governor; he shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided."

(2) Article IV, section 17, relative to contested elections, which has been transferred to Article IV, section 4 as proposed, omitting reference to the lieutenant-governor, has, in the section here proposed been expressly applied to the lieutenant-governor.

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The requirement of Article IV, section 4, of the present constitution, that the lieutenant governor shall be "subject to the same provisions as the governor" refers only to his ineligibility to re-election and to the method of determining a contested election. Both have been expressly covered by the proposed new section and the indefinite phrase, "subject to the same provisions," has been dropped.

Succession to Governorship.

Section 14. If the office of governor shall be vacant the lieutenant-governor shall become governor. If the governor shall fail to qualify or shall be under a disability, the powers, duties and emoluments of his office until the end of the governor's term or until he shall qualify or his disability shall be removed shall devolve on the lieutenant-governor, or, if his office shall be vacant or he shall be under a disability, then the president pro tempore of the senate, or if his office shall be vacant or he shall be under a disability, then on a person elected by a majority of the members of the general assembly. For the purpose of such election, the general assembly may convene in special session without a proclamation of the governor upon a call signed by five members of each house.

Note.

Source: (1) Article IV, section 13:

"In case of the death, conviction on impeachment, failure to qualify, resignation, or other disability of the governor, the powers, duties and emoluments of the office, for the remainder of the term, or until the disability be removed, shall devolve upon the lieutenant-governor."

(2) Part of Article IV, section 14:

"In case of a vacancy in the office of lieutenant-governor, or when the lieutenant-governor shall be impeached by the house of representatives or shall be unable to exercise the duties of his office, the powers, duties and emoluments thereof for the remainder of the term or until the disability be removed shall devolve upon the president pro tempore of the senate, and the president pro tempore of the senate shall in like manner become governor if a vacancy or disability shall occur in the office of governor: * * *"

Changes in Substance: The section as proposed provides a method of filling a vacancy in the office of governor or of providing for the governor's disability, in case there is a vacancy in the office of the governor or the governor is under a disability and at the same time there exists a vacancy in the office of lieutenant-governor or the lieutenant-governor is under a disability, and also, there is a vacancy in the office of president pro tempore or he is under a disability.

Clarifying Changes: The section as proposed makes it clear that if the office of governor becomes vacant, the lieutenant-governor or the president pro tempore of the senate, becomes governor and not merely acting governor; while, if the governor fails to qualify or is under a disability the lieutenant-governor or the president pro tempore of the senate, does not become governor but merely exercises the power of governor until the disability is removed or the governor's term expires.

Changes in Style: Instead of enumerating the causes of a vacancy, they have all been expressed in the clause, "if the office of the governor shall be vacant."

Succession in Lieutenant-Governorship.

Section 15. If the office of lieutenant-governor shall be vacant or he shall fail to qualify or shall be absent or under a disability, the powers, duties and emoluments of his office shall devolve on the president pro tempore of the senate, until the end of his term or until he shall qualify or return or his disability shall be removed. In such event the seat in the senate of the president pro tempore of the senate shall become vacant.

Note.

Source: Article IV, section 14:

"In case of a vacancy in the office of lieutenant-governor, or when the lieutenant-governor shall be impeached by the house of representatives, or shall be unable to exercise the duties of his office the powers, duties and emoluments thereof for the remainder of the term, or until the disability be removed, shall devolve upon the president pro tempore of the senate; and the president pro tempore of the senate shall in like manner become governor if a vacancy or disability shall occur in the office of governor his seat as senator shall become vacant whenever he shall become governor, and shall be filled by election as any other vacancy in the senate."

Changes in Substance: The contingency of failure to qualify has been specially mentioned so that if a person elected lieutenant-governor shall die before qualifying the duties of the lieutenant-governor will be exercised by the president pro tempore of the senate and not by the preceding lieutenant-governor who, by Article IV, section 17, of the present constitution, would hold office until his successor qualified.

Changes in Style: The causes of a vacancy have all been expressed in the clause "If the office of lieutenant-governor shall be vacant."

Determination of Disability.

Section 16. The fact of disability of the governor, or of the lieutenant-governor, or of a person upon whom the powers and duties of either office would otherwise devolve, shall be determined only by supreme court on the address of the general assembly, agreed to by a majority of the members of each house, or, if the general assembly be not in session, on the written address of such majority.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter: It covers the situation which would arise if a governor or a lieutenant-governor should have a prolonged illness or should temporarily or permanently lose his mind.

Under the present constitution, any executive officer except the governor, the lieutenant-governor and the superintendent of public instruction, could be removed, in such a contingency either by the appointing power or by the governor upon address of two-thirds of the senate (Article VI, section 4), and a judge not a member of the supreme court could be removed by the governor on the address of two-thirds of each house of the general assembly (Article V, section 15). The Commission propose an appointed commissioner of education instead of the superintendent of public instruction (see Article IV, section 8 and Article X, section 1). This leaves only the governor, the lieutenant-governor and the justices of the supreme court for whose removal no method is now provided except impeachment.

It is therefore important that there should be lodged in a permanent body the power to determine whether or not the disability of the governor or of the lieutenant-governor is such as to justify filling the office with another person. The disability of a supreme court justice cannot well be determined by his associates. Such disability impairs only one of a body of seven men. It therefore seems best not to attempt to provide for a determination of the fact of disability of a supreme court justice.

Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Section 17. The secretary of the commonwealth shall keep a record of the official acts and proceedings of the governor, and perform other duties as prescribed by law. He may be required by either house of the general assembly to exhibit his record with the papers, minutes and vouchers relating thereto.

Note.

Source: Article IV, section 18:

"The secretary of the commonwealth shall keep a record of all official acts and proceedings of the governor, and when required lay the same, with all papers, minutes and vouchers relating thereto, before either branch of the general assembly, and perform such other duties as may be enjoined upon him by law."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Section 18. Until otherwise prescribed by law, the secretary of internal affairs shall exercise the powers and perform the duties prescribed by law when this constitution becomes effective. His department shall embrace a bureau of industrial statistics.

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Auditor General and State Treasurer.

Section 19. The auditor general and the state treasurer shall be chosen by the electors of the commonwealth. Each shall hold his office for four years and neither shall be eligible for the succeeding term.

Note.

Source: Article IV, section 21:

"The terms of the secretary of internal affairs, the auditor general, and the state treasurer shall each be four years; and they shall be chosen by the qualified electors of the state at general elections, but a state treasurer, elected in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine, shall serve for three years, and his successors shall be elected at the general election in the year one thousand nine hundred and twelve, and in every fourth year thereafter. No person elected to the office of auditor general or state treasurer shall be capable of holding the same office for two consecutive terms." (Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

Changes in Substance: The secretary of internal affairs is omitted because it is recommended that his office be made appointive. See note to Article IV, section 8 as proposed.

Changes in Style: The words "at general elections" are omitted because this requirement is stated in Article VII, section 1 as proposed.

State Contracts.

Section 20. No member of the general assembly or officer or employe of the state government shall be interested in a contract with the state government, or in furnishing thereto materials or supplies.

Note.

Source: Part of Article III, section 12:

"* * * no member or officer of any department of the government shall be in any way interested in such contracts" (contracts for stationery, printing, paper and fuel used in the legislative and other departments of the state government, for printing and binding and for repairing and furnishing the halls and rooms used by the general assembly and its committees) "* * *."

Changes in Substance: The section proposed extends the principle that an officer shall not be interested in contracts with the state government to all contracts for the selling or leasing of property or in rendering to the state government for compensation services other than official services. The present constitution merely prevents the officer having an interest in contracts for printing and binding for the state government and supplying furnishings and fuel for the capitol buildings, repairs thereto and paper and stationery for the state government.

The section as proposed extends the prohibition to all employes of the state government as well as to all officers. The present constitution confines the prohibition to officers.

Public Printing and Supplies.

Section 21. The printing and binding for the state government shall be done under contract or by the state government. Furnishings and fuel for the capitol buildings and paper and stationery for the state government shall be made or produced by the state government or procured under contract. Contracts for work or material designated in this section shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder subject to the approval of the auditor general and of the state treasurer.

Source: Part of Article III, section 12:

"All stationery, printing, paper and fuel used in the legislative and other departments of government shall be furnished, and the printing, binding and distributing of the laws, journals, department reports and all other printing and binding, and the repairing and furnishing the halls and rooms used for the meetings of the general assembly and its committees, shall be performed under contract to be given to the lowest responsible bidder below such maximum price and under such regulations as shall be prescribed by law; * * *."

Changes in Substance: (1) The state government is permitted to do its own printing and binding instead of being required to let all such work on contract. This would permit a change in the system if a change should seem desirable.

(2) "Fuel used in the legislative and other departments of government" has been changed to "fuel for the capitol buildings" because that is the principal place of its use where procuring by contract is both feasible and prudent.

(3) The requirement in regard to repairs of the halls and rooms of the general assembly is omitted because the state is now in a position to do its repair work at the capitol buildings.

(4) The provision that every contract must be at a figure below a maximum price prescribed by law is omitted, because the Commission believe that the public interests will be entirely protected by requiring the contract to be awarded only to the lowest responsible bidder and to be approved by the auditor general and by the state treasurer.

(5) The approval of the governor is dispensed with because in practice his approval has necessarily become a mere matter of routine involving no real personal consideration of the proposed contract.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Seal and Commissions.

Section 22. The present great seal of Pennsylvania shall be the seal of the commonwealth. Commissions shall be in the name and by the authority of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. They shall be sealed with the seal of the commonwealth and signed by the governor. --

Note.

Source: Article IV, section 22:

"The present great seal of Pennsylvania shall be the seal of the state. All commissions shall be in the name and by authority of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and be sealed with the state seal and signed by the governor."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

ARTICLE V.

THE JUDICIARY.

Preliminary Note.

Source: Article V of the present Constitution.

Arrangement:

Vesting of judicial power—section 1.
 Supreme court and its jurisdiction—sections 2, 3, 4.
 Superior court and its jurisdiction—sections 5, 6.
 Courts of common pleas and their jurisdiction—sections 7 to 10, inclusive.
 Criminal courts—section 11.
 Orphan's courts—section 12.
 Justices of the peace—sections 13, 14.
 Provisions common to all courts—sections 15 to 20, inclusive.
 Appeals—sections 21, 22.
 Procedural matters—sections 23 to 25, inclusive.

Judicial Power.

Section 1. The judicial power of the commonwealth shall be vested in a supreme court, a superior court, in courts of common pleas, courts of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, courts of quarter sessions of the peace, orphans' courts, justices of the peace, and in such other courts as may from time to time be established by law.

Note.

Source: Article V, section 1:

"The judicial power of this commonwealth shall be vested in a supreme court, in courts of common pleas, courts of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, courts of quarter sessions of the peace, orphans' courts, magistrates' courts, and in such other courts as the general assembly may from time to time establish."

Changes in Substance: The superior court is added as a constitutional court.

Changes in Style: The words "justices of the peace" have been used as more accurate than "magistrates' courts."

Supreme Court.

Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of seven judges learned in the law, who shall have the title of justice, chosen by the electors of the commonwealth. They shall hold office for twenty-one years and shall not again be eligible. The judge longest in continuous service shall be chief justice.

Note.

Source: Article V, section 2:

"The supreme court shall consist of seven judges, who shall be elected by the qualified electors of the state at large. They shall hold their offices for the term of twenty-one years, if they so long behave themselves well, but shall not be again eligible. The judge whose commission shall first expire shall be chief justice, and thereafter each judge whose commission shall first expire shall in turn be chief justice."

Changes in Substance: The requirement that the justices of the court shall be learned in the law has been added.

Changes in Style:

(1) The words "who shall have the title of justice" are used because the members of the supreme court are always so designated in practice, although it is desirable that they should be considered "judges" on account of numerous other provisions of the constitution referring to all judges, including the members of the supreme court.

(2) The language of the final sentence is more accurate than that of the present constitution. "The judge whose commission shall first expire" is frequently a judge, appointed to fill a vacancy and holding a commission which will expire at the end of the next session of the senate.

Jurisdiction of Supreme Court.

Section 3. The jurisdiction of the supreme court shall extend over the state, and the judges thereof shall, by virtue of their offices, be justices of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery in the several counties. It shall have original jurisdiction in cases of injunction where a corporation is a party defendant, of habeas corpus, of mandamus to courts of inferior jurisdiction, and of quo warranto as to officers of the Commonwealth whose jurisdiction extends over the state, but shall not exercise other original jurisdiction. The supreme court shall have jurisdiction to review in all cases the action of other courts and until otherwise prescribed by law the manner of exercising such jurisdiction shall be that prescribed when this constitution becomes effective.

Note.

Source: Article V, section 3:

"The jurisdiction of the supreme court shall extend over the state, and the judges thereof shall, by virtue of their offices, be justices of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery in the several counties; they shall have original jurisdiction in cases of injunction where a corporation is a party defendant, of habeas corpus, of mandamus to courts of inferior jurisdiction, and of quo warranto as to all officers of the commonwealth whose jurisdiction extends over the state, but shall not exercise any other original jurisdiction; they shall have appellate jurisdiction by appeal, certiorari or writ of error in all cases, as is now or may hereafter be provided by law."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Change: Under the present constitution it is not absolutely certain that the supreme court has appellate jurisdiction in all cases. Under the section proposed the court is given the power to review, in all cases, the action of other courts.

Changes in Style: Original jurisdiction in the enumerated cases is vested in the court itself. This accords with actual practice and with the interpretation put upon the language of the present constitution by the supreme court. See Wheeler v. Phila., 77 Pa. 338; Commonwealth v. Hartranff, 77 Pa. 154; Clark v. Borough of Washington, 145 Pa. 566.

Regulative Power and Duty of Supreme Court.

Section 4. The supreme court shall regulate procedure in courts of record and shall adapt the processes of justice to the necessities of all litigants.

In the discharge of these duties it may regulate forms of action, pleading and practice, the keeping of judicial records, and the conditions under which fees and costs may be remitted and counsel assigned without expense to litigants.

Regulations, when promulgated by the chief justice, shall have the force of law until modified by law and shall operate to repeal laws theretofore enacted inconsistent with such regulations.

Subject to law and to such regulations, courts of record shall have the power to make their own rules.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter covering two principles:

(1) That the supreme court should regulate judicial procedure, and

(2) That the supreme court should specially regulate judicial procedure in behalf of the poor.

The Commission recommend the embodiment of the first of these principles in the constitution because the supreme court is better fitted than the general assembly to adapt judicial procedure to changing conditions. A legislative body is not constituted for the consideration of such questions of detail as necessarily arise in connection with every kind of litigation. Accordingly the Commission have recommended a system similar to that in use in England, where it has met with success and with unusual satisfaction. It will be observed that the force of the rules of the supreme court in this respect is made equal to that of statutes but no greater.

The Commission also recommend that the supreme court should be directed to "adapt the processes of justice to the necessities of all litigants," and, in this connection, shall regulate the condition under which fees and costs may be remitted and counsel assigned without expense to litigants.

Superior Court.

Section 5. The superior court shall consist of seven judges learned in the law, chosen by the electors of the commonwealth. They shall hold office for twenty-one years and shall not again be eligible. The judge longest in continuous service shall be president judge.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. The superior court is made a constitutional court. The provision in regard to the length of the term of a judge of the court, and the prohibition against re-election, are made similar to those which pertain to the judges of the supreme court.

Jurisdiction of Superior Court.

Section 6. Until otherwise prescribed by law, the superior court shall have the jurisdiction vested in it when this constitution becomes effective.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter, made necessary by the preceding section.

Judicial Districts.

Section 7. The state shall be divided by law into judicial districts. A county having fifty thousand inhabitants may constitute a separate district. No county shall be divided in the formation of a district and not more than four counties shall be included in a district.

Note.

Source: (1) Part of Article V, section 5:

"Whenever a county shall contain forty thousand inhabitants it shall constitute a separate judicial district, and shall elect one judge learned in the law; and the general assembly shall provide for additional judges, as the business of said districts may require. Counties containing a population less than is sufficient to constitute separate districts shall be formed into convenient single districts, or, if necessary, may be attached to contiguous districts as the general assembly may provide. * * *

(2) Part of Article V, section 4:

"* * * not more than four counties shall at any time be included in one judicial district organized for said courts."

Changes in Substance: The present constitution requires every county with a population of forty thousand to form a separate district. This is changed so that a county of fifty thousand will be permitted or obliged to become a separate district, according to the judgment of the law-making power.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Courts of Common Pleas.

Section 8. In each county there shall be a court of common pleas consisting of one or more judges learned in the law, chosen by the electors of the judicial district in which the county is situated. They shall hold office for ten years. The judge longest in continuous service shall be the president judge. The office of associate judge not learned in the law is abolished, but associate judges in office when this constitution becomes effective shall hold office for their unexpired terms.

Note.

Source: (1) Part of Article V, section 4:

"Until otherwise directed by law, the courts of common pleas shall continue as at present established, except as herein changed; * * *

(2) Part of Article V, Section 15:

"All judges required to be learned in the law, except the judges of the supreme court shall be elected by the qualified electors of the respective districts over which they are to preside, and shall hold their offices for the period of ten years, if they shall so long behave themselves well; * * *"

(3) Part of Article V, section 5:

"* * * The office of associate judge, not learned in the law, is abolished in counties forming separate districts; but the several associate judges in office when this constitution shall be adopted shall serve for their unexpired terms."

Changes in Substance: (1) The Commission suggest that the long-established practice in regard to the office of president judge be made part of the constitution for the sake of uniformity with the sections dealing with the other courts.

(2) The present constitution abolished the office of associate judge not learned in the law in counties forming separate districts. The Commission recommend that this office should now be abolished in the twenty counties where it still exists, saving to the present associate judges the right to serve their unexpired terms.

Clarifying Change: The proposed new section states expressly that there shall be a court of common pleas in each county. The constitution of 1776 refers to such courts (see section the twenty-fourth), and the constitution of 1790, Article V, section 4, expressly provided for such courts.

The Commission recommend the insertion of this clause for the sake of clearness, believing that the system is satisfactory and that there will be no reason for abandoning it.

Changes in style: The words "if they shall so long behave themselves well," in Article V, section 15, of the present constitution, are omitted as unnecessary. The constitution designates the ways in which a judge may be removed from office. (See Article VII, sections 6 and 7 as proposed.) When a definite term of office for a judge or other officer is prescribed, the incumbent of the office has a right to the office until his term expires, irrespective of his behavior, unless removed in one of the ways designated in the constitution.

Jurisdiction of Courts of Common Pleas.

Section 9. The court of common pleas of each county shall have original jurisdiction in civil cases except where such jurisdiction shall be vested by law in other courts. It shall have power to issue writs of certiorari to justices of the peace and to courts not of record and, except where otherwise prescribed by law shall have jurisdiction in appeals from justices of the peace. It shall have the chancery jurisdiction vested in the courts of common pleas when this constitution becomes effective.

In addition to the powers conferred in this section, and until otherwise prescribed by law, the courts of common pleas shall have the jurisdiction vested in them when this constitution becomes effective.

A judge of a court of common pleas shall be, in the county, a justice of the peace as to criminal matters.

Note.

Source: (1) Part of Article V, section 9:

"Judges of the courts of common pleas learned in the law * * * within their respective districts shall be justices of the peace as to criminal matters."

(2) Article V, section 10:

"The judges of the courts of common pleas, within their respective counties, shall have power to issue writs of certiorari to justices of the peace and other inferior courts not of record, and to cause their proceedings to be brought before them, and right and justice to be done."

(3) Article V, section 20:

"The several courts of common pleas, besides the powers herein conferred, shall have and exercise within their respective districts, subject to such changes as may be made by law, such chancery powers as are now vested by law in the several courts of common pleas of this commonwealth, or as may hereafter be conferred upon them by law."

Changes in Substance: (1) All original civil jurisdiction not vested by law in other courts is expressly vested in the courts of common pleas.

(2) Jurisdiction in appeals from justices of the peace is expressly conferred upon the courts of common pleas except where otherwise prescribed by law. The present constitution gives to a court of common pleas the right to issue a certiorari to justices of the peace and magistrates, but gives to the litigant no right of appeal.

Clarifying Changes: Under the present constitution, it is not clear whether chancery jurisdiction can be given to courts other than the courts of common pleas and the orphans' courts. An orphans' court, by its nature, which may be implied from its name, may and does have chancery powers. (See also Morgan v. Reel, 213 Pa. 81.) Article V, section 20, of the present constitution, makes the chancery jurisdiction of the courts of common pleas subject to such changes as may be made by law. The language of the section makes it probable but not certain that those courts could be deprived by law of all chancery jurisdiction. There is nothing in the section to prevent other courts being vested with chancery jurisdiction.

Article V, section 10, of the present constitution, gives to the judges of the courts of common pleas the power to issue writs of certiorari to justices of the peace and other inferior courts not of record. Again, there is nothing in the section to make the power vested in the courts of common pleas an exclusive power.

On the other hand, Article V, section 26, of the present constitution, provides: "* * * the general assembly is hereby prohibited from creating other courts to exercise the powers vested by this constitution in the judges of the courts of common pleas and orphans' courts." The effect of this section is uncertain. Either it means that a power vested expressly or impliedly as an exclusive power is exclusive, or it means that any power whether it is vested as an exclusive power or not, it to be regarded as an exclusive power.

In order to avoid the uncertainty arising from section 26, we have recommended that it be omitted.

The section as proposed is so worded as to vest in the common pleas courts the chancery jurisdiction vested by law when the constitution as proposed becomes effective. The chancery jurisdiction may thereafter be increased but not diminished. The section as proposed also vests in the common pleas courts jurisdiction to issue writs of certiorari to justices of the peace and inferior courts not of record. This accords with Article V, section 10 of the present constitution. On the other hand, there will be nothing to prevent other courts being vested by law with a similar power.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Common Pleas Court in Philadelphia.

Section 10. In the county of Philadelphia the jurisdiction of the several courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas. Until otherwise prescribed by law, the court shall be composed of fifteen judges. The first judges shall be those holding office in the several courts of common pleas when this constitution becomes effective. The judge longest in continuous service shall be president judge.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

Philadelphia is the only county which does not now have a single court of common pleas. If section 8 of this article, as proposed by the Commission, is adopted, it is necessary to specially provide, in the constitution or in a schedule adopted with the constitution, for the consolidation of the existing courts of common pleas in Philadelphia.

We believe that in Philadelphia the demand for the consolidation of the existing courts of common pleas is very general. An amendment to the present constitution effecting this consolidation has already been passed by one general assembly.

Criminal Courts.

Section 11. In each county there shall be a court of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery and a court of quarter sessions of the peace. The judges of the court of common pleas of the county shall be the judges of such courts.

Note.

Source: Part of Article V, section 9:

"Judges of the courts of common pleas learned in the law shall be judges of the courts of oyer and terminer, quarter sessions of the peace and general jail delivery, and of the orphans' court, * * *."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: The present constitution creates courts of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, and courts of quarter sessions of the peace, in Article V, section 1, but fails to state in terms where those courts shall be situated. This omission is corrected by stating that there shall be such courts in each county, thus following the long-established practice.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Orphans Courts.

Section 12. In each county there shall be an orphans' court. In a county having more than one hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants there may be a separate orphans' court with the jurisdiction of orphans' courts when this constitution becomes effective and with other jurisdiction as prescribed by law. Such courts shall consist of one or more judges learned in the law, chosen by the electors of the county. They shall hold office for ten years. The judge longest in continuous service shall be president judge.

In a county with a separate orphans' court, the register of wills of the county shall be the clerk thereof. He shall appoint assistant clerks only with the approval of the court. Accounts filed with him as register or as clerk shall be audited by the court without expense to the parties, unless the court shall appoint, in its discretion, an auditor nominated by all parties in interest represented in the proceeding.

In a county without a separate orphans' court, the judges of the court of common pleas shall be the judges of the orphans' court, but only until the establishment of a separate orphans' court.

Note.

Source: (1) Part of Article V, section 22:

"In every county wherein the population shall exceed one hundred and fifty thousand, the general assembly shall, and in any other county, may, establish a separate orphans' court, to consist of one or more judges who shall be learned in the law, which court shall exercise all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in or which may hereafter be conferred upon the orphans' courts, and thereupon the jurisdiction of the judges of the court of common pleas within such county, in orphans' court proceedings shall cease and determine. In any county in which a separate orphans' court shall be established, the register of wills shall be clerk of such court, and subject to its directions, in all matters pertaining to his office; he may appoint assistant clerks, but only with the consent and approval of said court. All accounts filed with him as register or as clerk of the said separate orphans' court shall be audited by the court without expense to parties, except where all parties in interest in a pending proceeding shall nominate an auditor whom the court may, in its discretion, appoint * * *."

(2) Part of Article V, section 15:

"All judges required to be learned in the law, except the judges of the supreme court, shall be elected by the qualified electors of the respective districts over which they are to preside, and shall hold their offices for the period of ten years, if they shall so long behave themselves well * * *."

(3) Part of Article V, section 9:

"Judges of the courts of common pleas learned in the law shall be judges * * * of the orphans' court * * *"

Changes in Substance: (1) The present constitution requires a separate orphans' court in a county having a population of over 150,000 and permits a separate orphans' court in any county. In the proposed new section, a separate orphans' court is permitted only in a county with over 150,000 inhabitants. The Commission believe that such a court will never be necessary in a smaller county.

(2) The present constitution gave to the orphans' court the jurisdiction of the then existing register's court. The constitution as proposed gives to the court the jurisdiction vested in such courts by law when the constitution becomes effective.

(3) The exception to the provision that all accounts shall be audited by the court without expense to parties is in a case where all the parties in interest represented in the proceedings consent to the appointment of an auditor. Under the present constitution all the parties in interest must consent.

Clarifying Changes: (1) The principle that there should be an orphans' court in each county is to be inferred from the present constitution and is expressly stated in the proposed new section.

(2) It is assumed that in the present constitution, the words "and subject to its directions in all matters pertaining to his office," refer to the office of clerk of the orphans' court, and they have therefore been omitted as surplusage.

Changes in Style: (1) The words "if they shall so long behave themselves well," in article V, section 15, of the present constitution, are omitted because included in Article VII, section 7, as proposed. (See note to Article V, section 8.)

(2) By omitting Article V, section 26, of the present constitution, we make it clear that this section vests in the orphans' court certain jurisdiction, but does not make the jurisdiction vested exclusive. (See note to Article V, section 9.)

Justices of the Peace Not in Philadelphia.

Section 13. Each county, except the county of Philadelphia, shall be divided by its court of common pleas into justice of the peace districts. A borough, township, or city with a population of fifty thousand or less shall not be divided. A district may be composed of two or more townships or boroughs or any borough or township may be attached to a district comprising all or a portion of a city. In a city with a population of more than fifty thousand, the number of inhabitants shall be divided by fifty thousand and the number of districts to which the city shall be entitled shall be the quotient. Population shall be determined by the latest United States decennial census. After each decennial census the court of common pleas may create new districts and may change the boundaries of districts. After any such revision of the districts, no new district shall be created and no change of boundary shall be made prior to the next decennial census.

In each district one justice of the peace shall be chosen by the electors at a municipal election. He shall have been a resident of his district for two years next preceding the election unless absent on the public business of the United States, of the state government or of a municipality of the commonwealth. He shall hold office for six years from the first Monday after his election. Upon petition of at least two hundred electors of the district setting forth a reasonable cause for his removal, he shall be removed from office by the court of common pleas if the court, after hearing, finds such cause to exist. In such event a justice of the peace may appeal to the superior court. A vacancy in the office of justice of the peace shall be filled by the governor.

For services rendered in judicial proceedings a justice of the peace shall receive a salary prescribed by law and paid by the county, and no other compensation. Fees, fines and penalties received in judicial proceedings by a justice of the peace shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of the county.

Until otherwise prescribed by law, justices of the peace in any county shall have the jurisdiction and powers of the justices of the peace of the county existing when this constitution becomes effective.

Justices of the peace in office when this constitution becomes effective shall serve their unexpired terms. On the expiration of such terms, the office of justice of the peace as theretofore existing is abolished. Vacancies occurring prior to the expiration of such terms shall not be filled.

Note.

Source: Article V, section 11:

"Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, justices of the peace, or aldermen shall be elected in the several wards, districts, boroughs or townships, by the qualified electors thereof, at the municipal election, in such manner as shall be directed by law, and shall be commissioned by the governor for a term of six years. No township, ward, district or borough shall elect more than two justices of the peace or aldermen without the consent of a majority of the qualified electors within such township, ward or borough; no person shall be elected to such office unless he shall have resided within the township, borough, ward or district for one year next preceding his election. In cities containing over fifty thousand inhabitants, not more than one alderman shall be elected in each ward or district." (Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

Changes in Substance: (1) Instead of electing justices of the peace according to wards, boroughs or townships, they will be elected according to districts formed by the court of common pleas of the county in the manner indicated.

(2) There can be but one justice of the peace in a district, instead of two or more as under the present constitution.

(3) Two years' residence in the district immediately preceding his election is required instead of one year. Absence on public business is not to be reckoned as a loss of residence.

(4) The provisions for removal by the court of common pleas and for the filling of vacancies by the governor are new.

(5) The provisions in regard to salary, fees, fines and penalties, are new.

Changes in Style: The substance of the provisions in regard to the time of elections has been transferred to Article VII. section 1, as proposed.

Justices of the Peace in Philadelphia.

Section 14. The county of Philadelphia shall be divided by its court of common pleas into eighteen justice of the peace districts as nearly equal in population as possible. After each United States decennial census, the court of common pleas may create new districts and may alter the boundaries of districts. After any such revision of the districts, no new districts shall be created and no change of boundary shall be made prior to the next decennial census. The number of districts shall not exceed one for each one hundred thousand of population.

In each district of one justice of peace learned in the law shall be chosen by the electors of the district at a municipal election. His other qualifications, his term, and the method of his removal and filling a vacancy in his office shall be as in the case of justices of the peace in other counties. For services rendered in judicial proceedings, he shall receive a salary prescribed by law and paid by the county and no other compensation. Fees, fines and penalties received in judicial proceedings by a justice of the peace shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of the county.

A justice of the peace shall hold a court not of record of police and civil causes. His jurisdiction in civil matters shall be limited to matters involving three hundred dollars or less and except as otherwise provided in this section shall be similar to that of justices of the peace in other counties. No political duties shall be imposed on him.

Rules of procedure for the justices of the peace not inconsistent with law or with the regulations of the supreme court shall be prescribed by the court of common pleas of the county of Philadelphia.

Magistrates in office when this constitution becomes effective shall serve their unexpired terms. On the expiration of such terms, the office of magistrate as theretofore existing is abolished. Vacancies occurring prior to the expiration of such terms shall not be filled.

The provisions of this section may be changed or abolished by law.

Note.

Source (1) Article V, section 12:

"In Philadelphia there shall be established, for each thirty thousand inhabitants, one court, not of record, of police and civil causes, with jurisdiction not exceeding one hundred dollars; such courts shall be held by magistrates whose term of office shall be six years and they shall be elected on general ticket at the municipal election, by the qualified voters at large; and in the election of the said magistrates no voter shall vote for more than two-thirds of the number of persons to be elected when more than one are to be chosen. They shall be compensated only by fixed salaries to be paid by said county; and shall exercise such jurisdiction, civil and criminal, except as herein provided, as is now exercised by aldermen, subject to such changes, not involving an increase of civil jurisdiction or conferring political duties, as may be made by law. In Philadelphia the office of aldermen is abolished."—(Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

(2) Article V, section 13:

"All fees, fines and penalties in said court shall be paid into the county treasury."

Changes in Substance: (1) Justices of the peace learned in the law are substituted for magistrates.

(2) One justice of the peace is to be elected in each of the districts formed by the court of common pleas.

(3) There is to be one justice of the peace for each one hundred thousand of population instead of a magistrate for each thirty thousand.

(4) The jurisdiction of each justice of the peace is to be similar to that of justices of the peace throughout the state, except that in civil cases it is limited to three hundred dollars. The assimilation to the situation in other counties is new.

(5) Qualifications for office, except the requirement that the incumbent shall be learned in the law, and provisions for removal and for filling vacancies are the same as in the case of justices of the peace in other counties. This is new.

(6) The court of common pleas is directed to prescribe procedure. This is new.

(7) The final paragraph permits the above system to be abolished or changed by law.

Changes in Style: The section has been entirely rewritten and the Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Judgeships to be Numbered.

Section 15. In every court composed of two or more judges required to be learned in the law, each judgeship shall, for the purpose of election or appointment thereto, be deemed a separate office and be distinguished by number from the other judgeships in the same court. Judgeships existing when this constitution becomes effective shall be taken to be numbered in the respective courts in the order of the seniority in commission of the judges occupying them.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. The purpose is to give to the sitting judge in large counties a greater advantage than he now has in election contests. If, for instance, the courts of common pleas of Philadelphia county are consolidated, and if four of the fifteen judges come up at one time for re-election, it will be more difficult to defeat a sitting judge contending against a limited number of other candidates than it would be if all candidates, perhaps a dozen or more, were contending together for four places. The natural tendency of the voter is to favor the sitting judge and this he will be more likely to do if the contest is plainly between that judge and aspirants for his particular office.

The Commission believe that a policy which tends to continue judges in office will promote the proper administration of justice.

Determining Priority.

Section 16. Before two or more judges of the same court begin service on the same day, they shall cast lots to determine who shall be deemed first to have begun service and shall certify the result to the governor.

Note.

Source: Article V, section 17:

"Should any two or more judges of the supreme court, or any two or more judges of the court of common pleas for the same district, be elected at the same time, they shall, as soon after the election as convenient, cast lots for priority of commission, and certify the result to the governor, who shall issue their commission in accordance therewith."

Changes in Substance: The provisions are extended to cover all courts, because the question of priority may arise in any of them.

Under the present constitution the lots have to be cast, when two judges are elected on the same day, although one of them is and the other is not already a member of the court. Under the wording proposed, the lots would have to be cast only when both judges begin their service on the same day.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Residence of Judges.

Section 17. The judges of the supreme court and of the superior court shall reside in the state. A judge of another court or a justice of the peace shall reside in the district for which he has been elected.

Note.

Source: Article V, section 19:

"The judges of the supreme court, during their continuance in office, shall reside within this commonwealth; and the other judges, during their continuance in office, shall reside within the districts for which they shall be respectively elected."

Changes in Substance: A justice of the peace is required to reside within the territory over which he has jurisdiction.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Compensation of Judges and of Justices of the Peace.

Section 18. A judge or a justice of the peace required to be learned in the law shall receive for his services an adequate salary prescribed by law, and no other compensation. A judge required to be learned in the law shall be paid by the state government.

Note.

Source: Article V, section 18:

"The judges of the supreme court and the judges of the several courts of common pleas, and all other judges required to be learned in the law, shall at stated times receive for their services an adequate compensation which shall be fixed by law, and paid by the state. They shall receive no other compensation, fees, or perquisites of office for their services from any source, nor hold any other office of profit under the United States, this state or any other state."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The prohibition against holding other offices is transferred to Article VII, section 2.

Duties of Courts to be Judicial Only.

Section 19. No duties shall be imposed on a court or judge except such as relate to the administration of justice, to the conduct of the business of the court, or to the conduct of elections. After the adjournment of the first session of the general assembly following the time when this constitution becomes effective, no powers of appointment shall be exercised by a court or judge except such as relate to their duties or to the management of public law libraries, the inspection and management of prisons, the visitation of public institutions, the condemnation of private property, and the administration of public trusts, of public parks or of public works. Other powers of appointment vested in a court or judge shall be abolished or vested elsewhere by law.

Note.

Source: (1) Article V, section 21:

"No duties shall be imposed by law upon the supreme court or any of the judges thereof, except such as are judicial, nor shall any of the judges thereof exercise any power of appointment except as herein provided. The court of nisi prius is hereby abolished, and no court of original jurisdiction to be presided over by any one or more of the judges of the supreme court shall be established."

Changes in Substance: (1) The prohibition against imposing non-judicial duties upon the judges of the supreme court is extended to all judges and also to justices of the peace in Philadelphia. Instead of using the ambiguous words of the present constitution "no duties * * * except such as are judicial" and "not conferring political duties," the proposed section enumerates the duties which may be imposed. This will avoid doubt. Certain powers of appointment are expressly permitted to be exercised by the courts in cases in which the Commission believe that this method of appointment will serve the public interests. Other powers of appointment, as, for instance, the appointment of boards of revision of taxes and of boards of education, are to be abolished or vested elsewhere by law.

(2) The last sentence of Article V, section 12, of the present constitution is omitted as obsolete in so far as it concerns the court of nisi prius, and as unnecessary and unwise in so far as it concerns other courts of original jurisdiction.

Changes in Style: The section has been entirely rewritten, following the Commission's rules of style.

Power to Change Venue.

Section 20. The power to change the venue shall be vested in the courts and exercised as prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 23:

"The power to change the venue in civil and criminal cases shall be vested in the courts, to be exercised in such manner as shall be provided by law."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Appeals to Supreme Court in Homicide cases.

Section 21. A person sentenced to felonious homicide may remove the indictment, record and all proceedings to the supreme court for review.

Note.

Source: Article V, section 24:

"In all cases of felonious homicide, and in such other criminal cases as may be provided for by law, the accused, after conviction and sentence, may remove the indictment, record and all proceedings, to the supreme court for review."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The reference to "such other criminal cases as may be provided for by law" has been omitted as superfluous, and the language has been changed in accordance with the Commission's rules of style.

Appeals From Courts Not of Record.

Section 22. A person summarily convicted, or a party to a suit for a penalty before a justice of the peace or in a court not of record, may appeal to a court of record in the manner prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: Article V, section 14:

"In all cases of summary conviction in this commonwealth, or of judgment in suit for a penalty before a magistrate, or court not of record, either party may appeal to such court of record as may be prescribed by law, upon allowance of the appellate court or judge thereof upon cause shown."

Changes in Substance: The concluding words "upon allowance of the appellate court or judge thereof upon cause shown," have been omitted because the Commission believe that an appeal should be a matter of right in the two specified cases without requiring a special allocation from a judge.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Process and Indictments.

Section 23. The style of process shall be "The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania." Prosecutions shall be carried on in the name and by the authority of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Indictments shall conclude "against the peace and dignity of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

Note.

Source: Article V, section 23:

"The style of all process shall be 'The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.' All prosecutions shall be carried on in the name and by the authority of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and conclude 'against the peace and dignity of the same.'"

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: (1) The present constitution provides that "prosecutions shall * * * conclude 'against the peace and dignity of the same.'" These words are copied from the constitutions of 1838 and of 1790. Obviously they are meaningless. What is really intended is that indictments shall so conclude. This is made clear by section the twenty-seventh of the second article of the constitution of 1776 which provides: "Section the twenty-seventh. All prosecutions shall commence in the name and by the authority of the freemen of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania; and all indictments shall conclude with these words, 'Against the peace and dignity of the same.' The style of all process hereafter in this state shall be, the commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

(2) The Commission recommend the use of the concluding words, "against the peace and dignity of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania," to conform with the actual practice. The form proposed was sustained by the Supreme Court in Rogers v. Commonwealth, 5 S. & R. 463 (1820).

Trial Without Jury.

Section 24. If the parties to a civil case shall agree to dispense with a trial by jury, the court shall hear the case and shall deliver a judgment having the same effect as if there had been such trial by jury.

Note.

Source: Article V, section 27:

"The parties, by agreement filed, may in any civil case dispense with trial by jury, and submit the decision of such case to the court having jurisdiction thereof, and such court shall hear and determine the same; and the judgment thereon shall be subject to writ of error as in other cases."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Employment of Counsel and Graded Costs.

Section 25. Laws shall be enacted, applicable to courts of record and to such other courts as may be deemed proper, providing that the counties shall compensate counsel assigned to serve without expense to litigants. The costs of litigation may be classified or graded by law according to the amounts in controversy.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

(1) The cost of compensating counsel assigned to service without expense to litigants is placed on the counties. Under the provisions of section 4 of this article, the supreme court is directed to regulate the conditions under which counsel shall be assigned without expense to litigants.

(2) The doubt as to the constitutionality of grading costs according to the amount in controversy is removed.

ARTICLE VI.

SUFFRAGE AND ELECTIONS.

Preliminary Note.

Source Article VIII, Suffrage and Elections.

Arrangement: The order of the subjects is as follows:

Electors—sections 1 to 4, inclusive.

Bribery at elections—section 5.

Election districts and election officers—sections 6 to 8, inclusive.

Time of holding elections and charter of elections; contested elections—sections 9 to 11, inclusive.

Elections by persons in representative capacity—section 12.

That part of Article VIII of the present constitution dealing with the time of electing different kinds of public officers and with qualifications for holding public office has been transferred to Article VII, Public Servants; and the part dealing with prohibitions on special laws, to Article III, section 20.

Qualifications of Electors.

Section 1. A citizen of the commonwealth shall be entitled to vote at elections who has:

- 1 Reached the age of twenty-one;
- 2 Been a citizen of the United States at least thirty days;
- 3 Resided in the state immediately preceding the election for one year, or, if he is a native of the commonwealth or has been an elector, then for six months immediately preceding the election;
- 4 Resided for sixty days next preceding the election in the election district where he shall offer to vote;
- 5 Complied with the law regulating the registration of electors.

The right to vote and to hold office shall not be denied on account of race, color or sex.

Note.

Source: Article VIII, section 1:

"Every male citizen of twenty-one years of age, possessing the following qualifications, shall be entitled to vote at all elections, subject however to such laws requiring and regulating the registration of electors as the general assembly may enact:

1 He shall have been a citizen of the United States at least one month.

2 He shall have resided in the state one year (or, having previously been a qualified elector or native born citizen of the state, he shall have removed therefrom and returned, then six months), immediately preceding the election.

3 He shall have resided in the election district where he shall offer to vote at least two months immediately preceding the election.

4 If twenty-one years of age and upwards, he shall have paid within two years a state or county tax, which shall have been assessed at least two months and paid at least one month before the election." (Amendment of November 5, 1901.)

Changes in Substance: (1) The right of suffrage is conferred on women.

(Though the pronoun "he" is retained throughout this proposed constitution, the masculine form includes the feminine. See proposed concluding section.)

(2) The qualification that a tax shall have been paid is abolished.

The payment of a poll tax does not indicate that the payer has a property stake in the community; and even if it did, the Commission do not believe in a property qualification for the exercise of the right of suffrage.

Changes in Style: (1) Placing the qualifications of attainment of twenty-one years and of compliance with the registration laws with the other qualifications.

(2) Clause 2 has been re-worded so as to avoid the necessity of using parentheses.

Residence of Electors.

Section 2. For the purpose of voting no person shall be deemed to have gained a residence by reason of his presence or to have lost it by reason of his absence while in the service of the United States, of the state government or of a municipality of the commonwealth, or while navigating the waters of the United States or the high seas, or while a student of an institution of learning, or while kept in an institution at public expense, or while confined in prison.

Note.

Source: Article VIII, section 13:

"For the purpose of voting no person shall be deemed to have gained a residence by reason of his presence, or lost it by reason of his absence, while employed in the service, either civil or military, of this state or of the United States, nor while engaged in the navigation of the waters of the state or of the United States, or on the high seas, nor while a student of any institution of learning, nor while kept in any poorhouse or other asylum at public expense, nor while confined in public prison."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Change: In the present constitution it is not clear whether a person absent on the business of a municipality is absent on the business of "this state." The section as suggested provides that a person so absent would not gain or lose a residence.

Changes in Style: The words "waters of the state" are omitted. John F. Lewis, Esq., of the Philadelphia bar, a recognized authority on admiralty law, in response to a request for an opinion on the question whether there are navigable waters of the state as distinguished from navigable waters of the United States has written the following letter to the Commission:

"The words, 'of the state' in the clause, 'engaged in the navigation of the waters of the State or of the United States' of section 13, Article 8 of the present Constitution of Pennsylvania, are evidently a relic from the time when the jurisdiction of the Admiralty Courts was limited to tidal waters. The Genessee Chief, 12 Howard, 463, which was followed by The Eagle, 8 Wallace, 15, repudiated the tidal test of jurisdiction, and held that the true criterion was whether the water was navigable. Hence, every navigable water of Pennsylvania is subject to the jurisdiction of the United States Admiralty, and can be truthfully said to be a 'water of the United States.'

"It was reasonable that under the old limits the constitution should provide that for the purpose of voting, no person should be deemed to have lost his residence by reason of his absence while engaged in navigation, because the reason which was contemplated was a long voyage, but while the jurisdiction of the United States Courts in Admiralty does not extend over an inland lake entirely within the body of a state and in no way connected with the possibility of navigation outside the state, yet there are no such waters in Pennsylvania, and hence there is no present reason for retaining the words 'of the state.'

"I think the words 'of the state' could be safely omitted by the Commission."

Voting in Military or Naval Service.

Section 3. When an elector shall be absent in the military or naval service of the commonwealth or of the United States under a requisition by the president, he may vote as if he were present in his place of residence, subject to regulations prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: Article VIII, section 6:

"Whenever any of the qualified electors of this commonwealth shall be in actual military service, under a requisition from the president of the United States or by the authority of this commonwealth, such electors may exercise the right of suffrage in all elections by the citizens, under such regulations as are or shall be prescribed by law, as fully as if they were present at their usual places of election."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: (1) The expressions "in actual military service," have been changed to read: "absent in military service" so as to make it clear that a person in military service and not absent from his place of voting is not included.

(2) The expression "military service * * * by the authority of this commonwealth" has been changed to read: "military or naval service of the commonwealth," so as to make it clear that a person serving in a foreign army in consequence of a resolution of the general assembly approving such service, is not absent on the kind of military service contemplated, and also to make it clear that a person absent on naval service may vote as if he were present in his place of residence.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Privileges of Electors.

Section 4. Electors shall, except in cases of treason, felony and breach or surety of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance on elections, and in going to and returning from them.

Note.

Source: Article VIII, section 5:

"Electors shall in all cases except treason, felony and breach or surety of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance on elections, and in going to and returning therefrom."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The concluding words in Article VIII, section 5, of the present constitution, "in going to and returning therefrom," are, of course, incorrect. They have been changed to read as in Article III, section 3, of the constitutions of 1790 and 1838.

Election Offenses.

Section 5. A person who shall give, or promise or offer to give a valuable consideration or reward for a vote at an election or for the withholding thereof, or who shall receive or agree to receive, for himself or for another, a valuable consideration or reward for a vote at an election or for the withholding thereof, shall forfeit the right to vote at such election. An elector whose right to vote shall be challenged for such cause before the election officers shall be required to swear or affirm that the subject matter of the challenge is untrue before his vote shall be received.

A person convicted of wilful violation of an election law shall, in addition to the penalties prescribed by law, lose for four years the right to vote.

In a trial of a contested election and in an investigation of elections, no testimony shall be withheld on the ground that it may criminate the witness or subject him to infamy. Such testimony shall not afterwards be used against him in a judicial proceeding except in a prosecution for perjury in giving such testimony.

Note.

Source: The section combines all provisions of the present constitution relating to the violation by an elector of the election law and the consequences of such violation; namely:

(1) Article VIII, section 8:

"Any person who shall give, or promise or offer to give, to an elector, any money, reward or other valuable consideration for his vote at an election, or for withholding the same, or who shall give or promise to give such consideration to any other person or party for such elector's vote or for the withholding thereof, and any elector who shall receive or agree to receive, for himself or for another, any money, reward or other valuable consideration for his vote at an election, or for withholding the same, shall thereby forfeit the right to vote at such election, and any elector whose right to vote shall be challenged for such cause before the election officers, shall be required to swear or affirm that the matter of the challenge is untrue before his vote shall be received."

(2) Part of Article VIII, section 9:

"* * * and any person convicted of willful violation of the election laws shall, in addition to any penalties provided by law, be deprived of the right of suffrage absolutely for a term of four years."

(3) Article VIII, section 10:

"In trials of contested elections and in proceedings for the investigation of elections, no person shall be permitted to withhold his testimony upon the ground that it may criminate himself or subject him to public infamy; but such testimony shall not afterwards be used against him in any judicial proceeding except for perjury in giving such testimony."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Election Districts.

Section 6. Townships and wards of cities or boroughs shall form or shall be divided into election districts of compact and contiguous territory as the court of quarter sessions may direct.

An election district in a city of over one hundred thousand inhabitants shall be divided by the court of quarter sessions when at the next preceding election more than two hundred and fifty votes have been polled therein. Any other election district shall be divided when the court of quarter sessions shall be of opinion that the convenience of the electors and the public interests will be promoted thereby.

Note.

Source: Article VIII, section 11:

"Townships, and wards of cities or boroughs, shall form or be divided into election districts of compact and contiguous territory, in such manner as the court of quarter sessions of the city or county in which the same are located may direct; but districts in cities of over one hundred thousand inhabitants shall be divided by the courts of quarter sessions, having jurisdiction therein, whenever at the next preceding election more than two hundred and fifty votes shall have been polled therein; and other election districts whenever the court of the proper county shall be of opinion that the convenience of the electors and the public interests will be promoted thereby."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: In the present constitution this section consists of one sentence. It relates, however, to two quite distinct subjects; one, the power and duty of the court of quarter sessions to divide townships and wards of cities and boroughs into election districts; and the other, the duty to divide an election district under certain specified conditions.

Election Officers.

Section 7. In each election district there shall be an election board consisting of a judge and two inspectors chosen by the electors of the district. They shall hold office for two years. Each elector may vote for one candidate for judge and for one candidate for inspector. Vacancies in election boards shall be filled and election boards in new districts shall be created as prescribed by law. Each inspector shall appoint one clerk at each election. An election officer or clerk shall be privileged from arrest upon days of election and while engaged in making up and transmitting returns, except upon warrant of a court of record or of a judge thereof for election fraud, for felony, or for wanton breach of the peace. In a city he shall be exempt from jury duty.

Note.

Source: Article VIII, section 14:

"District election boards shall consist of a judge and two inspectors, who shall be chosen annually by the citizens. Each elector shall have the right to vote for the judge and one inspector, and each inspector shall appoint one clerk. The first election board for any new district shall be selected, and vacancies in election boards filled, as shall be provided by law. Election officers shall be privileged from arrest upon days of election, and while engaged in making up and transmitting returns, except upon warrant of a court of record or judge thereof, for an election fraud, for felony, or for wanton breach of the peace. In cities they may claim exemption from jury duty during their terms of service.

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Amendment: As proposed the election boards will be chosen biennially (at the municipal elections. See Article VII, section 1) instead of annually. At the present time the practice is to elect the members of election boards biennially. In spite of the wording of this section in the present constitution, the practice may be justified. Article XII, section 1 of the present constitution (Amendment of November 2, 1909), provides that "elections of local officers shall be held on a municipal election day." Article VIII, section 3, of the present constitution (Amendment of November 4, 1903), speaks of the municipal election day as "in each odd-numbered year," and the schedule to the amendments of 1909 provides: "After the year 1910, * * * all terms of * * * election division officers shall begin on the first Monday of December in an odd-numbered year."

Changes in Style: Beginning the section with the declaration that "In each election district there shall be an election board" makes the style of the section conform to that of Article V, section 8 and other sections in which provision is made for certain officers in each district.

Overseers of Elections.

Section 8. The courts of common pleas shall appoint two persons of different political parties, qualified to serve on an election board, to be overseers of election in a district on petition of five electors of the county setting forth that such appointment is a reasonable precaution to secure the purity and fairness of the election. All the judges of the court able to act at the time shall concur in the appointment.

The overseers of election, if they shall agree, shall decide any question with respect to the conduct of the election on which the members of the election board shall differ.

Note.

Source: Article VIII, section 16:

"The courts of common pleas of the several counties of the commonwealth shall have power, within their respective jurisdiction, to appoint overseers of election to supervise the proceedings of election officers and to make report to the court as may be required; such appointments to be made for any district in a city or county upon petition of five citizens, lawful voters of such election district, setting forth that such appointment is a reasonable precaution to secure the purity and fairness of elections; overseers shall be two in number for an election district, shall be residents therein, and shall be persons qualified to serve upon election boards, and in each case members of different political parties; whenever the members of an election board shall differ in opinion the overseers, if they shall be agreed thereon, shall decide the question of difference; in appointing overseers of election all the law judges of the proper court, able to act at the time, shall concur in the appointments made."

Changes in Substance: (1) The petitioners and overseers are not required to be residents of the district, because conditions may make this impossible even though the appointment of overseers may be urgently necessary.

(2) The petitioners must be "electors." In Article VIII, section 16, of the present constitution, the petitioners must be "citizens."

Clarifying Changes: Under the wording of the corresponding section in the present constitution, it is uncertain whether the court can only appoint overseers on the petition of five citizens, or whether the court can also appoint on its own motion. The wording suggested adopts the first of these alternatives.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Time of Holding Elections.

Section 9. The general election shall be held in each even-numbered year and the municipal election shall be held in each odd-numbered year. Each shall be held on the Tuesday next following the first Monday in November unless, with the consent of two-thirds of the members of each house of the general assembly, a different day shall be prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: (1) Article VIII, section 2 (Amendment of November 2, 1909):

"The general election shall be held biennially on the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each even-numbered year, but the general assembly may by law fix a different day, two-thirds of all the members of each house consenting thereto: Provided, That such election shall always be held in an even-numbered year."

(2) Part of Article VIII, section 3:

"* * * All elections for" (certain officers enumerated) "shall be held on the municipal election day; namely, the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each odd-numbered year, but the general assembly may by law fix a different day, two-thirds of all the members of each house consenting thereto: Provided, That such elections shall always be held in an odd-numbered year. * * *"

(See Article VII, section 1, infra, for the offices filled at a general and the offices filled at a municipal election.)

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Secrecy in Voting.

Section 10. Elections by the citizens shall be by ballot or by other methods as prescribed by law. Whatever the method adopted, secrecy in voting shall be preserved.

Note.

Source: Article VIII, section 4, which reads as follows:

"All elections by the citizens shall be by ballot or by such other method as may be prescribed by law: Provided, That secrecy in voting be preserved." (Amendment of November 5, 1901.)

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes. The wording suggested makes it certain that secrecy in voting shall be preserved when the method of voting is by ballot. The constitutions of 1790 and 1838 required all elections to be by ballot. Secrecy in the voting was not specifically provided for. In the present constitution the voting can be by ballot or by such other method as may be prescribed by law. The concluding words of the section in the present constitution—"provided that secrecy in voting be preserved"—requires that secret voting be preserved when another method of voting than by ballot is adopted. It may also require secrecy when the method of voting by ballot is used. This however, is only an inference.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Trial of Contested Elections.

Section 11. The courts shall determine in the first instance contested elections of members of the general assembly, of governor, and of lieutenant-governor. They shall finally determine all other contested elections. Laws shall be enacted designating the courts and judges by whom the several classes of election contests shall be tried, and regulating the manner of trial and matters incident thereto. No law assigning jurisdiction, or regulating its exercise, shall apply to a contest arising out of an election held before its enactment.

Note.

Source: Article VIII, section 17:

"The trial and determination of contested elections of electors of president and vice president, members of the general assembly, and of all public officers, whether state, judicial, municipal or local, shall be by the courts of law, or by one or more of the law judges thereof; the general assembly shall, by general law, designate the courts and the judges by whom the several classes of election contests shall be tried, and regulate the manner of trial and all matters incident thereto; but no such law assigning jurisdiction, or regulating its exercise, shall apply to any contest arising out of an election held before its passage."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: There is apparently a direct conflict in the present constitution between the provisions of this section and those of Article II, section 9, which provides: "Each house * * * shall judge of the election and qualification of its members." The conflict was referred to in the debates of the constitutional convention of 1873. Mr. D. N. White said: "I hope this simple statement of the case that it is in contradiction to what we have already fixed in the constitution will be sufficient to insure its being voted down." (Constitutional Debates, Vol. V, page 64.) It was not voted down, however, and when it came before the convention at a later date no reference was made to its contradiction with other provisions of the constitution. There is also apparently a direct conflict between the provisions of this section and those of Article IV, section 2, of the present constitution, which provides that contested elections of governor and lieutenant-governor shall be determined by a committee selected from both houses of the general assembly. (Article IV, section 17, of the present constitution, provides that the chief justice of the supreme court shall preside at the trial.) In the contested election of McNeill, 111 Pa. 235, the Supreme Court held that Article VIII, section 17, of the present constitution, did not take from each house the power given by Article II, section 9, to judge of the election and qualification of its members, and that the purpose of Article VIII, section 17, is merely to provide a method for procuring and presenting to the respective house the evidence and information necessary for an intelligent decision, and to secure early action.

The provisions of the section proposed do away with these apparent conflicts in the present constitution and follow the established practice as sanctioned by the Supreme court in the contested election of McNeill.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Election by Representative Bodies.

Section 12. Election by representative bodies shall be viva voce.

Note.

Source: Article VIII, section 12:

"All elections by persons in a representative capacity shall be viva voce."

ARTICLE VII.

PUBLIC SERVANTS.

Preliminary Note.

Source: This article covers the subjects in the present constitution treated under Article VI, Impeachment and Removal from office; article VII, Oath of Office; Article

XII, Public Officers; as well as those parts of other articles containing general rules applicable to all or to a class of public servants.

Many of the provisions relating to these subjects are scattered throughout the constitution, as, for instance, the provisions in regard to incompatible offices, disqualifications from holding office, and removal of officers in other ways than impeachment. It is not necessary to emphasize the convenience and greater certainty resulting from bringing together in one article all the provisions relating to these subjects.

Title: The title "Public Servants" has been adopted because the subject matter of some of the sections in the article includes employes as well as officers.

Arrangement: The order of subjects is as follows:

Times of election—section 1.
Incompatible officers and disqualification from holding office—sections 2 and 3.
Oath of office—section 4.
Term and salary—section 5.
Impeachment and removal—sections 6 and 7.
Appointments and promotions—section 8.
Bribery—section 9.

Times of Elections.

Section 1. Judges elected by the electors of the commonwealth at large may be elected at general or municipal elections as prescribed by law.

Other officers elected by the electors of the commonwealth at large shall be elected at general elections.

Officers not elected by electors of the commonwealth at large shall be elected at municipal elections.

Special election days to fill unexpired terms may be prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: (1) Part of Article VIII, section 3:

"All judges elected by the electors of the state at large may be elected at either a general or municipal election, as circumstances may require. All elections for judges of the courts of the several judicial districts, and for county, city, ward, borough, and township officers, for regular terms of service, shall be held on the municipal election day; * * *" (Amendment of November 4, 1913.)

(2) Part of Article XII, section 1:

"* * * elections of state officers shall be held on a general election day and elections of local officers shall be held on municipal election day, except when, in either case, special elections may be required to fill unexpired terms." (Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: In the present constitution there is a conflict between the provisions of Article XII, section 1, for the election of "state officers" at general elections, and the provisions of Article VIII, section 3, for the election of "judges" at municipal elections. The language of the section proposed permits the election of judges elected by the electors of the commonwealth at large on either a municipal or a general election day.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Incompatible Offices.

Section 2. No person shall be a member of the general assembly or shall hold under the state government or under a municipality an office or place of trust or profit in respect of which he shall receive compensation, if he is a member of the congress or if he holds under the United States an office or place of trust or profit in respect of which he shall receive compensation.

No person who holds the office of governor or, except as expressly provided in this constitution, of lieutenant-governor shall hold under the state government or under a municipality another office of trust or profit.

No person who holds under the state government the office of judge learned in the law shall hold under a municipality an office or place of trust or profit in respect of which he shall receive compensation.

No member of the general assembly shall, during the term for which he has been elected, hold under the state government or under a municipality an appointive office or place of trust or profit.

The office of attorney-at-law and office in the militia shall not be deemed an office or place of trust or profit within the meaning of this section.

Laws may be enacted declaring what other offices or places of trust or profit are incompatible with each other or with membership in the general assembly.

Note.

Source: The first paragraph covers that part of Article XI, section 2, of the present constitution which provides:

"No member of congress from this state, or any person holding or exercising any office or appointment of trust or profit under the United States, shall at the same time hold or exercise any office in this state to which a salary, fees or perquisites shall be attached. * * *

and also that part of Article IV, section 6 of the present constitution which provides:

"No member of congress or person holding any office under the United States or this state shall exercise the office of governor or lieutenant-governor."

and also that part of Article II, section 6, which provides:

"* * * No member of congress or other person holding any office (except of attorney-at-law or in the militia) under the United States or this commonwealth shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office."

and also that part of Article V, section 18, which provides:

"The justices of the supreme court, the judges of the superior court and the judges of the several courts of common pleas, and all other judges required to be learned in the law, * * * shall receive no other compensation * * * nor hold any other office of profit under the United States, this state or any other state."

The second paragraph covers that part of Article IV, section 6, of the present constitution which provides:

"No * * * person holding any office under * * * this state shall exercise the office of governor or lieutenant-governor."

The third paragraph covers that part of Article V, section 18, which provides:

"No person shall be qualified to serve as an election officer who shall hold, or shall within two months have held, any office, appointment or employment in or under the government * * * of this state, or of any city, or county, or of any municipal board, commission or trust in any city, save only justices of the peace and aldermen, notaries public and persons in the militia service of the state. * * *"

The fourth paragraph covers that part of Article II, section 6, of the present constitution which provides:

"No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he shall have been elected, be appointed to any civil office under this commonwealth. * * *"

The fifth paragraph covers that part of Article II, section 6, of the present constitution which provides:

"No * * * person holding any office (except of attorney-at-law or in the militia) under the United States or this commonwealth shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office."

The sixth paragraph covers that part of Article XI, section 2, of the present constitution which provides:

"* * * The general assembly may by law declare what offices are incompatible."

Changes in Substance: (1) The governor or lieutenant-governor may hold an office of trust or profit to which no compensation is attached under the United States or the state government or under a municipality.

(2) The provisions of the present constitution (Article VIII, section 15), in respect to election officers, are omitted.

Clarifying Changes: (1) It is not clear, under Article II, section 6, of the present constitution, what is the exact meaning of "civil office under this commonwealth," to which members of the general assembly cannot be appointed. Is every public office except a military office a "civil office," or are executive offices, only, "civil offices"? Does "commonwealth" mean state government, or does it include both state and municipal governments?

The section as proposed prevents a member of the general assembly, during the term for which he was elected, from "holding any office or place of trust or profit under the state or a municipal government."

(2) It is made clear that the office of attorney-at-law or an office in the militia is not an office of trust or profit within the meaning of the section.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Disqualifications From Holding Office.

Section 3. No person shall be a member of the general assembly or shall hold, under the state government or under a municipality, an office or place of trust or profit if he has

- (a) Been convicted of embezzlement of public money, of bribery, of attempted bribery, of perjury or other infamous crime, or of fraud in connection with an election while a candidate for office or of wilful violation of an election law while a candidate for office;
- (b) Been convicted of having within five years, being a member of the general assembly or an officer of the state government, used the money of the state government for an unauthorized purpose or made a profit therefrom;
- (c) Been convicted upon impeachment;
- (d) Served as an election officer at the election at which such position of member of the general assembly or office or place of trust or profit was filled, except in the case of such municipal offices, other than county or city offices, as may be prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: Clause (a) includes (1) Article II, section 7, which provides:

"No person hereafter convicted of embezzlement of public moneys, bribery, perjury or other infamous crime shall be eligible to the general assembly or capable of holding any office of trust or profit in this commonwealth."

Also (2) that part of Article III, section 32, which provides:

"* * * any person convicted of either of the offenses aforesaid" (i. e., bribery or corrupt solicitation) "shall, as part of the punishment therefor, be disqualified from holding any office or position of honor, trust or profit in this commonwealth."

And (3) that part of Article VIII, section 9, which provides:

"Any person who shall, while a candidate for office, be guilty of bribery, fraud or wilful violation of any election law, shall be forever disqualified from holding an office of trust or profit in this commonwealth; and any person convicted of wilful violation of the election laws shall, in addition to any penalties provided by law, be deprived of the right of suffrage absolutely for a term of four years."

This specifically disqualifies a person from holding public office who has been guilty of bribery and is a duplication of Article II, section 7, of the present constitution, which has been transferred to this clause.

Clause (b) includes that part of Article IX, section 14, which provides:

"The making of profit out of public moneys or using the same for any purpose not authorized by law by any officer of the state, or member or officer of the general assembly * * * but part of such punishment shall be disqualification to hold office for a period of not less than five years."

Clause (c) includes (1) that part of Article VI, section 3, which provides:

"* * * but judgment in such cases" (cases of impeachment) "shall not extend further than to removal from office and disqualification to hold any office of trust or profit under this commonwealth. * * *"

The wording of the clause as herein suggested would make it certain that conviction on impeachment of its own force disqualifies a person impeached, convicted and removed from office from thereafter holding any office of trust or profit. (See Recommendations of Change in Substance [1], infra.)

The clause also covers (2) that part of Article VIII, section 1, which provides:

"* * * any person" (i. e., a member of the general assembly, officers of the state government and county officers) "who shall be convicted of having * * * violated said oath or affirmation" (oath of office) "shall be * * * forever disqualified from holding any office of trust or profit within this commonwealth. * * *"

We are of the opinion that no officer can be convicted of having violated his oath of office except by the process of impeachment. In other words, that there is no common law crime of "violation of oath of office" for which a person can be indicted and convicted, and therefore that the part of Article VII, section 1 of the present constitution, quoted is a duplication of the provisions of Article VI, section 3, of the present constitution which, as here explained, are covered by clause (c), as proposed.

Indeed, the provisions, in the present constitution, of Article VII, section 1, in respect to disqualifications, are not as wide as those in Article VI, section 3. Under Article VI, section 3, of the present constitution, a municipal officer may be impeached and convicted and if so impeached and convicted, is disqualified from holding any office of trust or profit. Under Article VII, section 1, only members of the general assembly, state officers and county officers, being impeached and convicted, are disqualified from holding any place of trust or profit.

Clause (d) includes that part of Article VIII, section 15, which provides:

"* * * nor shall any election officer be eligible to any civil office to be filled at an election at which he shall serve, save only to such subordinate municipal or local offices, below the grade of city or county offices, as shall be designated by general law."

(For explanation of wording of clause [d], see Clarifying Amendments [3].)

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: (1) In the present constitution, the wording of Article VI, section 3, leaves it uncertain whether conviction on impeachment and removal from office necessarily include disqualification from thereafter holding office. In clause (c), as proposed, conviction on impeachment carries with it this disqualification.

(2) In Article VI, section 3, of the present constitution, it is provided that the disqualification extends to holding an office of trust or profit "under this commonwealth." This leaves it uncertain whether a municipal office is an "office under the commonwealth." The same uncertainty exists in Article II, section 7, in Article III, section 32, in Article VI, section 1, and in Article VIII, section 9, of the present constitution. The wording of the section as proposed will make it certain that the disqualification extends to a municipal office as well as to an office under the state government.

(3) Article VIII, section 15, of the present constitution, provides that an election officer is not eligible to any "civil office" to be filled at an election at which he shall serve. Though, throughout the present constitution, the word "office" or the words "civil office" usually do not include a member of the general assembly, we believe that the intent of the drafters of Article VIII, section 15, as it appears in the present constitution, was to prevent an election officer being elected to the general assembly. This is not certain, however. Clause (d) as proposed makes it certain that a person who serves as an election officer is ineligible to a seat in the general assembly.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Official Oath.

Section 4. Members of the general assembly, officers of the state government and county officers shall, before entering on the duties of their offices, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support, obey and defend the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the commonwealth; and that I will discharge the duties of my office with fidelity."

The foregoing oath shall be administered by a person authorized to administer oaths. In the case of judges of the supreme court and of the superior court and of executive officers of the state government, the oath shall be filed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth. In the case of other judicial officers and of county officers, the oath shall be filed in the office of the prothonotary of the county in which it is taken. A person refusing to take such oath or affirmation shall forfeit his office. A person who shall be convicted of having sworn or affirmed falsely, or of having violated such oath or affirmation, shall be guilty of perjury, and shall be forever disqualified from holding any office of trust or profit in the commonwealth. The oath shall be administered to a member of the general assembly by a judge of the supreme court or of a court of common pleas, in the hall of the house to which the affiant has been elected.

Note.

Source: Article VII, section 1:

"Senators and representatives and all judicial state and county officers shall, before entering on the duties of their respective offices, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation: 'I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support, obey and defend the constitution of the United States and the constitution of this commonwealth; and that I will discharge the duties of my office with fidelity; that I have not paid or contributed, or promised to pay or contribute, either directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing to procure my nomination or election (or appointment), except for necessary and proper expenses expressly authorized by law; that I have not knowingly violated any election law of this commonwealth, or procured it to be done by others in my behalf; that I will not knowingly receive, directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing for the performance or non-performance of any act or duty pertaining to my office, other than the compensation allowed by law,'"

"The foregoing oath shall be administered by some person authorized to administer oaths, and in the case of state officers and judges of the supreme court, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth, and in the case of other judicial and county officers, in the office of the prothonotary of the county in which same is taken; any person refusing to take said oath or affirmation shall forfeit his office; and any person who shall be convicted of having sworn or affirmed falsely, or having violated said oath or affirmation, shall be guilty of perjury, and be forever disqualified from holding any office of trust or profit within this commonwealth. The oath to the members of the senate and house of representatives shall be administered by one of the judges of the supreme court or of a court of common pleas, learned in the law, in the hall of the house to which the members shall be elected."

Changes in Substance: (1) That part of the oath in the present constitution which requires the person to expressly state that he has not committed the crime of bribery to procure his appointment or election, or violated any election law is omitted. The Commission believe that the person who would commit these crimes would not hesitate to swear that he had not done so, and they also believe that the recital of these omitted provisions at present greatly detract from the solemnity and dignity of every occasion on which the oath of office is administered.

(2) The oaths of judges of the supreme court are required to be filed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth and not, as at present, in the office of the prothonotary of the county in which it is taken, and the oaths of the judges of the superior court are also required to be filed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Extension of Term and Change of Compensation.

Section 5. The term of a public officer shall not be extended and his compensation shall not be increased or decreased after his election or appointment except that the compensation of a judge required to be learned in the law may be increased.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 13:

"No law shall extend the term of any public officer, or increase or diminish his salary or emoluments, after his election or appointment."

Changes in Substance: The provision that a judge's salary may be increased but not diminished is new. Under the present constitution (Article III, section 13,) the salary of public officers can be neither increased nor diminished during his term. This has been held not to apply to judges (commonwealth vs. Cathues, 210 Pa. 372). The Commission believe that a judge's salary should not be diminished but that it should be possible to increase it, because a judge serves for a longer term than other public officers. As proposed by the Commission and in the present constitution, the terms of supreme court judges are twenty-one years, and of common pleas judges, ten years. The terms of superior court judges, as proposed, are twenty-one years. The recent great increase in the cost of living demonstrates the desirability of permitting the general assembly to apply an increase in the salaries of long-term offices to a present incumbent.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Impeachment.

Section 6. All officers of the state government shall be liable to impeachment for a misdemeanor in office. The power of impeachment shall be vested in the house of representatives. An impeachment shall be tried by the senate after each senator has been put on special oath or affirmation. The person impeached can be convicted only with the consent of two-thirds of the senators present. Such conviction shall operate to remove from office the person convicted and to disqualify him from holding a public office or place of trust or profit, but shall extend no further. The person impeached, whether acquitted or convicted, may be liable to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment as prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: (1) Article VI, section 1:

"The house of representatives shall have the sole power of impeachment."

(2) Article VI, section 2:

"All impeachments shall be tried by the senate; when sitting for that purpose the senators shall be upon oath or affirmation; no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present."

(3) Article VI, section 3:

"The governor and all other civil officers shall be liable to impeachment for any misdemeanor in office, but judgment in such cases shall not extend further than to removal from office and disqualification to hold any office of trust or profit under this commonwealth; the person accused, whether convicted or acquitted, shall nevertheless be liable to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: (1) In Article VI, section 3, of the present Constitution it is provided that all "civil officers" shall be liable to impeachment. It is uncertain whether "civil officers" include members of the general assembly, or the officers of a municipality. In the wording proposed, it is made certain that judges are and that municipal officers are not liable to impeachment by the house of representatives.

(2) Article VI, section 3 of the present constitution provides "but judgment in such cases shall not extend further than to removal from office." This leaves it uncertain whether conviction, of itself, removes from office. Under the wording proposed, it would be certain that conviction operated as a removal from office.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Removal Otherwise Than by Impeachment.

Section 7. An officer who shall be convicted of an infamous crime or of a crime the commission of which involves the violation of an obligation imposed on him as an officer, shall thereby forfeit his office and shall be otherwise punished as prescribed by law.

Appointed officers, other than judges of courts of record, may be removed at the pleasure of the appointing power.

Elected officers of the state government, except the governor, the lieutenant-governor, and judges of the courts of record, shall be removed by the governor for reasonable cause, after due notice and full hearing, on the address of two-thirds of the senate.

Judges of courts of record, other than the judges of the supreme and superior courts, may be removed by the governor for reasonable cause after due notice and full hearing on the address of two-thirds of each house of the general assembly.

Note.

Source: (1) Part of Article V, section 15:

"All judges required to be learned in the law, except the judges of the supreme court * * * for any reasonable cause, which shall not be sufficient ground for impeachment, the governor may remove any of them on the address of two-thirds of each house of the general assembly."

(2) Part of Article VI, section 4:

"All officers * * * shall be removed on conviction of misbehavior in office, or of any infamous crime. Appointed officers, other than judges of the courts of record and the superintendent of public instruction, may be removed at the pleasure of the power by which they shall have been appointed. All officers elected by the people except governor, lieutenant-governor, members of the general assembly and judges of the courts of record learned in the law, shall be removed by the governor for reasonable cause, after due notice and full hearing on the address of two-thirds of the senate."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: The expression in the present constitution (Article VI, section 4), "conviction of misbehavior in office," is without meaning. There is no such crime as "misbehavior in office," either at common law or by statute. The wording of the first paragraph of the section as proposed probably expresses the meaning intended in the present constitution.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Appointments and Promotions.

Section 8. Appointments and promotions in the civil service of the state government and of municipalities shall be according to merit and fitness to be ascertained, so far as practicable, by competitive examination.

Note.

Source: The section is entirely new. The Commission believes that the principle expressed is of such fundamental importance that it should find a place in the constitution.

Bribery.

Section 9. A member of the general assembly, or an officer or employe of the state government or of a municipality, who shall receive or agree to offer or receive for himself or for another any money, office, appointment, employment, testimonial, reward, thing of value or enjoyment, or of personal advantage or promise thereof to influence the performance of a public duty, or a person who shall give or promise or offer to give any money, or thing of value, testimonial, privilege, or personal advantage to a member of the general assembly or to an officer or employe of the state government or of a municipality, to influence him in the performance of a public duty, shall be guilty of bribery, and shall be punished as prescribed by law.

In a prosecution for bribery or attempted bribery, or in an investigation thereof, no witness except the accused shall be permitted to withhold his testimony on the ground that it may criminate him or subject him to infamy. Such testimony shall not afterwards be used against the witness in a judicial proceeding except in a prosecution for perjury in giving such testimony.

Note.

Source: (1) Article III, section 29:

"A member of the general assembly who shall solicit, demand, or receive, or consent to receive, directly or indirectly, for himself or for another, from any company, corporation, or person, any money, office, appointment, employment, testimonial, reward, thing of value or enjoyment, or of personal advantage, or promise thereof, for his vote or official influence, or for withholding the same, or with an understanding, expressed or implied, that his vote or official action shall be in any way influenced thereby, or who shall solicit or demand any such money or other advantage, matter or thing aforesaid for another, as the consideration of his vote or official influence, or for withholding the same, or shall give or withhold his vote or influence in consideration of the payment or promise of such money, advantage, matter or thing, to another, shall be held guilty of bribery within the meaning of this constitution, and shall incur the disabilities provided thereby for said offense, and such additional punishment as is or shall be provided by law."

(2) Article III, section 30:

"Any person who shall, directly or indirectly, offer, give, or promise, any money, or thing of value, testimonial, privilege, or personal advantage, to any executive or judicial officer, or member of the general assembly, to influence him in the performance of any of his public or official duties, shall be guilty of bribery and be punished in such manner as shall be provided by law.

(3) Article III, section 31:

"The offense of corrupt solicitation of members of the general assembly or of public officers of the state or of any municipal division thereof, and any occupation or practice of solicitation of such members or officers to influence their official action, shall be defined by law and shall be punished by fine and imprisonment.

(4) Part of Article III, section 32:

"Any person may be compelled to testify in any lawful investigation or judicial proceeding against any person who may be charged with having committed the offense of bribery or corrupt solicitation, or practices of solicitation, and shall not be permitted to withhold his testimony upon the ground that it may criminate himself or subject him to public infamy; but such testimony shall not afterwards be used against him in any judicial proceeding, except for perjury in giving such testimony.

Changes in Substance: The present constitution covers corrupt behavior of a member of the general assembly (Article III, section 29), and the corrupt behavior of any person who bribes or tries to bribe "any executive or judicial officer or member of the general assembly" (Section 30). It fails to cover the corrupt behavior of "officers of the state government or of a municipality." The section as proposed corrects this omission and also covers bribery of employes as well as of officers.

Clarifying Changes: The provision in Article III, section 32 of the present constitution that "any person may be compelled to testify * * * against any person" in a bribery case has been assumed to refer only to witnesses other than the accused. The common-law principle that no man can be compelled to give evidence which will criminate him is in force in Pennsylvania and is embodied in the Act of May 23, 1887, P. L. 158. So far as an accused person is concerned, it has been expressed in the bill of rights, Article I, section 9, which provide that "in all criminal prosecutions the accused * * * cannot be compelled to give evidence against himself." So far as mere witnesses are concerned, there are two exceptions to the general rule; one in bribery cases, Article III, section 32, of the present constitution, included in this section, and the other in election cases, Article VIII, section 10, of the present constitution, Article VI, section 5, as proposed. The Commission have assumed that the exception with respect to bribery is not intended to conflict with the bill of rights and have therefore limited it to witnesses other than the accused.

Changes in Style: The proposed section contains in much briefer form the substance of those sections of the present constitution from which it is derived.

ARTICLE VIII

TAXATION AND FINANCE.

Preliminary Note.

Source: Article IX of the present constitution.

Arrangement: The order of subjects is as follows:

Taxation—sections 1, 2, 3.

Debt of the state government—section 4.

Pledging the credit of the state government—sections 6 to 8, inclusive.

Reserve funds of the state government—section 9.

Restrictions in regard to the paying out of public money—section 10.

Punishment for misuse of moneys of the state government—section 11.

Method of Taxation.

Section 1. Taxes shall be levied and collected only as prescribed by general law. A tax shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects within the territorial limits of the taxing authority, except that an income or a decedent's estate below a minimum prescribed by law may be exempted from income and inheritance taxes.

Laws may be enacted providing for the levying and collecting of a special tax on anthracite coal when prepared for market. An appropriation not exceeding the amount of the proceeds of such tax may be made by law for the relief of persons, corporations, associations and municipalities injured or damaged by surface subsidence resulting from past or future mining of anthracite coal.

Note.

Source: Part of Article IX, section 1:

"All taxes shall be uniform, upon the same class of subjects, within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax, and shall be levied and collected under general laws; * * *

Changes in Substance: (1) An income or a decedent's estate below a minimum prescribed by law may be exempted from income and inheritance taxes. The Supreme Court has held that such exemption is not permitted under the present constitution, except in the case of the collateral inheritance tax collected under a law enacted before the constitution became effective (Cope's Estate, 191 Pa. 1). The Commission believe that the enactment of laws exempting small incomes and small estates from such taxes should be permitted. The majority of the Commission do not regard it as desirable to permit graduated income or inheritance taxes.

(2) The Commission visited the City of Scranton and saw the conditions created by mine cave-ins. They believe those conditions present problems of grave importance. The second paragraph of the section as proposed is recommended for adoption to make possible a solution of the practical problems presented which will be fair to the public and the persons and corporations especially affected.

Changes in Style: In the present constitution the part of Article IX, section 1, embodied in this section ends with the words "and shall be levied and collected under general laws." As uniformity is provided for in the first part of the section, the only possible meaning to attach to the words quoted would appear to be the prohibition against levying and collecting taxes by executive order. This is a very important provision and therefore we have made it the subject of the opening sentence of the revised section.

The provision that "a reasonable exemption from inheritance taxes may be allowed" limits the rule of uniformity only. It does not limit the rule that "taxes must be levied and collected as prescribed by law." For this reason we have transposed the order of these clauses.

The substance of the last clause of Article IX, section 1, of the present constitution has been transferred to section 2, of this article.

Exemption From Taxation.

Section 2. Laws may exempt from taxation only public property used for public purposes, places used for religious worship, places of burial not used or held for private profit, and institutions of purely public charity. Private property used for a part or all of the time for educational purposes shall only be exempted if the basic language of instruction is English and if the educational standards are as high as in the public institutions with which it is intended to compete.

Note.

Source: (1) Part of Article IX, section 1:

"* * * the general assembly may, by general laws, exempt from taxation public property used for public purposes, actual places of religious worship, places of burial not used or held for private or corporate profit, and institutions of purely public charity."

(2) Article IX, section 2:

"All laws exempting property from taxation, other than the property above enumerated, shall be void."

Changes in Substance: Article IX, section 2, in the present constitution, permits exemptions where the property is used for an educational purpose by institutions of purely public charity. The concluding sentence of the section suggested makes it possible for laws to exempt only (a) if the corporation, association or institution using the property for a part or all of the time for educational purposes employes English as "the principal language of instruction," and (b) "if the educational standards are as high as in the public institutions with which it is intended to compete." Your Commission believe that private educational efforts should be discouraged when they tend to prevent persons from acquiring a knowledge of the English language, or give an education inferior to that which they would obtain in the public schools. (Compare Article XI, section 6, as proposed.)

The words "for a part or all of the time" have been used to prevent exemption from taxation being given property used for a school where a foreign language is employed as the principal language of instruction or the standard of instruction is below that of the public schools, on the ground that it is also used for and therefore it is place of religious worship.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

The requirement that all exemptions must be by general laws is omitted because covered by Article III, section 20, clause (c).

Power to Tax not to be Surrendered.

Section 3. The power to tax shall not be surrendered or suspended by contract or grant.

Note.

Source: Article IX, section 3:

"The power to tax corporations and corporate property shall not be surrendered or suspended by any contract or grant to which the state shall be a party."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: Under the wording of the present constitution, it may be regarded as doubtful whether a municipality can or cannot surrender its power to tax. Under the wording proposed by the Commission, this doubt is removed. The section as worded is not limited in its application to the state government.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Limitation on State Debt.

Section 4. A debt shall be created by the state government only to supply casual deficiencies or revenue not exceeding one million dollars, to repel invasion, to suppress insurrection, to defend the commonwealth in war, to pay existing debts, to improve and rebuild highways in the state and to acquire land in the state for forest purposes. A debt for highways shall not be incurred in excess of one hundred and fifty million dollars, or for forest purposes in excess of twenty-five million dollars. A debt for highway or forest purposes shall be created only with the consent of two-thirds of each house of the general assembly and with the consent of a majority of the electors of the commonwealth voting on the question; except that the adoption of this constitution by the electors shall be taken to authorize a law providing for the issuance of bonds for forest purposes not in excess of three million, one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars annually for eight years.

Note.

Source: Article IX, section 4 (Amendment of Nov. 5, 1918):

"No debt shall be created by or on behalf of the state, except to supply casual deficiencies of revenue, repel invasion, suppress insurrection, defend the state in war or to pay existing debt; created to supply deficiencies in revenue shall never exceed in the aggregate, at any one time, one million dollars: Provided, however, That the general assembly, irrespective of any debt, may authorize the state to issue bonds to the amount of fifty millions of dollars for the purpose of improving and rebuilding the highways of the commonwealth."

Changes in Substance: (1) The amount which can be borrowed for highways is increased from fifty million to one hundred and fifty millions of dollars.

(2) A debt not exceeding twenty-five million dollars may be created for forest purposes.

(3) A bill authorizing a debt to improve and rebuild highways or for forest purposes must be passed by a two-thirds vote of the members elected to each house and must also receive the consent of a majority of the electors of the commonwealth voting on the question, except that the adoption of the proposed constitution by the electors shall be taken to authorize a law providing for the issuance of bonds for forest purposes not in excess of three million, one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars annually for eight years.

Changes in Style: Article IX, section 4, of the present constitution (Amendment of November 5, 1918), provides that "No debt shall be created by or on behalf of the state government." We have omitted the words "on behalf of" because a debt of the state government can be created only by an authorized agent of the state government and when created by such agent is created by the state government.

Law Shall State Purpose of Loan.

Section 5. A law authorizing the borrowing of money by the state government shall specify the purpose of the loan. The money borrowed shall be used only for such purpose.

Note.

Source: Article IX, section 5:

"All laws, authorizing the borrowing of money by and on behalf of the state, shall specify the purpose for which the money is to be used, and the money so borrowed shall be used for the purpose specified and no other."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Amortization of State Debt.

Section 6. The state government shall not incur a debt maturing more than fifty years thereafter.

If serial bonds are issued for a debt, the aggregate amount of principal and interest payable in respect to the debt in any year shall not be less than the amount payable in any later year.

If serial bonds are not issued, the state government shall maintain by law a sinking fund sufficient to pay the accruing interest on such debt and annually to reduce the principal by a sum not less than three per centum of such principal. The money of the sinking fund shall be invested only in the bonds of the United States or of the state government.

Note

Source: (1) Article IX, section 11:

"To provide for the payment of the present state debt, and any additional debt contracted as aforesaid, the general assembly shall continue and maintain the sinking fund sufficient to pay the accruing interest on such debt, and annually to reduce the principal thereof by a sum not less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; the said sinking fund shall consist of the proceeds of the sales of the public works or any part thereof, and of the income or proceeds of the sale of any stocks owned by the commonwealth, together with other funds and resources that may be designated by law; and shall be increased from time to time by assigning to it any part of the taxes or other revenues of the state not required for the ordinary and current expenses of government; and unless in case of war, invasion or insurrection, no part of the said sinking fund shall be used or applied otherwise than in the extinguishment of the public debt."

(2) Article IX, section 12:

"* * * and the moneys of the sinking fund shall never be invested or loaned upon the security of anything, except the bonds of the United States or of this state."

Changes in Substance: (1) The section as proposed limits the date of maturity of a debt of the state government to a period of not more than fifty years. The useful life of the average public improvement does not exceed that time. The fifty-year period corresponds to the provision which has been adopted for municipal debts. (See Article XIII, section 18). Furthermore, as the state government is permitted, by the proposed constitution, to issue serial bonds, it is necessary to state in the constitution the maximum life which may be given to the longest bond in the series.

(2) It permits the state government to discard the sinking fund method of amortization and adopt the more modern and, your Commission believe, the better method of issuing bonds a definite fraction of which shall fall due each year.

(3) The provisions in the present constitution and in the section as adopted by the Commission, attempting to direct what the sinking fund shall consist of, are omitted. As worded, the present provisions raise several important questions which it is not easy to answer. Thus, it is stated that the sinking fund is to consist of the income or proceeds of the sale of stocks owned by the state government. Is this confined to stocks acquired by purchase by the state government? If it is not, suppose A dies and leaves a specific legacy of designated stocks to the state: Do the income or proceeds of the sale of these stocks have to be paid into the sinking fund? It is entirely clear that the proceeds of the sale of the stock by an administrator where the state escheats to the commonwealth do not have to be paid into the sinking fund. If they did have to be paid into the sinking fund, there is a conflict between the provisions of this section and Article XI, section 5, which requires that all money derived from escheated estates shall become part of the state school fund. The present constitution also provides that the sinking fund shall be increased from time to time by assigning to it any part of the taxes or other revenue of the state government not required for the "ordinary and current expenses of government." Is it entirely clear that the proceeds of a special tax levied for an extraordinary purpose—as to build a bridge across the Delaware—would not have to be paid into the sinking fund as not being an ordinary and current expense? If the words "ordinary and current" are to have any meaning what is their meaning?—except an expression of the principle that so long as there are state debts to be paid no revenue can be raised for what the supreme court might regard as an extraordinary purpose.

Even if the intent of the provisions could be made plain, your Committee do not regard it as desirable that the constitution should attempt to designate the nature of the assets of the sinking fund.

(4) The requirement in Article IX, section 11 of the present constitution, that the sinking fund shall be sufficient to pay accruing interest on the debt and reduce the principal by $250,000, has been changed so as to require the reduction of the principal by three per centum annually.

(5) In the present constitution the sinking fund may be used for purposes other than the reduction of the public debt, in case of war, invasion or insurrection. The suggested section omits these exceptions.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

State Credit Not to be Pledged.

Section 7. The state government shall not pledge or lend its credit to an individual, corporation or association and shall not become a stockholder or an owner in a corporation or association.

Note.

Source: Article IX, section 6:

"The credit of the commonwealth shall not be pledged or loaned to any individual, company, corporation or association, nor shall the commonwealth become a joint owner or stockholder in any company, association or corporation."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: Under the wording of Article IX, section 6 in the present constitution, prohibiting the commonwealth from becoming a "joint owner or stockholder" it is not entirely clear whether the word "joint" is intended to qualify the word "owner" and the word "stockholder." If it does, it would follow that the state government could become the sole owner of all the stock of a corporation but could not become the owner of part of the stock and thus share responsibility with private owners. We believe the re-wording suggested, which, by omitting the word "joint," makes it clear that the state government shall not own the stock or other evidence of ownership of a corporation or an incorporated association, expresses a fundamental rule which should not be subject to possible qualifications.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Municipal Debt Not to be Assumed by State.

Section 8. The state government shall not assume the debt of a municipality unless contracted to enable the commonwealth to repel invasion, to suppress insurrection or to defend itself in war.

Note.

Source: Article IX, section 9:

"The commonwealth shall not assume the debt, or any part thereof, of any city, county, borough or township, unless such debt shall have been contracted to enable the state to repel invasion, suppress domestic insurrection, defend itself in time of war, or to assist the state in the discharge of any portion of its present indebtedness."

Changes in Substance: The use of the word "municipality" in the proposed section, instead of "city, county, borough or township," applies the principle enumerated in the section to any municipality, as "municipality" is defined in Article XIII, section 1.

Changes in Style: Article IX, section 9 of the present constitution, provides that the state may assume the debt of a "city, county, borough or township" when the debt has been contracted "to assist the state in the discharge of any portion of its present indebtedness." This has been omitted as obsolete. No part of the present indebtedness of any municipality has been contracted for such a purpose.

The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Reserve Funds.

Section 9. The money held as necessary reserve by the state government shall be limited by law to the amount required for current expenses and shall be secured and kept as prescribed by law. Monthly statements shall be published showing the amount of such money, where it is deposited, and how it is secured.

Note.

Source: Article IX, section 13:

"The moneys held as necessary reserve shall be limited by law to the amount required for current expenses, and shall be secured and kept as may be provided by law. Monthly statements shall be published showing the amount of such moneys, where the same are deposited, and how secured."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Paying Out Public Money.

Section 10. Money shall be paid out of the state treasury only on appropriations made by law and on warrant by the proper officer in pursuance thereof.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 16:

"No money shall be paid out of the treasury, except upon appropriations made by law, and on warrant by the proper officer in pursuance thereof."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Misuse of Public Moneys.

Section 11. An officer or an employe of the state government or of a municipality or a member of the general assembly who shall make or attempt to make a profit out of the money of the state government or of a municipality or shall use it for an unauthorized purpose, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished as prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: Part of Article IX, section 14:

"The making of profit out of the public moneys or using the same for any purpose not authorized by law by any officer of the state, or member or officer of the general assembly, shall be a misdemeanor and shall be punished as may be provided by law, * * *"

Changes in Substance: The principle expressed in Article IX, section 4 of the present constitution has been extended to "employees."

Clarifying Changes: (1) Under the present constitution, it is not clear whether "public moneys" include moneys belonging to a municipality or only moneys of the state government. Again it is not clear whether "officer of the state" includes any officer who is not an officer of the state government. In view of the fact that, in the present constitution this section follows a section which evidently deals exclusively with money of the state government, it is probable that the drafters of the section intended to confine its provisions to officers of the state government misusing state money. As proposed, the section is worded so as to include the officers of a municipality.

(2) It is made clear that an attempt to make a profit is covered by this section.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

The last part of Article IX, section 14, of the present constitution, referring to a disqualification for holding office has been transferred to Article VII, section 3.

ARTICLE IX. CORPORATIONS.

Preliminary Note.

Source: Article XVI of the present constitution, in so far as the provisions of that article relate to all private corporations and are not special regulations of public utilities.

Title: Article XVI of the present constitution is entitled "Private Corporations." The Commission have entitled this article "Corporations" because, except where specially limited by the wording of the section to a particular class of corporations, the provisions relate to all corporations, whether or not they are engaged in the operation of a public facility, as a railroad or a telegraph. Furthermore, since the word "corporation" is used throughout the proposed constitution as defined in this article, section 13, and is never used as including "municipal corporations," it is not necessary to indicate in the title to this article that such public corporations are not included.

Arrangement: The order of subjects is as follows:

- Corporate powers—section 1.
- Corporate securities—section 2 to 4 inclusive.
- Corporate elections—section 5.
- Foreign corporations—section 6.
- Miscellaneous—sections 7 to 12 inclusive.
- Definition—section 13.

Corporate Powers.

Section 1. A corporation shall engage only in the business authorized by its charter.

Note.

Source: Article XVI, section 6:

"No corporation shall engage in any business other than that expressly authorized in its charter, nor shall it take or hold any real estate except such as may be necessary and proper for its legitimate business."

Changes in Substance: The provision in the present constitution that a corporation cannot hold any real estate except such as may be necessary and proper for its business has been omitted because if it only means that a corporation cannot hold any real estate for the purpose of engaging in a business not authorized by its charter, such holding is prevented by the wording of the section herein suggested. If the wording of the present constitution may be interpreted as preventing a corporation holding for its future use in its authorized business more property than it is actually using in its business at the moment, the provision is harmful, because it prevents persons carrying on business in corporate form from acting in the conduct of their business as ordinary prudent business men should act, in that it prevents them from securing sufficient real estate to anticipate what they may reasonably expect to be the needs of their business.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Stocks and Bonds.

Section 2. Subject to such regulations as to issue and sale as may be prescribed by law or by an agency established by law, shares of stock may be issued with or without par value. Shares of stock having par value shall be issued as full paid only for the equivalent of such par value in money, labor done or property received, except that a corporation may issue additional full paid shares as prescribed by law or by an agency created by law, for a consideration in money, labor done or property equal to the current market value of its shares theretofore issued. Neither the stock nor the indebtedness of corporations shall be increased except in pursuance of general law or without the consent of the holders of the larger amount in value of the stock first obtained at a meeting to be held after thirty days' notice given in pursuance of law.

Note.

Source: Article XVI, section 7:

"No corporation shall issue stocks or bonds except for money, labor done, or money or property actually received; and all fictitious increase of stock or indebtedness shall be void. The stock and indebtedness of corporations shall not be increased except in pursuance of general law, nor without the consent of the persons holding the larger amount in value of the stock, first obtained at a meeting to be held after sixty days' notice given in pursuance of law."

Changes in Substance: (1) That part of the section herein proposed which provides that a corporation may issue full-paid shares for a consideration equal to the current market value of the shares heretofore issued, makes it possible for a corporation whose shares are below par on the market to procure additional capital by issuing and selling additional stock below par, provided the price paid by the subscriber is not less than the current market value of the shares theretofore issued. The majority of the Commission believe that this exception to the general principle that shares of stock shall not be issued for a value received by the corporation less than that stated on the certificate is wise, because otherwise a corporation whose stock is below par is prevented from securing additional capital by increasing the amount contributed by the owners, and therefore is obliged to secure such additional capital by increasing its liabilities to outsiders. The possible abuse of the privilege of issuing under the conditions set forth, stock at less than par, is, in the judgment of the majority of the Commission, sufficiently safeguarded in the provisions providing for public notice to be specified in the act regulating the exercise of this constitutional power, or by an agency created by law.

(2) The provisions of Article XVI, section 7, of the present constitution, requiring bonds to be issued only for money, labor done or property actually received, has been omitted.

(3) The sixty days' notice required in the present constitution for a meeting to pass on proposed issues of stock or indebtedness is reduced to thirty days.

Clarifying Changes: (1) The statement that stock may be issued without par value prevents the possibility of the rest of the section being interpreted as indirectly prohibiting stock being issued without par value. There is a possibility of this question being raised under the wording of Article XVI, section 7, in the present constitution.

(2) The provisions in Article XVI, section 7, of the present constitution, that "all fictitious increase of stock or indebtedness shall be void," is omitted. The provision is ambiguous and therefore merely invites litigation, as there is no basis for determining what a fictitious issue is. To enforce literally the provision would often do great injustice to innocent holders of such securities who buy in good faith without knowledge of the original infirmity of issue.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Investment of Trust Funds.

Section 3. No law shall authorize fiduciaries to invest in stock or securities issued by a corporation except in bonds approved by an agency created by law.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 22:

"No act of the general assembly shall authorize the investment of trust funds by executors, administrators, guardians or other trustees, in the bonds or stocks of any private corporation, and such acts now existing are avoided saving investments heretofore made."

Changes in Substance: The provisions permitting investment in the bonds of a corporation when the investment is approved by an agency created by law is new. The Commission believe that, as thus carefully safe-guarded, the extension of possible trust investments under the wording of the proposed section is advisable. The bonds of many corporations secured by a first mortgage are, from the point of view of the careful investor, absolutely safe.

Changes in Style: The provision in the present constitution "and such acts now existing are avoided saving investments heretofore made" is omitted because it has become obsolete.

Bank Notes and Bills.

Section 4. A note or bill issued for circulation by a banking corporation shall be registered and countersigned by an officer of the state government, and its payment shall be secured by the deposit of security to the full amount thereof with the state treasurer. The method of registering, countersigning and securing payment shall be prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: Article XVI, section 9:

"Every banking law shall provide for the registry and countersigning, by an officer of the state, of all notes or bills designed for circulation, and that ample security to the full amount thereof shall be deposited with the auditor general for the redemption of such notes or bills."

Changes in Substance: Security must be deposited with the state treasurer, not with the auditor general as required by the present constitution.

Changes in Style: The words "banking law" in Article XVI, section 9, of the present constitution, must be interpreted in a special technical meaning as denoting "a law regulating the issue by banks of bills and notes for circulation as money," or the section is meaningless. The wording of the section herein proposed avoids this necessity.

Cumulative Voting.

Section 5. In elections for directors or managers of a corporation each member or voting stock holder may cast his votes for one candidate, or may distribute them among two or more candidates.

Note.

Source: Article XVI, section 4:

"In all elections for directors or managers of a corporation each member or shareholder may cast the whole number of his votes for one candidate, or distribute them upon two or more candidates as he may prefer."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: Article XVI, section 4 of the present constitution is worded as if there never was an agreement between stockholders that the holders of a certain class of stock were without voting power. In practice, stock without voting rights is issued and your Commission do not believe that the constitution should be so worded as to throw a doubt on the legality of the restriction. The re-wording of the section as herein suggested therefore expressly confines the right of cumulative voting to those members or stockholders who have voting rights.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Foreign Corporations.

Section 6. A foreign corporation shall not do business in this state without having in the state a known place of business and without making the secretary of the commonwealth an agent of the corporation upon whom process may be served.

Note.

Source: Article XVI, section 5:

"No foreign corporation shall do any business in this state without having one or more known places of business and an authorized agent or agents in the same upon whom process may be served."

Changes in Substance: The existing statutory law (see Act of June 8, 1911, L. 710), requires a foreign corporation doing business in the state to designate the secretary of the commonwealth as its agent upon whom process may be served. It does not require such corporation to designate an agent in its place or agents in its places of business. The present practice, irrespective of whether it conforms to the existing constitutional requirement, efficiently protects persons having claims against such foreign corporations which they desire to prosecute in courts. The wording of the section suggested would make the constitutional requirement conform to a rule that has been proved to be satisfactory.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Commonwealth's Rights of Eminent Domain and Police Power.

Section 7. The exercise of the right of eminent domain shall not be abridged or so construed as to prevent the taking by law of the property and franchises of corporations and subjecting them to public use the same as the property of individuals. The exercise of the police power shall not be abridged or so construed as to permit corporations to conduct their business in such manner as to infringe the equal rights of individuals or the general well-being of the state.

Note.

Source: Article XVI, section 3:

"The exercise of the right of eminent domain shall never be abridged or so construed as to permit the general assembly from taking the property and franchises of incorporated companies, and subjecting them to public use, the same as the property of individuals; and the exercise of the police power of the state shall never be abridged or so construed as to permit corporations to conduct their business in such manner as to infringe the equal rights of individuals or the general well-being of the state."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Corporate Obligations Owned by State.

Section 8. Except as prescribed by law, an obligation of a corporation held or owned by the state government shall not be exchanged, transferred, remitted, postponed, diminished or discharged except by payment thereof into the state treasury.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 24:

"No obligation or liability of any railroad or other corporation, held or owned by the commonwealth, shall ever be exchanged, transferred, remitted, postponed or in any way diminished by the general assembly, nor shall such liability or obligation be released, except by payment thereof into the state treasury."

Changes in Substance: The restrictions of the section are confined to cases where no provision for dealing with the subject has been prescribed by law. The Commission believe that the state government should have the right to make regulations under which it could deal with the obligations of a corporation held by it in any manner conducive to the public interest, and that it may be that in order to safeguard the interests of the state government as an owner of corporate securities, the state government should be permitted to exchange, transfer or even to remit, postpone or diminish the obligation.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Statutes of Limitations.

Section 9. No law shall discriminate between corporations and individuals with respect to the time in which suit may be brought against either.

Revocation and Alteration of Corporate Charters.

Section 10. Laws may be enacted for the alteration, revocation, or annulment of corporate charters revocable when this constitution becomes effective or thereafter granted when such charters shall be deemed injurious to the citizens of the commonwealth, in such manner, however, that no injustice shall be done.

Note.

Source: Article XVI, section 10:

"The general assembly shall have the power to alter, revoke or annul any charter of incorporation now existing and revocable at the adoption of this constitution, or any that may hereafter be created, whenever in their opinion it may be injurious to the citizens of this commonwealth, in such manner, however, that no injustice shall be done to the corporators. No law hereafter enacted shall create, renew or extend the charter of more than one corporation."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: The Commission have omitted that part of Article XVI, section 10, of the present constitution, which provides that: "No law hereafter enacted shall create, renew or extend the charter of more than one corporation," because there is apparently a direct conflict between its provision and Article III, section 20, clause (m), (Article III, section 7, clause 26 of the present constitution) which provides that no special law shall be enacted "creating corporations, or amending, renewing or extending their charters." It is evident that a literal enforcement of both of these provisions would prevent the creation of any corporation, or the renewal or the extension of the charter of any existing corporation. By the provisions of Article III, a law creating, extending or renewing a corporation cannot be special, that is, apply to only one designated corporation; while under the provisions of Article XVI, no general law creating corporations or extending or renewing the charters of existing corporations can be passed.

The conflict between the two articles apparently occurred in the following manner: The Convention of 1837 adopted the policy of preventing a law being passed creating more than one corporation, or renewing or extending the charter of more than one corporation. This policy was embodied in the constitution of 1838, Article I, section 25, which provides: "No law hereafter enacted shall create, renew or extend the charter of more than one corporation."

The Convention of 1873 adopted an entirely different policy, namely, that of preventing any special law being passed relating to corporations. This policy they embodied in Article III, section 7, clause 26, of the present constitution, but omitted to strike out the provision of the constitution of 1838.

The conflict is avoided in the section proposed by omitting that part of Article XVI section 10, of the present constitution, which embodies the earlier and now obsolete policy of the constitution of 1838.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Conditions Imposed on Certain Benefits to Corporations.

Clarifying Changes: As, throughout the draft of the constitution herein suggested, the term "corporation" is never used except as defined in this section, the limitation of the definition found in the present constitution to the use of the term "in this article" is omitted.

ARTICLE X.

PUBLIC UTILITIES.

Preliminary Note.

Source: Article XVII of the present constitution and all those provisions in Article XVI which relate to public utilities.

Title: In the present constitution, Article XVII is entitled "Railroads and Canals." As, in the draft of the constitution herein proposed we have expanded many of the provisions to cover all common carriers, or, in many cases, all public utilities, the restricted title of the present article is no longer applicable. We have used the title "Public Utilities" rather than the title "Public Service Corporations" because, throughout the article, except when the provisions are expressly limited to corporations, the obligations imposed do not vary because the public utility is owned or operated by an individual or an unincorporated association, rather than a corporation.

Arrangement: The order of subjects is as follows:

General power of regulation of public utilities—section 1.

Mutual rights and obligations of certain classes of public utilities—sections 2 to 4, inclusive.

Rights of individuals, associations and corporations in regard to the charges and services of certain classes of public utilities—sections 5 and 6.

Provisions in regard to the consolidation of public service corporations—section 7.

Limitation of powers of common carriers—sections 8 and 9.

Special provisions in regard to the waters of the state—section 10.

Enforcement of this article—section 11.

Regulation of Public Utilities.

Section 1. Public service and the business of those engaged therein may be regulated by law or by an agency created by law.

Note.

Source: This is entirely a new matter. Although it is a statement of a principle universally recognized by the courts, the Commission believe that its fundamental character and importance warrant its embodiment in the constitution.

Eminent Domain.

Section 2. A corporation, association, individual or municipality invested with the privilege of taking private property for public use shall make just compensation for property taken, injured or destroyed. The compensation shall be paid or secured before such taking, injury or destruction. No law shall deprive a person of an appeal from a preliminary assessment of damages, and, on appeal, either party may have the damages assessed by a jury according to the course of the common law.

Note.

The general assembly is hereby prohibited from depriving any person of an appeal from any preliminary assessment of damages against any such corporations or individuals made by viewers or otherwise; and the amount of such damages in all cases of appeal shall on the demand of either party be determined by a jury according to the course of the common law."

Common Carriers, Telegraph and Telephone Lines.

Section 3. Railroads and canals shall be public highways and railroad and canal corporations shall be common carriers. Such corporations may construct and operate railroads and canals between any points within the state and may cross and connect with other railroads and canals within the state and at the state line. They shall receive, at connecting points, and shall transport, each other's passengers and freight without delay or discrimination. Railroad corporations shall receive at connecting points and transport each other's cars and canal corporations shall likewise receive and transport each other's vessels.

A corporation organized for the purpose shall have the right to construct lines of telegraph and telephone within the state. The owners or operators of telegraph or telephone lines may connect them with the telegraph or telephone lines of others. They shall receive at connecting points and shall transmit each other's messages.

The rights and obligations set forth in this section shall be exercised only as prescribed by law or by an agency created by law.

Note.

Source: (1) Article XVII, section 1:

"All railroads and canals shall be public highways, and all railroad and canal companies shall be common carriers. Any association or corporation organized for the purpose shall have the right to construct and operate a railroad between any points within this state, and to connect at the state line with railroads of other states. Every railroad company shall have the right with its road to intersect, connect with or cross any other railroad; and shall receive and transport each the other's passengers, tonnage and cars loaded or empty, without delay or discrimination."

(2) Part of Article XVI, section 12:

"Any association or corporation organized for the purpose, or any individual, shall have the right to construct and maintain lines of telegraph within this state, and to connect the same with other lines, and the general assembly shall, by general law of uniform operation, provide reasonable regulations to give full effect to this section. * * *

Changes in Substance: (1) The statement of the right to construct and operate a railroad is confined to corporations organized for the purpose. In the present constitution the right is conferred, also, on "associations * * * organized for the purpose." The section herein proposed omits any reference to associations because it is not practical to carry on the business of constructing and maintaining a railroad by a private agency other than a corporation.

(2) The right to construct and operate a canal is expressly given to canal corporations.

(3) As herein suggested, the section sets forth the right of a canal corporation to connect its facilities with and construct its facilities across the facilities or other canals and railroad corporations, and the right of a railroad corporation to connect its facilities with and construct its facilities across the facilities of other railroads and canals. Under the present constitution, this right of connection and crossing is confined to railroad corporations, and the right of railroad corporations to connect their facilities with or construct their facilities across the facilities of canal corporations is not mentioned.

(4) The section herein suggested sets forth the obligations of a railroad corporation to receive and transport the passengers and freight delivered at connecting points by other railroad and canal corporations. Under the present constitution, the statement of obligation is confined to railroad corporations, no reference being made to any obligation on railroad corporations to receive and transport passengers and freight delivered by canal corporations, or of a reciprocal obligation on the part of canal corporations.

(5) The section herein suggested sets forth the obligation of a railroad corporation to receive and transport the cars of another railroad corporation when delivered at connecting points, and also the obligation of a canal corporation to receive and transport the vessels of other canal corporations when delivered at connecting points. The wording of the corresponding section in the present constitution confines the statement of the obligation to the obligation of railroad corporations to receive and transport each other's cars.

(6) Article XVI, section 12, of the present constitution gives to individuals, associations and corporations the right to construct and maintain telegraph lines. The section proposed confines this constitutional right to corporations organized for the purpose and confers on telephone corporations a similar right in respect to telephone lines.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Construction of Canals to Conform to Fixed Standards.

Section 4. Provisions shall be made by law for the construction of canals in accordance with standards prescribed by law or by an agency created by law.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. The mutual right of transporting canal vessels is not practicable unless canal facilities are constructed according to standards, which, as far as practicable, should be uniform through the state. These standards should be prescribed by law or by an agency like the Public Service Commission.

No Discrimination in Services or Charges.

Section 5. All individuals, associations and corporations shall have equal right to have persons and property transported over railroads and canals and to have messages transmitted over telegraph and telephone lines. There shall be no undue or unreasonable discrimination, in facilities or charges, for such transportation or transmission within the state or coming from or going to another state. A charge for such transportation or transmission within the state shall not exceed the charge for a similar service in the same direction to a more distant point, but excursion or commutation tickets may be issued at special rates.

Note.

Source: Article XVII, section 3:

"All individuals, associations and corporations shall have equal right to have persons and property transported over railroads and canals, and no undue or unreasonable discrimination shall be made in charges for or in facilities for, transportation of freight or passengers within the state or coming from or going to any other state. Persons and property transported over any railroad shall be delivered at any station at charges not exceeding the charges for transportation of persons and property of the same class in the same direction to any more distant station; but excursion and commutation tickets may be issued at special rates."

Changes in Substance: The extension to the services and charges of telegraph and telephone lines, of the principle embodied in the corresponding sections of the present constitution preventing discrimination in the service and charges by railroad and canal corporations, and a less charge by such corporations for transportation to a more distant than a nearer point in the same direction.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Preferences and Rebates Prohibited.

Section 6. No discrimination in charges or facilities for transportation shall be made between transportation corporations and individuals, or in favor of either, by abatement, drawback or otherwise, and no railroad or canal corporation, or any lessee, manager or employe thereof, shall make preference in furnishing service.

Note.

Source: Article XVII, section 7:

"No discrimination in charges or facilities for transportation shall be made between transportation companies and individuals, or in favor of either, by abatement, drawback or otherwise, and no railroad or canal company, or any lessee, manager or employe thereof, shall make any preferences in furnishing cars or motive power."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The exact language of the corresponding section in the present constitution is used, except that in accordance with the uniform recommendation of the Commission, the word "corporation" is used instead of company."

Consolidation Permitted.

Section 7. A public service corporation, when authorized by law or by an agency created by law, may consolidate with another public service corporation or may acquire its stock, property or franchise.

Note.

Source: Article XVII, section 4:

"No railroad, canal or other corporation, or the lessees, purchasers or managers of any railroad or canal corporation, shall consolidate the stock, property or franchises of such corporation with, or lease, or purchase the works or franchises of, or in any way control any other railroad or canal corporation owning or having under its control a parallel or competing line; nor shall any officer of such railroad or canal corporation act as an officer of any other railroad or canal corporation owning or having the control of a parallel or competing line; and the question whether railroads or canals are parallel or competing lines shall, when demanded by the party complainant, be decided by a jury as in other civil issues."

Changes in Substance: The provisions of the present constitution (Article XVII, section 4) are confined to railroads and canal corporations, owning or operating competing lines. When the present constitution was adopted, the importance of railroads and canals overshadowed the comparatively few corporations carrying on other kinds of public service. There was, therefore, at that time, not the necessity which exists today of expressing in the constitution the policy of the commonwealth towards the whole subject of the consolidation of public service corporations irrespective of the nature of the public service performed.

In the proposed section, it is expressly stated that any two or more public service corporations may consolidate when permitted to do so by law or by any agency created by law, such as the Public Service Commission.

When the present Constitution was adopted, the only known way to prevent the evils of monopolistic control of public utilities by private corporations was to prevent the consolidation of any two public service corporations which operated public facilities. In the last fifty years an entirely new system of meeting the problems presented by the private ownership and operation of public utilities has become firmly established in federal and state practice. The state government, through its public service commission is exercising the power of the commonwealth to regulate the rates of charges made and the services given by all public service corporations. Under the present system of complete public regulation as to rates and service, there are many cases in which the consolidation of two public service corporations and the operation of their facilities as one system, as, for instance, all the passenger railway lines in a city may be of distinct advantage to the public. Two telephone lines serving the same district, though in some cases of temporary advantage to the public, in others represent an unnecessary and therefore uneconomical and harmful waste of capital and energy.

We believe, therefore, that the policy expressed in Article XVII, section 4, of the present constitution, which seeks to absolutely prevent, under all circumstances, the consolidation of canal or railroad corporations owning parallel or competing lines, is unwise. This does not mean, however, that we believe two such corporations should be allowed to consolidate at any time. On the contrary, we believe that the whole question of their consolidation should be regulated by law or by an agency created by law, such as the Public Service Commission. The section as proposed herein embodies this policy.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Powers of Common Carriers.

Section 8. A corporation being a common carrier shall not transport over facilities which it owns or operates articles which it has, directly or indirectly, mined or manufactured for sale.

It shall engage only in the business of a common carrier, except that if it uses electricity as a motive power, it may, when authorized by an agency created by law, furnish electricity to others for light, heat and power.

A mining or manufacturing corporation shall not be deemed a common carrier for the purposes of this section by reason of carrying its products on its railroad or canal not exceeding fifty miles in length.

Note.

Source: Article XVII, section 5:

"No incorporated company doing the business of a common carrier shall, directly or indirectly, prosecute or engage in mining or manufacturing articles for transportation over its works; nor shall such company, directly or indirectly, engage in any other business than that of common carriers, or hold or acquire lands, freehold or leasehold, directly or indirectly, except such as shall be necessary for carrying on its business; but any mining or manufacturing company may carry the products of its mines and manufactories on its railroad or canal not exceeding fifty miles in length."

Changes in Substance: (1) The present constitution, Article XVII, section 5, expressly prevents a common carrier from acquiring land not necessary for its business. This provision has been omitted because the existence of the provision tends to prevent acquiring land that, while not immediately necessary for the business of the common carrier, should be acquired to provide for future needs. Article IX, as proposed, prevents a corporation going into any business not authorized by its charter. The omission of the restriction which is found in the present constitution, therefore, will not enable a common carrier to acquire land for other purposes than its legitimate business.

(2) Article XVII, section 5, prevents a corporation being a common carrier engaging in any other business. The section herein proposed makes one exception by giving to a common carrier using electricity as a motive power the right "when authorized by an agency created by law" to "furnish electricity to others for light, heat or power." We believe, as thus guarded, this exception is in the public interest. A trolley corporation may use electricity generated by waterpower to run its cars. There does not appear to be any good reason why, in such case, the owners should not have the right to dispose of the surplus electrical power generated, if it is permitted to do so by such a body as the Public Service Commission.

Clarifying Changes: (1) The provision in the corresponding section of the present constitution that a common carrier shall not "directly or indirectly, prosecute or engage in mining or manufacturing articles for transportation over its works" is ambiguous. No common carrier engages in manufacturing articles for the purpose of transporting them. The purpose of the manufacture is sale. The transportation may or may not be a necessary incident of the sale. In view of the well-known evils resulting from a common carrier engaging in mining or manufacturing in competition with other mining or manufacturing corporations situated along its lines, it is reasonably certain that the intent of those who drafted this section in the present constitution was, as expressed in the section herein suggested, to prevent a corporation being a common carrier transporting over its lines property mined or manufactured by it for the purpose of sale.

(2) Under the wording of the present constitution, it is uncertain whether it is constitutional for a corporation, being a common carrier, to transport over its facilities an article such as coal mined by it for the purpose of its own consumption. In the draft herein suggested, if a common carrier may mine coal for its own use, it may convey it.

(3) The section herein suggested is so worded as to remove any possibility of a contention that a mining or manufacturing corporation becomes a common carrier for the purpose of the section by reason alone of its carrying its products on its railroad or canal less than fifty miles in length. This was probably the intent of the drafters of the corresponding section in the present constitution. The provision, in Article XVII, section 5, that "any mining or manufacturing corporation may carry the products of its mines and manufactures on its railroad or canal not exceeding fifty miles in length" was evidently inserted in the present constitution as a matter of extra precaution. The rest of the section does not prevent such mining or manufacturing corporation carrying its own products on its own railroad or canal unless the mining and manufacturing corporation, by operating a railroad or canal less than fifty miles in length for the purpose of carrying its own products becomes thereby a common carrier. If it does become a common carrier, then the carrying of its own products and the engaging in mining is directly contrary to all the prohibitions of the section. There is, however, nothing in the present constitution which makes a manufacturing company constructing its own railroad or canal to carry its own products a common carrier. Section 1 of Article XVII, of the present constitution, declares that "All railroads and canals shall be public highways," but it does not say that all corporations owning a track and running cars over the track shall be common carriers; it provides merely that "all railroad and canal companies shall be common carriers."

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Passes Prohibited.

Section 9. A corporation being a common carrier shall not grant free passes or reduced rates to any person except to its own officers or employees.

Note.

Source: Article XVII, section 8:

"No railroad, railway or other transportation company shall grant free passes, or passes at a discount, to any person except officers or employees of the company."

Water Rights.

Section 10. A right in waters shall not be granted by the state government or by a municipality for more than fifty years without reasonable compensation. At the expiration of the first or of any subsequent grant, the state government or the municipality shall make a new grant to the holder of the right, or pay, or cause to be paid, compensation for all property necessary to the exercise of the right and upon such payment title to said property shall vest in the state government or municipality or corporation making the payment.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. It recognizes the principle that the people of the commonwealth should not part permanently with any right they now have in the waters of the state, and where such right is temporarily vested in individuals, associations or corporations, reasonable compensation shall be made. The concluding part of section assures the necessary protection to investors in the property necessary to utilize the exercise of the grant.

Enforcement of this Article.

Section 11. Laws shall be enacted to enforce the provisions of this article.

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

ARTICLE XI.

EDUCATION.

Preliminary Note.

Source: Article X.

The principle that the constitution of the commonwealth should impose on the general assembly the obligation to provide education has been recognized in each of our constitutions.

The 44th section of the constitution of 1776 provided:

"Section the Forty-fourth. A school or schools shall be established in each county by the legislature, for the convenient instruction of youth, with such salaries to the masters paid by the public, as may enable them to instruct youth at low prices: And all useful learning shall be duly encouraged and promoted in one or more universities."

Article VII of the constitutions of 1790 and 1838 provided:

"Section 1. The legislature shall, as soon as conveniently may be, provide, by law, for the establishment of schools throughout the state, in such manner that the poor may be taught gratis."

"Section 2. The arts and sciences shall be promoted in one or more seminaries of learning."

Article IV, section 1, of the present constitution provides for a superintendent of public instruction, and Article X, "for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of public schools, wherein all the children of this commonwealth above the age of six years may be educated, and shall appropriate at least one million dollars each year for that purpose."

The present Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, and others who have made a life-long study of educational systems, brought before us conclusive proof that Pennsylvania is behind many other northern states in educational work. We are impressed with the fact that the welfare of the commonwealth imperatively demands an immediate improvement in our educational system.

Your Commission therefore believe that the constitution should not only emphasize the obligation to create and support an efficient educational system, but should set forth that system in sufficient detail to give a clear picture of its general nature and extent.

Educational System of the Commonwealth.

Section 1. Laws shall be enacted providing for the operation and maintenance of a public educational system for the commonwealth. This shall include public schools for the free elementary, secondary and vocational education of all children of the commonwealth, for the free mental and vocational education of persons under mental or physical disability, for the free education in American citizenship of adults, and for the training of teachers, a system of public libraries, one or more public universities, and such other public educational institutions and agencies as may be wise and necessary for the improvement of the citizenship of the commonwealth.

Note.

Source: Article X, section 1:

"The general assembly shall provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of public schools, wherein all the children of this commonwealth above the age of six years may be educated, and shall appropriate at least one million dollars each year for that purpose."

Changes in Substance: (1) Elimination of the reference to "six years" as being the age at which the commonwealth becomes responsible for the child's education. Full responsibility for a child's education may make desirable instruction before the child reaches six years.

(2) The imposition of an obligation to provide:

- (a) Free public elementary, secondary and vocational education for all children.
- (b) Free public mental and vocational training for persons under mental or physical disability.
- (c) Free public education for adults in American citizenship.
- (d) Public schools for the training of teachers.
- (e) Public libraries.
- (f) One or more public universities.
- (g) Other public educational institutions and agencies that may be wise and necessary for the improvement of the citizenship of the commonwealth.

(3) The omission of a provision for the annual appropriation by the state government of a specific sum of money.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

State Council of Education.

Section 2. Laws shall be enacted providing for a state council of education appointed by the governor. The council shall have the powers and duties prescribed by law. Its chief executive officer shall be the commissioner of education.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

Support of Educational System.

Section 3. Laws shall be enacted making adequate provision, by appropriation and through general or special forms of taxation, for the effective and equitable support of the public educational system of the commonwealth.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

No Appropriations to Sectarian Institutions.

Section 4. Money raised for the support of the public educational system of the commonwealth shall not be appropriated to or used for the support of any sectarian school or institution.

Note.

Source: Article X, section 2:

"No money raised for the support of the public schools of the commonwealth shall be appropriated to or used for the support of any sectarian school."

Changes in Substance: The principle set forth in the present constitution as applicable to money raised for the support of the public schools is extended to cover money raised for the support of the educational system of the commonwealth. That system is described in section 1 of this article.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

State School Fund.

Section 5. The net receipts from state forests, unclaimed funds derived by the commonwealth either by escheat or otherwise, and money or property designated for the purpose and derived from any source shall constitute the state school fund to be used only for the benefit of the public educational system of the commonwealth in such manner as may be prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

Basic Instruction to be in English.

Section 6. The basic instruction in public and private schools shall be in the English language and from English texts.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

The Commission believe that while the teaching of the classics and of foreign languages should be encouraged rather than discouraged, it is a matter of vital importance to prevent the establishment and maintenance of schools the real object of which is to discourage the knowledge and use of the English language by the children of parents who have come to America to obtain a livelihood and to secure a freedom denied them in the country of their origin.

ARTICLE XII.

SOCIAL WELFARE AND PUBLIC HEALTH.

Preliminary Note.

The Commission believe that a constitution should be more than a frame of government and a grant of powers with a collection of prohibitions on enumerated specific exercises of power. We believe that, on the one hand, it should contain a statement of the fundamental rights of the individual, which, in the language of our Bill of Rights, "shall forever remain inviolate," and on the other, a declaration of the positive obligations which the people recognize rests on them as a body politic.

The framers of our first constitution, that of 1776, recognized and specifically set forth in the constitution the fundamental duty of organized society to provide for the education of youth. Each succeeding constitution has set forth this obligation. It is no new departure, therefore, to state in the constitution an obligation which the social consciousness of the people recognizes as resting on them and which, therefore, their government should, as their agent, have the duty to perform. The Commission believe that the growing realization of the duty of the commonwealth to care for those residents who cannot care for themselves on account of physical or mental infirmity or other misfortune, and its duty to employ at useful labor and instruct those convicted of crime, not only justifies but requires expression in our fundamental law.

Charitable Institutions and Agencies.

Section 1. Laws shall be enacted providing for the maintenance of an efficient system of institutions and agencies to care for residents of the commonwealth who cannot care for and support themselves on account of physical or mental infirmities or other misfortune and to prevent such infirmities and misfortunes so far as possible.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. As explained in the preliminary note to this article, it states a principle which should, in the opinion of the Commission, find expression in the constitution of the commonwealth. The details of the system are necessarily left to be prescribed by law. It will be noted that the institutions and agencies mentioned may be either public or private.

Penal and Correctional Institutions.

Section 2. Laws shall be enacted providing for the maintenance of an efficient system of penal and correctional institutions and agencies.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. Like the preceding section, it expresses an important principle, leaving the details to be prescribed by law.

Employment and Treatment of Prisoners.

Section 3. Humanity, sound public economy and just consideration for the innocent dependents of persons deprived of their liberty, by judgement, decree or sentence of any court, require that all such persons should, during their imprisonment, be afforded an opportunity for remunerative labor, and the conditions of imprisonment shall always be such as to promote the physical, mental and moral welfare of the prisoners.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. It asserts a principle which the Commission believe to be not only ethically sound but of great practical importance.

Supervision of Charitable, Correctional and Penal Institutions and Agencies.

Section 4. Charitable, correctional and penal institutions and agencies and other institutions and agencies for the care, relief or treatment of persons having physical or mental infirmities, shall be subject to governmental inspection and supervision control. The power to enforce the law with respect to such institutions shall be vested in one or more departments of the state government or in such agencies as may be prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter, imposing upon the lawmaking authority the duty of vesting in one of the departments of the state government the power to inspect and control the institutions named. In the judgment of the Commission this is necessary if the principles contained in the two preceding sections are to be followed not simply in theory but in practice.

Health.

Section 5. The protection and promotion of the public health under modern social, economic and industrial conditions, is essential to the well-being of the commonwealth and is hereby declared to be a primary duty of the government.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. In the opinion of the Commission it expresses a principle of fundamental importance to the welfare of the public.

ARTICLE XIII.

MUNICIPALITIES.

Preliminary Note.

Source: Under this section we have gathered all provisions to local government. In the present constitution these provisions are found in ARTICLE IX—Taxation and Finance.

ARTICLE XIII—New Counties.

ARTICLE XIV—County Officers.

ARTICLE XV—Cities and City Charters.

The growth of large cities and the increasing necessity of public works which must be built by local governments, especially cities, make necessary the complete revision of existing constitutional provisions.

Your Commission have devoted much time and thought to the subjects included in this article and there is no part of the revised constitution here proposed in which will be found a larger proportion of sections which contain entirely new matter.

Salaries and expenses of county officers in a county coextensive with a city—section 16.

Financial Provisions.

- Municipal borrowing capacity—section 17.
- Duration and payment of debts—section 18.
- Debts other than for money borrowed—section 19.
- Municipalities not to pledge credit—section 20.

Improvements.

- Special commissions prohibited—section 21.
- Assessment of benefits for public improvements—section 22.
- Extent of land permitted to be taken for public improvements—section 23.
- Zoning of municipalities—section 24.
- Contracts between municipalities—section 25.

Miscellaneous Provisions.

- Street passenger railway in cities or borough—section 26.
- One place of paying taxes in cities and boroughs—section 27.

Definition.

Section 1. Municipalities shall be counties, cities, boroughs, townships, school districts, poor districts and other divisions of the commonwealth for the purpose of local government.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. The word "municipality" occurs so frequently in the proposed constitution, and especially in this article, that a definition is plainly imperative. We have enumerated the present forms of municipality and have allowed for the creation of other forms in the concluding words of the proposed section.

Classification.

Section 2. Municipalities may be classified upon the basis of conditions requiring special regulation. The classification of municipalities according to population shall not divide cities, counties or school districts into more than seven classes or other municipalities into more than five classes. A class must contain more municipalities than one except where the basis of classification is population or the coincidence of the boundaries of two or more municipalities.

A law otherwise general shall not be local because applicable only to municipalities adopting it.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. The present constitution, in Article III, section 7, and the proposed constitution, in Article III, section 20, forbid special legislation regulating the affairs of a municipality. The supreme court has held that a law applicable to an entire class of municipalities is not special if there is a proper relation between the purpose of the law and the basis of classification. (Wheeler v. Philadelphia, 77 Pa. 338).

There is, however, grave doubt as to the extent to which such classification is permissible, especially classification based upon population, which is by far the commonest form. The effect of the decisions of the supreme court has been to restrict the division of cities to three classes. A greater number of classes has been permitted for other municipalities, but the precise number permissible for a given purpose is always doubtful until the question has been judicially determined.

The Commission, therefore, recommend this section, which states in terms the number of classes according to population which may be created. The number for cities is recommended to be considerably increased.

The words, "and the coincidence of the boundaries of two or more municipalities shall be deemed a condition requiring special regulation," have been inserted to place beyond possibility of question the right of the law-making authority to treat the problem of local government arising where, as in Philadelphia, the boundaries of the county and the city coincide, as a problem of county government requiring, for its adequate treatment, a governmental organization adapted to that condition.

The third paragraph is recommended to be inserted out of caution. The Commission believe that it should be possible to enact a law regulating the affairs of such municipalities as might adopt it by ordinance or by popular vote, and that such a law should not be open to the objection that it is special because of its tendency to destroy uniformity or to the objection that it delegates legislative power; but unless the suggested sentence is incorporated in the constitution, it is doubtful whether such a law would be sustained by the supreme court.

Proportional Representation.

Section 3. Proportional representation may be prescribed by law for the election of representative bodies in municipalities in which that method of election shall be approved by a majority of the electors voting on the question.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. The Commission believe that such laws would be valid under the present constitution, but they recommend that any dispute on the question should be prevented by the provisions proposed.

New Counties.

Section 4. A new county shall not be established if it would have less than three hundred square miles and fifty thousand inhabitants or if a line thereof would pass within ten miles of the boundary of the county seat of a county proposed to be divided or if its establishment would reduce another county below such area or population. A new county shall not be established without the consent of a majority of the electors resident within the proposed boundaries thereof voting on the question.

Note.

Source: Article XIII, section 1:

"No new county shall be established which shall reduce any county to less than four hundred square miles, or to less than twenty thousand inhabitants; nor shall any county be formed of less area, or containing a less population; nor shall any line thereof pass within ten miles of the county seat of any county proposed to be divided."

Changes in Substance: (1) Because of the increase in the state's population since 1874, the Commission recommend that four hundred square miles and twenty thousand inhabitants, which are the provisions of the present constitution, be changed to three hundred square miles and fifty thousand inhabitants.

(2) The last sentence contains new matter. The purpose of the provision is to prevent the formation of a new county by act of assembly without the consent of those most affected.

Clarifying Changes: The present constitution forbids the line of a new county to pass "within ten miles of the county seat of any county proposed to be divided." The Commission have adopted the construction put upon this clause by the attorney-general in 1895 (County Seat, 4 D. R. 319), by using the words "boundary of the county seat."

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

City Charters.

Section 5. Laws may be enacted giving to cities or to cities of a particular class, authority to frame, adopt and amend charters for their organization and government.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

The Commission do not recommend a constitutional provision giving this power outright to cities because it is impossible to frame such a provision so as to avoid doubt of its meaning. The organization and government of a city must, of course, conform to the laws of the commonwealth and any attempt to define in the constitution exactly where the powers of the commonwealth shall end and those of the city shall begin will give rise to endless litigation. The determination of the cities' powers of home rule must be a carefully drawn statute, in which there will be a place for details not suitable for a constitution.

The section is inserted to overcome the present constitutional objection to such legislation, which is that it would be a delegation of legislative power and therefore unconstitutional.

Creation and Change of Boundaries of Cities and Boroughs.

Section 6. A city or borough shall not be established or its boundaries changed except with the consent of a majority of the electors resident within the proposed boundaries voting on the question and of a majority of the electors in the proposed added or excluded area voting on the question.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter recommended to be adopted to prevent the establishment of a city or borough, or the change of a city's or borough's boundaries, without the consent of those most affected.

There is a partial recognition in the present constitution of the principle that the electors affected should have a voice in deciding whether their local government should be changed to that of a city or borough. Article XV, section 1, provides: "Cities may be chartered whenever a majority of the electors of any town or borough having a population of at least ten thousand shall vote at any general election in favor of the same."

We recommend the omission of Article XV, section 1, of the present constitution, because its provisions have been covered by the much broader recognition of the principle of "home rule" embodied in the section here proposed.

Appointive Municipal Officers.

Section 7. Appointive officers in counties, cities, boroughs and townships shall be appointed by an officer or agency of the municipality as prescribed by law, except as in this constitution otherwise provided.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

The adoption of this section will prevent the enactment of a law vesting in the governor or other officer of the state government the power to appoint municipal officers. So-called "ripper" legislation, destroying the existing government of a county, city, borough or township, and vesting its power in a commission appointed by the governor, will be impossible.

The words "except as in this constitution expressly provided" are necessary because of the provisions of Article V, section 19, as proposed, which permits the judges to appoint park commissioners and certain other officers, who are appointive officers of the municipality.

Accountability of Municipal Officers.

Section 8. Laws shall be enacted providing for the strict accountability of municipal officers, as well for the fees which may be collected by them as for all public or municipal moneys which may be paid to them.

Note.

Source: Article XIV, section 6:

"The general assembly shall provide by law for the strict accountability of all county, township and borough officers, as well for the fees which may be collected by them, as for all public or municipal moneys which may be paid to them."

Changes in Substance: The provision is applied to the officers of all municipalities and not only to those of counties, townships and boroughs, as in the present constitution.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

County Officers.

Section 9. The officers of a county shall be three commissioners three auditors or a controller a sheriff, a coroner, a prothonotary, a register of wills, a recorder of deeds a treasurer, a surveyor, a clerk of the orphans' court, a clerk of the court of quarter sessions of the peace and of the court of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, a district attorney, and other officers prescribed by law.

In a county co-extensive with a city or included therein, any constitutional county office may be abolished by law and its duties and powers may be transferred to a city officer or officers.

Note.

Source: Part of Article XIV, section 1:

"County officers shall consist of sheriffs, coroners, prothonotaries, registers of wills, recorders of deeds, commissioners, treasurers, surveyors, auditors, or controllers, clerks of the courts, district attorneys, and such others as may from time to time be established by law; * * *"

Changes in Substance: The last paragraph is new. In Philadelphia, or in any other county which may become co-extensive with a city or included therein, the amalgamation of certain city and county offices may be expedient and should be permitted by the constitution.

Clarifying Changes: (1) Article XIV, section 1, of the present constitution, uses throughout, the plural. It states that "county officers shall consist of sheriffs, coroners, registers of wills," etc. Standing by itself, this language would permit provision to be made by law for more than one sheriff, one coroner and one register of wills. It is probable, however, that this result was not contemplated by the draftsman, and would not be permitted by the courts. It is apparently certain that there can be only one register of wills, because Article V, section 22, of the present constitution, provides that in counties having separate orphans' courts "the register of wills shall be clerk of such court."

(2) In Article XIV, section 1, of the present constitution, the term "clerks of courts," which is there used instead of the clerks of the two courts designated in the proposed section creates a doubt on more than one matter of importance. Are the clerks of the courts referred to the clerks of all county courts existing in 1874; or are they the clerks of all county courts which are or may hereafter be created by law; or are they the clerks of the county courts designated in the constitution? Finally, what is the exact definition of "a county court"? Is it any court in the county—as one of the district peace courts proposed by the Commission? or is it only a court the boundaries of the jurisdiction of which are co-terminous with the boundaries of the county; and if so, is the municipal court in Philadelphia a county court? All these uncertainties will be avoided and the probable intent of the present constitution may be carried out by employing the language of the section here suggested.

Changes in Style: (1) The word "three" has been inserted before "commissioners" and before "auditors" because that is the number of each provided for by the constitution. (Article XIV, section 7, of the present constitution; section 11 of the article here proposed.)

(2) The provision that a sheriff or a treasurer cannot succeed himself has been transferred to section 10 of this article.

Election of Certain County Officers.

Section 10. Except as in this constitution expressly provided, county officers shall be chosen by the electors of the county. Each shall hold office for four years from the first Monday of January succeeding his election or until his successor shall qualify. Vacancies shall be filled as prescribed by law. The sheriff and the treasurer shall not be eligible for the succeeding term.

Note.

Source: (1) Article XIV, section 2:

"County officers shall be elected at the municipal elections and shall hold their offices for the term of four years, beginning on the first Monday of January next after their election, and until their successors shall be duly qualified; all vacancies not otherwise provided for, shall be filled in such manner as may be provided by law." (Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

(2) Part of Article IV, section 1:

"* * * no sheriff or treasurer shall be eligible for the term next succeeding the one for which he may be elected."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

County Commissioners and County Auditors.

Section 11. Three county commissioners shall be elected in each county in the year 1923, one to serve for two years and two to serve for four years. Every four years thereafter, two commissioners shall be elected to serve for four years. In the year 1925 and every four years thereafter, one commissioner shall be elected to serve for four years. An elector shall vote for one candidate for commissioner except in the year 1923, when he shall vote for one candidate to serve for two years and for one candidate to serve for four years. A vacancy in the office of commissioner shall be filled by the governor by the appointment of an elector of the county who has voted for the commissioner whose place is to be filled. In a county having auditors, they shall be elected and vacancies in the office of auditor shall be filled as in the case of commissioners.

Note.

Source: Article XIV, section 7:

"Three county commissioners and three county auditors shall be elected in each county where such officers are chosen in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven and every fourth year thereafter; and in the election of said officers each qualified elector shall vote for no more than two persons, and the three persons having the highest number of votes shall be elected; any casual vacancy in the office of county commissioner or county auditor shall be filled, by the court of common pleas of the county in which such vacancy shall occur, by the appointment of an elector of the proper county who shall have voted for the commissioner or auditor whose place is to be filled." (Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

Changes in Substance: (1) Under the present constitution, three commissioners are elected every four years by a system of minority representation. Each elector votes for two candidates and the commissioners all go out of office at the same time. The Commission propose to establish a system which preserves the principle of minority representation while providing that there would always be at least one commissioner holding over after each municipal election.

(2) The Commission suggest that vacancies should be filled by the governor instead of by the court of common pleas. This is in accordance with the principle embodied in Article V, section 19, as proposed, which forbids the exercise of such appointive power by the courts.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Philadelphia Prothonotary.

Section 12. The prothonotary of the county of Philadelphia shall be appointed by the judges of the court of common pleas of the county. He shall hold office for three years but may be removed at the pleasure of the court. He shall appoint assistants only with the approval of the court. The salaries of the prothonotary and of his assistants shall be paid by the county.

Note.

Source: Article V, section 7:

"For Philadelphia there shall be one prothonotary's office, and one prothonotary for all said courts, to be appointed by the judges of said courts, and to hold office for three years subject to removal by a majority of the said judges; the said prothonotary shall appoint such assistants as may be necessary and authorized by said courts; and he and his assistants shall receive fixed salaries, to be determined by law and paid by said county; all fees collected in said office, except such as may be by law due to the commonwealth, shall be paid by the prothonotary into the county treasury. Each court shall have its separate dockets, except the judgment docket, which shall contain the judgments and liens of all the said courts, as is or may be directed by law."

Changes in Substance: The provision in the present constitution relating to the dockets of the several courts of common pleas is omitted because of the recommendation that there shall be a single court of common pleas in Philadelphia county. (See Article V, section 10 as proposed.)

Changes in Style: The provisions in regard to salaries and fees have been considerably shortened because of the proposed new section, section 15 of this article.

Residence of County Officers.

Section 13. An appointive county officer shall have been a citizen and resident of the county for one year before his appointment, if the county has been so long established, but if it has not been so long established, then within the limits of the county or counties out of which it has been taken.

Note.

Source: Article XIV, section 3:

"No person shall be appointed to any office within any county who shall not have been a citizen and an inhabitant therein one year next before his appointment, if the county shall have been so long erected, but if it shall not have been so long erected, then within the limits of the county or counties out of which it shall have been taken.

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: The present constitution probably refers to county officers only, although it is not so stated. The proposed section makes this point clear.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Certain County Officers to Keep Offices in County Seat.

Section 14. The prothonotary, the clerk of the orphans' court, the clerk of the court of quarter sessions of the peace and of the court of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, the recorder of deeds, the register of wills, the surveyor, and the sheriff shall keep their offices in the county seat.

Note.

Source: Article XIV, section 4:

"Prothonotaries, clerks of the courts, recorders of deeds, registers of wills, county surveyors and sheriffs, shall keep their offices in the county town of the county in which they respectively shall be officers."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: The singular has been used instead of the plural, and the clerks of the courts have been more precisely designated. This conforms to the language of section 9 of this article.

Changes in Style: "County seat" has been substituted for "county town," to conform to popular usage and to the language of section 4 of this article.

Compensation of County Officers.

Section 15. County officers shall be paid only by salary for services performed for the state government or for the county or for any other official service. Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, such salaries shall be prescribed by law. Fees received by county officers shall be paid into the treasury of the county or into the state treasury as prescribed by law.

Note.

Source: Article XIV, section 5:

"The compensation of county officers shall be regulated by law, and all county officers who are or may be salaried shall pay all fees which they may be authorized to receive, into the treasury of the county or state, as may be directed by law. In counties containing over one hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants all county officers shall be paid by salary, and the salary of any such officer and his clerks, heretofore paid by fees, shall not exceed the aggregate amount of fees earned during his term and collected by or for him."

Changes in Substance: (1) Under the present constitution, officers in counties with a population of more than 150,000 must be paid by salary. The proposed section extends this principle to the officers of all counties.

(2) The present constitution does not prevent a county officer from receiving, in addition to his salary, a commission for services to the state government, such as the collection of state taxes. (Phila. v. Martin, 125 Pa. 583; Phila. v. McMichael, 208 Pa. 297.) The proposed section forbids the payment of such commissions.

(3) Under the present constitution, the compensation of county officers can be fixed only by statute. In section 16 of this article, an exception to this rule is made in the case of a county co-extensive with a city or included therein. In the section here proposed, we have covered this exception in section 16 by the words: "except as otherwise provided in this constitution."

(4) The final provision of Article XIV, section 5, of the present constitution, with respect to the amounts of the salaries of the officers of counties with more than 150,000 in population, is omitted as obsolete.

Changes in Style: The section has been entirely rewritten and the Commission's rules of style followed.

Salaries and Expenses of County Officers in a County Co-Extensive With a City.

Section 16. In a county co-extensive with a city or included therein, the county treasury and the city treasury shall be united in a single city treasury. The funds and obligations of the county shall be those of the city. The officers of the state government or of the county whose salaries or the expenses of whose offices or courts shall be paid in whole or in part by the city, shall at such times as may be required in the case of city offices submit to the chief executive of the city estimates of their needs. The city shall control the amount to be expended for such salaries and expenses except salaries prescribed by law and expenses of the courts of common pleas and of the orphans courts.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

The purpose of the proposed section is to control what is known as the "mandamus evil" in Philadelphia in so far as it arises from the salaries and expenses of county officers. In the present constitution there is no prohibition against these mandamuses. Although the city council must raise the money to pay the bills, it has no control over the amounts of the bills.

The Commission therefore recommend the adoption of the proposed section. With certain exceptions it places county officers on the same basis as city officers in respect to appropriations from the city treasury. The state government may still prescribe the salaries of county officers and judges. The court of common pleas and the orphans' court must submit estimates of the expenses of their offices and are not deprived of the power of mandamus.

Municipal Borrowing Capacity.

Section 17. A municipality may incur debt by borrowing money as prescribed by law if its aggregate debt for borrowed money would not then exceed the sum of:

(a) Ten per centum of the assessed value of the property therein taxable by or for the benefit of the municipality.

(b) An amount equal to that capital sum which, at the legal rate of interest and at such amortization charges as shall be prescribed by law would yield an amount equal to the net revenue derived by the municipality during the last preceding fiscal year from its public improvements.

(c) The amount of debt secured by liens on public improvements and imposing no obligation on the municipality, if the net revenue derived from such improvements has not been taken into account under paragraph (b).

(d) So much of any debt incurred within five years to acquire public improvements as shall be likely to be allowable under paragraph (b) within six years thereafter, if the net revenue derived from such improvements has not been taken into account under paragraph (b), and if such debt has not been taken into account under paragraph (c).

(e) The par value of the evidences of debt of the municipality owned by it and pledged toward the payment of the principle of its debt.

(f) The amount of cash and the market value of investments owned by the municipality and the amount of the collectible debts due or to fall due owned by the municipality, in so far as such assets are pledged toward the payment of the principle of its debt.

(g) Eighty per centum of the amount which it is estimated as prescribed by law that the municipality will receive within five years from assessments against property benefited by public improvements if such amount is pledged toward the payment of the principal of its debt and if it has not been taken into account under paragraph (f).

An indebtedness incurred by a municipality in excess of three per centum of the assessed value of the taxable property therein shall be approved by a majority of the electors thereof at a public election held as prescribed by law.

The term "incur debt," as used in this section, shall include an incurrence of new indebtedness, an extension of the maturity of a debt, a deferment of the payment of a debt, a change in the form of a debt, and an assumption of a debt.

A debt shall be deemed to be incurred at the time the obligation to pay is entered into or the contract to extend, defer, change or assume an existing debt is made.

Note.

Source: (1) The first paragraph of Article IX, section 8:

"The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as provided herein, and in section fifteen of this article, shall never exceed seven (7) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, but the debt of the city of Philadelphia may be increased in such amount that the total city debt of said city shall not exceed ten (10) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two (2) per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the consent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law. In ascertaining the borrowing capacity of the said city of Philadelphia, at any time, there shall be excluded from the calculation and deducted from such debt so much of the debt of said city as shall have been incurred, and the proceeds thereof invested, in any public improvement of any character which shall be yielding to the said city an annual current net revenue. The amount of such deduction shall be ascertained by capitalizing the annual net revenue from such improvement during the year immediately preceding the time of such ascertainment; and such capitalization shall be estimated by ascertaining the principal amount which would yield such annual, current net revenue, at the average rate of interest, and sinking fund charges payable upon the indebtedness incurred by said city for such purposes, up to the time of such ascertainment. The method of determining such amount, so to be deducted, may be prescribed by the general assembly. * * * (Amendment of November 4, 1918.)

(2) Article IX, section 15:

"No obligations which have been heretofore issued, or which may hereafter be issued, by any county or municipality, other than Philadelphia, to provide for the construction or acquisition of water-works, subways, underground railways, or street railways, or the appurtenances thereof, shall be considered as a debt of a municipality, within the meaning of section eight of article nine of the constitution of Pennsylvania or of this amendment, if the net revenue derived from said property for a period of five years, either before or after the acquisition thereof, or where the same is constructed by the county or municipality, after the completion thereof, shall have been sufficient to pay interest and sinking fund charges during said period upon said obligations, or if the said obligations shall be secured by liens upon the respective properties, and shall impose no municipal liability. * * * Any of the said municipalities or counties may incur indebtedness in excess of seven per centum, and not exceeding ten per centum, of the assessed valuation of the taxable property therein, if said increase of indebtedness shall have been assented to by three-fifths of the electors voting at a public election, in such manner as shall be provided by law." (Amendment of November 4, 1913.)

Preliminary Explanation: The limits, if any, which should be placed on the borrowing power of the municipalities is a subject of great difficulty and perplexity. As originally promulgated, the constitution limited the debt of all municipalities to seven per centum upon the assessed value of its taxable property. Successive amendments have been passed to meet, as they arose, now a condition in Philadelphia, again a condition in Pittsburgh or in another municipality, until at present the constitution presents two sets of provisions; one relating to Philadelphia and the other to the rest of the state, neither of which can be said to represent the result of any scientific study of the subject. For the existing complicated system, the result of the many amendments of recent years, the Commission has here attempted to present a single system applicable to all municipalities of the state, which we believe will be found easy to understand and apply and which will, on the one hand, give to municipalities sufficient borrowing power to meet the modern requirements for public works and, on the other, protect the people of the commonwealth from the unfortunate results of reckless municipal financing.

Changes in Substance: The last part of the introductory paragraph to the section as proposed prescribes:

"A municipality may incur * * * if its aggregate debt for borrowed money would not then exceed the sum of * * *

In the present constitution the method of setting forth the provisions of the section is to state that the borrowing capacity shall not exceed ten per centum of the assessed value of property, and then to declare that certain debts, as debts incurred for public works, under the conditions set forth are not to be regarded as debts for the purpose of the calculation. The awkwardness of this method of statement has increased the confusion and uncertainty which has always surrounded the whole question of the borrowing power of municipalities under existing constitutional provisions.

The principle underlying the provisions of the present constitution and of the section herein suggested is that a municipality may impose, in fact, on its taxpayers, the obligation to pay interest and amortization charges on a sum not exceeding ten per centum of the assessed value of the taxable value of the property within the municipality. The actual debt may exceed this sum by any amount provided there are assured revenues of the municipality from which the excess can be paid. The form of statement herein suggested corresponds to the facts. It is declared that a municipality may incur debt if its aggregate debt would not then exceed the sum of the several clauses set forth, of which ten per centum of the assessed value of real property in the municipality is one.

Clause (a) as proposed provides:

"Ten per centum of the assessed value of the property therein taxable by or for the benefit of the municipality."

At present the limit on the amount of indebtedness that may be incurred by a municipality is ten per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein. In municipalities other than Philadelphia, any increase above seven per centum of the assessed value of the taxable property must be assented to by three-fifths of the electors voting on the question. Under clause (a) as proposed, the assent of a majority of the electors voting on the question is all that is required.

The words "or for the benefit of" are inserted in clause (a) so as to take care of any municipality for which the state government, or some other authority except the municipality itself, actually levied the tax. The four mill tax in Pennsylvania on certain "money at interest" and "vehicles to hire," was levied by the legislature, and not by any of the municipalities benefiting therefrom. As it is quite possible that at some future time taxes for municipal purposes, on all or a portion of the property included in the basis for determining municipal debt limits, might be levied by some authority other than the municipalities themselves, it is desirable that the constitution clearly indicate that the property, on which taxes are so levied is to be used as a basis for calculating the debt limits of the municipalities.

Clause (b) as proposed provides:

"An amount equal to that capital sum which, at the legal rate of interest and at such amortization charges as shall be prescribed by law would yield an amount equal to the net revenue derived by the municipality during the last preceding fiscal year from its public improvements."

Under the present constitution in ascertaining the amount of existing indebtedness for the purpose of calculating the borrowing power at any time, it is permissible to disregard under certain conditions any indebtedness incurred in the past for public improvements which are yielding an annual current net revenue. The conditions under which such indebtedness can be disregarded in the calculation are not the same for the city of Philadelphia as for other municipalities.

In municipalities other than Philadelphia, in order to disregard a prior indebtedness in calculating the "existing indebtedness," the prior indebtedness must have been incurred "for the construction or acquisition of waterworks, subways, underground railways or street railways, or the appurtenances thereof"; while in Philadelphia the prior indebtedness may have been incurred for "any public improvement."

Again, in municipalities other than Philadelphia, such indebtedness must have been incurred for the acquisition of properties which for a period of five years, either before or after their acquisition, have been yielding a net revenue sufficient to pay the interest and sinking fund charges on such indebtedness; while in Philadelphia the improvement for which such indebtedness is incurred must have been yielding an annual current net revenue to the city for the year immediately preceding the time the calculation is made.

Furthermore, in any municipality, except Philadelphia, no portion of the indebtedness incurred for the acquisition of the properties can be deducted from the present indebtedness of the municipality for the purpose of calculating the existing borrowing capacity unless the annual net revenue has been sufficient to pay all the interest and sinking fund charges on the indebtedness incurred for the improvement while in Philadelphia, if the operation of the improvement has during the preceding year yielded to the city any current net revenue, there may be deducted from the total indebtedness of the city, for the purpose of calculating its borrowing capacity, a capital sum ascertained by determining the amount which will yield at the average rate of interest and sinking fund charges payable by the city, the annual current revenue which the city is receiving from the operation of the improvement.

Clause (b) as proposed is a substitute for these confused and complicated provisions. The principle underlying the clause is that where there is a public improvement which is actually yielding a net revenue, then that capital sum which would yield an equal revenue at the current rate of interest and amortization charges can safely be added to the assessed value of the taxable real estate in order to ascertain the amount of the debt limit of the municipality. The kind of public improvement from which the revenue is derived should make no difference, neither should it be stipulated that the public improvement which is yielding a net revenue should have been acquired by the expenditure of borrowed money. Therefore, in drafting clause (b), these requirements found in the existing constitution have been omitted.

Clause (c) as proposed provides:

"The amount of debt secured by liens on public improvements and imposing no obligation on the municipality, if the net revenue derived from such improvements has not been taken into account under paragraph (b)."

This clause expresses the principle that there should not be any limitation on the amount of those debts of municipalities which are secured by liens on public improvements and impose no liability on the municipality, and that the existence of such debts should not limit in any manner the borrowing capacity of a municipality. In the present constitution this principle is recognized but is applied only to municipalities other than Philadelphia (Article IX, section 15 of the present constitution.) In clause (c) as worded, the principle is extended to Philadelphia by being made applicable to all municipalities.

Clause (d) as herein proposed provides:

"So much of any debt incurred within five years to acquire public improvements as shall be likely to be allowable under paragraph (b) within six years thereafter, if the net revenue derived from such improvements has not been taken into account under paragraph (b), and if such debt has not been taken into account under paragraph (c)."

In the present constitution, under Article IX, section 15, any municipality other than Philadelphia, in computing its debt for the purpose of ascertaining its remaining borrowing capacity, can deduct from its indebtedness any debt incurred to acquire a public improvement which, for a period of five years before or after it has been acquired by the municipality has yielded a net revenue sufficient to pay the interest and sinking fund charges on such debt.

Under the clause as proposed, the general principle underlying this provision is recognized but the method of treatment is wholly different and involves the following:

(1) It makes a uniform rule for all municipalities. (Philadelphia is not excepted.)

(2) It applies to revenue derived from any public improvement and not merely to revenue derived from water works and transportation facilities.

(3) The public improvement need not have yielded, during a period of five years preceding the calculation, a net revenue sufficient to pay the legal rate of interest and sinking fund charges on money borrowed for its acquisition, but, on the other hand, the public improvement must be likely to yield a revenue within six years from the incurrence of the debt contracted to acquire it. Thus, under the provisions of clause (b), as proposed, if a municipality desires to acquire a public utility such as a trolley system, or build waterworks, without encroaching on its borrowing capacity for other purposes, it could borrow for the purposes of the acquisition no more than a sum which would yield, at the legal rate of interest and amortization charges, an annual net income equal to what, in the opinion of a state-wide agency, would be the current annual net revenue within six years.

Clause (e) as proposed provides:

"The par value of the evidences of debt of the municipality owned by it and pledged toward the payment of the principal of its debt."

This clause expresses the principle that where a municipality owns some of its own debt, that municipality has, to all intents and purposes, paid that debt. In such a case, the asset and the liability merge or offset each other and in all computations of debt limits the securities owned should offset or support the debt to the exact amount at which such securities are counted as a liability.

The present constitution makes no express reference to this subject, but the Supreme Court has decided that municipal bonds held in the sinking fund are no longer debts of the municipality for the purpose of calculating its borrowing capacity under the provisions of the constitution. (Brooke v. Philadelphia, 162 Pa. 123, 1894; Bruce v. Pittsburgh, 106 Pa. 152, 1895).

Clause (f) as herein proposed provides:

"The amount of cash and the market value of investments owned by the municipality and the amount of the collectible debts due or to fall due owned by the municipality, in so far as such assets are pledged toward the payment of the principal of its debt."

The subject of this clause is not referred to in the present constitution. As herein proposed, it is another application of the principle that the borrowing power of a municipality may be increased by the amount of its assets available and pledged to meet existing indebtedness.

In Brooke v. Philadelphia, 162 Pa. 123, 1894, the supreme court held that securities in the sinking fund, other than the bonds of the municipality, are merely an asset of the city and do not operate to reduce the debt or increase the borrowing capacity of the municipality. The clause as proposed would increase the borrowing capacity of the municipality by the market value of such securities.

Clause (g) as proposed provides:

"Eighty per centum of the amount which it is estimated as prescribed by law that the municipality will receive within five years from assessments against property benefited by public improvements, if such amount is pledged toward the payment of the principal of its debt and it has not been taken into account under paragraph (f)."

This is entirely new matter. It is based on the same principle as clause (f). Under Article XIII, section 22, laws may be enacted authorizing assessments against properties which are especially and particularly benefited by public improvements. As explained in the note appended to that section, its object is to enable large public improvements to be made by assessing a part of the cost on the properly specially benefited thereby. Where, in other jurisdictions, this system of carrying on public improvements is adopted, it has been found in practice to be desirable to make the benefits assessed payable over a series of years. Therefore, the suggested provision in the section here proposed that the assessments to be paid within five years is made the basis of the calculation. As the municipality under the proposed wording of the clause is the judge of the amount of the assessments which will be received, we have inserted, as a precaution against over-estimates, the provision that only eighty per centum of the amount which it is estimated that the municipality will receive is to be taken into consideration.

The second paragraph in the section as proposed provides:

"An indebtedness incurred by a municipality in excess of three per centum of the assessed value of the taxable property therein shall be approved by a majority or the electors thereof at a public election held as prescribed by law."

The corresponding provision in Article IX, section 8 of the present constitution provides that the limit of debt-incurring power without the consent of the electorate is two per centum.

Third paragraph of the section as proposed provides:

"The term 'incur debt,' as used in this section, shall include an incurrence of new indebtedness, an extension of the maturity of a debt, a deferment of the payment of a debt, a change in the form of a debt, and an assumption of a debt."

To avoid the uncertainty and the resulting litigation which results from the uncertainty of exactly what constitute an incurrence of a new debt or increase in indebtedness under the present constitution, it is necessary that the words "incur debt" as used in this proposed section shall be defined. We have intentionally made the definition as inclusive as possible.

Under the wording of the section as proposed, if a municipality desired to refund its debt, the issuing of the new obligations in place of the old would not increase the debt of the municipality, but the act would be an incurrence of a debt and if the amount involved was greater than one-quarter of one per centum of the assessed value of the real estate, the assent of the electorate would have to be obtained. This result, it is submitted, is correct in principle. Questions pertaining to the refunding of a loan are often as important as those involved in the original issue of the loan.

The final paragraph of the section as proposed provides:

"A debt shall be deemed to be incurred at the time the obligation to pay is entered into or the contract to extend, defer, change or assume an existing debt is made."

This paragraph has been incorporated in the section to avoid continuance of the uncertainty and confusion which exists today in practice as between different municipalities in respect to the time when the debt is incurred. In drafting this paragraph, it would be possible to make the time of incurring the debt (a) when the ordinance placing the question before the electorate is adopted, or (b) when the electorate ratify the increase, or (c) when the ordinance is adopted directing the proper officers to enter into the indebtedness on behalf of the municipality, or (d) when the obligation to pay is actually incurred. Under the provisions of the paragraph suggested, the last of these possibilities has been adopted. Under its provisions, if the electorate authorize two loans at successive times which in the aggregate exceed the limit of debt-incurring power at the time, the one last authorized, if by itself it does exceed the limit, may be negotiated, if no action to incur indebtedness has been entered into under the first loan.

Duration and Payment of Debts.

Section 18. A municipality shall not incur a debt maturing more than fifty years thereafter. The aggregate amount of principal and interest payable in respect of a debt in any year shall not be less than the amount payable in any later year and shall not be less than the amount payable in any later year unless the sinking fund method of amortization is authorized by law. Such sinking fund shall be sufficient to pay the accruing interest on such debt and annually to reduce the principal by a sum not less than three per centum of such principal. The money in such sinking fund shall be invested in the bonds of the United States, of the state government or of a municipality thereof.

On or before incurring a debt by borrowing money, the municipality shall provide for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the principal and interest as they fall due.

Note.

Source: (1) Article IX, section 10:

"Any county, township, school district or other municipality incurring any indebtedness shall, at or before the time of so doing, provide for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest and also the principal thereof within thirty years."

(2) Article XV, section 3:

"Every city shall create a sinking fund, which shall be inviolably pledged for the payment of its funded debt."

(3) Part of Article IX, section 8:

"* * * In incurring indebtedness for any purpose, the city of Philadelphia may issue its obligations maturing not later than fifty years from the date thereof, with provision for a sinking fund sufficient to retire said obligations at maturity, the payment to such sinking fund to be in equal or graded annual or other periodical instalments. Where any indebtedness shall be or shall have been incurred by said city of Philadelphia for the purpose of the construction or improvement of public works of any character, from which income or revenue is to be derived by said city, or for the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of wharves or docks owned or to be owned by said city, such obligations may be in an amount sufficient to provide for and may include the amount of, the interest and sinking fund charges accruing and which may accrue thereon throughout the period of construction and until the expiration of one year after the completion of the work for which said indebtedness shall have been incurred; and said city shall not be required to levy a tax to pay said interest and sinking fund charges as required by section ten, article nine of the constitution of Pennsylvania, until the expiration of said period of one year after the completion of said work." (Amendment of November 5, 1918.)

(4) Part of Article IX, section 15:

"* * * Where municipalities or counties shall issue obligations to provide for the construction of property, as herein provided" (i. e., water-works, subways, underground railways or street railways or appurtenances thereto) "said municipalities or counties may also issue obligations to provide for the interest and sinking fund charges accruing thereon until said properties shall have been completed and in operation for a period of one year; and said municipalities and counties shall not be required to levy a tax to pay said interest and sinking fund charges as required by section ten of article nine of the constitution of Pennsylvania, until after said properties shall have been operated by said counties or municipalities during said period of one year * * * (Amendment of November 4, 1913).

Changes in Substance: (1) The right of the city of Philadelphia, in incurring indebtedness for the construction or improvement of public works of any character from which income is to be derived by the city or for the reclamation of lands to be used in the construction of wharves and docks owned or to be owned by the city, and the right of other municipalities, in incurring indebtedness for the construction of water-works, subways, underground railways or street railways or appurtenances thereto, to include the amount of the interest and sinking fund charges accruing or which may accrue throughout the period of construction and until one year after the completion of the work, thus relieving the municipality from the obligation to pay interest and sinking fund charges on the debt out of current revenues until the expiration of one year after the completion of the work, is abolished.

The disastrous effects of the provision of the present constitution is shown by the figures submitted to the Commission by the Department of City Transit in Philadelphia. In 1916, $4,000,000 bonds were issued to obtain money for the construction of transit facilities. By the end of 1920, twenty per cent of this amount will have been used to pay the interest and sinking fund charges on account of these bonds. As all work on the sections of the subways for which the money was largely borrowed has been stopped, it will be perceived that a large proportion of the loan will be eventually consumed in the carrying charges. All of which means that the people of Philadelphia, by being permitted to postpone the day when the carrying charges on the transit loans will have to be paid out of taxation, may have doubled the amount which will ultimately have to be met by taxation.

(2) The extension to all municipalities of the right to issue bonds maturing in fifty years irrespective of the purposes for which the bonds are issued.

Under the present constitution, all bonds issued by a municipality must mature within thirty years, except bonds issued by the city of Philadelphia, which must mature not later than fifty years from the date of issue.

The longer term reduces the annual amortization charges. The Commission believe that a municipal bond should not be outstanding longer than the life of the public improvement for the acquisition of which the debt was created. The extension of the term does not violate the principle as the more expensive class of public improvements, as subways, docks and water-works, are constructed to last for a much longer period than fifty years.

(3) The establishment of the serial bond system in lieu of the sinking fund system of amortization, unless the sinking fund system of amortization, is authorized by an agency created by law with state-wide jurisdiction. This is in accordance with modern practice.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Debts Other Than for Money Borrowed.

Section 19. A municipality shall not incur a debt otherwise than by the borrowing of money unless there has been an appropriation to pay the debt.

Note.

Source: Article XV, section 2:

"No debt shall be contracted or liability incurred by any municipal commission, except in pursuance of an appropriation previously made therefor by the municipal government."

Changes in Substance: In the present constitution, Article XV, section 2 apparently enunciates the principle that no agency other than the municipality itself can incur, for the municipality, debt or liability "except in pursuance of a previous appropriation therefor by the municipal government." The Commission, however, believe that the constitution should express a far wider principle; namely, that debt, other than the borrowing of money, cannot be incurred by a municipal government unless an appropriation has been made by such government to pay such debt. The section as proposed expresses this principle.

We have worded this section (Article III, section 20, of the present constitution) so that it is confined to prohibitions on a municipality in respect to the creation of a debt, and section 21 of this article so that it is confined to prohibitions on the state government creating municipal commissions to perform municipal functions.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Municipalities Not to Pledge Credit.

Section 20. A municipality shall not pledge or lend its credit to a corporation, association or individual and shall not be a stockholder or owner in a corporation or association. Except to discharge municipal liabilities, it shall not appropriate money to assist a private business enterprise.

The provisions of this section shall not be construed to apply to the lease by a municipality to a corporation of a public service facility for a rental dependent on the earnings of the lessee if the corporation covenants to operate the facility and an agency created by law to regulate public utilities approves the lease.

Note.

Source: Article IX, section 7:

"The general assembly shall not authorize any county, city, borough, township or incorporated district to become a stockholder in any company, association or corporation, or to obtain or appropriate money, for, or to loan its credit to, any corporation, association, institution or individual."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: The Commission believe that the intent of the drafters of the section in the present constitution was to prevent a municipality assisting a business enterprise. The methods of assistance were to become a stockholder, and to appropriate money for or lend its credit to the enterprise. In attempting to embody the principle in the section, the section was so worded as to make it impossible for the courts to construe it as meaning what it says. It says: "The general assembly shall not authorize any county, city, borough or incorporated district to become a stockholder in any company, association or corporation, or to obtain or appropriate money for or to loan its credit to any corporation, association or individual. Interpreted literally, this would prevent on the one hand, the appropriation of money to a corporation, association, institution or individual in payment of the debts of the municipality; and, on the other, it would prevent all gifts by the municipality to any corporation, association, individual or institution. Thus the payment of money for widow's pension's would be clearly unconstitutional. The courts have attempted to construe the section so as to make it, if possible, workable, with the result that the recorded decisions, while they reflect a certain practical common sense, are difficult to reconcile and there is always the possibility of litigation raised by a taxpayer's bill to restrain an appropriation which while clearly within the language of the prohibition of the section, is probably not within the intent of its drafters. In re-drafting the section, we have attempted to confine the first paragraph to a clear expression of the principle that a municipality should not become a partner in or lend its aid to a business enterprise. No attempt is made to prevent a gift by a municipality provided the gift is not in assistance of a business enterprise.

The second paragraph is inserted to meet the following situation: The people of a city desire a public service facility of a particular character, as, for instance, subways for street railway passenger traffic. From a commercial point of view we will suppose it is not possible to finance the cost of construction because the returns from the operation of the facilities will not yield, above the cost of operation, sufficient return to pay the interest on the cost. The city constructs the facility, not with the intent of operating it, but with the intent of leasing it to an operating company. Under the circumstances supposed, it is not possible for the city to secure an operator who will agree to pay the city at all events the ordinary rate of interest on the cost of the facility. Perhaps the best lease, from the point of view of the city's interest, that can be made under the circumstances is a lease in which the operator is not obligated to pay any rent unless the rent is earned out of the current revenues above operating expenses. Under the wording of the section in the present constitution, a doubt has arisen whether such a lease would not be held to be a loaning of money. A decision to this effect, under an almost similar provision of the Ohio constitution, has been made by the supreme court of that state. (See State, ex rel., Campbell vs. Cincinnati Street Railway Co., 97 Ohio State, 283.)

Under the wording of the second paragraph of the section here proposed, it is clear that such a lease would not violate the provisions of the first paragraph of this section.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Special Commissions Prohibited.

Section 21. No law shall delegate to a special commission, corporation or association power to perform a municipal function, or to make, supervise or interfere with a municipal improvement, or with municipal property or money, whether held in trust or otherwise.

Note.

Source: Article III, section 20:

"The general assembly shall not delegate to any special commission, private corporation or association, any power to make, supervise or interfere with any municipal improvement, money, property or effects, whether held in trust or otherwise, or to levy taxes or perform any municipal function whatever."

Changes in Substance: None.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Assessments of Benefits for Public Improvements.

Section 22. Laws may be enacted authorizing assessments against properties which are specially and particularly benefited by public improvements made by the state government or by a municipality, whether or not such properties abut upon such public improvements.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

The principle embodied in this section is to assess the direct special monetary increase in values caused by a public improvement upon the properties specially benefited, whether directly abutting on the improvement or not. The payment of the assessment can be, and we believe generally will be spread over a period of ten years.

While an important public work causes a general much-diffused increase of values over the whole community, there is always a direct special benefit on the property very directly within the sphere of influence of such a work, and it is only this specially benefited property that may be assessed specially under this section.

The method of paying for improvements through the assessment of benefits upon properties affected, whether or not they touch the improvement, is finding more and more general application throughout the United States. Under the present constitution, as interpreted by the courts, such assessments are limited to abutting properties, an arbitrary rule that accords with neither fact nor justice.

That the opening of streets, the construction of transportation lines, the creation of parks and other large municipal improvements greatly increases the value of property is proven in every case where such improvements have been made, and it is very seldom that the owners of property benefited contribute any substantial aid, financial or otherwise, toward the improvement.

In Philadelphia, the opening of the Boulevard from Broad street through the northeastern part of the city more than doubled the value of the property in its vicinity.

Prior to the construction of the Market street subway-elevated line in that city the average annual increase, during several years in the assessed value of property in West Philadelphia wards was about $2,300,000, while the average increase in the same area since its construction has been about $11,500,000, most of which has been in the section served directly by the car lines using the subway. The territory benefited contributed nothing towards the construction of the lines, although it received enormous benefits.

It should be appreciated that failure to assess special benefits where there are special benefits, cripples the progress of a city and prevents other property owners from getting improvements to which they are equally entitled. A city has only a certain sum to spend on developments; the assessment of benefits will make that sum go much further than it would if there were no such assessment. It is, we believe, no exaggeration to say that without the amendment to the present constitution embodied in the section herein proposed, it will not be possible to make, in the old and more densely populated cities of the state, the public improvements necessary to enable them to become and continue to be attractive places of residence.

The principle embodied in the section applies to improvements made by the money of the taxpayer whether the agent carrying on the improvements is a municipal government or the government of the state. We have, therefore, so worded the section as to apply to the state government. We have, however, placed the section under this article on Municipalities and not under either Articles III or IV, which deal with the organization and powers of the legislative and the executive branches of the state government, as we believe that this section and the next two sections, 23 and 24, all relating to public improvements, should appear in one place in the constitution. As section 23, for the reasons stated in the note to that section, should appear in this article, and section 24, relating as it does only to municipalities, must appear in this article; we have also placed in this article this section on the assessment of benefits for public improvements.

Extent of Land Permitted to be Taken for Public Improvements.

Section 23. When the public purpose for which land is taken can best be attained by acquiring more land than the state government or the municipality proposes to retain, the state government or the municipality, subject to regulations prescribed by law, may take all the land which in its judgment is needed for the attainment of such purpose and may dispose of portions thereof, subject to restrictions protective of the public purpose.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

The amendment proposed in this section embodies the principle that when the public take land they should be able to take enough land to fully carry out the public purposes intended. As worded, it recognizes the fact that this in many cases necessarily involves taking some land which will not be permanently retained for public use. The reason for and the purpose of the section can be best made clear by the following illustration.

Suppose the public improvement desired by a city is a boulevard which will cut the boundary lines of properties fronting on the older existing streets at all sorts of angles. If the land taken is confined to the lines of the boulevard, it is impossible to carry out fully the object of the improvement, which is to have the boulevard lined by large and well-built public and private properties. Practically, this object can be obtained only by condemning the land on either side of the line of the proposed boulevard to a depth sufficient to afford suitable building lots fronting on the boulevard.

Already the facts here set forth have been recognized in other states. Massachusetts in 1911. Ohio and Wisconsin in 1912 and New York in 1913, have adopted amendments to their constitutions similar to the one embodied in this section.

It will be noted that the section applies to land taken by the state government as well as land taken by a municipality. It therefore, in strictness, should not be placed in an article the title to which indicates that it is confined to municipalities. We have placed it in this article because there is no other article to which it can be properly assigned. It does not require legislation to make it operative and therefore should not be placed in Article III, and it would not seem advisable to create a separate article on the taking of land.

Zoning of Municipalities.

Section 24. Municipalities may be authorized by law to promote the general welfare by regulating the location, size and use of buildings. For the purpose of such regulations, a municipality may divide its territory into districts, to each of which special regulations may be applied.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

We believe that it is generally recognized that a modern city, or a municipality created to govern a country district should have the power to divide its territory into zones for the purpose of making regulations which will enable each zone to be developed along lines suitable to its location, and permit the scientific planning of the development of the entire territory for the best interest of the whole community.

We therefore believe that the general assembly should have the right to grant to any class of municipalities the power to adopt what is popularly known as a zoning system, and have suggested the adoption of the section so as to remove, so far as possible, any constitutional objection that may exist to such legislation.

Contract Between Municipalities.

Section 25. A municipality may, as prescribed by law, contract with one or more municipalities for the joint acquisition, construction, maintenance, supervision or operation of public property, for the creation of agencies to effect any of such purposes, and for the creation of such agencies as may be mutually agreed upon for the good government of the municipalities. Such agencies shall not levy taxes or borrow money. Every such contract shall name arbitrators.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

There are many improvements, as, for instance, the proper drainage of a large district or its proper water supply, which are too large to be carried out by one municipality. Such improvements can be carried out in three ways:

- (1) By the action of the state government.
- (2) By the creation of a new class of municipalities for the purpose of carrying on the improvement.
- (3) By the joint action of the municipalities, the territories of which are affected by the improvement.

The amendment embodied in the section here proposed will, if adopted, remove any possible constitutional objection to the third method.

The section will also enable two or more municipalities, when permitted by law, to carry on jointly any municipal activity, as for instance, police protection.

Street Passenger Railways in Cities, Boroughs or Townships.

Section 26. A street passenger railway shall not be constructed in a city, borough or township except with the consent of the municipality.

The provisions of this section shall not be construed to permit a restriction on the power of the state government to regulate the operation of such railway.

Note.

Source: Article XVII, section 9:

"No street passenger railway shall be constructed within the limits of any city, borough or township, without the consent of its local authorities."

Changes in Substance: None.

Clarifying Changes: The second paragraph of the section makes it certain that the wording of the first paragraph, which is practically identical with Article XVII, section 9, of the present constitution, will never be construed to permit any action on the part of the state government or a municipal government as taking from the state government the right to regulate the operation of such street passenger railways as may be constructed with the consent of the local authorities. We believe that the retention in the state government of the police power of the commonwealth over the operation of all utilities is essential to public welfare.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

One Place of Paying Taxes in Cities and Boroughs.

Section 27. Laws shall be enacted to enable a taxpayer in each city and borough to pay all municipal taxes at one office.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter.

The adoption of this provision will, we believe, do away with the system of having different offices for the payment of county, school and city or borough taxes. It will enable the residents of each city and borough to pay not merely city or borough taxes at one office, but all taxes—county, school or other taxes—except state taxes, at one office. There may be, after the adoption of the section, more than one office in a city or borough at which taxes are paid, but any one taxpayer will be able to pay all his municipal taxes at one office.

ARTICLE XIV.

AMENDMENT AND REVISION.

Preliminary Note.

Source: Article XVIII of the present constitution.

Title: In the present constitution this article is entitled "Future Amendments." The change in title is made to cover the proposed additional section relating to revision of the constitution by a constitutional convention.

Amendment of Constitution.

Section 1. An amendment to this constitution may be proposed in the general assembly. If agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each house, it shall be entered on the journals with the names of the members voting for and of those voting against, and the secretary of the commonwealth shall cause it to be published once a week for four weeks immediately preceding the next general election in at least two newspapers in every county in which newspapers shall be published. If it shall be likewise agreed to by the next general assembly, the secretary of the commonwealth shall cause it to be published in the manner aforesaid for four weeks immediately preceding the first general municipal election which shall first occur not less than three months after such agreement, and it shall be submitted at such election to the electors of the commonwealth in such manner as the general assembly shall prescribe. If it shall be approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon, it shall become a part of the constitution. When two or more amendments are submitted to the electors at the same time, they shall be voted upon separately. When any amendment submitted to the electors shall not be approved by a majority thereof, no amendment substantially the same shall again be submitted to the electors within five years.

Note.

Source: Article XVIII, section 1:

"Any amendment or amendments to this constitution may be proposed in the senate or house of representatives; and, if the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each house, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be entered on their journals with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and the secretary of the commonwealth shall cause the same to be published three months before the next general election, in at least two newspapers in every county in which such newspapers shall be published; and if, in the general assembly next afterwards chosen, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each house, the secretary of the commonwealth shall cause the same again to be published in the manner aforesaid; and such proposed amendment or amendments shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the state in such manner and at such time at least three months after being so agreed to by the two houses, as the general assembly shall prescribe; and if such amendment or amendments shall be approved by a majority of those voting thereon, such amendment or amendments shall become a part of the constitution; but no amendment or amendments shall be submitted oftener than once in five years. When two or more amendments shall be submitted they shall be voted upon separately."

Changes in Substance: (1) The required advertisement, when the amendment has been passed by two successive general assemblies, may precede either a general or a municipal election. Under the present constitution, it must precede a general election. The change is made for the following reasons:

The general assembly meets and municipal elections are held in odd-numbered years. General elections are held in even-numbered years. If any amendment is agreed to by the general assembly in 1921 and is again ratified in 1923, it cannot, under the present constitution be advertised until 1924. The Commission believe that the electors should have an opportunity to pass on the proposed amendment at the first election after its second approval by the general assembly, i. e., the election of 1923.

(2) The amendment must be published by the secretary of the commonwealth for four weeks, instead of thirteen weeks, as provided in the present constitution.

Clarifying Changes: The language of the present constitution as to advertisements is ambiguous. The Commission therefore recommend substituting the words "to be published once a week for four weeks immediately preceding the next regular election." This change is approved by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Changes in Style: The Commission's rules of style have been followed.

Constitutional Conventions.

Section 2. The general assembly may recommend to the electors of the commonwealth to vote for or against a convention for the framing of a new constitution or of amendments to this constitution, or of a revision thereof. Such convention shall be held only with the approval of a majority of the electors voting with the question. It shall be composed of delegates chosen by the electors of the commonwealth. The new constitution, the amendments or the revised constitution proposed by the convention shall become effective only when ratified by a majority of the electors of the commonwealth voting thereon. The times and methods of such voting and election and the composition of the convention shall be determined by the general assembly with the consent of a majority of the members elected to each house.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. After very careful consideration of the principles and precedents involved, the Commission have concluded that the methods of change, amended or revision upon recommendation of a constitutional convention should be embodied in the constitution itself.

The proposed section contemplates five steps in such a process:

1. The action of the general assembly directing a vote to be taken as to the desirability of holding a constitutional convention.

2. A vote favorable to the proposition.

(Constitutional conventions have been held in Pennsylvania and elsewhere without the approval of the electors; that is, the electors have simply been permitted by a statute to choose delegates without first having an opportunity to approve or to disapprove of the holding of a constitutional convention. In view, however, of the prevailing modern practice, and of the doubt felt by the Commission as to the validity of a convention held without such approval, the second sentence of the proposed section is recommended.)

It will be observed that it would be feasible, under the proposed section, to place before the electors at the same election, the question of holding a convention and the choice of delegates.)

3. The election of delegates to the convention.

4. The submission of proposals by the convention to the electors.

5. A vote favorable to the proposals.

The constitutions of Pennsylvania of 1776 and 1790 were promulgated by the constitutional conventions which drafted them. But the universal modern practice is to require the proposals of the convention to be approved by the electors. The Commission therefore recommends that such approval be expressly provided for in the constitution.

Concluding Section.

Wherever a term in the masculine form is used in the constitution, it refers to men and women alike.

Note.

Source: This is entirely new matter. It is necessary because it has been impossible to draft a constitution without using the masculine pronoun. To say "he or she," or "him or her" on every occasion would be awkward in the extreme.

EXHIBIT D.

THE PRESENT CONSTITUTION.

With cross-references to the corresponding provisions of the constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE I.

DECLARATION OF RIGHTS.

Note.

The Commission recommend that the Declaration of Rights be adopted without change. The text will be found in Part II of the Report of the Commission.

ARTICLE II.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Legislative Power.

Section 1. The legislative power of this commonwealth shall be vested in the general assembly which shall consist of a Senate and a House of Representatives.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. II, sec. 1, constitution as proposed.

Election of Members.—Vacancies.

Section 2. Members of the general assembly shall be chosen at the general election every second year. Their term of service shall begin on the first day of December next after their election. Wherever a vacancy shall occur in either House, the presiding officer thereof shall issue a writ of election to fill such vacancy for the remainder of the term.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. II, sec. 6, constitution as proposed.

Terms of Members.

Section 3. Senators shall be elected for the term of four years and representatives for the term of two years.

Part of—

Art. II, sec. 6, constitution as proposed.

Sessions.—United States Senators.

Section 4. The general assembly shall meet at twelve o'clock, noon, on the first Tuesday of January every second year, and at other times when convened by the governor, but shall hold no adjourned annual session after the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight. In case of a vacancy in the office of United States senator from this commonwealth, in a recess between sessions, the governor shall convene the two houses, by proclamation on notice not exceeding sixty days to fill the same.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. II, sec. 9, constitution as proposed.

The provisions in the present constitution following the words "annual session" have been omitted as obsolete.

Qualification of Members.

Section 5. Senators shall be at least twenty-five years of age and representatives twenty-one years of age. They shall have been citizens and inhabitants of the state four years, and inhabitants of their respective districts one year next before their election (unless absent on the public business of the United States or of this state), and shall reside in their respective districts during their terms of service.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. II, sec. 5, constitution as proposed.

Disqualification to Hold Other Office.

Section 6. No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he shall have been elected, be appointed to any civil office under this commonwealth, and no member of Congress or other person holding any office (except of attorney-at-law or in the militia) under the United States or this Commonwealth shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VII, sec. 2, constitution as proposed.

Certain Crimes to Disqualify.

Section 7. No person hereafter convicted of embezzlement of public moneys, bribery, perjury or other infamous crime shall be eligible to the general assembly, or capable of holding any office of trust or profit in this commonwealth.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VII, sec. 3, constitution as proposed.

Compensation.

Section 8. The members of the general assembly shall receive such salary and mileage for regular and special sessions as shall be fixed by law, and no other compensation whatever, whether for service upon committee or otherwise. No member of either House shall, during the term for which he may have been elected, receive any increase of salary, or mileage, under any law passed during such term.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. II, sec. 7, constitution as proposed.

Presiding Officers.—Other Officers.—Election and Qualification of Members.

Section 9. The Senate shall, at the beginning and close of each regular session and at such other times as may be necessary, elect one of its members president pro tempore, who shall perform the duties of the Lieutenant Governor, in any case of absence or disability of that officer, and whenever the said office of Lieutenant Governor shall be vacant. The House of Representatives shall elect one of its members as speaker. Each House shall choose its other officers, and shall judge of the election and qualifications of its members.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. II, sec. 12; Art. II, sec. 11, constitution as proposed.
The definition of the duties of the president pro tempore of the senate has been omitted because covered by Article IV, section 14, as proposed.

Quorum.

Section 10. A majority of each House shall constitute a quorum, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day and compel the attendance of absent members.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. II, sec. 10, constitution as proposed.

Powers of Each Branch.—Expulsion.

Section 11. Each House shall have power to determine the rules of its proceedings and punish its members or other persons for contempt or disorderly behavior in its presence, to enforce obedience to its process, to protect its members against violence or offers of bribes or private solicitation, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, to expel a member, but not a second time for the same cause, and shall have all other powers necessary for the legislature of a free state. A member expelled for corruption shall not thereafter be eligible to either House, and punishment for contempt or disorderly behavior shall not bar an indictment for the same offense.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. II, sec. 11, constitution as proposed.

Journals.—Yeas and Nays.

Section 12. Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings and from time to time publish the same, except such parts as require secrecy, and the yeas and nays of the members on any question shall, at the desire of any two of them, be entered on the journal.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. II, sec. 14, constitution as proposed.

Sessions Shall be Open.

Section 13. The sessions of each House and of committees of the whole shall be open, unless when the business is such as ought to be kept secret.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. II, sec. 15, constitution as proposed.

Adjournments.

Section 14. Neither House shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. II, sec. 16, constitution as proposed.

Privileges of Members.

Section 15. The members of the general assembly shall in all cases, except treason, felony, violation of their oath of office, and breach of surety of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sessions of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either House they shall not be questioned in any other place.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. II, sec. 8, constitution as proposed.

Senatorial Districts.—Ratio.

Section 16. They shall be divided into fifty senatorial districts of compact and contiguous territory as nearly equal in population as may be, and each district shall be entitled to elect one senator. Each county containing one or more ratios of population shall be entitled to one senator for each ratio, and to an additional senator for a surplus of population exceeding three-fifths of a ratio, but no county shall form a separate district unless it shall contain four-fifths of a ratio, except where the adjoining counties are each entitled to one or more senators when such county may be assigned a senator on less than four-fifths and exceeding one-half of a ratio; and no county shall be divided unless entitled to two or more senators. No city or county shall be entitled to separate representation exceeding one-sixth of the whole number of senators. No ward, borough or township shall be divided in the formation of a district. The senatorial ratio shall be ascertained by dividing the whole population of the state by the number fifty.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. II, sec. 3, constitution as proposed.

Representative Districts.

Section 17. The members of the House of Representatives shall be apportioned among the several counties, on a ratio obtained by dividing the population of the state as ascertained by the most recent United States census by two hundred. Every county containing less than five ratios shall have one representative for every full ratio, and an additional representative when the surplus exceeds half a ratio; but each county shall have at least one representative. Every county containing five ratios or more shall have one representative for every full ratio. Every city containing a population equal to a ratio shall elect separately its proportion of the representatives allotted to the county in which it is located. Every city entitled to more than four representatives, and every county having over one hundred thousand inhabitants shall be divided into districts of compact and contiguous territory, each district to elect its proportion of representatives according to its population, but no district shall elect more than four representatives.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. II, sec. 4, constitution as proposed.

Legislative Apportionment.

Section 18. The general assembly at its first session after the adoption of this constitution, and immediately after each United States decennial census, shall apportion the state into senatorial and representative districts agreeably to the provisions of the two next preceding sections.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. II, sec. 2, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE III.

LEGISLATION.

Passage of Bills.—Change of Purpose.

Section 1. No law shall be passed except by bill, and no bill shall be so altered or amended, on its passage through either House, as to change its original purpose.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. II, sec. 1; Art. III, sec. 5, constitution as proposed.

Reference to Committee.—Printing.

Section 2. No bill shall be considered unless referred to a committee, returned therefrom, and printed for the use of the members.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. III, sec. 2, constitution as proposed.

Subject of Bills.—Title.

Section 3. No bill except general appropriation bills shall be passed containing more than one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in its title.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. III, secs. 9, 10, constitution as proposed.

Three Readings.—Amendments.—Final Vote.

Section 4. Every bill shall be read at length on three different days in each House; all amendments made thereto shall be printed for the use of the members before the final vote is taken on the bill, and no bill shall become a law, unless on its final passage the vote be taken by yeas and nays, the names of the persons voting for and against the same be entered on the journal, and a majority of the members elected to each House be recorded thereon as voting in its favor.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. III, secs. 5, 7, constitution as proposed.

Concurring in Amendments.—Conference Committee Reports.

Section 5. No amendment to bills by one House shall be concurred in by the other, except by the vote of a majority of the members elected thereto, taken by yeas and nays, and the names of those voting for and against recorded upon the journal thereof; and reports of committees of conference shall be adopted in either house only by the vote of a majority of the members elected thereto, taken by yeas and nays, and the names of those voting recorded upon the journals.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. III, sec. 5, constitution as proposed.

Revival and Amendment of Laws.

Section 6. No law shall be revived, amended, or the provisions thereof extended or conferred, by reference to its title only, but so much thereof as is revived, amended, extended or conferred shall be re-enacted and published at length.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. III, sec. 11, constitution as proposed.

Special and Local Legislation Limited.

Section 7. The general assembly shall not pass any local or special law:

Authorizing the creation, extension or impairing of liens:
Regulating the affairs of counties, cities, townships, wards, boroughs or school districts:

Changing the names of persons or places:

Changing the venue in civil or criminal cases:

Authorizing the laying out, opening, altering or maintaining, roads, highways, streets or alleys:

Relating to ferries or bridges, or incorporating ferry or bridge companies, except for the erection of bridges crossing streams which form boundaries between this and any other state.

Vacating roads, town plots, streets or alleys:

Relating to cemeteries, graveyards, or public grounds not of the state:

Authorizing the adoption or legitimation of children:

Locating or changing county seats, erecting new counties or changing county lines:

Incorporating cities, towns or villages, or changing their charters:

For the opening and conducting of elections, or fixing or changing the place of voting.

Granting divorces:

Erecting new townships or boroughs, changing township lines, borough limits or school districts:

Creating offices, or prescribing the powers and duties of officers in counties, cities, boroughs, townships, election or school districts:

Changing the law of descent or succession:

Regulating the practice or jurisdiction of, or changing the rules of evidence in any judicial proceeding or inquiry before courts, aldermen, justices of the peace, sheriffs, commissioners, arbitrators, auditors, masters in chancery or other tribunals, or providing or changing methods for the collection of debts, or the enforcing of judgments, or prescribing the effect of judicial sales of real estate:

Regulating the fees, or extending the powers and duties of aldermen, justices of the peace, magistrates or constables:

Regulating the management of public schools, the building or repairing of schoolhouses, and the raising of money for such purposes:

Fixing the rate of interest:

Affecting the estates of minors or persons under disability: Remitting fines, penalties and forfeitures, or refunding moneys, legally paid into the treasury:

Exempting property from taxation:

Regulating labor, trade, mining or manufacturing:

Creating corporations, or amending, renewing or extending the charters thereof:

Granting to any corporation, association or individual any special or exclusive privilege or immunity, or to any corporation, association or individual the right to lay down a railroad track:

Nor shall the general assembly indirectly enact such special or local law by the partial repeal of a general law; but laws repealing local or special acts may be passed:

Nor shall any law be passed granting powers or privileges in any case where the granting of such powers and privileges shall have been provided by general law, nor where the courts have jurisdiction to grant the same or give the relief asked for.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. III, sec. 20, constitution as proposed.

The final paragraph is omitted. The first part of it, through the words "general law," is covered by clause (o) as proposed. The final clause was probably intended to apply only to special benefits, powers and privileges, such, for instance, as the granting of a divorce. If this is the correct interpretation of the present provision, it is superfluous in view of clause (o) as proposed, which forbids a special law "granting a benefit, privilege or power."

If the language of the present constitution means more than this, the exact meaning is not clear. If it is intended to express the idea that a general law can not grant a benefit, privilege or power which the courts are empowered to grant, it simply repeats the principles expressed in Article V, section 1, that "the judicial power of the commonwealth is vested" in the courts and cannot therefore be exercised by the law-making authority. If it is intended to prevent administrative officers from exercising jurisdiction concurrent with the courts, it can apply only to matters relating to "the conduct of elections" (Article V, section 19 as proposed), since all other powers of the courts are necessarily exclusive because either judicial or appointive.

The Commission have therefore omitted a provision of such doubtful and limited operation.

Notice of Local and Special Bills.

Section 8. No local or special bill shall be passed unless notice of the intention to apply therefor shall have been published in the locality where the matter or the thing to be affected may be situated, which notice shall be at least thirty days prior to the introduction into the general assembly of such bill and in the manner to be provided by law; the evidence of such notice having been published, shall be exhibited in the general assembly, before such act shall be passed.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 6, constitution as proposed.

Signing of Bills by Presiding Officers.

Section 9. The presiding officer of each House shall, in the presence of the House over which he presides, sign all bills and joint resolutions passed by the general assembly, after their titles have been publicly read immediately before signing; and the fact of signing shall be entered on the journal.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 8, constitution as proposed.

Officers and Employees.—Payments.

Section 10. The general assembly shall prescribe by law the number, duties and compensation of the officers and employes of each House, and no payment shall be made from the State Treasury, or be in any way authorized, to any person, except to an acting officer or employe elected or appointed in pursuance of law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. II, sec. 13, constitution as proposed.

Extra Compensation Prohibited.—Claims Against the State.

Section 11. No bill shall be passed giving any extra compensation to any public officer, servant, employe, agent or contractor, after services shall have been rendered or contract made, nor providing for the payment of any claim against the commonwealth without previous authority of law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 16, constitution as proposed.

Public Printing and Supplies.

Section 12. All stationery, printing, paper and fuel used in the legislative and other departments of government shall be furnished, and the printing, binding and distributing of the laws, journals, department reports, and all other printing and binding, and the repairing and furnishing the halls and rooms used for the meetings of the general assembly and its committees, shall be performed under contract to be given to the lowest responsible bidder below such maximum price, and under such regulation, as shall be prescribed by law; no member or officer of any department of the government shall be in any way interested in such contracts, and all such contracts shall be subject to the approval of the Governor, Auditor General and State Treasurer.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IV, secs. 20, 21, constitution as proposed.

Extension of Terms.

Section 13. No law shall extend the term of any public officer, or increase or diminish his salary or emoluments, after his election or appointment.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VII, sec. 5, constitution as proposed.

Revenue Bills.

Section 14. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose amendments as in other bills.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 2, constitution as proposed.

Appropriation Bills.

Section 15. The general appropriation bill shall embrace nothing but appropriations for the ordinary expenses of the executive, legislative and judicial departments of the commonwealth, interest on the public debt and for public schools; all other appropriations shall be made by separate bills, each embracing but one subject.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 12, constitution as proposed.

Paying Out Public Moneys.

Section 16. No money shall be paid out of the treasury, except upon appropriations made by law, and on warrant by the proper officer in pursuance thereof.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VIII, sec. 10, constitution as proposed.

Appropriations to Charitable and Educational Institutions.

Section 17. No appropriation shall be made to any charitable or educational institution not under the absolute control of the commonwealth, other than normal schools established by law for the professional training of teachers for the public schools of the state except by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 13, constitution as proposed.

The special reference to normal schools has been omitted because all normal schools are now under the absolute control of the commonwealth.

Certain Appropriations Forbidden.

Section 18. No appropriations, except for pensions or gratuities for military services, shall be made for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes, to any person or community, nor to any denominational or sectarian institution, corporation or association.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, secs. 14, 15, 16, constitution as proposed.

Appropriations for the Support of Widows and Orphans of Soldiers.

Section 19. The general assembly may make appropriations of money to institutions wherein the widows of soldiers are supported or assisted, or the orphans of soldiers are maintained and educated; but such appropriation shall be applied exclusively to the support of such widows and orphans.

Omitted because this class of institutions is covered by Article III, section 15, as proposed.

Special Commissions Prohibited.

Section 20. The general assembly shall not delegate to any special commission, private corporation or association, any power to make, supervise or interfere with any municipal improvement, money, property or effects, whether held in trust or otherwise, or to levy taxes or perform any municipal function whatever.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. XIII, sec. 21, constitution as proposed.

Employers' Liability.—Workmen's Compensation.—Damages for Injuries to Persons or Property.

Section 21. The general assembly may enact laws requiring the payment by employers, or employers and employes jointly, of reasonable compensation for injuries to employes arising in the course of their employment, and for occupational diseases of employes, whether or not such injuries or diseases result in death, and regardless of fault of employer or employe, and fixing the basis of ascertainment of such compensation and the maximum and minimum limits thereof, and providing special or general remedies for the collection thereof; but in no other cases shall the general assembly limit the amount to be recovered for injuries resulting in death, or for injuries to persons or property, and in case of death from such injuries, the right of action shall survive, and the general assembly shall prescribe for whose benefit such action shall be prosecuted. No act shall prescribe any limitations of time within which suits may be brought against corporations for injuries to persons or property or for other causes, different from those fixed by general laws regulating actions against natural persons, and such acts now existing are avoided. (Amendment of Nov. 2, 1915.)

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 21; Art. IX, sec. 9, constitution as proposed.

Investment of Trust Funds.

Section 22. No act of the general assembly shall authorize the investment of trust funds by executors, administrators, guardians or other trustees, in the bonds or stock of any private corporation, and such acts now existing are avoided saving investments heretofore made.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IX, sec. 3, constitution as proposed.

Change of Venue.

Section 23. The power to change the venue in civil and criminal cases shall be vested in the courts, to be exercised in such manner as shall be provided by law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, sec. 20, constitution as proposed.

Corporate Obligations Owned by State.

Section 24. No obligation or liability of any railroad or other corporation, held or owned by the commonwealth, shall ever be exchanged, transferred, remitted, postponed or in any way diminished by the general assembly, nor shall such liability or obligation be released, except by payment thereof into the State Treasury.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IX, sec. 8, constitution as proposed.

Legislation During Special Session.

Section 25. When the general assembly shall be convened in special session, there shall be no legislation upon subjects other than those designated in the proclamation of the Governor calling such session.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 25, constitution as proposed.

Concurrent Resolutions, &c., to be Presented to Executive.

Section 26. Every order, resolution or vote, to which the concurrence of both Houses may be necessary, except on the question of adjournment, shall be presented to the Governor, and before it shall take effect be approved by him, or being disapproved, shall be repassed by two-thirds of both Houses, according to the rule and limitations prescribed in case of a bill.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 17, constitution as proposed.

State Inspection of Merchandise Prohibited.

Section 27. No state office shall be continued or created for the inspection or measuring of any merchandise, manufacturer or commodity, but any county or municipality may appoint such officers when authorized by law.

Omitted because obsolete.

Change of Location of State Capital.

Section 28. No law changing the location of the capital of the state shall be valid until the same shall have been submitted to the qualified electors of the commonwealth at a general election and ratified and approved by them.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 26, constitution as proposed.

Bribery of Members of Legislature.

Section 29. A member of the general assembly who shall solicit, demand or receive, or consent to receive, directly or indirectly, for himself or for another, from any company, corporation or person, any money, office, appointment, employment, testimonial, reward, thing of value or enjoyment, or of personal advantage, or promise thereof, for his vote or official influence, or for withholding the same or with an understanding, expressed or implied, that his vote or official action shall be in any way influenced thereby, or who shall solicit or demand any such money or other advantage, matter of thing aforesaid for another, as the consideration of his vote of official influence, or for withholding the same, or shall give or withhold his vote or influence in consideration of the payment or promise of such money, advantage, matter of thing, to another, shall be held guilty of bribery within the meaning of this Constitution and shall incur the disabilities provided thereby for said offense and such additional punishment as is or shall be, provided by law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VII, sec. 9, constitution as proposed.

Giving of Bribes.

Section 30. Any person who shall, directly or indirectly offer, give or promise, any money, or thing of value, testimonial, privilege or personal advantage, to any executive or judicial officer, or member of the general assembly, to influence him in the performance of any of his public or official duties, shall be guilty of bribery and be punished in such manner as shall be provided by law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VII, sec. 9, constitution as proposed.

Corrupt Solicitation.

Section 31. The offense of corrupt solicitation of members of the general assembly or of public officers of the state or of any municipal division thereof, and any occupation or practice of solicitation of such members or officers to influence their official action, shall be defined by law and shall be punished by fine and imprisonment.

Omitted because "corrupt solicitation" is another name for attempted bribery. "Any occupation or practice of solicitation" is a repetition of the same idea. The offense of attempting to bribe a public servant (taken from Article III, sections 29 and 30 of the present constitution) is defined in Article VII, section 9 as proposed and is there designated as "bribery." It is unnecessary to require the enactment of a law to define what the constitution itself defines.

Investigation of Bribery or Corrupt Solicitation.—Compulsory Testimony.—Disqualification as Punishment.

Section 32. Any person may be compelled to testify in any lawful investigation or judicial proceeding against any person who may be charged with having committed the offense of bribery or corrupt solicitation, or practices of solicitation, and shall not be permitted to withhold his testimony upon the ground that it may criminate himself or subject him to public infamy; but such testimony shall not afterwards be used against him in any judicial proceeding, except for perjury in giving such testimony, and any person convicted of either of the offenses aforesaid shall, as part of the punishment therefor, be disqualified from holding any office or position of honor trust or profit in this commonwealth.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VII, secs. 3, 9, constitution as proposed.

Members Interested in Bill not to Vote.

Section 33. A member who has a personal or private interest in any measure or bill proposed or pending before the general assembly shall disclose the fact to the house of which he is a member, and shall not vote thereon.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 4, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE IV.

THE EXECUTIVE.

Executive Department.

Section 1. The executive department of this commonwealth shall consist of a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of the Commonwealth, Attorney General, Auditor General, State Treasurer, Secretary of Internal Affairs, and a Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IV, sec. 1, constitution as proposed.

Governor.—Election.—Returns.—Contested Election.

Section 2. The supreme executive power shall be vested in the Governor, who shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed; he shall be chosen on the day of the general election, by the qualified electors of the commonwealth, at the places where they shall vote for representatives. The returns of every election for Governor shall be sealed up and transmitted to the seat of Government, directed to the president of the senate, who shall open and publish them in the presence of the members of both Houses of the general assembly. The person having the highest number of votes shall be Governor, but if two or more be equal and highest in votes, one of them shall be chosen Governor by the joint vote of the members of both Houses. Contested elections shall be determined by a committee, to be selected from both Houses of the general assembly, and formed and regulated in such manner as shall be directed by law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IV, secs. 3, 4, 6, constitution as proposed.

Governor's Term.

Section 3. The Governor shall hold his office during four years from the third Tuesday of January next ensuing his election, and shall not be eligible to the office for the next succeeding term.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IV, sec. 5, constitution as proposed.

Lieutenant Governor.

Section 4. A Lieutenant Governor shall be chosen at the same time, in the same manner, for the same term, and subject to the same provisions as the Governor; he shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IV, sec. 13, constitution as proposed.

Qualifications of Governor and Lieutenant-Governor.

Section 5. No person shall be eligible to the office of Governor or Lieutenant Governor except a citizen of the United States, who shall have attained the age of thirty years, and have been seven years next preceding his election an inhabitant of the state, unless he shall have been absent on the public business of the United States or of this state.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IV, secs. 2, 13, constitution as proposed.

Disqualifications.

Section 6. No member of congress or person holding any office under the United States or this state shall exercise the office of Governor or Lieutenant Governor.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VII, sec. 2, constitution as proposed.

Military Commander.

Section 7. The Governor shall be commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the commonwealth, and of the militia, except when they shall be called into the actual service of the United States.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IV, sec. 7, constitution as proposed.

Appointing Power of Governor.—Vacancies.—Confirmation by Senate.

Section 8. He shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of all the members of the senate, appoint a secretary of the commonwealth and an attorney general during pleasure, a superintendent of public instruction for four years and such other officers of the commonwealth as he is or may be authorized by the constitution or by law to appoint; he shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen, in offices to which he may appoint, during the recess of the senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session; he shall have power to fill any vacancy that may happen during the recess of the senate, in the office of auditor general, state treasurer, secretary of internal affairs or superintendent of public instruction, in a judicial office, or in any other elective office which he is or may be authorized to fill; if the vacancy shall happen during the session of the senate, the governor shall nominate to the senate, before their final adjournment, a proper person to fill said vacancy; but in any such case of vacancy, in an elective office, a person shall be chosen to said office on the next election day appropriate to such office according to the provisions of this constitution, unless the vacancy shall happen within two calendar months immediately preceding such election day in which case the election for said office shall be held on the second succeeding election day appropriate to such office. In acting on executive nominations the senate shall sit with open doors, and in confirming or rejecting the nominations of the governor, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays and shall be entered on the journal. (Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IV, sec. 8, constitution as proposed.

Pardoning Power.

Section 9. He shall have power to remit fines and forfeitures, to grant reprieves, commutations of sentence and pardons, except in cases of impeachment; but no pardon shall be granted, nor sentence commuted, except upon the recommendation in writing of the Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of the Commonwealth, Attorney General and Secretary of Internal Affairs, or any three of them, after full hearing, upon due public notice and in open session, and such recommendation, with the reasons therefor at length, shall be recorded and filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IV, sec. 9, constitution as proposed.

Information from Department Officials.

Section 10. He may require information in writing from the officers of the executive department, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IV, sec. 10, constitution as proposed.

Messages to Legislature.

Section 11. He shall, from time to time, give to the general assembly information of the state of the commonwealth, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he may judge expedient.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IV, sec. 11, constitution as proposed.

Special Sessions.—Adjournments.—Special Sessions of Senate.

Section 12. He may, on extraordinary occasions, convene the general assembly, and in case of disagreement between the two Houses with respect to the time of adjournment, adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper, not exceeding four months. He shall have power to convene the Senate in extraordinary session by proclamation for the transaction of executive business.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IV, sec. 12, constitution as proposed.

When Lieutenant-Governor Shall Act.

Section 13. In the case of the death, conviction or impeachment, failure to qualify, resignation, or other disability of the Governor, the powers, duties and emoluments of the office, for the remainder of the term, or until the disability be removed, shall devolve upon the Lieutenant Governor.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IV, sec. 14, constitution as proposed.

Vacancy in Office of Lieutenant-Governor.

Section 14. In the case of a vacancy in the office of Lieutenant Governor, or when the Lieutenant Governor shall be impeached by the House of Representatives, or shall be unable to exercise the duties of his office, the powers, duties and emoluments thereof for the remainder of the term, or until the disability be removed, shall devolve upon the president pro tempore of the senate; and the president pro tempore of the senate shall in like manner become Governor if a vacancy or disability shall occur in the office of Governor; his seat as senator shall become vacant whenever he shall become Governor, and shall be filled by election as any other vacancy in the Senate.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IV, sec. 15, constitution as proposed.

Approval of Bills.—Veto.

Section 15. Every bill which shall have passed both Houses shall be presented to the Governor; if he approve he shall sign it, but if he shall not approve he shall return it with his objections to the House in which it shall have originated, which House shall enter the objections at large upon their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of all the members elected to that House shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent with the objections to the other House by which likewise it shall be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of all the members elected to that House it shall be a law; but in such cases the votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the members voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journals of each House, respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the Governor within ten days after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the general assembly, by their adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall be a law, unless he shall file the same with his objections, in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and give notice thereof by public proclamation within thirty days after such adjournment.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. III, sec. 17, constitution as proposed.

Partial Disapproval of Appropriation Bills.

Section 16. The Governor shall have power to disapprove of any item or items of any bill making appropriations of money, embracing distinct items, and the part or parts of the bill approved shall be the law, and the item or items of appropriation disapproved shall be void, unless repassed according to the rules and limitations prescribed for the passage of other bills over the executive veto.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 18, constitution as proposed.

Contested Election of Governor or Lieutenant Governor.
Holding Over.

Section 17. The chief justice of the supreme court shall preside upon the trial of any contested election of Governor or Lieutenant Governor and shall decide questions regarding the admissibility of evidence, and shall, upon request of the committee, pronounce his opinion upon other questions of law involved in the trial. The Governor and Lieutenant Governor shall exercise the duties of their respective offices until their successors shall be duly qualified.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IV, secs. 4, 5, 18, constitution as proposed.

Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Section 18. The Secretary of the Commonwealth shall keep a record of all official acts and proceedings of the Governor, and when required lay the same, with all papers, minutes and vouchers relating thereto, before either branch of the general assembly, and perform such other duties as may be enjoined upon him by law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IV, sec. 17, constitution as proposed.

Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Section 19. The Secretary of Internal Affairs shall exercise all the powers and perform all the duties of the Surveyor General, subject to such changes as shall be made by law. His department shall embrace a bureau of industrial statistics, and he shall discharge such duties relating to corporations, to the charitable institutions, the agricultural, manufacturing, mining, mineral, timber and other material or business interests of the state as may be prescribed by law. He shall annually, and at such other times as may be required by law, make report to the general assembly.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IV, sec. 18, constitution as proposed.

Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Section 20. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall exercise all the powers and perform all the duties of the superintendent of common schools, subject to such changes as shall be made by law.

Omitted. The constitution as proposed provides for a commissioner of education instead of a superintendent of public instruction. The office of superintendent of common schools has not existed since 1874.

Terms of Executive Department Officers.—Ineligibility to Re-election.

Section 22. The terms of the secretary of internal affairs, the auditor general, and the state treasury shall each be four years; and they shall be chosen by the qualified electors of the state at general elections, but a state treasurer, elected in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine, shall serve for three years, and his successors shall be elected at the general election in the year one thousand nine hundred and twelve and in every fourth year thereafter. No person elected to the office of auditor general or state treasurer shall be capable of holding the same office for two consecutive terms. (Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IV, sec. 19, constitution as proposed.

Seal.—Commissions.

Section 22. The present great seal of Pennsylvania shall be the seal of the state. All commissions shall be in the name and by the authority of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and be sealed with the state seal and signed by the Governor.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IV, sec. 22, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE V.

THE JUDICIARY.

Judicial Power.

Section 1. The judicial power of this commonwealth shall be vested in a supreme court, in courts of common pleas, courts of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, courts of quarter session of the peace, orphans court, magistrates courts and in such other courts as the general assembly may from time to time establish.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, sec. 1, constitution as proposed.

Supreme Court.

Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of seven judges, who shall be elected by the qualified electors of the state at large. They shall hold their offices for the term of twenty-one years, if they so long behave themselves well, but shall not be again eligible. The judge whose commission shall first expire shall be chief justice, and thereafter each judge whose commission shall first expire shall in turn be chief justice.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, sec. 2, constitution as proposed.

Jurisdiction of Supreme Court.

Section 3. The jurisdiction of the supreme court shall extend over the state, and the judges thereof shall, by virtue of their offices, be justices of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery in the several counties; they shall have original jurisdiction in cases of injunction where a corporation is a party defendant, of habeas corpus, of mandamus to courts of inferior jurisdiction, and of quo warranto as to all officers of the commonwealth whose jurisdiction extends over the state, but shall not exercise any other original jurisdiction; they shall have appellate jurisdiction by appeal, certiorari or writ of error in all cases, as is now or may hereafter be provided by law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, sec. 3, constitution as proposed.

Common Pleas Courts.

Section 4. Until otherwise directed by law, the courts of common pleas shall continue as at present established, except as herein changed; not more than four counties shall, at any time, be included in one judicial district organized for said courts.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, secs. 7, 8, constitution as proposed.

Judicial District.—Associate Judges.

Section 5. Whenever a county shall contain forty thousand inhabitants it shall constitute a separate judicial district, and shall elect one judge learned in the law; and the general assembly shall provide for additional judges, as the business of the said districts may require. Counties containing a population less than is sufficient to constitute separate districts shall be formed into convenient single districts, or, if necessary, may be attached to contiguous districts as the general assembly may provide. The office of associate judge, not learned in law, is abolished in counties forming separate districts; but the several associate judges in office when this constitution shall be adopted shall serve for their unexpired terms.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, secs. 7, 8, constitution as proposed.

Courts of Common Pleas of Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties.

Section 6. In the county of Philadelphia all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the district courts and courts of common pleas, subject to such changes as may be made by this constitution or by law, shall be in Philadelphia vested in five distinct and separate courts of equal and co-ordinate jurisdiction, composed of three judges each. The said courts in Philadelphia shall be designated respectively as the court of common pleas number one, number two, number three, number four, and number five, but the number of said courts may be by law increased from time to time, and shall be in like manner designated by successive numbers. The number of judges in any of said courts, or in any county where the establishment of an additional court may be authorized by law, may be increased, from time to time, and whenever such increase shall amount in the whole to three, such three judges shall compose a distinct and separate court as aforesaid, which shall be numbered as aforesaid. In Philadelphia all suits shall be instituted in the said courts of common pleas without designating the number of the said court, and the several courts shall distribute and apportion the business among them in such manner as shall be provided by the rules of court, and each court, to which any suit shall be thus assigned, shall have exclusive jurisdiction thereof, subject to change of venue, as shall be provided by law.

In the county of Allegheny all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the several numbered courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas composed of all the judges in commission in said courts. Such jurisdiction and powers shall extend to all proceedings at law and in equity which shall have been instituted in the several numbered courts, and shall be subject to such changes as may be made, by law, and subject to change of venue as provided by law.

The president judge of said court shall be selected as provided by law. The number of judges in said court may be by law increased from time to time. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January succeeding its adoption. (Amendment of November 7, 1911.)

Omitted. Article V, section 10 of the constitution as proposed recommends the consolidation of the courts of common pleas in Philadelphia.

Prothonotary of Philadelphia County.—Salaries.—Fees.—Dockets.

Section 7. For Philadelphia there shall be one prothonotary's office, and one prothonotary for all said courts, to be appointed by the judges of said courts, and to hold office for three years, subject to removal by a majority of the said judges; the said prothonotary shall appoint such assistants as may be necessary and authorized by said courts; and he and his assistants shall receive fixed salaries, to be determined by law and paid by said county; all fees collected in said office, except such as may be by law due to the commonwealth, shall be paid by the prothonotary into the county treasury. Each court shall have its separate dockets, except the judgment docket, which shall contain the judgments and liens of all said courts, as is or may be directed by law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. XIII, sec. 12, constitution as proposed.

Criminal Courts in Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties.

Section 8. The said courts in the counties of Philadelphia and Allegheny, respectively, shall, from time to time, in turn detail one or more of their judges to hold the courts of oyer and terminer and the courts of quarter sessions of the peace of said counties, in such manner as may be directed by law.

Omitted. This section was inserted in the constitution of 1874 because of the several numbered courts of common pleas in the counties of Philadelphia and of Allegheny. These numbered courts have been abolished in Allegheny and are now recommended to be abolished in Philadelphia; hence the section is no longer needed.

Powers of Judges of Common Pleas Courts.

Section 9. Judges of the courts of common pleas learned in the law shall be judges of the courts of oyer and terminer, quarter sessions of the peace and general jail delivery, and of the orphan's court, and within their respective districts shall be justices of the peace as to criminal matters.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, secs. 9, 11, 12, constitution as proposed.

Certiorari to Courts Not of Record.

Section 10. The judges of the courts of common pleas, within their respective counties, shall have power to issue writs of certiorari to justices of the peace and other inferior courts not of record, and to cause their proceedings to be brought before them, and right and justice to be done.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, sec. 9, constitution as proposed.

Justices of the Peace.—Alderman.—Term.—Residence.—Number.

Section 11. Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, justices of the peace or aldermen shall be elected in the several wards, districts, boroughs and townships, by the qualified electors thereof, at the municipal election, in such manner as shall be directed by law, and shall be commissioned by the governor for a term of six years. No township, ward, district or borough shall elect more than two justices of the peace or aldermen without the consent of a majority of the qualified electors within such township, ward or borough; no person shall be elected to such office unless he shall have resided within the township, borough, ward or district for one year next preceding his election. In cities containing over fifty thousand inhabitants, not more than one alderman shall be elected in each ward or district. (Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, sec. 13; Art. VII, sec. 1, constitution as proposed.

Magistrates' Courts in Philadelphia.—Election.—Term.—Salaries.—Jurisdiction.

Section 12. In Philadelphia there shall be established, for each thirty thousand inhabitants, one court, not of record, of police and civil causes, with jurisdiction not exceeding one hundred dollars; such courts shall be held by magistrates whose term of office shall be six years and they shall be elected on general ticket at the municipal election, by the qualified voters at large; and in the election of the said magistrates no voter shall vote for more than two-thirds of the number of persons to be elected when more than one are to be chosen; they shall be compensated only by fixed salaries to be paid by said county; and shall exercise such jurisdiction, civil and criminal, except as herein provided, as is now exercised by aldermen, subject to such changes, not involving an increase of civil jurisdiction or conferring political duties, as may be made by law. In Philadelphia the office of alderman is abolished. (Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, sec. 14, constitution as proposed.

Disposition of Fines, Fees, Etc.

Section 13. All fees, fines and penalties in said courts shall be paid into the county treasury.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, secs. 11, 12, constitution as proposed.

Appeal from Summary Conviction.

Section 14. In all cases of summary conviction in this commonwealth, or of judgment in suit for a penalty before a magistrate, or court not of record, either party may appeal to such court of record as may be prescribed by law, upon allowance of the appellate court or judge thereof upon cause shown.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, sec. 22, constitution as proposed.

Election of Judges.—Term.—Removal.

Section 15. All judges required to be learned in the law, except the judges of the supreme court, shall be elected by the qualified electors of the respective districts over which they are to preside, and shall hold their offices for the period of ten years, if they shall so long behave themselves well; but for any reasonable cause, which shall not be sufficient ground for impeachment, the governor may remove any of them on the address of two-thirds of each house of the general assembly.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. V, secs. 5, 8, 12, 14; Art. VII, sec. 7, constitution as proposed.

Voting for Supreme Court Judges.

Section 16. Whenever two judges of the supreme court are to be chosen for the same term of service each voter shall vote for one only, and when three are to be chosen he shall vote for no more than two; candidates highest in vote shall be declared elected.

Omitted, because the Commission believe that this haphazard way of securing minority representation is not desirable.

Priority of Commission.

Section 17. Should any two or more judges of the supreme court, or any two or more judges of the court of common pleas for the same district be elected at the time, they shall, as soon after the election as convenient, cast lots for priority of commission, and certify the results to the Governor, who shall issue their commissions in accordance therewith.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. V, sec. 16, constitution as proposed.

Compensation of Judges.

Section 18. The judges of the supreme court and the judges of the several courts of common pleas, and all other judges required to be learned in the law, shall at stated times receive for their services an adequate compensation, which shall be fixed by law, and paid by the state. They shall receive no other compensation, fees, or perquisites of office for their services from any source, nor hold any other office of profit under the United States, this state or any other state.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. V, sec. 18; Art. VII, sec. 2, constitution as proposed.

Residence of Judges.

Section 19. The judges of the supreme court during their continuance in office shall reside within this commonwealth; and the other judges during their continuance in office shall reside within the districts for which they shall be respectively elected.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. V, sec. 17, constitution as proposed.

Chancery Powers.

Section 20. The several courts of common pleas, besides the powers herein conferred, shall have and exercise within their respective districts, subject to such changes as may be made by law, such chancery powers as are now vested by law in the several courts of common pleas of this commonwealth, or as may hereafter be conferred upon them by law.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. V, sec. 9, constitution as proposed.

Duties of Judges.—Nisi Prius Courts.—Supreme Court Judges.

Section 21. No duties shall be imposed by law upon the supreme court or any of the judges thereof, except such as are judicial, nor shall any of the judges thereof exercise any power of appointment except as herein provided. The Court of nisi prius is hereby abolished, and no court of original jurisdiction to be presided over by any one or more of the judges of the supreme court shall be established.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. V, sec. 19, constitution as proposed.

Orphan's Court.

Section 22. In every county wherein the population shall exceed one hundred and fifty thousand the general assembly shall, and in any other county may, establish a separate orphans' court to consist of one or more judges who shall be learned in the law, which court shall exercise all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in or which may hereafter be conferred upon the orphans' court, and thereupon the jurisdiction of the judges of the court of common pleas within such county in orphans' court proceedings shall cease and determine. In any county in which a separate orphans' court shall be established the register of wills shall be clerk of such court and subject to its directions in all matters pertaining to his office; he may appoint assistant clerks, but only with the consent and approval of said court. All accounts filed with him as register or as clerk of the said separate orphans' court shall be audited by the court without expense to parties, except where all parties in interest in a pending proceeding shall nominate an auditor whom the court may, in its discretion, appoint. In every county orphans' courts shall possess all the powers and jurisdiction of a register's court, and separate registers' courts are hereby abolished.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. V, sec. 12, constitution as proposed.

Style of Process.—Indictments.

Section 23. The style of all process shall be "The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania." All prosecutions shall be carried on in the name and by the authority of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and conclude "against the peace and dignity of the same."

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. V, sec. 23, constitution as proposed.

Appeals to Supreme Court in Criminal Cases.

Section 24. In all cases of felonious homicide, and in such other criminal cases as may be provided for by law, the accused, after conviction and sentence, may remove the indictment, record and all proceedings, to the supreme court for review.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. V, sec. 21, constitution as proposed.

Vacancies and Courts of Record.

Section 25. Any vacancy happening by death, resignation or otherwise, in any court of record, shall be filled by appointment by the Governor, to continue till the first Monday of January next succeeding the first general election, which shall occur three or more months after the happening of such vacancy.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IV, sec. 8, constitution as proposed.

Uniform Laws for Courts.—Certain Courts Prohibited.

Section 26. All laws relating to courts shall be general and of uniform operation, and the organization, jurisdiction and powers of all courts of the same class or grade, so far as regulated by law, and the force and effect of the process and judgments of such courts, shall be uniform; and the general assembly is hereby prohibited from creating other courts to exercise the powers vested by this Constitution in the judges of the courts of common pleas and orphans' courts.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. III, sec. 20, Clause (g), constitution as proposed.

Litigants May Dispense With Jury Trial.

Section 27. The parties by agreement filed, may in any civil case dispense with trial by jury, and submit the decision of such case to the court having jurisdiction thereof, and such court shall hear and determine the same; and the judgment thereon shall be subject to writ of error as in other cases.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. V, sec. 24, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE VI.

IMPEACHMENT AND REMOVAL FROM OFFICE.

Power of Impeachment.

Section 1. The House of Representatives shall have the sole power of impeachment.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VII, sec. 6, constitution as proposed.

Trials of Impeachment.

Section 2. All impeachments shall be tried by the Senate; when sitting for that purpose the senators shall be upon oath or affirmation; no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VII, sec. 6, constitution as proposed.

Officers Liable to Impeachment.—Judgment.

Section 3. The Governor and all other civil officers shall be liable to impeachment for any misdemeanor in office, but judgment in such cases shall not extend further than to removal from office and disqualification to hold any office of trust or profit under this commonwealth; the person accused, whether convicted or acquitted, shall nevertheless be liable to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VII, secs. 3, 6, constitution as proposed.

Tenure of Office.—Removal from Office.

Section 4. All officers shall hold their offices on the condition that they behave themselves well while in office and shall be removed on conviction of misbehavior in office, or of any infamous crime. Appointed officers, other than judges of the courts of record and the superintendent of public instruction, may be removed at the pleasure of the power by which they shall have been appointed. All officers elected by the people, except governor, lieutenant-governor, members of the general assembly and judges of the courts of record learned in the law, shall be removed by the governor for reasonable cause after due notice and full hearing, on the address of two-thirds of the senate.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VII, sec. 7, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE VII.

OATH OF OFFICE.

Official Oath.—How Administered.

Section 1. Senators and representatives and all judicial, state and county officers shall, before entering on the duties of their respective offices, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support, obey and defend the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of this Commonwealth; and that I will discharge the duties of my office with fidelity; that I have not paid or contributed, or promised to pay or contribute, either directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing to procure my nomination or election (or appointment), except for necessary and proper expenses expressly authorized by law; that I have not knowingly violated any election law of this commonwealth, or procured it to be done by others in my behalf; that I will not knowingly receive, directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing for the performance or non-performance of any act or duty pertaining to my office, other than the compensation allowed by law."

The foregoing oath shall be administered by some person authorized to administer oaths, and in the case of state officers and judges of the supreme court, shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and in the case of other judicial and county officers, in the office of the prothonotary of the county in which the same is taken; any person refusing to take said oath or affirmation shall forfeit his office; and any person who shall be convicted of having sworn or affirmed falsely, or having violated said oath or affirmation, shall be guilty of perjury, and be forever disqualified from holding any office of trust or profit within this commonwealth. The oath to the members of the Senate and House of Representatives shall be administered by one of the judges of the supreme court or of a court of common pleas, learned in the law, in the hall of the House to which the members shall be elected.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VII, secs. 3, 4, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE VIII.

SUFFRAGE AND ELECTIONS.

Qualification of Electors.

Section 1. Every male citizen of twenty-one years of age, possessing the following qualifications, shall be entitled to vote at all elections, subject however to such laws requiring and regulating the registration of electors as the general assembly may enact:

1. He shall have been a citizen of the United States at least one month.

2. He shall have resided in the state one year (or, having previously been a qualified elector or native born citizen of the state, he shall have removed therefrom and returned, then six months), immediately preceding the election.

3. He shall have resided in the election district where he shall offer to vote at least two months immediately preceding the election.

4. If twenty-two years of age and upwards, he shall have paid within two years a state or county tax, which shall have been assessed at least two months and paid at least one month before the election. (Amendment of November 5, 1901.)

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VI, sec. 1, constitution as proposed.

General Elections.

Section 2. The general election shall be held biennially on the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each even-numbered year, but the general assembly may by law fix a different day, two-thirds of all the members of each House consenting thereto; provided, that such election shall always be held in an even-numbered year.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VI, sec. 9, constitution as proposed.

Municipal Elections.—Election of Judges and County Officers.

Section 3. All judges elected by the electors of the state at large may be elected at either a general or municipal election, as circumstances may require. All elections for judges of the courts for the several judicial districts, and for county, city, ward, borough and township officers, for regular terms of service, shall be held on the municipal election day; namely the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each odd-numbered year, but the general assembly may by law fix a different day, two-thirds of all the members of each House consenting thereto; provided, that such election shall be held in an odd-numbered year; provided further, that all judges for the courts of the several judicial districts holding office at the present time, whose terms of office may end in an odd-numbered year, shall continue to hold their offices until the first Monday of January in the next succeeding even-numbered year.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VI, sec. 9; Art. VII, sec. 1, constitution as proposed. The final clause, beginning with the words "provided further" are omitted. Since a new constitution can not go into effect before January 1, 1923, and since the terms of all judges of any judicial district in office November 2, 1913, will have expired before that time, this part of the section would be obsolete.

Method of Conducting Elections.—Secrecy.

Section 4. All elections by the citizens shall be by ballot or by such other method as may be prescribed by law; provided, that secrecy in voting be preserved.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VI, sec. 10, constitution as proposed.

Privileges of Electors.

Section 5. Electors shall in all cases except treason, felony and breach of surety of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance on elections, and in going to and returning therefrom.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VI, sec. 4, constitution as proposed.

Voting When Engaged in Military Service.

Section 6. Whenever any of the qualified electors of this commonwealth shall be in actual military service, under a requisition from the president of the United States or by the authority of this commonwealth, such electors may exercise the right of suffrage in all elections by the citizens, under such regulations as are or shall be prescribed by law, as fully as if they were present at their usual places of election.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VI, sec. 3, constitution as proposed.

Registration of Electors.—Uniformity of Election Laws.

Section 7. All laws regulating the holding of elections by the citizens or for the registration of electors shall be uniform throughout the state, but laws regulating and requiring the registration of electors may be enacted to apply to cities only; provided, that such laws be uniform for cities of the same class.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 20, clause (f), constitution as proposed.

Bribery at Elections.—Challenging of Electors.

Section 8. Any person who shall give, or promise or offer to give, to an elector, any money, reward or other valuable consideration for his vote at an election, or for withholding the same, or who shall give or promise to give such consideration to any other person or party for such electors' vote or for the withholding thereof, and any elector who shall receive or agree to receive, for himself or for another, any money, reward or other valuable consideration for his vote at an election, or for withholding the same, shall thereby forfeit the right to vote at such election, and any elector whose right to vote shall be challenged for such cause before the election officers, shall be required to swear or affirm that the matter of the challenge is untrue before his vote shall be received.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VI, sec. 5, constitution as proposed.

Violation of Election Laws.

Section 9. Any person who shall, while a candidate for office, be guilty of bribery, fraud or willful violation of any election law shall be forever disqualified from holding an office of trust or profit in this commonwealth; and any person convicted of willful violation of the election laws, shall, in addition to any penalties provided by law, be deprived of the right of suffrage absolutely for a term of four years.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VI, sec. 5; Art. VII, sec. 3, constitution as proposed.

Witnesses in Contested Elections and Election Investigations.

Section 10. In trials of contested elections and in proceedings for the investigation of elections, no person shall be permitted to withhold his testimony upon the ground that it may criminate himself or subject him to public infamy; but such testimony shall not afterwards be used against him in any judicial proceedings except for perjury in giving such testimony.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VI, sec. 5, constitution as proposed.

Election Districts.

Section 11. Townships, and wards of cities or boroughs, shall form or be divided into election districts of compact and contiguous territory, in such manner as the court of quarter sessions of the city or county in which the same are located may direct; but districts in cities of over one hundred thousand inhabitants shall be divided by the courts of quarter sessions, having jurisdiction therein, whenever at the next preceding election more than two hundred and fifty votes shall have been polled therein; and other election districts whenever the court of the proper county shall be of opinion that the convenience of the electors and the public interests will be promoted thereby.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VI, sec. 6, constitution as proposed.

Elections by Persons in Representative Capacity.

Section 12. All elections by persons in a representative capacity shall be viva voce.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VI, sec. 12, constitution as proposed.

Residence of Electors.

Section 13. For the purpose of voting no person shall be deemed to have gained a residence by reason of his presence, or lost it by reason of his absence, while employed in the service, either civil or military, of this state or of the United States, nor while engaged in the navigation of the waters of the state or of the United States, or on the high seas, nor while a student of any institution of learning, nor while kept in any poorhouse or other asylum at public expense, nor while confined in public prison.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VI, sec. 2, constitution as proposed.

Election Officers.

Section 14. District election boards shall consist of a judge and two inspectors, who shall be chosen annually by the citizens. Each elector shall have the right to vote for the judge and one inspector, and each inspector shall appoint one clerk. The first election board for any new district shall be elected, and vacancies in election boards filled, as shall be provided by law. Election officers shall be privileged from arrest upon days of election, and while engaged in making up and transmitting returns, except upon warrant of a court of record or judge thereof, for an election fraud, for felony, or for wanton breach of the peace. In cities they may claim exemption from jury duty during their terms of service.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VI, sec. 7, constitution as proposed.

Disqualification for Election Officers.

Section 15. No person shall be qualified to serve as an election officer who shall hold, or shall within two months have held, any office, appointment or employment in or under the government of the United States or of this state, or of any city, or county, or of any municipal board, commission or trust in any city, save only justices of the peace and aldermen, notaries public and persons in the militia service of the state; nor shall any election officer be eligible to any civil office to be filled at an election at which he shall serve, save only to such subordinate municipal or local offices, below the grade of city or county offices, as shall be designated by general law.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VII, secs. 2, 3, constitution as proposed.

Overseers of Elections.

Section 16. The courts of common pleas of the several counties of the commonwealth shall have power, within their respective jurisdictions, to appoint overseers of election to supervise the proceedings of election officers and to make report to the court as may be required; such appointments to be made for any district in a city or county upon petition of five citizens, lawful voters of such election district, setting forth that such appointment is a reasonable precaution to secure the purity and fairness of elections; overseers shall be two in number for an election district, shall be residents therein, and shall be persons qualified to serve upon election boards, and in each case members of different political parties; whenever the members of an election board shall differ in opinion the overseers, if they shall be agreed thereon, shall decide the question of difference; in appointing overseers of election all the law judges of the proper court, able to act at the time, shall concur in the appointments made.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VI, sec. 6, constitution as proposed.

Trial of Contested Elections.

Section 17. The trial and determination of contested elections of electors of President and Vice-President, members of the general assembly, and of all public officers, whether state, judicial, municipal or local, shall be by the courts of law, or by one or more of the law judges thereof; the general assembly shall, by general law, designate the courts and judges by whom the several classes of election contests shall be tried, and regulate the manner of trial and all matters incident thereto; but no such law assigning jurisdiction, or regulating its exercise, shall apply to any contest arising out of an election held before its passage.

Art. VI, sec. 11, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE IX.TAXATION AND FINANCE.*Taxes to Be Uniform.

Section 1. All taxes shall be uniform, upon the same class of subjects, within the territorial limits of the authority of levying the tax, and shall be levied and collected under general laws; but the general assembly may, by general laws, exempt from taxation public property used for public purposes, actual places of religious worship, places of burial not used or held for private or corporate profit, and institutions of purely public charity.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VIII, secs. 1, 2, constitution as proposed.

Exemption From Taxation Limited.

Section 2. All laws exempting property from taxation, other than the property above enumerated, shall be void.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VIII, sec. 2, constitution as proposed.

Taxation of Corporations.

Section 3. The power to tax corporations and corporate property shall not be surrendered or suspended by any contract or grant to which the state shall be a party.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VIII, sec. 3, constitution as proposed.

Limitation on State Debt.

Section 4. No debt shall be created by or on behalf of the state, except to supply casual deficiencies of revenue, repel invasion, suppress insurrection, defend the state in war, or to pay existing debt; and the debt created to supply deficiencies in revenue shall never exceed in the aggregate, at any one time, one million dollars: Provided, however, That the general assembly, irrespective of any debt, may authorize the state to issue bonds to the amount of fifty millions of dollars for the purpose of improving and rebuilding the highways of the commonwealth. (Amendment of November 4, 1918.)

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VIII, sec. 4, constitution as proposed.

Limitation on State Loans.

Section 5. All laws, authorizing the borrowing of money by and on behalf of the state, shall specify the purpose for which the money is to be used, and the money so borrowed shall be used for the purpose specified and no other.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VIII, sec. 5, constitution as proposed.

State Credit Not To Be Pledged.

Section 6. The credit of the commonwealth shall not be pledged or loaned to any individual, company, corporation or association, nor shall the commonwealth become a joint owner or stockholder in any company, association or corporation.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VIII, sec. 7, constitution as proposed.

Municipalities Not to Become Stockholders in Corporations nor Loan Credit.

Section 7. The general assembly shall not authorize any county, city borough, township or incorporated district to become a stockholder in any company, association or corporation, or to obtain or appropriate money for, or to loan its credit to, any corporation, association, institution or individual.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. XIII, sec. 20, constitution as proposed.

Debts of Municipalities.—Debt of Philadelphia.

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as provided herein, and in section fifteen of this article, shall never exceed seven (7) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, but the debt of the city of Philadelphia may be increased in such amount that the total city debt of said city shall not exceed ten (10) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two (2) per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the consent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law. In ascertaining the borrowing capacity of the said city of Philadelphia, at any time, there shall be excluded from the calculation and deducted from such debt so much of the debt of said city as shall have been incurred, and the proceeds thereof invested, in any public improvements of any character which shall be yielding to the said city an annual current net revenue. The amount of such deduction shall be ascertained by capitalizing the annual net revenue from such improvement during the year immediately preceding the time of such ascertainment; and such capitalization shall be estimated by ascertaining the principal amount which would yield such annual, current net revenue, at the average rate of interest; and sinking fund charges payable upon the indebtedness incurred by said city for such purposes, up to the time of such ascertainment. The method of determining such amount, so to be deducted may be prescribed by the general assembly. In incurring indebtedness for any purpose, the city of Philadelphia may issue its obligations maturing not later than fifty years from the date thereof, with provision for a sinking fund sufficient to retire said obligations at maturity, the payment to such sinking fund to be in equal or graded annual or other periodical instalments. Where any indebtedness shall be or shall have been incurred by said city of Philadelphia for the purpose of the construction or improvement of public works of any character, from which income or revenue is to be derived by said city, or for the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of wharves or docks owned or to be owned by said city, such obligations may be in an amount sufficient to provide for, and may include the amount of, the interest and sinking fund charges accruing and which may accrue thereon throughout the period of construction, and until the expiration of one year after the completion of the work for which said indebtedness shall have been incurred; and said city shall not be required to levy a tax to pay said interest and sinking fund charges as required by section ten, article nine of the constitution of Pennsylvania, until the expiration of said period of one year after the completion of said work. (Amendment of November 5, 1918.)

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. XIII, secs. 17, 18, constitution as proposed.

Municipal Debt Not to Be Assumed by State.—Exceptions.

Section 9. The commonwealth shall not assume the debt, or any part thereof, of any city, county, borough or township, unless such debt shall have been contracted to enable the state to repel invasion, suppress domestic insurrection, defend itself in time of war, or to assist the state in the discharge of any portion of its present indebtedness.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VIII, sec. 8, constitution as proposed.

Tax to Liquidate Municipal Debts.

Section 10. Any county, township, school district or other municipality incurring any indebtedness shall, at or before the time of so doing, provide for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest and also the principal thereof within thirty years.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. XIII, sec. 23, constitution as proposed.

State Sinking Fund.

Section 11. To provide for the payment of the present state debt, and any additional debt contracted as aforesaid, the general assembly shall continue and maintain the sinking fund, sufficient to pay the accruing interest on such debt, and annually to reduce the principal thereof by a sum not less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; the said sinking fund shall consist of the proceeds of the sales of the public works or any part thereof, and of the income or proceeds of the sale of any stocks owned by the commonwealth, together with other funds and resources that may be designated by law, and shall be increased from time to time by assigning to it any part of the taxes or other revenues of the state not required for the ordinary and current expenses of government; and unless in case of war, invasion or insurrection, no part of the said sinking fund shall be used or applied otherwise than in the extinguishment of the public debt.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. VIII, sec. 6, constitution as proposed.

Surplus State Funds.—Investments.

Section 12. The moneys of the state, over and above the necessary reserve, shall be used in the payment of the debt of the state, either directly or through the sinking fund, and the moneys of the sinking fund shall never be invested in or loaned upon the security of anything, except the bonds of the United States or of this state.

The first part of this section is omitted as an unnecessary restriction. The provision with respect to the investment of moneys of the sinking fund is transferred to Article VIII, section 6 of the constitution as proposed.

Reserve Funds Limited.—Monthly Statements of Reserve Funds.

Section 13. The moneys held as necessary reserve shall be limited by law to the amount required for current expenses, and shall be secured and kept as may be provided by law. Monthly statements shall be published showing the amount of such moneys, where the same are deposited, and how secured.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VIII, sec. 9, constitution as proposed.

Punishment for Misuse of State Moneys.

Section 14. The making of profit out of the public moneys or using the same for any purpose not authorized by law any officer of the state, or member or officer of the general assembly, shall be a misdemeanor and shall be punished as may be provided by law, but part of such punishment shall be disqualification to hold office for a period of not less than five years.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VIII, sec. 11; Art. VII, sec. 3, constitution as proposed.

Municipal Indebtedness for Certain Public Works.

Section 15. No obligations which have been heretofore issued, or which may hereafter be issued, by any county or municipality, other than Philadelphia, to provide for the construction or acquisition of waterworks, subways, underground railways or street railways, or the appurtenances thereof, shall be considered as a debt of a municipality, within the meaning of section eight of article nine of the constitution of Pennsylvania or of this amendment, if the net revenue derived from said property for a period of five years, either before or after the acquisition thereof, or, where the same is constructed by the county or municipality, after the completion thereof, shall have been sufficient to pay interest and sinking fund charges during said period upon said obligations, or if the said obligations shall be secured by liens upon the respective properties, and shall impose no municipal liability. Where municipalities or counties shall issue obligations to provide for the construction of property, as herein provided, said municipalities or counties may also issue obligations to provide for the interest and sinking fund charges accruing thereon until said properties shall have been completed and in operation for a period of one year; and said municipalities and counties shall not be required to levy a tax to pay said interest and sinking fund charges, as required by section ten of article nine of the constitution of Pennsylvania, until after said properties shall have been operated by said counties or municipalities during said period of one year. Any of the said municipalities or counties may incur indebtedness in excess of seven per centum, and not exceeding ten per centum, of the assessed valuation of the taxable property therein, if said increase of indebtedness shall have been assented to by three-fifths of the electors voting at a public election, in such manner as shall be provided by law. (Amendment of November 4, 1913.)

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. XIII, secs. 17, 18, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE X.

EDUCATION.

Public School System.

Section 1. The general assembly shall provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of public schools, wherein all the children of this commonwealth above the age of six years may be educated, and shall appropriate at least one million dollars each year for that purpose.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. XI, sec. 1, constitution as proposed.

Diversion of School Moneys to Sectarian Schools.

Section 2. No money raised for the support of the public schools of the Commonwealth shall be appropriated to or used for the support of any sectarian school.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. XI, sec. 4, constitution as proposed.

Women Eligible as School Officers.

Section 3. Women of twenty-one years of age and upwards, shall be eligible to any office of control or management under the school laws of this state.

Omitted, because its provisions are covered by the last paragraph of Article VI, section 1 as proposed, which provides that "The right to vote and to hold office shall not be denied on account of race, color or sex."

ARTICLE XI.

MILITIA.

Militia to Be Organized.—Maintenance.—Exemption from Service.

Section 1. The freemen of this commonwealth shall be armed, organized and disciplined for its defense when and in such manner as may be directed by law. The general assembly shall provide for maintaining the militia by appropriations from the treasury of the commonwealth, and may exempt from military service persons having conscientious scruples against bearing arms.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. III, sec. 23, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE XII.

PUBLIC OFFICERS.

Election of State and Local Officers.

Section 1. All officers, whose selection is not provided for in this Constitution, shall be elected or appointed as may be directed by law; provided, that elections of state officers shall be held on a general election day, and elections of local officers shall be held on a municipal election day, except when, in either case, special elections may be required to fill unexpired terms.

The provisions of this section relating to the time of electing public officers have been transferred to Article VII, section 1. So much of the section as provides: "All officers, whose selection is not provided for in this constitution, shall be elected or appointed as may be directed by law," is omitted as superfluous.

Incompatible Offices.

Section 2. No member of Congress from this state, nor any person holding or exercising any office or appointment of trust or profit under the United States, shall at the same time hold or exercise any office in this state to which a salary, fees or perquisites shall be attached. The general assembly may by law declare what offices are incompatible.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. VII, sec. 2, constitution as proposed.

Punishment for Dueling.

Section 3. Any person who shall fight a duel or send a challenge for that purpose, or be aider or abettor in fighting a duel, shall be deprived of the right of holding any office of honor or profit in this state, and may be otherwise punished as shall be prescribed by law.

Omitted, because the Commission believe its provisions are wholly unnecessary.

ARTICLE XIII.

NEW COUNTIES.

Limitation on Erection of New Counties.

Section 1. No new county shall be established which shall reduce any county to less than four hundred square miles, or to less than twenty thousand inhabitants; nor shall any county be formed of less area, or containing a less population; nor shall any line thereof pass within ten miles of the county seat of any county proposed to be divided.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. XIII, sec. 4, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE XIV.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

County Offices.

Section 1. County officers shall consist of sheriffs, coroners, prothonotaries, registers of wills, recorders of deeds, commissioners, treasurers, surveyors, auditors or controllers, clerks of the courts, district attorneys, and such others as may from time to time be established by law; and no sheriff or treasurer shall be eligible for the term next succeeding the one for which he may be elected.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. XIII, secs. 9, 10, constitution as proposed.

Election of County Officers.—Terms.—Vacancies.

Section 2. County officers shall be elected at the municipal elections and shall hold their offices for the term of four years, beginning on the first Monday of January next after their election, and until their successors shall be duly qualified; all vacancies not otherwise provided for, shall be filled in such manner as may be provided by law. (Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. XIII, sec. 10, constitution as proposed.

Qualifications.

Section 3. No person shall be appointed to any office within any county who shall not have been a citizen and an inhabitant therein one year next before his appointment, if the county shall have been so long erected, but if it shall not have been so long erected, than within the limits of the county or counties out of which it shall have been taken.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. XIII, sec. 13, constitution as proposed.

Where Offices Shall Be Kept.

Section 4. Prothonotaries, clerks of the courts, recorders or deeds, registers of wills, county surveyors and sheriffs, shall keep their offices in the county town of the county in which they respectively shall be officers.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. XIII, sec. 14, constitution as proposed.

Compensation of County Officers.—Fees.

Section 5. The compensation of county officers shall be regulated by law, and all county officers who are or may be salaried shall pay all fees which they may be authorized to receive, into the treasury of the county or state, as may be directed by law. In counties containing over one hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants all county officers shall be paid by salary, and the salary of any officer and his clerks, heretofore paid by fees, shall not exceed the aggregate amount of fees earned during his term and collected by or for him.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. XIII, sec. 15, constitution as proposed.

Accountability of Municipal Officers.

Section 6. The general assembly shall provide by law for the strict accountability of all county, township and borough officers, as well for the fees which may be collected by them, as for all public or municipal moneys which may be paid to them.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. XIII, sec. 8, constitution as proposed.

County Commissioners and Auditors.

Section 7. Three county commissioners and three county auditors shall be elected in each county where such officers are chosen, in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven and every fourth year thereafter; and in the election of said officers, each qualified elector shall vote for no more than two persons, and the three persons having the highest number of votes shall be elected; any casual vacancy in the office of county commissioners or county auditor shall be filled, by the court of common pleas of the county in which such vacancy shall occur, by the appointment on an elector of the proper county who shall have voted for the commissioner or auditor whose place is to be filled. (Amendment of November 2, 1909.)

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. XIII, sec. 11, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE XV.

CITIES AND CITY CHARTERS.

When Cities May Be Chartered.

Section 1. Cities may be chartered whenever a majority of the electors of any town or borough having a population of at least ten thousand shall vote at any general election in favor of the same.

Omitted because the Commission believe that the general assembly should have the right to determine the minimum number of persons who may form a given kind of municipality, and because so much of this section as gives to the electors of a borough (the town as a municipal organization is not known to our law) the right to give or withhold their assent to having the borough become a city, has been included in the important principle expressed in Article XII, section 4, constitution as proposed: "A city or borough shall not be established * * * except with the consent of a majority of the electors resident within the proposed boundaries voting on the question. * * *"

Debts Incurred by Municipal Commissions.

Section 2. No debt shall be contracted or liability incurred by any municipal commission, except in pursuance of an appropriation previously made therefor by the municipal government.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. XIII, sec. 19, constitution as proposed.

City Sinking Fund.

Section 3. Every city shall create a sinking fund, which shall be inviolably pledged for the payment of its funded debt.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. XIII, sec. 13, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE XVI.

PRIVATE CORPORATIONS.

Certain Unused Charters Void.

Section 1. All existing charters, or grants of special or exclusive privileges, under which a bona fide organization shall not have taken place and business been commenced in good faith, at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall thereafter have no validity.

Omitted. In 1874 when this section came in force, there were a number of charters of incorporation granted under special laws which it was important to cancel. To re-adopt the section in a new constitution would be to cancel all charters taken out under the existing general incorporation act, if the incorporators had not done business. The requirement that persons who secure a charter must, in a reasonable time, perfect their organization and begin business is amply taken care of by the Act of June 13, 1883, section 5, P. L. 123. For act applying only to banks, see Act of April 23, 1909, P. L. 143.

Conditions Imposed on Certain Benefits to Corporations.

Section 2. The general assembly shall not remit the forfeiture of the charter of any corporation now existing, or alter or amend the same, or pass any other general or special law for the benefit of such corporation, except upon the condition that such corporation shall thereafter hold its charter subject to the provisions of this Constitution.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IX, sec. 11, constitution as proposed.

State's Right of Eminent Domain.—Police Power.

Section 3. The exercise of the right of eminent domain shall never be abridged or so construed as to prevent the general assembly from taking the property and franchises of the incorporated companies, and subjecting them to public use, the same as the property of individuals; and the exercise of the police power of the state shall never be abridged or so construed as to permit corporations to conduct their business in such manner as to infringe the equal rights of individuals or the general well-being of the state.

Corresponding provisions in—

Art. IX, sec. 7, constitution as proposed.

Corporate Elections.

Section 4. In all elections for directors or managers of a corporation each member or shareholder may cast the whole number of his votes for one candidate, or distribute them upon two or more candidates, as he may prefer.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IX, sec. 5, constitution as proposed.

Foreign Corporations.

Section 5. No foreign corporation shall do any business in this state without having one or more places of business and an authorized agent or agents in the same upon whom process may be served.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IX, sec. 6, constitution as proposed.

Corporate Powers.—Real Estate.

Section 6. No corporation shall engage in any business other than that expressly authorized in its charter, nor shall it take or hold any real estate except such as may be necessary and proper for its legitimate business.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IX, sec. 1.

The provisions in the present constitution that a corporation cannot hold any real estate except such as may be necessary and proper for its business has been omitted because if it only means that a corporation cannot hold any real estate for the purpose of engaging in a business not authorized by its charter, such holding is prevented by the wording of the section herein suggested. If the wording of the present constitution may be interpreted as preventing a corporation holding for its future use in its authorized business more property than it is actually using in its business at the moment, the provision is harmful, because it prevents persons carrying on business in corporate form from acting in the conduct of their business as ordinary prudent business men should act, in that it prevents them from securing sufficient real estate to anticipate what they may reasonably expect to be the needs of their business.

Stocks and Bonds.—Increase of Indebtedness.

Section 7. No corporation shall issue stocks or bonds except for money, labor done, or money or property actually received; and all fictitious increase of stock or indebtedness shall be void. The stock and indebtedness of corporations shall not be increased except in pursuance of general law, nor without the consent of the persons holding the larger amount in value of the stock, first obtained at a meeting to be held after sixty days' notice given in pursuance of law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IX, sec. 2, constitution as proposed.

Property Taken, Injured or Destroyed by Private and Municipal Corporations.

Section 8. Municipal and other corporations and individuals invested with the privilege of taking private property for public use shall make just compensation for property taken, injured or destroyed by the construction or enlargement of their works, highways or improvements, which compensation shall be paid or secured before such taking, injury or destruction. The general assembly is hereby prohibited from depriving any person of an appeal from any preliminary assessment of damages against any such corporations or individuals made by viewers or otherwise; and the amount of such damages in all cases of appeal shall on the demand of either party be determined by a jury according to the course of the common law.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. X, sec. 2, constitution as proposed.

Banking Laws.

Section 9. Every banking law shall provide for the registry and countersigning, by an officer of the state, of all notes or bills designed for circulation, and that ample security to the full amount thereof shall be deposited with the Auditor General for the redemption of such notes or bills.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IX, sec. 4, constitution as proposed.

Revocation and Alteration of Corporate Charters.—New Charters.

Section 10. The general assembly shall have the power to alter, revoke or annul any charter of incorporation now existing and revocable at the adoption of this Constitution, or any that may hereafter be created, whenever in their opinion it may be injurious to the citizens of this commonwealth, in such manner, however, that no injustice shall be done to the corporators. No law hereafter enacted shall create renew or extend the charter of more than one corporation.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IX, sec. 10, constitution as proposed.

Bank Charters.

Section 11. The general assembly shall have the power by general law to provide for the incorporation of banks and trust companies and to prescribe the powers thereof.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IX, sec. 12, constitution as proposed.

Regulation of Telegraph Lines.

Section 12. Any association or corporation organized for the purpose, or any individual, shall have the right to construct and maintain lines of telegraph within this state, and to connect the same with other lines, and the general assembly shall, by general law of uniform operation, provide reasonable regulations to give full effect to this section. No telegraph company shall consolidate with, or hold a controlling interest in the stock or bonds of any other telegraph company owning a competing line, or acquire, by purchase or otherwise, any other competing line of telegraph.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. X, secs. 3, 7, constitution as proposed.

Joint-Stock Companies or Associations Treated as Corporations.

Section 13. The term "corporation" as used in this article shall be construed to include all joint-stock companies or associations having any of the powers or privileges of corporations not possessed by individuals or partnerships.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. IX, sec. 13, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE XVII.

RAILROADS AND CANALS.

Railroads and Canals to be Public Highways and Common Carriers.—Connection With Other Lines.

Section 1. All railroads and canals shall be public highways, and all railroad and canal companies shall be common carriers. Any association or corporation organized for the purpose shall have the right to construct and operate a railroad between any points within this state, and to connect at the state line with railroads of other states. Every railroad company shall have the right with its road to intersect, connect with or cross any other railroad; and shall receive and transport each the other's passengers, tonnage and cars loaded or empty, without delay, or discrimination.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. X, sec. 3, constitution as proposed.

Stock Transfer Office.—Books.

Section 2. Every railroad and canal corporation organized in this state shall maintain an office therein where transfers of its stock shall be made, and where its books shall be kept for inspection by any stockholder or creditor of such corporation, in which shall be recorded the amount of capital stock subscribed or paid in, and by whom, the names of the owners of its stock and the amounts owned by them, respectively, the transfer of said stock, and the names and places of residence of its officers.

Omitted because the section contains only detail provisions which your Commission believe are the proper subject of statutory rather than constitutional regulation.

No Discrimination in Service.

Section 3. All individuals, associations and corporations shall have equal right to have persons and property transported over railroads and canals, and no undue or unreasonable discrimination shall be made in charges for, or in facilities for, transportation of freight or passengers within the state or coming from or going to any other state. Persons and property transported over any railroad shall be delivered at any station at charges not exceeding the charges for transportation of persons and property of the same class in the same direction to any more distant station; but excursion and commutation tickets may be issued at special rates.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. X, sec. 5, constitution as proposed.

Consolidation Permitted.

Section 4. No railroad, canal or other corporation, or the lessees, purchasers or managers of any railroad or canal corporation, shall consolidate the stock, property or franchises of such corporation with, or lease, or purchase the works or franchises of, or in any way control any other railroad or canal corporation owning or having under its control a parallel or competing line; nor shall any officer of such railroad or canal corporation act as an officer of any railroad or canal corporation owning or having the control of a parallel or competing line; and the question whether railroads or canals are parallel or competing lines shall, when demanded by the party complainant, be decided by a jury as in other civil cases.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. X, sec. 7, constitution as proposed.

Limitation of Powers.

Section 5. No incorporated company doing the business of a common carrier shall, directly or indirectly, prosecute or engage in mining or manufacturing articles for transportation over its works; nor shall such company, directly or indirectly, engage in any other business than that of common carriers, or hold or acquire lands, freehold or leasehold, directly or indirectly, except such as shall be necessary for carrying on its business; but any mining or manufacturing company may carry the products of its mines and manufactories on its railroad or canal not exceeding fifty miles in length.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. X, sec. 8, constitution as proposed.

Officers Not to be Interested in Contracts.

Section 6. No president, director, officer agent or employee of any railroad or canal company shall be interested, directly or indirectly, in the furnishing of material or supplies to such company, or in the business of transportation as a common carrier of freight or passengers over the works owned, leased controlled or worked by such company.

Omitted because it contains matter suitable for legislative action rather than for constitutional declaration.

Discrimination and Preferences Prohibited.

Section 7. No discrimination in charges or facilities for transportation shall be made between transportation companies and individuals, or in favor of either, by abatement, drawback or otherwise, and no railroad or canal company, or any lessee, manager or employee thereof, shall make any preferences in furnishing cars or motive power.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. X, sec. 6, constitution as proposed.

Passes Prohibited.

Section 8. No railroad, railway or other transportation company shall grant free passes, or passes at a discount, to any person except officers or employees of the company.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. X, sec. 9, constitution as proposed.

Street Railways.

Section 9. No street passenger railway shall be constructed within the limits of any city, borough or township, without the consent of its local authorities.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. XIII, sec. 26, constitution as proposed.

Acceptance of these Articles.

Section 10. No railroad, canal or other transportation company, in existence at the time of the adoption of this article, shall have the benefit of any future legislation by general or special laws, except on condition of complete acceptance of all the provisions of this article.

Omitted because this section is a repetition of the more comprehensive provisions on the same subject in Article IX, sec. 11, as proposed (Art. XVI, sec. 2 of the present constitution).

Duties of Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Section 11. The existing powers and duties of the auditor general in regard to railroads, canals and other transportation companies, except as to their accounts, are hereby transferred to the secretary of internal affairs, who shall have a general supervision over them, subject to such regulations and alterations as shall be provided by law; and in addition to the annual reports now required to be made, said secretary may require special reports at any time upon any subject relating to the business of said companies from any officer or officers thereof.

Omitted because the transference of powers from the auditor general's department to the secretary of internal affairs was accomplished on the adoption of the present constitution, and therefore the provision is obsolete. Also we believe that the constitution should not attempt to prescribe in detail the powers of the different executive departments of the state government. As worded, the section does not vest in the secretary of internal affairs any powers which the general assembly may not alter or abolish.

Enforcement of This Article.

Section 12. The general assembly shall enforce by appropriate legislation the provisions of this article.

Corresponding provisions in—
Art. X, sec. 11, constitution as proposed.

ARTICLE XVIII.

Future Amendments.

How Constitution May Be Amended.

Section 1. Any amendment or amendments to this Constitution may be proposed in the Senate or House of Representatives; and, if the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each House, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be entered on their journals with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall cause the same to be published three months before the next general election, in at least two newspapers in every county in which such newspapers shall be published; and if, in the general assembly next afterwards chosen, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each House, the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall cause the same again to be published in the manner aforesaid; and such proposed amendment or amendments shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the state in such manner, and at such time at least three months after being so agreed to by the two Houses, as the general assembly shall prescribe; and, if such amendment or amendments shall be approved by a majority of those voting thereon, such amendment or amendments shall become a part of the Constitution; but no amendment or amendments shall be submitted oftener than once in five years. When two or more amendments shall be submitted they shall be voted upon separately.

Art. XIV, sec. 1, constitution as proposed.

AMENDMENT OF NOVEMBER 2, 1915.

Laws may be passed providing for a system of registering, transferring, insuring of and guaranteeing land titles by the state, or by the counties thereof, and for settling and determining adverse or other claims to and interest in lands the titles to which are so registered, transferred, insured and guaranteed; and for the creation and collection of indemnity funds; and for carrying the system and powers hereby provided for into effect by such existing courts as may be designated by the legislature, and by the establishment of such new courts as may be deemed necessary. In matters arising in and under the operation of such system, judicial powers, with right of appeal, may be conferred by the legislature upon county recorders and upon other officers by it designated. Such laws may provide for continuing the registering, transferring, insuring and guaranteeing such titles after the first or original registration has been perfected by the court, and provision may be made for raising the necessary funds for expenses and salaries of officers, which shall be paid out of the treasury of the several counties.

This section was added to the present constitution by the amendment of November 2, 1915. The legislature failed to designate any article or section for the amendment.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION TO STUDY, INVESTIGATE AND REVISE THE INSURANCE LAWS OF THE COMMONWEALTH.

TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Pursuant to the terms of the joint resolution approved the 25th day of July 1917 providing for the creation of a commission to study, investigate and revise the insurance laws of the Commonwealth which was continued by an Act of Assembly approved the 21st day of July 1919 hereby makes its report and submits its suggestions and recommendations.

TEXT OF REPORT:

The members of the Commission as continued, are Hon. Frank E. Baldwin, Hon. Augustus F. Daix, Jr., Hon. William W. Mearkle, Hon. John Siggins, Jr., Mr. Andrew J. Maloney, Mr. Robert M. Coyle, and Mr. Edward A. Woods. After the approval of the Act July 21st 1919 the Commission met for organization and re-elected Hon. Frank E. Baldwin, president and Arthur P. Townsend, Secretary and Treasurer.

In accordance with the Act of Assembly the Commission at its first meeting delegated the Legislative Reference Bureau to make a survey of the existing laws upon the subject in order to prepare for the codification.

Mr. John H. Fertig, the assistant director of the Bureau, after a survey of the present insurance laws, reported to the commission at a subsequent meeting, that he believed it best to codify the existing law in accordance with the deviations made in the act of assembly; that is there should be three codes: one relating to insurance companies, one for fraternal organizations and a third creating an insurance department and out-lining the supervisory powers of the department.

At the first session of the commission it was tentatively agreed upon that there should be no changes in the existing laws, and that all that the commission would submit to the general assembly should be purely a codification. As the work progressed it was found, from time to time, that minor revisions and changes became necessary. None of these changes were of radical character but were such as were found necessary to harmonize the numerous conflicting statutes or to bring the policy of this Commonwealth in closer harmony with that of our neighboring states.

The actual drafting of the codes was done by Mr. John H. Fertig and Mr. S. Edward Hannestad of the Legislative Reference Bureau. Commissioner Donaldson and his deputy Mr. McCulloch have been continually at the service of the commission and the Legislative Reference Bureau and rendered valuable aid both by suggestions and by actual drafts of provisions.

THE INSURANCE COMPANY CODE.

The insurance company code is divided into ten articles, with a system of section numbering running consecutively through the code. To each article has been assigned one hundred sections and as no article contains near this number of sections, the system adopted permits the amendment of the code, from time to time, by the addition of new sections. In order to facilitate in the use of this system, blank sections have been left at the end of each sub-division of each article. The sections as numbered shows the number of the article, as for instance: Article one, begins with section 101; Article five begins with section 501. The several articles of the insurance company code are as follows:

- Article 1, Preliminary provisions.
- Article 2, Incorporation of Insurance Companies.
- Article 3, General provisions relating to Insurance Associations and Exchanges.
- Article 4, Life insurance.
- Article 5, Fire and Marine insurance.
- Article 6, Casualty insurance.
- Article 7, Mutual companies other than Mutual Life Companies.

Article 8, Lloyd's Associations.

Article 9, Reciprocal and Inter-Insurance Exchanges.

Article 10, Acts of Assembly repealed.

While the code has been designated as an insurance company code, it is in some respects broader than its title indicates. However, the provisions included which might not be aptly described by the short title, are so closely allied with the general subject, that the commission and the drafters felt it necessary to include them. Such for instance are the provisions relating to Fire Insurance Rates and Rating Bureaus, Lloyd's Associations and Reciprocal and Inter-Insurance Exchanges.

In drawing the company code, no serious attempt was made to simplify the language of the existing statutes. It was thought not advisable to do so because of the technical character of the language of the existing statutes, which is understood by persons familiar with insurance law. On the other hand however, it has been the attempt of the commission to make the provisions of the code in each instance explicit as to the character of the company, association or exchange to which it shall apply. This was found to be one of the greatest deficiencies of the existing law, and was especially confusing to persons who were not familiar with the insurance laws, and insurance language.

Among the preliminary provisions in the first article has been inserted a section specifically designating the companies, associations and exchanges to which the act shall apply. This section is framed under the theory that the Commonwealth has the right to alter or amend the charter of any corporation which has been granted since October 1857. The Commission appreciates the fact that no such alteration or amendment can be made where it works injuriously to the corporators of the company, and it is felt that nothing which is contained in the code will offend against this restriction.

The article with relation to the incorporation of insurance companies attempts to bring together and make uniform the various existing acts which provide for the incorporation of different kinds of insurance companies, both stock or mutual. In some instances of course, certain provisions were necessarily restricted to particular lines or classes of insurance.

This article also enumerates the various powers which are to be possessed by the several kinds of companies. Among some of the new powers which have been granted are the following: Fire and Marine Insurance Companies; insurance against loss or damage from frost; against loss or damage to airplanes, seaplanes, dirigibles and other air craft.

Casualty Companies: Indemnifying banks, bankers, brokers, financial or moneyed associations or corporations against loss of any bills of exchange, notes, drafts, bonds, securities, evidence of debt, deeds, mortgages and etc., also the right to guarantee any federal land banks against loss by reason of defective title or incumbrances on real property on which any federal land bank may have a loan secured by mortgage. Also against loss or damage to airplanes, seaplanes, dirigibles, or other aircraft, other than loss or damage by fire or while being transported.

The general power was given to the insurance commissioner to permit the transaction of any form of insurance not specifically enumerated in the code if such insurance was not contrary to law and was allied or in harmony with the classes of insurance mentioned in the code.

The minimum capital required of each class of companies was raised, but none of these raises were in any instances made higher than the capital which is now employed by all of the existing companies.

Article Three contains a collection of general provisions which apply uniformly to all classes of companies, associations and exchanges. In this Article have been incorporated many provisions which come under the present general laws relating to all corporations. It was thought of the commission, in this manner to provide complete codes and to make it unnecessary to search the general corporation law, to find any provisions which might be applicable to insurance companies. Among these provisions are such as provided for Cumulative voting, Increases and decrease of capital stock, pensions to employes, Investment of capital or surplus in war bonds of the United States, Permission to merge and consolidate, etc.

Article Four contains the provisions which are peculiar to life insurance companies, both stock or mutual. In considering the code as a whole, the provisions found in this Article are not to be considered as only the provisions relating to life insurance companies. This same thing is true of any other class of companies. In considering the provisions which might be applicable to particular companies it is always necessary to consider the provisions of the first three Articles, the provisions of the Articles dealing peculiarly with that class of companies, and the provisions of any other article relative to the class of insurance business which that particular company may be authorized to transact.

One of the important features of the article on life insurance is an attempt to draw a model section defining insurance interest. The definition will be found in Section 412 and is as follows: "The term insurable interest is defined as meaning, in the case of persons related by blood or law, an interest engendered by love and affection, and in the case of other persons, a lawful economic interest in having the life of the insured continue, as distinguished from an interest which would arise only by the death of the insured." This definition is an amplification of one given by Justice Holmes of the United States Supreme Court. It is hoped that this definition will stand the test of scrutiny by the Courts and that it may become a model definition for adoption in other States.

In the arrangement of the Article relating to life insurance the drafters first inserted the section which related to both stock and mutual companies. These provisions were followed by the provisions which apply only to stock companies and lastly were inserted the provisions which apply only to mutual companies.

The Fifth Article which deals with Fire and Marine Insurance has been divided into four parts. The first part deals with the general provisions relating to both stock and mutual companies. The second, with the provisions relating to stock companies only, the third with the provisions relating to mutual companies only; while the fourth deals with fire insurance rates and rating bureaus. No important changes have been made in this Article from the present existing law.

The Sixth Article deals with the subject of casualty insurance, and is divided into six parts. The first part includes the provisions relating to casualty stock companies; the second, deals with health and accident insurance; the third, with employers' mutual liability insurance associations; the fourth with workmen's compensation insurance; the fifth with surety companies, and the sixth with boiler insurance. The provisions relating to workmen's compensation insurance, are so drawn as to apply to the State Workmen's Insurance Fund, as well as to private companies which transact this class of business. This particular part of the article has been re-drawn and put into better form than were the provisions of the original act of June 2, 1915, on the subject, however, the effect of the re-draft leaves the law in approximately the same state as before.

Article Seven deals with mutual companies other than mutual life companies. Heretofore, Mutual Fire Companies were organized under the Act of April 3, 1876. On July 11, 1917, an Act was adopted authorizing the organization of any kind of mutual insurance company other than a mutual life company. This Act seemed broad enough to permit the incorporation of mutual fire companies. In order to simplify this situation and to bring the laws relating to mutual companies into harmony, the commission proposes to omit the provisions of the Act of 1876 and to have all mutuals, other than life, organized under provisions similar to those contained in the Act of July 11, 1917.

Article Eight is devoted to Lloyd's Association. The only important change from the existing law is to harmonize the kinds of insurance which these associations may carry with those of fire and marine companies. Authority has also been granted to these associations, with the consent of the insurance commissioner, to carry any insurance not specifically authorized if the same is not unlawful and is allied with the lines such associations carry. This clause is similar to the powers granted by Article Two to companies.

Article Nine deals with Reciprocal and Inter-Insurance Exchanges. It contains the provisions of the present Act of June 27, 1913, dealing with this subject. No changes have suggested themselves to the Commission.

Article Ten contains the repeal clause, and cites for repeal about sixty acts of assembly. Many of these acts are now obsolete or repealed by implication, but in order that there may be no question hereafter they have been included for repeal. The earliest of these acts was adopted in 1810.

THE INSURANCE DEPARTMENT CODE.

The insurance Department Code contains provisions for the organization of an Insurance Department, outlining the general powers of the Insurance Commissioner with regard to the licensing, regulation, examination, suspension and dissolution of Insurance Companies, Lloyd's Associations and Insurance Exchanges. In addition to these the code contains a collection of the various existing acts setting forth the method of ascertaining the Reserve liability of the insurance companies, and all of the laws relating to insurance agents and brokers. The same arrangement as to section numbering has been adopted as in the Company Code.

The code is divided into seven articles which are as follows:

- Article I. Preliminary provisions.
- Article II. Insurance Department.
- Article III. Reserve liability.
- Article IV. Deposits of securities to do business.
- Article V. Suspension of business, involuntary dissolutions.
- Article VI. Agents and brokers.
- Article VII. Acts of Assembly repealed.

This code as a whole contains very few new provisions, but a large part of the existing legislation has been re-drafted, harmonized and simplified. It is the thought of the commission that after the code has been introduced, amendments should be submitted especially as to the organization of the Department, which amendment would have the support of the Commission.

In addition to the assistance and suggestions rendered the Commission, the Insurance Commissioner, Mr. Donaldson, has submitted the following which the Commission feels should be embodied in its report:

"REGULATION AND CONTROL OF FRATERNALS. In the session of 1919, a Bill providing for statutory control of Fraternals was introduced. It met, so far as the Department knew, with full endorsement of the Fraternals of this state, but was not enacted into a law. The Insurance Department of this state has at all times been subjected to criticism—in fact, derision from other states because of the lack of control of Fraternals. The real evil has been ignorant mismanagement of Fraternals. Despite Departmental warning, entreaties, suggestions, these organizations, which are instruments of real benefit to the public if intelligently conducted by the sensible and capable men, have persisted in 'sitting tight' until the crash came. The oldest fraternal of this state,—and perhaps of the United States,—Pennsylvania Grand Lodge, Ancient Order of United Workmen—was taken over by this Department in 1919 and liquidated. The creditors (Beneficiaries) received 24½% of the face of death claims. The aged and surviving members found themselves unable to purchase insurance from stock carriers or unable, because of advanced ages, to join any other Fraternal. They were given the privilege of joining the Delaware Lodge, but only by paying very heavy monthly premiums—about six times the premiums they had customarily paid—and by 'liening' benefits-payable to a discouraging extent. For instance, one member aged 74, with a policy providing $1,000 payable to his heirs, would have been required to 'lien' his policy (reduce the benefits) about $700 and pay about $75.00 a year to continue his insurance. The Independent Order or Puritans, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was rapidly disintegrating until the Department stepped in and demanded certain resignations and entirely rehabilitated the Puritans' affairs; with result that claims, long withheld, are now being paid in installments. But, the outcome is most uncertain. There are others, chartered in this state, which are, so to speak, almost 'on the rocks' because the Insurance Department was not in previous years in position, for want of statutory regulations, to demand practical and safe management from time of origin. Thousands of helpless women, incapable of supporting themselves and minor children, have suffered severely in this state because of the 'crash' of Fraternals."

"These organizations, which afford intimate contact between individuals create state and national spirit, and community interest as against the impersonal aspect of insurance with stock companies, should be encouraged; but the chartering of new ones and the rehabilitation of now-existing ones should be regulated under statute."

"A revision of the Bill proposed in 1919, has been prepared. It is fair and reasonable, and should be enacted into a law in 1921."

II.

STATUTORY REGULATION OF BENEFICIAL SOCIETIES.

"There are now operating in this state many corporations chartered under the 'not for profit' provisions of the Act of 1874 (ninth paragraph, section two). Investigations by this department have resulted in several instances in taking away the charters of beneficients for abuse and mismanagement by stupid and avaricious incorporators. The operations of the particular corporations seemed mainly 'beneficial' to the managers. General agency contracts were entered into; outrageously high commissions paid; high membership fees asked; and members were freely abandoned by trickery or evasion. It is true, however, that many impositions were imposed on these beneficients by unscrupulous policyholders. These organizations are really a 'poor man's' insurance society; and some of them are splendidly conducted. Those of reputable sort are too often discountenanced by methods of irregularly conducted beneficients."

"Legislation is needed. The Department has consulted with officials of one or two of the existing and well conducted beneficients, and they are in accord with the Department's desire for legislation on, for instance, the following: (1) Limitation on amount of membership fee; (2) Limitation on percentage of commissions paid, and percentage of total expenditure; (3) Abandonment of the graded-commissions plan by which agents have been paid, for instance, fifty per cent, for first three months of collections from a new member and twenty-five per cent, thereafter, and which has often been an incentive to lapse members from the societies; (4) Prohibiting making of contracts with general agents; (5) Providing standard provisions for policies and regulating the 'not in benefit' provisions; (6) Requiring that charters shall be applied for only through the Insurance Department; thereby abolishing the present custom of incorporating through courts of common pleas; (7) Requiring the licensing of agents; (8) Providing for full supervision and control by the Insurance Department; (9) Regulating investment of funds."

STATUTORY REGULATION AND LICENSING OF PUBLIC CLAIM ADJUSTERS.

"The vast insurance activities of this state involve countless losses by fire, fatalities and accidents, and losses of other nature. Public adjusters advertise themselves, and are exceedingly active on behalf of the insured. In some instances their ignorance and their methods are open to strong criticism. There have been arrests and prosecutions, on fraud charges, in more than one case."

"There is at present no records of these public adjusters on file with the state; no restrictions upon them; no qualifications or license requirements. Public adjusters of long standing are as intently interested in having regulation as in this Department. Proper adjustments of any claim for loss or damage arising out of an insurance policy requires sound knowledge of insurance customs, contracts and values. Where an uncontrolled self-appointed adjuster jumps into the field and, as is usually the case, immediately suggests to the policyholder that he will make the company pay or that a company does not pay until it has to, there is constant wrangling and many delays to the disadvantage of the public."

"The Department has prepared a Bill requiring annual license fee of $100 for all public adjusters; and vesting in the Department the right to refuse or suspend or revoke a license, subject to appeal to court by the person aggrieved."

"It is highly important that the proposed Bill or a like Bill be enacted into a law in 1921."

REVISED LAW GOVERNING INTER-INSURERS (Reciprocal).

"The Act governing organization and conduct of Inter-Insurers or Reciprocal has remained unchanged since 1913. It lacks definiteness and certain limitations. Further, the requirement for annual statements—the method of accounting—is stupid and impracticable, and has subjected the reciprocals to many unfair attacks."

"As a member of the Special Committee of Insurance Commissioners to prepare a uniform (revised) Act for Reciprocal, the Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner has personally prepared a revised Act, submitted it to the members of the Committee, and upon revision a meeting with officials of all Reciprocal in the United States will be called at Chicago, on or about February 1, 1921."

"It is certain that changes will be made. It is hoped that a new Act will be drawn up, suitable to a majority of the several states. The Committee on Codification and Revision might recommend—for want at the present time of a copy of a completed uniform act that changes in the present law are needed."

V.

MARINE OR TRANSPORTATION INSURANCE AND MULTIPLE LINES.

"There has been introduced in the Senate and House at Washington what is known as a Model Bill, providing for the organization and regulation of insurance companies within the District of Columbia for the transaction of marine or transportation insurance. This Bill has adopted the main features of the British Empire's plan of organization and conduct of insurance companies. It is radically different from the American system in that (1) It permits the writing of multiple lines. That is to say; a fire company may transact casualty business. Under the laws of all but three American states, a fire company is prohibited from writing casualty business. This is more or less of a farce because the successful fire companies at once organize a casualty company, and the same officers and the same home office are availed of. (2) Taxation. The British law lays taxes first on profits and second on invested capital and reserves. The American system levies taxes on gross premiums received. (3) Laws of practically all states of the Union do not permit generous reinsurance facilities nor do they permit a fire company to hold the capital stock of another fire company. The Model Bill permits a domestic marine company to hold the stock (to a limited extent) of a marine insurance company organized to transact business solely in other countries, and allows credit for reinsurance with non-admitted companies."

"This Model Bill is the result of demand for marine insurance on the American Merchant Marine fleet of some 1,600 ships. The Congressional Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries (the sub-committee, by Hon. George W. Edmonds, Congressman, from Philadelphia), and also the United States Shipping Board has long investigated the causes of inadequate marine insurance facilities in America, and learned that the British were successful in diverting perhaps $200,000,000 of premiums from this country annually, and in outstanding American insurance brokers because the British had greater facilities for direct writing of multiple lines and for reinsurance, and were backed up by banks, merchants and the Government. Insurance is a national trade weapon in Britain's history. (Note: Mention of the British herein is not made unfavorable but for comparison sake)."

"The Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner is a member of the special committee of Insurance Commissioners on Merchant Marine and as such attended hearings before the Congressional Committee and Shipping Board and is most interested in endeavoring, through legitimate channels—and has so apprised Governor Sproul—to further the principles of the Model Bill in Pennsylvania, if such may be done in conformity with existing laws of this State. Connecticut and Wisconsin are liberal in their laws; far more so than this State. Insurance is and should be national and world wide in aspect."

"The code as now prepared should be amplified or amended so as to permit, failing any other radical departure, the writing of multiple lines by a company having a million capital and a million surplus and permitting a domestic company to take credit for reinsurance with a non-admitted company of the same or equal financial standing. Permission should also be given for a Pennsylvania company, writing marine coverage, to hold capital stock of any marine insurance company organized to transact business solely in foreign countries; the holdings to be limited to 20% of capital and surplus of the domestic company. As to a change in system of taxation; it is more than likely that the British system of taxation would, if finally adopted here, result in a vast increase in total premiums and consequent repairment of any possible deficiency or falling off from present taxation receipts. But, it cannot be concluded that there would be a falling off in receipts. The Auditor General and the Insurance Department might well prepare a summary of the prospective effect of a change and report to the Legislature."

"The Congressional Committee, finding the Pennsylvania Insurance Department interested, has asked prompt co-operation and action in this State to help them obtain, in this country, marine coverage for the American fleet."

"Professor S. S. Huebner, expert on insurance matters to the United States Shipping Board and the Committee of Congress, has compiled and submitted publications showing the archaic and peculiar systems of taxation, in the many states of America, the limitations imposed by state-line restrictions and by contrast the advantages of the English multiple line and taxation systems, which have, so to speak, been the 'business getter.' There could be millions of premiums (with consequent increment of taxes to this state) diverted to Pennsylvania were the above-named features of the Model Bill made part of the laws of this State."

"Bear in mind that the Model Bill as introduced at Washington solely governs marine or transportation insurance companies, and is destined, for instance, to allow an American company to insure a cargo from Grand Rapids, Michigan, by railroad to the coast and from the coast to Australia or whatever the port, and to give all coverage, in transit, except fidelity and surety and life insurance."

Respectfully submitted by,

THOMAS B. DONALDSON,
Insurance Commissioner."

The codes as recommended by the Commission have been introduced in the Senate and are known as Senate Bills Nos. 93, 94 and 95, Session of the Senate of 1921, copies of which are attached hereto and made a part of this report.

REPORT OF THE PENNSYLVANIA COMMISSION ON OLD AGE PENSIONS.

To the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Pursuant to Joint Resolution No. 383 A, dated the 18th day of July 1919, providing for the continuation of the Commission "to investigate and report upon the subject of old age pensions" and further directing this same Commission "to make report and recommendations to the General Assembly of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one," we beg to submit the following:

On March 15, 1919, we were afforded the opportunity of submitting to your honorable body a comprehensive report dealing with the conditions of the aged persons in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as were disclosed in our investigations. Our report presented facts about the aged in the State relative to nativity, family connections, physical conditions, causes of disability, occupations, wages earned, sources of income, means of outside support, and the like. Our investigations included interviews with over 4,500 inmates, 50 years of age and over, residing in 60 almshouses in the State; facts in regard to over 2,000 inmates of 65 fraternal and benevolent homes for the aged; information relative to 500 aged recipients of private relief; and personal interviews with nearly 4,500 persons, 50 years of age and over, residing in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Reading. In addition, our report presented a study of the almshouses and semi-public institutions for the aged in the State, as well as comprehensive analyses of the different industrial, municipal, teachers' and fraternal pension schemes in existence in the State. The report also contained a discussion of the problem of old age pensions, as well as a summary of the pension system in existence in over 20 countries.

In presenting our preliminary report in 1919 we stated that on account of insufficient time and study, we were not prepared at that time to make final recommendations of a nature that would warrant their enactment into law by the State. We deemed it essential to secure further information, especially in regard to the old age pension systems actually in operation abroad. We expressed our hope that the Legislature will, either through ourselves or another body, carry on further study of the problem until its successful termination.

In its wisdom, the General Assembly of 1919 instructed us to continue our work and "to make a report and recommendation" to your honorable body. In compliance with these instructions, we beg to state that we have endeavored to comply, in both spirit and letter, with the wishes of the Legislature. We have endeavored to do our utmost to work out concrete suggestions and to present to you our conclusions attained after careful study and consideration of the numerous problems involved.

We wish to call your attention to the Bill introduced by Senator M. G. Leslie, which represents the unanimous recommendations of our Commission. In presenting this bill we wish to state that it is our sincere conviction that the problems of the aged can no longer be ignored. We believe that the present time is a proper and propitious one for state action in regard to its old persons. To protect the aged by means of a constructive social policy represents no longer a legislative innovation, nor is it an Utopian experiment. Nearly 30 countries, including all the industrial nations of the world, have already enacted such legislation. Many of these have had such systems for a number of years, and it is important to note that not one nation has as yet returned to the earlier and haphazard methods of individual relief. Indeed, the tendencies in every country are to extend and liberalize the old age protection systems now in operation.

In proposing a non-contributory assistance system for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, we have been guided largely by the experiences of English-speaking countries where this system has been in successful operation for a number of years. A system of compulsory-contributory insurance, while sound in theory and practiced successfully in a number of European countries involves numerous difficulties—constitutional as well as psychological—which must first be overcome in this country. The cost of book-keeping and accounting involved in a contributory scheme with the mobility of persons characteristic of such a State as Pennsylvania would doubtless consume most of the income which would be derived from such a plan. The cost of recording the movements and contributions of a citizen of Pennsylvania from his youth till he had reached the age of 65 can hardly be over estimated. Straight assistance plans are now in existence in the following countries: Australia, Alaska, Denmark, Great Britain, New Zealand, Uruguay, and partly in France. After a thorough study of the various old age insurance systems now in operation, we are convinced that a non-contributory assistance plan is a feasible plan which can be successfully established in Pennsylvania.

Administration—The Bill proposes to divide the detailed administration of the law between the State Board and County Boards. The State Board is given full authority to make the necessary rules and regulations and to approve or disapprove the acts of the County Boards.

Amount of Allowance—The Bill provides that the amount of assistance shall be fixed by the State Board, with due regard to the conditions in each case, but in no case shall it exceed twenty-five ($25) dollars per month to any one applicant.

Age—The Bill proposes to commence the payment of assistance at the age of 65. With the exception of Great Britain, where the age of assistance is 70, all other countries set it at 65, and some even at 60. A few countries also award old age assistance at the age of 65 for men and 60 for women. The investigations of the Commission, as disclosed in the Report of 1919, as well as the more recent studies made of trade union members at work, and an examination of the wages of those pensioned by industrial concerns, would seem to indicate that very few wage-earners in Pennsylvania remain at work unimpaired in their incomes above the age of 65.

Citizenship and Residence—The Bill requires citizenship of the United States and at least 15 years residence within the State, immediately preceding the date of application. It requires no stated number of years of citizenship, as we feel that to require a stated number of years of citizenship, in addition to residence, prior to the claiming of assistance would seem hardly justified in the case of a person who would be entitled to such assistance, because of his many years of services and contributions to Pennsylvania's industrial progress.

We believe, however, that a stated number of years of residence is necessary in order to prevent the influx of old people from other States for the purpose of obtaining assistance. Fifteen years would be a sufficient minimum, as men would hardly change their residence in order to obtain assistance at 65 much before that date. The Bill also provides that in the case of a person who has lived in Pennsylvania for 40 years the residence requirements immediately preceding his application shall be reduced from 15 to 5. This, we believe, is just as it would amount to an expression of gratitude on the part of the State to its loyal citizens.

Charter of Qualifications—The Bill excludes from receiving assistance inmates of prisons, jails, poorhouses, and other charitable, reform or correctional institutions. The purpose is to exclude prisoners and paupers, as well as indigents who are already supported by the State or counties.

Property and Income Qualifications—The Bill proposes to give no assistance to all those who have an income in excess of $300 per year; to those who have property valued at more than $5,000, inclusive of a homestead; and to those who have children or others responsible for their support and fully able to do so. The Bill proposes to permit the retention of a homestead, when personally used, so as not to make the recipient entirely dependent upon the assistance granted. This would serve furthermore as a compensation for thrift. The Bill provides, however, that upon the death of the recipient the total amount granted to that person, together with 3 per cent. interest, shall be deducted from the property and returned to the State Treasury, and the remainder returned to the legal heirs. This provision we consider just, as we believe that the purpose of the assistance is to protect the old in their last days and to make them somewhat more comfortable. It is not the function of the assistance, however, to increase the funds of the state.

Payment—The Bill suggests that payments be made in monthly or quarterly installments, as recommended by the County Boards.

How Application is Made—It is proposed that the applicant shall file an application with the County Board, which Board, after proper investigation, forwards its decision to the State Board, which in turn is empowered to approve or disapprove such decision. The applicant is also given the privilege to appeal to the State Board from the decision of the County Board in case of grievance.

In presenting this bill to your honorable body for enactment into law, we wish to state that we are presenting this as the result of months of careful investigation and study. We feel no hesitancy in submitting this to you for your enactment into law because we are convinced that upon examination of the problems facing the aged you will indorse our conclusions unqualifiedly.

The difficulties facing the old, under present conditions, cannot be solved through individual effort. And the present cost of our haphazard provisions for the aged, in actual money spent, in industrial inefficiency resulting from it, in suffering and personal degradation, are too stupendous to be permitted to continue. On the other hand, the benefits to be derived from a constructive plan of State assistance in terms of loyalty to the Commonwealth and Nation, in contentment and greater industrial efficiency, in independence and thrift and in family solidarity, are too manifest and pregnant with numerous potentialities for the good to be delayed much longer. It is our cherished hope that you will see the wisdom of our conclusions and endeavor to do all in your power to lighten the burdens, and make somewhat happier the declining days of the citizens who deserve well of this Commonwealth.

Respectfully,

JAMES H. MAURER.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED TO REVISE THE PENAL CODE.

To the Honorable, the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly Met:

The Commissioners appointed under the joint resolution of July 25, 1917, to revise, collate and digest all acts and statutes relating to or touching the penal laws of the Commonwealth; to collect and reduce into one all acts and statutes, and parts of acts and statutes, relating to or touching the penal laws of the Commonwealth; to suggest to the Legislature any contradictions or omissions, defects or imperfections that may appear in the acts and statutes to be revised and the mode in which the same may be reconciled, supplied, improved or amended; to designate such acts or statutes as ought to be repealed, and to prepare and submit to the Legislature new acts or statutes as such repeal may render advisable or necessary; and generally to execute the trust confided to them in such a manner as to render the Penal Code of Pennsylvania more efficient, clear and perfect, and the punishments inflicted on crimes and misdemeanors more uniform and better adapted to the suppression of crimes and the reformation of the offender, and to report the result of their labors to the Legislature on or before the first day of January, 1919; and the resolution of June 23, 1919, continuing the said Commission and directing it to continue its labors and to make final and complete report to the General Assembly of 1921; respectfully submit the result of their labors to the consideration of the Legislature.

The Commissioners submit herewith, as embracing the object contemplated by the Legislature, a bill entitled "An act to consolidate, revise and amend the penal laws of the Commonwealth."

The Legislative resolution instructs the Commission "to arrange the same systematically under proper titles, divisions and sections." The Commission has adopted in the main the existing excellent classification made in the Act of 1860, March 31, commonly known as the Penal Code of Pennsylvania. By preserving this classification, the Legislature will be enabled to judge readily the defects and inadequacies of the existing laws and to note the changes the Commission has made therein and such new provisions as are submitted.

The resolutions of the Legislature require that in any proposed change in the phraseology thereof, the said change shall be clearly and distinctly set forth, together with the acts or statutes proposed to be altered or amended. In performance of this duty, the Commission has followed the plan adopted by the Commission of 1860 under a similar resolution, by submitting with the bill a commentary. This commentary will show, as to each section of the bill, whether such section is merely a re-enactment, with verbal changes, a partial amendment, a modification of existing law or an entirely new provision. As the proposed act contains more than three hundred sections and embraces practically all the penal legislation of the Commonwealth since 1860, including the penal code of 1860, any other method would be impracticable. It would manifestly serve no useful purpose to reprint the whole penal legislation of the State which the proposed act supplants.

Before taking up the specific provisions of the proposed act, certain general observations may be made on the bill as a whole. In our penal legislation generally the principle has been followed of prescribing only a maximum punishment. In a few isolated cases the Legislature has introduced a minimum punishment requiring the judge on conviction, no matter what the extenuating circumstances may be, to impose the punishment provided. In the proposed act, the general principle has been followed, and maximum punishments only are provided. This is in accordance not only with the great mass of the penal legislation in our own State but also in accordance with the more scientifically drawn codes of other States. It must often be that the technical provisions of a law have been violated when no real guilt attaches to the offender, and no punishment should be meted out to him.

The resolutions creating the Commission provide that it shall be the duty of the Commissioners to collect and reduce into one act all acts and statutes relating to or touching the penal laws of the Commonwealth. In the execution of this part of the resolutions, the Commission has omitted from the proposed bill those occasional acts which are special in their nature, such as acts applying only to certain counties or boroughs, or to certain rivers in the Commonwealth, and has confined itself to those acts only which are of general application over the whole State. It is conceived that special acts have no place in a general penal code. Another class of acts having penal provisions which the Commission has left untouched are acts which form a system in themselves. Such acts are the game laws, the election laws, banking laws, automobile laws, factory and factory inspection laws, etc. Though these laws sometimes contain penal provisions, it would only cause confusion to extract the penal section from its context, and place it in the penal code. Furthermore, such inclusion in the penal code would frequently require the inclusion also of many sections not penal, and sometimes the inclusion of the whole act, since such penal provisions frequently provide merely that any one violating any of the provisions of the said act shall be punished, etc. The resolutions of 1917 do not seem to the Commission to embrace such laws. However, as frequently happens where such laws contain provisions properly belonging in a penal code, as for example, where an act provides for the making of affidavits, and declares that any one swearing falsely shall be punished, or where an act relating to partnerships provides for embezzlement by partners, such sections have been incorporated in the proposed act, either by special or general provisions.

In the Code of 1860, and in the penal legislation of the State since that time, while the usual punishment for offenses is fine and imprisonment, or fine or imprisonment, the different sections of the Code and the different acts show no definite relation between these two penalties; in some acts the term of imprisonment prescribed is five years and the fine is $2,000, while in others the penalty is three years and the fine $5,000. In the proposed act the Commission has adopted a definite relation between fine and the imprisonment, so that all crimes which are punishable with the same number of years imprisonment will be likewise punished by the same amount of fine.

In the Code of 1860, and in the subsequent penal legislation, no general principle has been followed differentiating felonies and misdemeanors. Some offenses are made felonies while other offenses more severely punished are called misdemeanors. In the proposed act, a definite principle has been followed. All crimes which are punished by a maximum penalty of five or more years are made felonies; all offenses to which a lesser term of imprisonment is attached are made misdemeanors.

In the existing criminal law of the Commonwealth, the attempt to commit certain crimes is punished with the same punishment as the commission of the crime itself. In the cases of other crimes, no punishment is provided for the attempt. The proposed act includes a general section on attempts, to cover cases of attempt to commit all crimes, with a few exceptions.

With these preliminary observations, the Commission proceeds to note specifically the changes in existing law effected by the proposed act.

TITLE I.—OFFENSES AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT OF THE COMMONWEALTH.

Section 1 replaces Section 1 of the Code of 1860. It is an adaptation of Section 1 of the Code of 1860 and Section 1 of the Federal Penal Code of 1909. It omits the requirement that the accused owe allegiance to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The penalty is increased from a maximum of twelve years to life imprisonment.

Section 2 replaces Section 2 of the Code of 1860. It adds the "District Attorney" to the persons who may be informed of the commission of treason, and omits the proviso contained in Section 2. The penalty as to the fine is increased from $1000 to $3000.

Section 3 is new.

Section 4 replaces the Act of 1919, June 26, P. L. 639, omitting (d) and (e) of the Act of 1919. The penalty is the same.

Section 5 replaces the Act of 1897, April 29, P. L. 34. The penalty of one year is added.

Section 6 replaces the Act of 1907, May 23, P. L. 225. It is an adaptation of the proposed act of the American Bar Association. The crime is made a misdemeanor instead of a felony, and the fine is reduced from $500 to $200.

Section 7 replaces and re-enacts part of Section 48 of the Code of 1860; part of Sections 1 and 2, Act 1874, April 29, P. L. 115; Section 2, Act 1901, May 2, P. L. 120, and Section 8, Act 1919, May 27, P. L. 310. This section extends the provisions of the above acts to the bribing of other public officers. The penalty is different in various existing acts which this section supplies.

Section 8 is a re-enactment of that part of section 48 of the Code of 1860 which relates to the acceptance of bribes by legislators and officers; Section 8, Act 1874, May 23, P. L. 230; Section 8, Act 1889, May 23, P. L. 277. It adds thereto the taking or soliciting of bribes by councilmen and burgesses as provided for in Section 1, Act 1901, May 2, P. L. 120; Section 7, Act 1919, June 20, P. L. 310. The remainder of Section 48 of the Code of 1860 is re-enacted in Sections 30 and 31 of the proposed act. The penalties in the existing acts are different. The proposed section makes the crime a felony.

Section 9 re-enacts Section 51 of the Code of 1860, and broadens that section to cover threats of dismissal from office, employment, etc.

Section 10 re-enacts Section 50 of the Code of 1860. It broadens that section to cover soliciting a bribe. The penalty is increased from six months to one year, and the fine from $100 to $500.

Section 11 re-enacts the provisions of Section 1, Act 1872, March 14, P. L. 25. It broadens the said act to include the Legislature as well as committees and to cover a refusal or neglect to produce books and papers. The imprisonment is increased from 6 months to 1 year and the fine reduced from $1000 to $500.

TITLE II.—OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC JUSTICE AND ADMINISTRATION.

Section 12 replaces Section 127, Code 1860, and broadens it to cover conspiring to falsely arrest. It increases the penalty from three years and $1000 to five years and $2000, and makes the offence a felony instead of a misdemeanor.

Section 13 replaces Section 3 of the Code of 1860. It clears the ambiguities in said Section 3, and broadens it to provide for escape from custody not provided for in said Section 3. It provides one penalty in all cases of escape.

Section 14 re-enacts Section 2, Act 1911, May 11, P. L. 274. The penalty is increased from $1000 to $2000.

Section 15 supplies Section 5 of the Code of 1860. It changes the offense from a misdemeanor to a felony, and reduces the fine from $2500 to $2000.

Section 16 supplies Section 6 of the Code of 1860. It broadens Section 6 to cover not only escapes due to gross negligence, but to escapes due to a failure to perform any duty and includes not only the escape of a person in custody under a criminal charge, but the escape of any person in lawful custody.

Section 17 replaces Section 7 of the Code of 1860. It broadens Section 7 by adding "Any person" to the persons mentioned in Section 7, and to include "omitting as well as refusing to execute process." It makes the offense a felony, instead of a misdemeanor, and changes the fine from $500 to $1000.

Section 18 is new. It is intended to cover a dereliction of duty by any public officer. Similar provisions are found in the statutes of other states.

Section 19 re-enacts the Acts of 1915, April 9, P. L. 76, with verbal changes to conform to the form adopted in other sections of the proposed act.

Sections 20 and 22 replace Section 8 of the Code of 1860. They extend Section 8 to cover the resistance to or assault on any public officer in the discharge or the attempt to discharge any duty of his office. The penalty in Section 20 is increased from $100 to $500 and in Section 22 is increased to two years and $1000.

Section 21 is new. It provides for the obstructing of officers in cases not provided for by Sections 20 and 22; similar provisions exist in other states.

Section 23 replaces Section 9 of the Code of 1860 and extends the provisions of said section to cover any kind of judicial proceedings. The penalty is increased to $500.

Section 24 replaces Section 10 of the Code of 1860. It changes the existing law by extending the crime of compounding to all crimes instead of the ones enumerated in Section 10 of the Code.

Section 25 replaces Section 11 of the Code of 1860. It extends the scope of Section 22 to cases of dissuading witnesses in any kind of case. It omits the attempt to dissuade witness as attempt is provided for by a general section on attempts.

Section 26 is new. It is intended to provide against a not uncommon method of obstructing public justice.

Section 27 replaces Section 1, Act of 1870, February 24, P. L. 34, and Section 3, Act 1893, May 18, P. L. 102. It is broader than these acts and includes the secreting of a witness in any case. The penalties in existing acts covering the same subject-matter are different.

Section 28 replaces Section 12 and the first part of Section 17 of the Code of 1860. It extends Section 12 to cover cases of soliciting as well as receiving extortionate fees and agreements for such fees. It also extends the provisions of existing law to cover officers of municipalities. The penalty as to the fine is reduced from $1000 to $500 and disqualification to hold office is added.

Section 29 with a new section on attempt replaces Section 13 of the Code of 1860. It broadens said section to include judges, justices, magistrates, masters, arbitrators, referees, commissioners, appraisers, assessors and others, and includes matters about to be brought and persons drawn and summoned as jurors.

Section 30 replaces part of Section 48 of the Code of 1860. It extends Section 48, to cover bribes to witnesses, magistrates, ~~councilmen~~, commissioners, masters and others. It simplifies Section 48 by using the word "bribe" which is defined once for all in the definitions so as to make uniform all sections on bribery. The penalty is increased to five years' imprisonment and $2000 fine.

Section 31 replaces that part of Section 48 of the Code of 1860, not replaced by Section 30 of the proposed act, and extends the provisions of the Code of 1860 to include magistrates, commissioners, masters and others mentioned. The penalty is increased to seven years and $3000.

Section 32 is a re-enactment with verbal changes of Section 49 of the Code of 1860.

Section 33 replaces part of Section 51 of the Act of 1834, April 15, P. L. 537; Section 1, Act 1840, April 3, P. L. 714; Section 2, Act 1849, January 26, P. L. 21; Section 14, Code of 1860; part of Section 3, Act 1864, April 19, P. L. 480; Section 3, Act 1866, March 30, P. L. 89; Section 3, Act 1889, June 1, P. L. 420; part of Section 4, Act 1891, June 9, P. L. 257; Section 4, Act 1917, June 28, P. L. 645; Section 3, Act 1919, June 30, P. L. 542; so much of Section 3, Act 1919, June 30, P. L. 678 as provides fine and imprisonment and part of Section 11, Act 1919, June 30, P. L. 678. It simplifies Section 14 of the Code of 1860 and provides specifically that certain false statements shall be perjury. It omits subornation of perjury since subornation makes the offender an assessor or a principal in the second degree. The penalties in the various acts are different.

Section 34 replaces Section 15 of the Code of 1860 and the penal part of Section 15 of the Act of 1919, June 3, P. L. 366. It extends the provisions of Section 15 of the Code of 1860 to cover any record filed or deposited in a public office or with any public officer either of the Commonwealth or of any sub-division thereof and makes the penalty as to officers the forfeiture of their office and disqualification to hold office. The penalty is the same as that in the Code of 1860.

Section 35 replaces Section 3 of the Act of 1804, April 3, 4 Sm. L. 192. The changes are verbal and the penalty is increased to one year's imprisonment and a fine of $500.

Section 36 replaces Section 16 of the Code of 1860. The fine is increased from $500 to $3000.

Section 37 is new. A similar provision is found in the codes of other states.

Section 38 replaces Section 2 of the Act of 1893, May 29, P. L. 174, and Section 1 of the Act of 1897, May 5, P. L. 39. The penalties are different in these different acts.

TITLE III.—OFFENSES AGAINST THE PUBLIC PEACE.

Section 39 replaces Section 19 of the Code of 1860. It makes verbal changes in Section 19 and omits a part of Section 19 on aggravated riot. The penalty is increased from $500 to $1000.

Section 40 is new.

Section 41 replaces Section 20 of the Code of 1860. It broadens Section 20 to cover cases of destruction of all kinds of property. The penalty is reduced from 7 to 5 years and a fine of $2000 is added. The offense is also made a felony.

Section 42 replaces Sections 21 and 22 of the Code of 1860. It combines these two sections and simplifies the verbiage. The new wording of the section makes unnecessary the proviso contained in Section 22 of the Code of 1860.

Section 43 replaces Section 31 of the Code of 1860, adding parade and procession. The penalty is increased to one year imprisonment and $500 fine.

Section 44 replaces Section 1 of the Act of 1901, May 2, P. L. 132, and Section 1, Act of 1901, May 21, P. L. 286, and Act of 1913, May 19, P. L. 223.

Section 45 replaces the Act of 1903, April 15, P. L. 98. It omits the minimum penalty and the provisions for a second offense and for costs provided for in the Act of 1903.

Section 46 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1917, July 11, P. L. 817, with verbal changes. The penalty is increased from $50 to $100, and the minimum penalty is omitted.

Section 47 replaces Sections 23 and 101 of the Code of 1860, and Section 1, Act of 1876, May 8, P. L. 141. It broadens these sections to include verbal as well as written communications; and to include threats to impute disease, deformity or disgrace. It includes injury to the person as well as death. It also includes threats of injury to any property, whether such threats be made with intent to extort money or not. The penalty is the same as that provided in Section 101 of the Code of 1860.

Section 48 replaces Section 24 of the Code of 1860. The new section by requiring the publication to be malicious obviates the necessity for the proviso in the old section; it omits "writes and prints" of the old section as merely to write or print without publication should not be an offense. It extends the offense to libels which tend to injure a person in his business. The penalty is reduced from $1000 to $500.

Section 49 replaces Section 1 of the Act of 1893, June 3, P. L. 273. It omits the requirements of actual publication. The penalty is reduced from two years to one year to correspond with Section 48.

Section 50 is a re-enactment of the penal part of Section 4, Act of 1901, April 11, P. L. 74.

Section 51 replaces Section 1 of the Act of 1897, May 25, P. L. 85. The changes are verbal.

Section 52 replaces Section 1, Act of 1895, June 26, P. L. 389. It adds "Election to Nomination" and makes other verbal changes. The penalty is increased from six months to one year and from $100 to $500.

Section 53 re-enacts Section 1, Act of 1919, April 23, P. L. 171. The penalty as to the fine is reduced from $5000 to $2000.

Section 54 replaces Section 25 of the Code of 1860 with verbal changes. The penalty is increased from $500 to $1000.

Section 55 replaces Section 27 of the Code of 1860 with verbal changes. The fine is increased from $50 to $500.

Section 56 replaces Section 1, Act of 1875, March 18, P. L. 33. It makes the carrying of certain deadly weapons a misdemeanor, if concealed, without intent to injure; and the carrying of certain other weapons with intent to injure, a misdemeanor, whether concealed or not.

Section 57 is new.

TITLE IV.—OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC MORALS AND DECENCY.

Section 58 replaces Section 32, Code of 1860; Section 1, Act of 1879, June 11, P. L. 148, and Sections 1 and 2, Act of 1917, July 16, P. L. 1000; Section 2 of the last named Act and Section 33, Code of 1860, are replaced by the sections on Attempt and Solicitation. The fine is increased from $1000 to $5000.

Section 59 replaces Sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1903, March 27, P. L. 102, which repeals Section 34 of the Code of 1860. The changes are verbal, except that the proviso of the new section requires prosecution within five years and provides for a certificate of nullity and makes the offense a felony.

Section 60 re-enacts Section 3, Act of 1913, March 27, P. L. 102. It increases the fine from $500 to $1000 and makes the limitation of prosecution the same as in bigamy.

Section 61 replaces Section 36, Code of 1860. The changes are verbal only, except that the proposed section requires knowledge on the part of the accused of the non-existence of the marriage relation.

Sections 62 and 63 re-enact Sections 37 and 38 of the Code of 1860 with verbal changes.

Section 64 replaces Section 39 of the Code of 1860 with verbal changes. The penalty is increased from three years to five years and a fine of $1000 is provided for.

Sections 65, 66 and 67 replace Section 40 of the Code of 1860, Section 2, Act of 1870, March 16, P. L. 39, Sections 1 and 2, Act of 1887, May 6, P. L. 84, Sections 1 and 2, Act of 1897, May 12, P. L. 63. These new provisions embrace all the matter covered by these acts. They are a transcript of the Act of 1897, May 12, P. L. 63, with additions of matter to cover the provisions of the other acts mentioned above. These acts provide different penalties.

Section 68 is a re-enactment of Section 3, Act of 1887, May 6, P. L. 84 with changes, making it broader so as to include the provisions of Section 4 of the same act.

Section 69 re-enacts Sections 1, 2 and 3, Act of 1911, April 13, P. L. 64, with verbal changes. The fine is reduced from $1000 to $500.

Section 70 replaces Section 1, Act of 1870, March 16, P. L. 39, and Act of 1919, July 21, P. L. 1084. It extends the provisions of the Act of 1870 to include advertisements of the diseases. The proviso is new.

Section 71 replaces Section 41, Code of 1860. It broadens the said section to cover representation of marriage as well as a promise. It abolishes the age limit and adds a proviso as to subsequent marriage and lapse of time. It makes the offense a felony and increases the fine to $2000, to $1000.

Section 72 replaces Section 1, Act of 1885, May 28, P. L. 27. It broadens that section to cover not only the taking, but the receiving, employing or harboring of a female. It makes the offense a felony and increase the fine to $2000.

Section 73 re-enacts Section 42, Code of 1860. It broadens this section to embrace landlords, lessors, tenants, occupiers, and persons in control.

Section 124 re-enacts Section 2 of the Act of 1863, April 14, P. L. 389, with verbal changes.

Section 125 re-enacts the Act of 1895, June 24, P. L. 231, and Section 1 of the Act of 1895, June 24, P. L. 244, with verbal changes. It increases the penalty provided in these acts from imprisonment for sixty days and a fine of $50 to imprisonment for one year and a fine of $500.

Section 126 re-enacts Sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1891, May 26, P. L. 122, with verbal changes. It changes the penalty in the Act of 1891 from six months' imprisonment and $1000 fine to one year's imprisonment and $500 fine.

Section 127 re-enacts Section 71 of the Code of 1860, with verbal changes. It increases the fine from $300 to $500.

Section 128 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1911, May 11, P. L. 274. It reduces the offense from a felony to a misdemeanor, and reduces the penalty from five years' imprisonment and $1000 fine to one year's imprisonment and $500 fine.

Section 129 combines Section 1 of the Act of 1895, June 24, P. L. 265, and Section 3 of the Act of 1911, May 11, P. L. 274. The penalties are different in these two acts.

Section 130 combines the Act of 1901, July 10, P. L. 638, and the Act of 1905, March 16, P. L. 43. It adds snuff to the other articles mentioned in these acts, and makes the age twenty-one years in all cases. The penalties are different in these two acts.

Section 131 replaces part of Section 1 of the Act of 1881, June 10, P. L. 111, not repealed by inference by the Act of 1885, June 11, P. L. 111, which later is repealed by Section 133 of the proposed act. The proposed section omits the terms "knowingly and wilfully" used in these acts, and increases the age from sixteen years as provided in the Act of 1861 to twenty-one years.

Section 132 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1893, May 24, P. L. 131. It eliminates the minimum penalty provided by the Act of 1893, and raises the age from fourteen years as provided by that act to sixteen years.

Section 133 combines and re-enacts the Act of 1885, June 10, P. L. 111; the Act of 1901, June 19, P. L. 577; the Act of 1905, March 24, P. L. 49; Sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1911, June 1, P. L. 542, and Sections 1 to 6, inclusive of the Act of 1911, June 1, P. L. 554. It adds to the sale, manufacture, etc., the having in possession with intent to sell, and the giving away. The penalty is different in the different acts.

Section 134 re-enacts Sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1915, May 6, P. L. 260. It qualifies the "having in possession" provided by that act with the phrase "with intent to sell." The penalty is made the same as the corresponding offense in Section 133 of the proposed act.

Section 135 re-enacts Section 2 of the Act of 1885, May 28, P. L. 27, with verbal changes.

Section 136 leaves in effect existing laws governing confinement of persons of unsound mind, and provides one penalty for the violation of such laws and adds a provision against cruel treatment of such persons.

Section 137 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1905, April 18, P. L. 213. It changes the words "infant children" to "human beings." The penalty as to the fine is increased from $1000 to $2000 and the offense is made a felony.

Section 138 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1917, July 17, P. L. 1037.

Section 139 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1874, May 15, P. L. 179. It broadens the Act of 1874 by adding "trains" and "exhibits" and increases the fine from $250 to $500.

Section 140 re-enacts Section 72 of the Code of 1860 and the Act of 1901, July 10, P. L. 651. It adds radio companies to the companies mentioned in the said act and broadens said act to cover cases of altering, suppressing, adding to and unreasonably delaying the delivery of messages. It increases the penalty from six months' imprisonment to one year's imprisonment and the fine from "not less than $100" to not more than $500.

Section 141 re-enacts Section 32 of the Act of 1917, June 22, P. L. 628, with verbal changes. The fine is increased from $300 to $500.

Section 143 re-enacts Sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1895, July 2, P. L. 430, with verbal changes. The minimum penalty in the Act of 1895 is made the maximum penalty.

Section 144 re-enacts Section 73 of the Code of 1860, with verbal changes. The penalty is changed from a discretionary one to imprisonment for one year and a fine of $500.

Section 145 re-enacts Sections 1, 2 and 3 of the Act of 1901, May 2, P. L. 111, and Sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1907, May 8, P. L. 181. It broadens these acts to include any chemical compound and restricts the provisions of these acts to such distribution as enables a child to get possession of the articles. The penalty is different in the two acts.

Section 146 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1905, April 20, P. L. 226. It adds glass to the articles enumerated in the act.

Section 147 replaces Section 1 of the Act of 1878, May 23, P. L. 102, broadening that act to cover any high explosive. The penalty is increased from three month's imprisonment to one year's imprisonment.

Section 148 replaces Section 2 of the Act of 1878, May 23, P. L. 102, with verbal changes.

Section 149 replaces Section 1 of the Act of 1874, May 6, P. L. 121, with verbal changes. The penalty is increased from a minimum imprisonment of thirty days and a fine of $100 to a maximum of one year's imprisonment and $500 fine.

Section 150 re-enacts Section 2 of the Act of 1879, May 13, P. L. 60, with verbal changes.

Section 151 replaces Sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1917, May 24, P. L. 295. The minimum penalty provided for in that case is eliminated.

Section 152 re-enacts Sections 1, 2 and 3 of the Act of 1917, June 28, P. L. 646, with verbal changes. It reduces the fine provided for in that act from $100 to $50.

Section 153 replaces Section 4 of the Act of 1854, May 8, P. L. 663. It broadens said act to include cases of marrying idiots, lunatics, insane persons, persons under the age of consent and under legal impediment, and requires in all cases belief as to such condition. The penalty is increased from two months' imprisonment and $50 fine to one year's imprisonment and $500 fine.

Section 154 re-enacts the Act of 1897, June 4, P. L. 116, with verbal changes. The fine is reduced from $2000 to $500.

Section 155 re-enacts Sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1883, June 13, P. L. 96, and the Act of 1897, July 15, P. L. 275 with verbal changes. The penalties are different in the two acts.

Section 156 re-enacts the Act of 1911, June 9, P. L. 746. It broadens said act to include agents, as well as officers and employees. The penalty is increased from $300 to $500 fine and the minimum penalty is eliminated as in all other cases.

Section 157 re-enacts part of Section 1 of the Act of 1865, February 28, P. L. 238, relating to the giving of an alarm of fire, and the Act of 1895, May 22, P. L. 112. The fine is increased from $100 to $500.

Section 158 re-enacts Sections 1 and 3 of the Act of 1893, May 29, P. L. 174, with verbal changes.

Section 159 re-enacts Sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1885, April 30, P. L. 13. It broadens said act to cover the papers of ex-soldiers and officers. The fine is decreased from $500 to $100.

Section 160 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1877, March 22, P. L. 14. It broadens said section to cover combinations to maintain as well as to bring about a strike. The fine is reduced from $500 to $200 and the minimum penalty is eliminated.

Section 161 re-enacts Section 3 of the Act of 1877, March 22, P. L. 14, with verbal changes. The fine is reduced from $500 to $200 and the minimum penalty is eliminated.

Section 162 re-enacts Section 3 of the Act of 1877, March 22, P. L. 14, with verbal changes. The fine is reduced from $500 to $200 and the minimum penalty eliminated.

Section 163 re-enacts Sections 2 and 3 of the Act of 1863, May 6, P. L. 582, with verbal changes.

Section 164 provides for the illegal practice of medicine, osteopathy, dentistry and architecture. The present law is found in the Act of 1893, May 8, P. L. 94, the Act of 1907, May 7, P. L. 161, and the Act of 1919, July 12, P. L. 933. The penalties are different in the different acts.

Section 165 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1871, May 19, P. L. 271, with verbal changes. Imprisonment is increased from six months to one year.

Section 166 in its present form is new. It is a general provision to cover false statements where no formal oath is taken. Special provisions which it will embrace are found in many acts.

Section 167 re-enacts the penal provisions against the illegal transaction of insurance found in the Act of 1870, February 4, P. L. 14; Act of 1876, May 1, P. L. 53; Act of 1883, June 5, P. L. 80; Act of 1899, May 8, P. L. 258, and Act of 1907, June 7, P. L. 434. The penalties are different in the different acts.

Section 168 replaces Sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1893, May 10, P. L. 38. The penalty, which is different in the two sections of the said act, is made uniform.

Section 169 re-enacts Section 4 of the Act of 1919, July 17, P. L. 1003, with verbal changes.

TITLE VI.—OFFENSES AGAINST THE PERSON.

Section 172 re-enacts Section 74 of the Code of 1860, broadening said section to cover death by train wrecking as provided for in the Act of 1913, May 9, P. L. 186.

Section 173 re-enacts Section 75 of the Code of 1860, changing death by hanging to death by electrocution as provided for in Section 1, Act of 1913, June 19, P. L. 528. It provides that a record of the trial be sent to the Board of Pardons.

Section 174 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1893, April 14, P. L. 17, with verbal changes. A fine is added.

Section 175 re-enacts Section 77, Code of 1860, with verbal changes.

Section 176 re-enacts Section 78 of the Code of 1860. It eliminates the provision for security. It makes the crime a felony instead of a misdemeanor, and increases the fine from $1000 to $6000.

Section 177 re-enacts Section 79 of the Code of 1860. It eliminates the provision as to waiving the felony and as to security.

Section 178 replaces so much of Sections 80, 84 and 98 of the Code of 1860 as relates to batteries. Assaults with intent provided for in these sections are covered by the section on attempt in the proposed act. The penalty as to imprisonment is the same as in Section 80 of the Code of 1860. The fine is increased from $1000 to $2000.

Section 179 replaces part of Sections 80 and 98 of the Code of 1860, not replaced by Section 178 of the proposed act and a section of the proposed act on attempt; and Section 97 of the Code of 1860; Section 28, Act of 1818, January 29, 7 Sm. L., and part of Section 1, Act of 1865, March 25, P. L. 30; Section 9 of the Act of 1870, April 6, P. L. 53; and standardizes the penalties which are different in the different acts.

Section 180 re-enacts Section 86 of the Code of 1860, part of Section 1 of the Act of 1876, May 8, P. L. 139, and Section 1 of the Act of 1901, April 24, P. L. 102, with verbal changes. The penalties are different in the different acts.

Section 181 is a re-enactment of the common law on the crime of abortion, making it a felony instead of a misdemeanor. It also includes provisions of Section 88 of the Code of 1860. The penalty is the same as provided for in Section 87 of the Code of 1860 as to imprisonment, but increases the fine from $500 to $3000.

Section 182 provides for the case of attempt to procure miscarriage of a woman who is not pregnant, but believed to be so.

Section 185 re-enacts and combines Section 90 of the Code of 1860 and Sections 1 and 3 of the Act of 1907, May 29, P. L. 318. The penalty is the same as provided in the Act of 1907.

Section 186 re-enacts the Act of 1919, July 12, P. L. 939, and adds a provision against a child for non-support of its parent as provided for in the Act of 1917, May 24, P. L. 268. The fine is increased from $100 to $500.

Section 187 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1917, July 11, P. L. 774. The provision as to imprisonment in the said act is increased from six months to one year.

Section 188 replaces Section 91 of the Code of 1860 and the Act of 1887, May 19, P. L. 128. It broadens the acts to cover unlawful carnal knowledge of an idiot, imbecile or insane person and unlawful intercourse by personating a husband. It increases the fine from $1000 to $7000.

Section 189 combines Section 1 of the Act of 1875, February 25, P. L. 4, and the Act of 1901, April 4, P. L. 65. It changes Section 2 of the latter act so as to make an aider and abettor punishable as a principal in the first degree as in all other cases. It also punishes as a principal a person who assists by harboring or detaining. The penalty is changed by adding a fine on conviction of the principal in the crime and increasing the fine as to the aider.

Section 190 is new. It provides for all cases of kidnapping not covered by Section 189 of the proposed act.

Section 191 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1876, May 8, P. L. 146, with verbal changes. The fine is reduced from $1000 to $500.

Section 192 re-enacts the Act of 1917, May 24, P. L. 303.

TITLE VII.—OFFENSES AGAINST PERSONAL PROPERTY AND FRAUDULENT DEALING THEREWITH.

Section 193 re-enacts Section 102 of the Code of 1860 as to robbery only; the larceny from the person is covered by Section 196 of the proposed act; assault with intent to rob is provided for by the section on attempt in the proposed act. The penalty as to imprisonment is increased from five to ten years and as to fine is increased from $1000 to $5000.

Section 194 re-enacts the Act of 1919, April 18, P. L. 61, as to robbery with a weapon and by two or more persons and when accompanied by a battery. Attempts to so commit are provided for by the section on attempt in the proposed act.

Section 195 combines Section 1 of the Act of 1897, May 27, P. L. 111; Act of 1911, June 9, P. L. 833, and Act of 1913, May 19, P. L. 222, except as they provide for accessories and attempt. These are covered by the sections on accessories and attempt in the proposed act. The penalty is made the same as that in the Act of 1913.

Section 196 re-enacts part of Section 102 of the Code of 1860. The penalty is increased from five years' imprisonment and $1000 fine to eight years' imprisonment and $4000 fine.

Section 197, taken in connection with the section of the proposed act on stealing and the definition of property and the section on attempt replaces the following acts: Section 7 of the Act of 1820, March 28, 7 Sm. L. 308, as to embezzlement; part of Section 10 of the Act of 1841, May 28, P. L. 400; Section 20 of the Act of 1850, April 16, P. L. 447; Section 103 of the Code of 1860; Section 104 of the Code of 1860; Section 106 of the Code of 1860; Section 107 of the Code of 1860; Section 108 of the Code of 1860; part of Section 111 of the Code of 1860; Section 112 of the Code of 1860; Section 113 of the Code of 1860; Section 114 of the Code of 1860; part of Section 1 of the Act of 1861, May 1, P. L. 465; part of Section 1 of the Act of 1861, May 1, P. L. 503; part of Section 36 of the Act of 1861, May 1, P. L. 503; Section 1 of the Act of 1862, April 11, P. L. 425; Section 1 of the Act of 1876, May 8, P. L. 136; Section 1 of the Act of 1876, May 8, P. L. 142; Section 19 of the Act of 1876, May 13, P. L. 161; Section 1 of the Act of 1878, June 12, P. L. 196; Section 1 of the Act of 1878, June 17, P. L. 212; Section 1 of the Act of 1883, June 5, P. L. 78; part of Section 9 of the Act of 1883, April 19, P. L. 9; part of Section 1 of the Act of 1885, June 3, P. L. 60; part of Section 1 of the Act of 1885, June 3, P. L. 72; Section 53 of the Act of 1887, April 13, P. L. 23; Section 4 of the Act of 1887, May 24, P. L. 182; Section 19 of the Act of 1887, June 7, P. L. 365, except the part on attempt; Section 6 of the Act of 1889, May 13, P. L. 194; part of Section 1 of the Act of 1909, April 23, P. L. 169; Act of 1917, May 18, P. L. 241; part of Section 1 of the Act of 1917, June, 28, P. L. 657; part of Section 1 of the Act of 1919, June 20, P. L. 542.

Section 198 re-enacts Section 65 of the Code of 1860. It limits the provision on failure to deliver possession of property in that section by requiring the intent to steal in such case. The penalty of Section 65 is increased from five years' imprisonment and a fine equal to the amount embezzled to ten years' imprisonment and a fine of $5000.

Section 314 re-enacts Section 1 of the Act of 1887, May 23, P. L. 166, omitting the part which amounts to larceny. It reduces the penalty from two years' imprisonment and $1000 fine to one year's imprisonment and $500 fine.

Section 315 re-enacts and extends Section 174 of the Code of 1860. It increases the fine from $100 to $500.

Section 316 re-enacts and extends Section 175 of the Code of 1860. The fine is reduced from $500 to $300, and six months imprisonment is added.

Section 317 re-enacts Section 3 of the Act of 1903, April 3, P. L. 134. The penalty is changed from five years' imprisonment and $1000 fine to two years' imprisonment and $1000 fine. The minimum penalty has, as in all other cases, been omitted.

Section 318 is new.

Section 319 re-enacts the Act of 1919, July 21, P. L. 1063, with verbal changes.

TITLE X.—GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Section 320 re-enacts Section 178 of the Code of 1860, with verbal changes.

Section 321 is new.

Section 322 is new.

Section 323 re-enacts Section 179 of the Code of 1860, with verbal changes.

Section 324 re-enacts Section 180 of the Code of 1860 and Section 1 of the Act of 1893, June 3, P. L. 286, with verbal changes. The penalty for the accessory after the fact is increased from $500 to $1000 fine.

Section 325 is new.

Section 326 is new.

Section 327 is new.

Section 328 replaces Section 181 of the Code of 1860, and extends it to all crimes.

Section 329 re-enacts Section 182 of the Code of 1860, with verbal changes.

Section 330 is new.

Section 331 (2) re-enacts and extends Section 184 of the Code of 1860.

We have now completed the work committed to our charge. There is still the necessity remaining for a revision and codification of the laws or criminal practice and procedure. This would complement our work and render it more useful. We therefore recommend to the Legislature the creation of a commission of five to do this work.

Respectfully submitted,

EDWIN M. ABBOTT,
Chairman,

CLARENCE D. COUGHLIN,
LEX N. MITCHELL,
GEORGE C. BRADSHAW,
WILLIAM E. MIKELL,

Draftsman and Secretary.

TITLE I.—OFFENSES AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT OF THE COMMONWEALTH.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by authority of the same, That any person who levies war against the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or adheres to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort within the State or elsewhere, is guilty of treason, and if convicted thereof on confession in open court, or on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act of the treason of which he is indicted, shall be imprisoned for a term of years, not exceeding the life of offender, or fined not exceeding ten thousand dollars, or both.

Section 2. Any person having knowledge of the commission of any treason against the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, who conceals, and does not, as soon as may be, disclose and make known the same to the Governor or Attorney General of the Commonwealth, or to some one of the judges, justices or district attorneys thereof, is guilty of misprison of treason, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding six years, or fined not exceeding three thousand dollars, or both.

Section 3. Any person who conspires to overthrow, put down or destroy by force the Government of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, or to levy war against it, or to oppose by force the authority thereof, of by force to prevent, hinder or delay the execution of any law of this Commonwealth, or by force to take or possess any property of this Commonwealth contrary to the authority thereof, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding twenty years, or fined not exceeding ten thousand dollars or both.

Section 4. Any person who makes any writing, publication, printing, cut, cartoon, or utterance, or engages in any combination with any other person, which tends to make or cause to be made any outbreak or demonstration of violence against this State or against the United States; or, to encourage any person or persons to take any measures or engage in any conduct with a view of overthrowing or destroying or attempting to overthrow or destroy, by any force or show or threat of force, the Government of this State or of the United States; or, to incite or encourage any person or persons to commit any overt act with a view to bringing the Government of this State or of the United States into hatred or contempt; and any person who makes any writing, publication, printing, cut, cartoon, utterance which advocates or teaches the duty, necessity, or propriety of engaging in crime, violence, or any form of terrorism, as a means of accomplishing political reform or change in Government; or who sells, gives or distributes any print, publication, book, paper, document, or written matter in any form, which advocates or furthers any of the things above provided against; or who organizes or becomes a member of an assembly, society or group which advocates or furthers any of the things above provided against is guilty of sedition, a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding twenty years, or fined not exceeding ten thousand dollars, or both.

Section 5. Any person who publicly mutilates, defaces, defiles, tramples upon, or by word or act casts contempt upon any flag, standard, color, ensign or shield of the United States of America, or of this Commonwealth, or authorized by any law of the United States of America or of this Commonwealth, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars or both.

Section 6. Any person who replaces any word, figure, mark, picture, design, drawing or advertisement of any nature upon any flag, standard, color, ensign or shield of the United States of America or of this Commonwealth, or authorized by any law of the United States of America or of this Commonwealth; or exposes to public view any such flag, standard, color, ensign, or shield upon which is printed, painted or otherwise placed, or to which is attached, appended, affixed or annexed any such word, figure, mark, picture, design, drawing or advertisement; or exposes to public view, manufactures, sells, exposes for sale, gives or has in possession for sale, for gift or for use for any purpose, any substance, being an article of merchandise or receptacle, or thing for holding or carrying merchandise, upon or to which is printed, painted, attached or otherwise placed any such flag, standard, color, ensign or shield, in order to call attention to, decorate, mark or distinguish such substance or receptacle, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding six months, or fined not exceeding two hundred dollars, or both: Provided, That the provisions of sections five and six of this act shall not apply to any act permitted by the statutes of the United States of America or of this Commonwealth, or by the United States Army and Navy Regulations, nor shall they apply to any printed or written document or production, stationary, ornament, picture, badge or jewelry whereon shall be depicted said flag, standard, color, ensign or shield disconnected from any advertisement for the purpose of sale, barter or trade.

Section 7. Any person who offers or gives a bribe to any public officer or employee of this Commonwealth, or of any sub-division thereof, the offer to bribe whom or the bribery of whom not specifically provided for in this act; or who threatens or intimidates any such officer or employee with intent to influence his action as such officer or employee, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both: Provided, That any open address upon or explanation of any measure or question before either house of the General Assembly, or any committee or member thereof, or before any municipal council, or board, or committee thereof, or before any public officer, shall not be deemed an offense within the meaning of this section.

Section 8. Any public officer or employee of this Commonwealth, or of any sub-division thereof, by whom the solicitation of, consent to receive, or acceptance of a bribe is not otherwise specifically provided against in this act, who solicits, consents to receive or accepts a bribe, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both; and forfeits his office, and is forever disqualified to hold any office of trust, honor or profit under the constitution or laws of this Commonwealth.

Section 9. Section 10. Any elector, authorized to vote at any public election, who solicits, consents to receive, or accept a bribe to influence his vote at such election, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 11. Any person who, being duly summoned to attend as a witness before either branch of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth, or any committee thereof authorized to summon witnesses, refuses or neglects without lawful excuse to attend or to testify pursuant to such summons, or to produce upon reasonable notice, any material and proper book, paper or document in his possession, custody or control, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

TITLE II.—OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC JUSTICE AND ADMINISTRATION.

Section 12. Any person who conspires to charge or indict any person or for any offense; or procures or attempts to procure the arrest or indictment of any person for any offense, not believing such person to be guilty thereof, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both.

Section 13. Any prisoner who breaks prison, or escapes from prison or from lawful custody, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 14. Any person who sells, gives or furnishes to any convict any weapon or other implement which may be used to injure any person or to aid a convict to escape; or who brings or sends any such weapon into any prison or building appurtenant thereto, or on any land employed for the use or benefit of prisoners, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both.

Section 15. Any sheriff, coroner, warden, jailer, guard, keeper, constable, or other person having in his lawful custody any person lawfully arrested for or convicted of any offense, who voluntarily permits such person to escape and go at large, or connives at or assists such escape, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both, and forfeits his office; and is forever disqualified to hold any office or place of trust, honor or profit under the constitution or laws of this Commonwealth.

Section 16. Any sheriff, coroner, warden, jailer, guard, keeper, constable, or other person who, by failing to perform any legal duty, permits a person in his lawful custody to escape therefrom, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 17. Any sheriff, coroner, warden, jailer, keeper, constable or other person who, in violation of a duty imposed upon him by law, wilfully refuses, omits or delays to execute any lawful process directed to him, requiring the apprehension or confinement of any person charged with or convicted of a criminal offense, whereby such person shall escape, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding two years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both.

Section 18. Any public officer or employee of this Commonwealth upon whom any duty is or shall be enjoined by law, who wilfully neglects or refuses to perform such duty, or who wilfully disobeys any provision of law regulating his official conduct, where no special provision shall have been made for such neglect or refusal, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 19. Upon arrest of any person, charged with an offense, it shall be the duty of the sheriff, coroner, constable, police, or other official making the arrest, or having charge of the prisoner, upon application made therefor either by counsel or a citizen, to issue without cost to the applicant, a certificate stating the name of the prisoner, and the charge upon which he has been arrested, and imprisoned, and the amount of bail demanded, if the same has been fixed so that the bail may be entered as authorized by law. Any sheriff, coroner, constable, police or other official, who made such arrest or has such prisoner in charge, or any mayor or director of public safety of any municipal corporation of this Commonwealth, or subordinate thereof, by whose order or direction said prisoner is held, who fails, omits, neglects or refuses to issue such certificate immediately upon demand thereof, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 20. Any person who forcibly resists, obstructs or opposes any public officer in the discharge of or the attempt to discharge any duty of his office; or who forcibly resists, obstructs or opposes any person duly authorized in serving or executing or attempting to serve or execute any legal process; or who being commanded to aid any public officer in executing any legal process, or in the preservation of the peace, or in lawfully arresting any person, or in retaking any person who has escaped or is attempting to escape from legal custody, refuses so to do, such offense not being otherwise provided against in this act, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 21. Any person who in any case not otherwise specifically provided against in this act, wilfully obstructs, delays or resists any public officer in discharging or attempting to discharge a duty of his office, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 22. Any person who assaults or strikes any public officer while such officer is engaged in the lawful discharge of or the attempt to lawfully discharge any duty of his office; or who assaults or strikes any person engaged in lawfully serving or executing or lawfully attempting to serve or execute any legal process, or in making any lawful arrest or capture; or who rescues another in legal custody, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding two years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both.

Section 23. Any person who vexes others with unjust or groundless judicial proceedings, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 24. Any person who takes any property or promise thereof upon any agreement or understanding to compound or conceal any offense, or to abstain from, discontinue or delay a prosecution therefor, or to withhold any evidence thereof, except in a case where such agreement is allowed by law, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding three years, and fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both.

Section 25. Any person who wilfully prevents, hinders or dissuades any person who has been lawfully summoned as a witness in any trial, hearing or other proceeding before any court or officer authorized by law to hear evidence or take testimony, from attending or testifying pursuant to the summons, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 26. Any person who, with intent to hinder, delay or obstruct the ends of justice, induces another who has knowledge of any fact tending to show the guilt or innocence of any person suspected of or charged with an offense, to leave the Commonwealth or secrete himself so that he cannot be produced as a witness at any legal examination into such offense, or at any legal examination or trial of the person suspected of or charged with such offense, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 27. Any person having been lawfully summoned as a witness in any trial, hearing or other proceeding before any court, officer, or other person authorized by law to hear evidence or take testimony, who with intent to hinder, delay or obstruct the ends of justice, leaves this Commonwealth or absents himself therefrom or secretes himself and refuses to appear or testify in pursuance of such summons, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 28. Any officer of this Commonwealth, or of any sub-division thereof, who fraudulently asks or receives or agrees to receive a fee or other compensation for his official service, other than such as is allowed by law, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both, and forfeits his office; and shall be forever disqualified from holding any office of trust, honor or profit under the constitution or laws of this Commonwealth.

Section 29. Any person who wilfully and unlawfully influences a juror, or one drawn or summoned as a juror, or a judge, justice, magistrate, master, examiner, referee, arbitrator, commissioner, appraiser, assessor, or other person authorized by law to hear or determine any matter, in respect to his verdict, report, judgment, award or decision in any matter or cause pending or about to be brought before him, such offense not being within the purview of section 30 of this act, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 30. Any person who offers or gives a bribe to any juror, or one drawn or summoned as a juror, any witness, judge, justice, magistrate, master, examiner, referee, arbitrator, commissioner, appraiser, assessor, or other person authorized by law to hear or determine any matter, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both.

Section 31. Any juror, or person drawn or summoned as a juror, any witness, judge, justice, magistrate, master, examiner, referee, arbitrator, commissioner, appraiser, assessor, or other person authorized by law to hear or determine any matter, who solicits or receives or agrees to receive a bribe, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding seven years, or fined not exceeding three thousand dollars, or both; and forfeits his office, and is forever disqualified to hold any office of trust, honor or profit under the Constitution or laws of this Commonwealth.

Section 32. No witness shall be excused from testifying in any criminal proceeding, or in any investigation or inquiry before either branch of the General Assembly, or any Committee thereof, touching his knowledge of the crimes provided for in sections seven, eight, twenty-nine, thirty and thirty-one of this act, under any pretense or allegation whatsoever; but the evidence so given or the facts divulged by him shall not be used against him in any prosecution under this act: Provided, that the accused shall not be convicted on the testimony of an accomplice unless the same be corroborated by other evidence or the circumstances of the case.

Section 33. Any person who, having taken an oath or affirmation, legally administered, before any officer, tribunal, body or person authorized by law to require or administer such oath or affirmation, wilfully swears or affirms falsely in a matter relative to which such oath or affirmation was taken, is guilty of perjury, a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding seven years, or fined not exceeding three thousand dollars, or both. On an indictment under this section it shall be no defense that the false statement was not material to the issue; or that the oath was administered in an irregular manner; or that the defendant was not a competent witness or that his testimony was not competent; or that his testimony was true, if he believed it to be false. An unqualified statement of that which the defendant did not know to be true is equivalent to a statement of that which he knew to be false.

Section 34. Any person who wilfully makes a false entry in, falsifies, erases, alters, secretes, withdraws, avoids, carries away, destroys or defaces any record filed or deposited by authority of law in a public office or with any public officer of this Commonwealth or any sub-division thereof unless authorized thereto by law, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding two years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both; and if such person be an officer of the Commonwealth or any sub-division thereof he shall, in addition to the penalty above prescribed, forfeit his office, and be forever disqualified to hold any office of trust, honor or profit under the Constitution or laws of this Commonwealth.

Section 35. Any person who wilfully detains from any person duly commissioned to any office or appointment in this Commonwealth, or any sub-division thereof, any seal, record, book, paper or other property appertaining or belonging to such office, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 36. Any person who fraudulently acknowledges any deed, recognizance or judgment in the name of any other person not privy thereto, or consenting to the same, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding seven years, or fined not exceeding three thousand dollars, or both.

Section 37. Any person who knowingly offers any false or forged instrument to be acknowledged, filed, registered or recorded in any public office, which instrument, if genuine, might be acknowledged, filed, registered or recorded by virtue of any law of this Commonwealth or of the United States, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding seven years, or fined not exceeding three thousand dollars, or both.

Section 38. Any person who falsely represents himself to be a public officer; or who not being a public officer assumes to act as one, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

TITLE III.—OFFENSES AGAINST THE PUBLIC PEACE.

Section 39. Any person who participates in a riot, rout, unlawful assembly, or affray, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding three years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both.

Section 40. Any person who participates in any riot, rout, or unlawful assembly, whose purpose, or the purpose of which, is to resist the enforcement of a law of this Commonwealth or of the United States, or to obstruct any public officer of this Commonwealth or of the United States in the performance of his duty; and any person who being disguised or being armed with a dangerous weapon, participates in any riot, rout, or unlawful assembly, is guilty of a felony, and shall, such offense not being within the purview of section four of this act, be imprisoned not exceeding ten years, or fined not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both.

Section 41. Any person who, while participating in any riot, rout or unlawful assembly, demolishes, destroys, pulls down or injures any property, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both.

Section 42. Any person who through force, threats or menaces enters upon or into any building, land or tenements; or who, after entering peaceably, detains possession from or turns out by force or threats or menacing conduct the party in possession is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 43. Any person who maliciously disturbs any lawful assembly, meeting, parade or procession, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 44. Any person who wilfully makes any loud, boisterous and unseemly noise, or uses obscene, profane or blasphemous language, to the annoyance or disturbance of the public, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding ten dollars, and pay the costs of prosecution, and in default in the payment of such fine and costs be imprisoned not exceeding thirty days.

Section 45. Any person who discharges on any street, alley, court, park or public square any implement which impels with force a metal pellet, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding thirty days, or fined not exceeding fifty dollars, or both.

Section 46. Any person who discharges any cannon, gun, revolver or other explosive device at any serenade of any wedding, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding two months, or fined not exceeding one hundred dollars, or both.

Section 47. Any person who by a verbal, or by a written communication knowing the contents thereof, accuses or threatens to accuse either the person to whom such communication is made, or any other person of any offense; or threatens to expose or impute to any person any disease, deformity or disgrace; or threatens to kidnap or to imprison unlawfully any person, or to injure unlawfully any person or property, with intent in any of the said cases to extort any property from any person, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding ten years, or fined not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both.

Section 48. Any person who maliciously publishes or exhibits any writing, picture, effigy, sign or any other publication tending either to blacken the memory of one who is dead or the reputation of one who is alive, thereby exposing him to hatred, contempt or ridicule, or which tends to injure any person, corporation or association of persons, in his or their business or occupation, is guilty of libel, a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 49. Any person who wilfully makes, delivers or transmits for publication to any manager, editor, publisher, reporter or other employee of a publisher of any newspaper, magazine, publication, periodical or serial, any statement concerning any person, which if published therein would be a libel, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 50. No person shall be indicted in more than one county in the Commonwealth for the publication, exhibition, making delivery or transmission of the same libel upon the same person.

Section 51. Any person who without appending his proper signature thereto sends to another any libellous, defamatory, scurrilous or opprobrious writing, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 52. Any person who publishes or exhibits any writing which is designed or tends to injure or defeat any candidate for nomination or election to public office by reflecting upon his personal character or political actions, unless the same be published in a publication avowedly responsible therefor, or unless there appears upon such writing, in a conspicuous place, either the names of the chairman and secretary or the names of two officers of the organization issuing the same, or the name of some duly registered elector with description of his election district, as responsible therefore, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both; and if the statements in such writing be untrue the offender shall be guilty of libel.

Section 53. Any person who makes, utters, circulates, or transmits to another any statement untrue in fact derogatory to the financial condition of any bank, banking house, banking company, trust company, surety company, guarantee company, title insurance company or other financial institution in this Commonwealth, with intent to injure any such financial institution, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both.

Section 54. Any person who challenges another to an encounter with deadly weapons; and any person who being so challenged accepts such challenge, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding three years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both.

Section 55. Any person who knows of any challenge to an encounter with deadly weapons, given or received; or who is a witness to the fact of such challenge, duel or fighting, not being a second thereat, or a party criminal therein, and conceals the same and does not inform an officer of the law thereof, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 56. Any person who carries any slungshot, metal knuckles, handy-billy, sand bag, sand club, dagger, dirk-knife, or stiletto, concealed about his person; or who with intent to use the same unlawfully against another, carries any firearms, knife, razor or other deadly weapon, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both; and the jury trying the case may infer such intent from the fact that the defendant carried such weapon.

Section 57. Any person who without authority of law carries a bomb or who, with intent to use the same unlawfully against the person or property of another, carries or possesses any explosive substance, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding two years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both.

TITLE IV.—OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC MORALS AND DECENCY.

Section 58. Any person who carnally knows in any manner any animal or bird, or carnally knows any male or female person by the anus or by or with the mouth or tongue, or voluntarily submits to such carnal knowledge, is guilty of sodomy, a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding ten years, or fined not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both; any sexual penetration consummates the offense of sodomy as in this act defined.

Section 59. Any person who, having a husband or wife living, participates as principal in a form of marriage with another person which form of marriage would constitute a valid marriage but for the fact that the offender, or the offender and the other party has a husband or wife living whether the parties to the second form of marriage co-habit together or not is guilty of bigamy, a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding two years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both: Provided, That if any husband or wife, upon any rumor, in appearance well founded, and believed to be true by such husband or wife of the death of the other, (when such other has been absent for two years) shall marry again, he or she shall not be liable to the penalty imposed by this section:

Provided further, That the prosecution be instituted within five years from the date of the second form of marriage; Provided also, That upon a conviction under this section the second marriage shall be declared null and void, and a certificate declaring said marriage null and void shall be given to the injured party by the trial judge.

Section 60. Any person who, being unmarried, knowingly participates as a principal in a form of marriage with a married person, which form of marriage would constitute a valid marriage but for the fact that the said other person has a husband or wife living, whether the parties to the second form of marriage co-habit together or not, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding two years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both: Provided; That the prosecution be instituted within five year from the date of the second marriage.

Section 61. Any married man who carnally knows in a natural manner any woman not his lawful wife, and any married woman who carnally knows in a natural manner any man not her lawful husband, knowing that the marriage relation does not exist between them, is guilty of adultery, a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding to pay a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or both.

Section 62. Any person who commits fornication shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars to the guardians, directors or overseers of the poor of the city, county or township where the offence was committed, for the use of the poor of such city, county or township; and any single or unmarried woman having a child born of her body, the same shall be sufficient to convict such single or unmarried woman of fornication, and the man by such woman charged to be the father of such bastard child, shall be the reputed father, and she persisting in the said charge, in the time of her extremity of labor or afterwards in open court upon the trial of such person so charged, the same shall be given in evidence in order to convict such person of fornication; and such person being thereof convicted, shall be sentenced, in addition to the fine aforesaid, to pay the expenses incurred at the birth of such child, and to give security, by one or more sureties, and in such sum as the court shall direct to the guardians, directors or overseers of the poor of the city, county or township where such child was born to perform such order for the maintenance of the said child, as the court before which such conviction is had shall direct and appoint.

Section 63. If a bastard child is begotten out of the State, and born within the State, or begotten within one of the counties of this State, and born in another, in the latter case the prosecution of the reputed father shall be in the county where the bastard child shall be born, and the like sentence shall be passed, as if the bastard child had been begotten within the same county and in the former case, viz: of a bastard begotten without the State and born within it, the like sentence shall be passed, except in the imposition of a fine, which part of the sentence shall be omitted.

Section 64. Any man who marries or carnally knows any of the following persons when the same is related to him by consanguinity, viz.: his mother, his aunt, his sister, his daughter, the daughter of his son or daughter; or any of the following persons when the same is related to him by affinity, viz.: his father's wife, his son's wife, his son's daughter, his wife's daughter, or the daughter of his wife's son or daughter, knowing at the time of such relationship; and any woman who marries or carnally knows any of the following persons when the same is related to her by consanguinity, viz.: her father, her uncle, her brother, her son, the son of her son or daughter; or any of the following persons when the same is related to her by affinity, viz.: her mother's husband, her daughter's husband, her husband's son or the son of her husband's son or daughter, knowing at the time of such relationship, is guilty of incest, a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars or both; and any such marriage is hereby declared void.

Section 65. Any person who sells, lends, gives away or shows, or offers to sell, lend, give away or show, or has in his possession with intent to sell, lend, give away or show, or advertisers in any manner any obscene, lewd, lascivious, filthy, indecent or disgusting book, magazine, pamphlet, newspaper, storypaper, paper, writing, picture, drawing, post-card, photograph, figure or image, or any written or printed matter of an indecent character, or any article or instrument of indecent or immoral use, or purporting to be for indecent or immoral use; or who designs, copies, draws, photographs, prints, utters, publishes or in any manner manufactures or prepares any such book, picture, drawing, post-card, magazine, pamphlet, newspaper, storypaper, paper, writing, figure, image, matter, article, or thing; or who writes, prints, publishes or utters, or causes to be written printed, published or uttered, any advertisement or notice of any kind giving information, or gives information orally, directed or indirectly or stating or purporting to do so where, how, of whom or by what means any, or what purports to be any obscene, lewd, lascivious, filthy, disgusting or indecent book, picture, paper, writing, figure, image, matter, article or thing named in this section can be seen, purchased, obtained or had; or who prints, utters, publishes, sells, lends, gives away or shows, or has in his possession, with intent to lend, sell, give away or show any book, pamphlet, magazine, post-card, newspaper or other printed paper devoted to the publication of and principally made up of criminal news, police reports, or accounts of criminal deeds, or pictures or stories of deeds of bloodshed, lust or crime, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 66. Any person who sells, lends, gives away, or in any manner exhibits or offers to sell, lend or give away, or has in his possession with intent to sell, lend or give away, or advertise for sale, loan or distribution, any instrument or article, or any recipe, drug or medicine for the prevention of conception, or for causing unlawful abortion, or purporting to be for the prevention of conception, or for causing unlawful abortion, or advertises or holds out representations that it can be so used or applied, or any such description as will be calculated to lead another to so use or apply any such article, recipe, drug, medicine, or instrument; or who writes or prints a card, circular, pamphlet, advertisement or notice of any kind, or gives information orally stating when, where, how, of whom or by what means such an instrument, article, recipe, drug or medicine can be purchased or obtained; or who manufactures any such instrument, article, drug or medicine, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both. Provided, That nothing in this section shall apply to teaching in regular chartered medical schools, or the publication of standard medical books, or to sales made to licensed medical practitioners.

Section 67. A magistrate having jurisdiction to issue warrants in criminal cases, upon complaint that any person within his jurisdiction is offending against the provisions of Section sixty-five or sixty-six of this act, supported by oath or affirmation, must issue a warrant directed to the sheriff or to a constable, marshal or police officer within the county, directing him to search for, seize and take possession of any of the articles specified in said sections of this act in the possession of the person against whom complaint is made. The magistrate must immediately transmit every article seized by virtue of the warrant to the district attorney of the county, who must, upon the conviction of the person from whose possession the same was taken, cause it to be destroyed and the fact of such destruction to be entered upon the records of the court in which the conviction is had.

Section 68. Any person who advertises by circulars, posters, or otherwise any indecent, lewd or immoral show, play or representation; or who in a public place, or on a fence or wall, or other surface contiguous to the public street or highway, or in or on any hotel, inn, or tavern, court house, church, school, station house, depot for freight or passengers, or other building devoted or open to other or like public uses, or on the wall of any outbuilding, or other structure pertaining thereto, makes or exposes, places, displays, posts up, or exhibits any obscene, lewd, indecent, or immoral drawing, picture, writing, or print liable to be seen by others passing or coming near the same; or who knowingly permits the same to be made, exposed, placed, displayed, posted or exhibited on property owned or controlled by him, such person so offending shall, in every such case be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 69. Any owner, lessee or occupier, or person in control of any building, tent or premises, lot, park or common, who permits within said building or tent or on said premises, lot, park or common, any dramatic, theatrical, operatic or vaudeville, or other exhibition or the exhibition of any fixed or moving pictures of a lascivious, sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral character or such as tend to corrupt morals; and any person who gives or participates in any such exhibition, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 70. Any person who prints, publishes, delivers or distributes any advertisement advertising himself or another as treating or being engaged in the business or profession of treating diseases of the generative organs; or who prints, publishes, delivers or distributes any advertisement concerning a venereal disease, lost manhood.

lost vitality, impotency, sexual weakness, seminal emissions, varicocele, self-abuse, excessive sexual indulgence or a disease peculiar to females, or of any medicine, drug, nostrum or apparatus for the alleviation or cure of a venereal disease, lost manhood, lost vitality, impotency, sexual weakness, seminal emissions, varicocele, self-abuse, excessive indulgence or diseases peculiar to females, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both; Provided, That this section shall not apply to advertisements or notices issued by an incorporated hospital of this Commonwealth or by a licensed dispensary or by a municipal board or department of health or by a recognized agency of government or by a reputable medical authority in a medical journal.

Section 71. Any person who under promise of marriage or by means of a fraudulent representation that he is married to her, seduces and carnally knows any unmarried female of good repute, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding three years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both: Provided, That the promise of marriage shall not be deemed to be established unless the testimony of the female seduced is corroborated by other evidence: Provided further, That the subsequent intermarriage of the parties, or the lapse of two years after the commission of the offense before the finding of an indictment, shall be a bar to prosecution under this section.

Section 72. Any person who takes, receives, employs or harbors a female under the age of sixteen years, for the purpose of prostitution or sexual intercourse or, without the consent of her father, mother, guardian, or other person having legal custody of the person, takes or receives such female for the purpose of marriage; or who inveigles or entices such minor female into a house of ill-fame or of assignation or elsewhere, for the purpose of prostitution or sexual intercourse, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both.

Section 73. Any person who keeps or maintains a common, ill-governed and disorderly house, to the encouragement of idleness, gaming, drinking or other misbehavior, to the common nuisance and disturbance of the neighborhood or of orderly citizens; or who being the landlord, lessor, tenant, occupier or person in control of any house, knowingly permits such house or any part thereof to be let or used as such disorderly house, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 74. Any person who keeps or maintains a bawdy house, or place for the practice of fornication; or knowingly lets or demises a house or part thereof, to be so kept; or who being the landlord, tenant, occupier or person in control of any house, knowingly permits such house or any part thereof to be used as a bawdy house or place for the practice of fornication, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding two years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both.

Section 75. Any person who procures a female inmate for a house of prostitution; or who induces, persuades, encourages, inveigles or entices a female person to become a prostitute; or who by promises, threats, violence, or by any device or scheme causes, induces, persuades, encourages, takes, places, harbors, inveigles, or entices a female person to become an inmate of a house of prostitution or assignation place, or any place where prostitution is practiced, encouraged or allowed; or who by promises, threats, violence, or by any device or scheme, causes, induces, persuades, encourages, inveigles or entices an inmate of a house of prostitution or a place of assignation to remain therein as such inmate; or who by threats, violence, or by any device or scheme, by fraud or artifice, or by duress of person or goods, or by abuse of any position of confidence or authority, or having legal charge, takes, places, harbors, inveigles, entices, or procures any female person to enter any place in which prostitution is practiced, encouraged or allowed, for the purpose of prostitution; or who by force, fraud, intimidation or threats, places or leaves, or procures any other person to place or leave his wife in a house of prostitution; or who inveigles, entices or procures any female person to come into this Commonwealth or to leave this Commonwealth for the purpose of prostitution; or who takes or detains a female, with the intent to compel her by force, threats, menace, or duress to marry him or to marry any other person; or who receives or gives, or agrees to receive or give, any money or thing of value, for procuring or attempting to procure, any female person to become a prostitute or to come into this Commonwealth or to leave this Commonwealth for the purpose of prostitution is guilty of pandering, a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding ten years, or fined not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both.

Section 76. Any person who knowingly demands, accepts, receives, levies or appropriates any money or property without legal consideration, from the proceeds of the earning of any woman engaged in prostitution, is guilty of a felony and shall be imprisoned not exceeding ten years, or fined not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both. Any such acceptance, receipt, levy or appropriation of such property shall upon any proceeding or trial for violation of this section, be evidence of lack of consideration.

Section 77. Any person who attempts to detain any female person in a disorderly house or house of prostitution, because of any debt she has contracted, or is said to have contracted, while living in said house, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding ten years, or fined not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both.

Section 78. Any person who knowingly transports or obtains transportation for, by any means of conveyance, into, through, or across this Commonwealth, any female person for the purpose of prostitution, or with the intent and purpose to induce, entice or compel such female person to become a prostitute, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding ten years, or fined not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both.

Any person who commits the offense in this section provided against may be prosecuted, indicted, tried and convicted in any county in or through which he shall so transport, or attempt to transport any female person, as aforesaid: Provided, That no person shall be convicted in more than one county for the same act of transportation.

Section 79. It shall not be a defense to a prosecution for any of the acts prohibited in sections seventy-five and seventy-eight of this act, that any part of such act was committed outside of this Commonwealth: and the offense shall in such case, be deemed and alleged to have been committed, and the offender may be tried and punished, in any county in which the prostitution was intended to be practiced, or in which the offense was consummated, or in which any overt act in furtherance of the offense was committed: Provided, That no person shall be convicted in more than one county for the same act.

Section 80. Any person having authority over a minor who, for any purpose other than those specified in sections seventy-five, seventy-seven and seventy-eight of this act, knowingly takes or sends, or causes or permits such minor to be taken or sent to, or to be or remain in any house of prostitution or assignation, or other immoral place or resort or amusement, or in any place where opium or any preparation thereof is smoked, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding two years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both.

Any provision of law prohibiting the disclosure of confidential communications between husband and wife shall not apply to prosecution for offenses herein defined.

Section 81. Any male person having no apparent trade, occupation or business, or being without any means of subsistence, who stays, frequents or loiters in or about any bawdy house, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding three years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both.

Section 82. Any person who in a public place wilfully does any act of lewdness or indecency which has a tendency to debauch the morals or manners of the people, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 83. Any person who exhibits for a pecuniary consideration any insane, idiotic, imbecile or deformed person, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 84. Any person who unlawfully opens any tomb, vault, grave or mausoleum and removes therefrom the body or remains, or part thereof, of any human being; or who unlawfully removes the dead body or remains, or part thereof, of any human being from any place where the same has been deposited awaiting burial: or who unlawfully sells or buys or has in his possession with intent to sell the dead body or remains, or part thereof, of any human being, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding three years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both.

TITLE V.—OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC POLICY, ECONOMY AND HEALTH.

Section 85. A lottery is hereby declared to be a common nuisance, and any grant, bargain, sale, conveyance or transfer of any property made in pursuance of any lottery is hereby declared to be void.

Section 86. Any person who erects, sets up, opens, makes or draws any lottery, or is in any way concerned in managing, conducting or carrying on the same; or who being the owner, landlord, tenant, occupier or person in control of any building or premises, knowingly allows such building or premises, to be used for the purpose of managing, conducting or carrying on a lottery, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 87. Any person who sells or offers or exposes for sale, or barter or exchanges or gives away or advertises for sale, barter, exchange or gift, any lottery ticket or share or part thereof or any lottery policy or any writing, certificate, bill, token or other device purporting or intending to entitle, or represented as entitling the holder or bearer, or any other person, to any prize to be drawn in any lottery, or any part of such prize or any interest therein, whether such lottery be promoted, managed or drawn in this or any other State or country, and whether such lottery be lawful in the State or country in which it is drawn, or not, or who in any newspaper, magazine or periodical owned or controlled by him publishes any advertisement of any lottery ticket, share, policy, writing, certificate, bill token or device aforesaid, or of any lottery drawing or lottery scheme, or any prospectus, scheme, or other advertisement of any company, association, corporation, partnership, individual conducting, managing or controlling any lottery or acting as agent therefor, such person is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

The purchaser of such ticket, policy or device shall not be liable to any prosecution or penalty, by virtue of this or any other law of the Commonwealth, and shall in all respects be a competent witness to prove the offense. Any indictment under this section shall be deemed and adjudged good and sufficient, which describes the offense in the words of this law, although it does not set out the name or location of such lottery, nor set out in words or figures the ticket, policy or device sold, bartered or exchanged, or offered or advertised to be sold, bartered or exchanged.

Section 88. Any person who sets up, establishes or maintains any game, device or apparatus for gambling for profit, or who being the owner, landlord, lessee, tenant, occupant or person in control of any building or premises, knowingly allows to be set up, established or maintained any such game, device or apparatus in such building or on such premises, for profit, or knowingly allows any person to gamble at such game or with such device or apparatus in such building or on such premises; or leases, hires or rents such building or premises to be used for gambling at such game or with such device or apparatus or, who having knowledge, that such game, device or apparatus is being maintained, in such building or on premises, so leased, hired or rented by him, does not immediately report that fact to the proper authority, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 89. Any person who engages in gambling for a livelihood, or who being without any fixed residence, is in the habit or practice of gambling, is a common gambler, and guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 90. Any person who through solicitation, invitation or device induces another to visit any building or place kept for the use of gambling, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both; and in addition shall be civilly responsible, and liable to repay to any person induced by him to enter such gambling place, any property the latter may have lost therein.

Section 91. No witness shall be excused, under any allegation or pretense whatsoever, in any prosecution or proceeding for gambling, from giving his testimony touching the same; but no evidence given, or facts divulged by him, shall be used or employed against him, in any criminal prosecution whatever.

Section 92. If an affidavit be made and filed before any magistrate before whom complaint has been made of the commission of any of the crimes provided against in sections eighty-eight, eighty-nine and ninety of this act, setting forth that the affiant has reason to believe, and does believe, that the person charged in such complaint has upon his person or at any other place named in said affidavit, any gaming table, device or apparatus, the discovery of which might lead to establish the truth of such charge, the said magistrate shall, by his warrant, command the officer, who is authorized to arrest the person so charged, to make diligent search for such table, device or apparatus, and if found, to bring the same before such magistrate; and the officer so seizing shall deliver the same to the magistrate before whom he takes the prisoner, who shall retain possession and be responsible therefor until the discharge, commitment or letting to bail of the person so charged; after which such officer shall retain such table, device or apparatus subject to the order of the court before which such offender may be required to appear, until his discharge or conviction; and in case of the conviction of such person, the gambling table, device or apparatus shall, by the direction of the court, be destroyed; and it shall and may be lawful for any constable, sheriff or other officer of justice, with or without warrant to seize upon, secure and remove any device or machine of any kind, character or description whatsoever, used or employed for the purposes of unlawful gaming as aforesaid, and to arrest with or without warrant, any person setting up the same; and it shall be the duty of such sheriff, constable or other officer, to make return in writing to the next court of quarter sessions of the proper county, setting forth the nature and description of the device or machine so seized, and the time, place and circumstance under which such seizure was made, and the said court upon hearing the parties, if they should appear, if satisfied that such device or machine was employed and used for the purpose of unlawful gaming as aforesaid, shall adjudge the same forfeited, and order it to be publicly destroyed, and at the same time order reasonable costs and charges to the seizing officer to be paid by the owner or possessor of such device or machine, or in case of his default, or in case he cannot be found, to be paid as costs are now by law paid on indictment; and such adjudication shall be conclusive evidence to establish the legality of such seizure in any court of this Commonwealth, in any cause in which the question of its legality shall arise; no writ of replevin shall issue for any device or machine seized as aforesaid, nor shall any action be instituted for or on account of such seizure, until the court shall have first adjudicated upon the premises; but such writ or action shall forthwith, on motion, be quashed and abated by the court in which it shall be sued or brought.

Section 93. Any person who engages in pool selling or book-making or who occupies any building or place with books, apparatus, or paraphernalia for the purpose of recording or registering bets or wagers, or of selling pool, or who shall record or register bets or wagers, or sell pools upon the result of any political nomination, appointment any magistrate before whom complaint has been made of person in control of any building, knowingly permits the same to be used or occupied for any of these purposes, or therein, keeps, exhibits or employs any device or apparatus for the purpose of recording or registering such bets or wagers or the selling of such pools, or becomes the custodian or depository for gain, hire or reward of any property staked, wagered or pledged, or to be wagered or pledged, upon any such result, or who receives, registers, records, forwards or purports or pretends to forward, to or for any race course any property, bet or wager of money, thing or consideration offered for the purpose of being bet or wagered upon the speed or endurance of any man or beast, or occupies any place or building with books, papers, apparatus or paraphernalia, for the purpose of receiving or pretending to receive, or for recording or registering or for forwarding or pretending or attempting to forward in any manner whatever, any property bet or wagered, or to be bet or wagered for any person, or receives or offers to receive any property bet or to be bet at any race track, or who assists or abets in any manner in any of the acts forbidden by this section, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 94. Any person who sets up, establishes or maintains or has in his possession with intent to use any apparatus or device whereby opium or any preparation thereof may be smoked or otherwise used; or who being the owner, landlord, lessee, tenant, occupant or person in control of any building or premises, knowingly allows to be set up, established or maintained any such apparatus or device in such building or on such premises or knowingly allows persons to collect in such building or on such premises for the purpose of smoking or otherwise using opium or any preparation thereof, or leases, hires or rents such building or premises to be used for the purpose of smoking or of otherwise using opium or any preparation thereof, or who having knowledge that opium or a preparation thereof is being so smoked or otherwise used in such building or on such premises, so leased, hired or rented by him, does not immediately report that fact to the proper authority, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 95. Any person who is found smoking or otherwise using opium or any preparation thereof, in any building or place set up or established for the purpose of smoking or otherwise using opium or any preparation thereof, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 96. Any person who through solicitation, invitation or device induces another to visit any building or place kept for the purpose of smoking or otherwise using opium or any preparation thereof, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 97. If an affidavit be made and filed before any magistrate before whom complaint has been made of the commission of any of the offenses provided against in sections ninety-four, ninety-five and ninety-six of this act, setting forth that the affiant has reason to believe, and does believe, that the person charged in such complaint has, upon his person or at any other place named in said affidavit any opium device, apparatus or instrument, the discovery of which might lead to establish the truth of such charge, the said magistrate shall, by his warrant, command the officer, who is authorized to arrest the person so charged, to make diligent search for such opium device, apparatus or instrument, and if found to bring the same before such magistrate, and the officer so seizing shall deliver the same to the magistrate before whom he takes the prisoner, who shall retain possession and be responsible therefor, until the discharge, commitment or letting to of the person so charged after which such officer shall retain such opium device, apparatus or instrument subject to the order of the court before which such offender may be required to appear, until his discharge or conviction and in case of the conviction of such person, the opium, device, apparatus or instrument shall by the direction of the court be destroyed. It shall and may be lawful for any sheriff, constable or other officer of justice, with or without warrant, to seize upon, secure and remove, any opium device, apparatus or instrument of any kind, character or description whatsoever, used and employed for the purposes of the unlawful smoking of opium or any preparation thereof, or of the unlawful use of opium or any preparation thereof as aforesaid and to arrest with or without warrant, any person using or employing the same, and the said court, upon hearing the parties, if they should appear, if satisfied that such opium device, apparatus or instrument was employed and used for the purpose of the unlawful smoking of opium or any preparation thereof, or of the unlawful use of opium or any preparation thereof as aforesaid, shall adjudge the same forfeited and order it to be publicly destroyed and at the same time order reasonable costs and charges to the seizing officer, to be paid by the owner or possessor of such opium device, apparatus or instrument, or in case of his default, or in case he cannot be found, to be paid as costs are now by law paid on indictment; and such adjudication shall be conclusive evidence to establish the legality of such seizure in any court of this Commonwealth; in any cause in which the question of its legality shall arise, no writ of replevin shall issue for any opium device, apparatus or instrument seized as aforesaid, nor shall any action be instituted for or on account of such seizure, until the court shall have first adjudicated upon the premises, but such writ or action shall forthwith, on motion be quashed, and abated by the court in which it shall be sued or brought: Provided, That sections ninety-four, ninety-five and ninety-six of this act shall not apply to druggists or physicians, or others engaged in the legitimate use or sale of opium.

Section 98. Any person who engages or participates in any ring or prize fight or any fight or pugilistic contest on the result of which any property is wagered, or who is present at such fight, or lays any bet or wager on the result thereof, whether present or not, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding two years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both.

Section 99. Any person who shall promote, manage or participate in any athletic contest or exhibition in which a contestant shall take part for more than twelve hours in one calendar day, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 100. Any person who makes a practice of going about from place to place, begging, asking or subsisting upon charity for the purpose of acquiring money or a living, and who shall have no fixed place of residence or lawful occupation in the county or city in which he does such begging, is a tramp, and guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year.

Section 101. Any tramp who shall enter any dwelling house, against the will or without the permission of the owner or occupant thereof, such entry not amounting to an offense under any other section of this act, or shall kindle any fire in the highway or on the land of another or of the Commonwealth without the owner's consent, or shall do or threaten to do any injury to any person or to the real or personal estate of another, such threat or injury not being otherwise provided against in this act, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding three years. Any act of beggary or vagrancy by any person described by section one hundred of this act, shall be prima facie evidence that the person committing the same is a tramp within the meaning of this act. Any person upon view of any offense described in sections one hundred and one hundred and one of this act, may apprehend the offender and take him before a justice of the peace or alderman, whose duty it shall be after hearing the evidence, to discharge or to commit the prisoner for trial, as in the case of other misdemeanors. Sections one hundred and one hundred and one of this act shall not apply to any minor under the age of sixteen years, nor to any blind, deaf or dumb person, nor shall it be applicable to any maimed or crippled person who is unable to perform manual labor.

Section 102. Any officer of this Commonwealth or of any sub-division thereof who shall loan out otherwise than is provided for by law, with or without interest or return therefor, any money or valuable security received by him or which may be in his possession or under his control by virtue of his office, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both; and if still in office be adjudged thereafter incapable of exercising the same, and the said office shall be forthwith declared vacant by the court passing sentence.

Section 103. Any officer of this Commonwealth, or of any sub-division thereof, who enters into any contract or agreement with any bank, corporation or individual, or association of individuals, by which said officer is to derive any benefit, gain or advantage from the deposit with such bank, corporation or individual, or association, of any money or valuable security, held by him or which may be in his possession, or under his control by virtue of said office, is guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both; and if still in office, be adjudged thereafter incapable of exercising the same, and said office shall forthwith be declared vacant by the court passing sentence.

Section 104. Any officer of this Commonwealth who authorizes the payment of any money, by warrant or otherwise, out of the State Treasury or any State Treasurer who pays any money out of the State Treasury, except in accordance with the provisions of some Act of Assembly setting forth the amount to be expended and the purpose of the expenditure; and any officer of this Commonwealth who authorizes the payment of any money by warrant or otherwise out of the State Treasury, or any State Treasurer who pays any money out of the State Treasury, in excess of the amount thus specifically appropriated, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding two years, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both: Provided, however, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed to prohibit the Auditor General and State Treasurer of the Commonwealth from returning to the various counties thereof the proportion of the personal property tax authorized by law to be returned to said counties; or the Auditor General and State Treasurer of this Commonwealth from returning to the several cities, boroughs and townships of the first class thereof the proportion of the tax on premiums received from foreign fire insurance companies authorized by law to be returned to, said municipalities.

Section 105. Any public officer of this Commonwealth or of any sub-division thereof, who has under his control as such officer any moneys collected by law for a special purpose, who applies such moneys to any other purpose than that for which such moneys were collected, such offense not being otherwise provided against in this act, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 106. Any public officer of this Commonwealth or of any sub-division thereof who purchases or is interested in the purchase of any warrant order or claim on the Commonwealth or on any sub-division thereof for any sum less than the amount specified in such warrant, order or claim, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 107. Whenever the debt of any sub-division of this Commonwealth shall have reached the limit provided for by law it shall be unlawful to increase the same, and all such increase shall be void, and any obligation issued for such increase, or any part thereof shall be of no binding force upon such sub-division; and each of the officers thereof wilfully authorizing such increase, or executing any obligation therefor, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 108. Before issuing any such obligation or security, mentioned in section one hundred and seven of this act, it shall be the duty of the principal officer or officers of such sub-division to comply with all the requirements of any statute in force at the time governing the issuance of such obligation or security.

Section 109. Any public officer, agent or employee of the Commonwealth or of any sub-division thereof, who for private gain, uses, sells or disposes of any property of the Commonwealth or of any sub-divisions hereof, if such use, sale or disposal is not otherwise provided against; or who wilfully uses, injures, sells or disposes of any such property without lawful authority; or who is interested either directly or indirectly, either personally or as a member or officer of any firm, company or corporation contracting with the Commonwealth or any sub-division thereof, or any department of such sub-division, for the use, lease, occupation or enjoyment of any of the works, material or property of the Commonwealth or any sub-division thereof, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both; and forfeits his office or employment and is forever disqualified to hold any office or place of trust, honor, or profit under the constitution or laws of this Commonwealth, or under any sub-division of this Commonwealth.

Section 110. Any public officer of this Commonwealth, or of any sub-division thereof, or any officer, trustee or member of the board of managers of any public institution receiving appropriations of money from the Commonwealth, who shall be in any wise, interested as principal or agent in, or receive any gratuity in connection with, any contract for the sale or furnishing of any property to or for the use of or the construction of or alterations or improvement to any property of the Commonwealth, if he be an officer of the Commonwealth, or of any sub-division thereof, if he be an officer of such sub-division, or of any public institution receiving appropriations of money from the Commonwealth, if he be an officer or member of the board of managers of such institution, is guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both; and shall forfeit the office, trusteeship or membership held by him.

Section 111. Any cashier of any bank who engages directly or indirectly in the purchase or sale of stock, or in any profession, occupation or calling, other than that of his duty as cashier, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both: Provided, that nothing in this section shall prevent such cashier from managing his own real estate or other private property if such private property be not invested in merchantile, mechanical or manufacturing operations.

Section 112. Any public officer of this Commonwealth who becomes the surety of any other public officer of this Commonwealth or of any agent of, or contractor with the Commonwealth; and any public officer of any sub-division of this Commonwealth who becomes the surety of any other public officer of the same sub-division thereof or of any agent of or contractor with such sub-division is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 113. Any director, officer, agent or employee of any canal, railroad or other public service company who shall be in any wise interested as principal or agent in or receive any gratuity in connection with any contract for the sale or furnishing of any property to or for the use of, or the construction of, or alteration or improvement to any property of such company of which he is a director, officer, agent or employee, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 114. Any officer of any municipal or other corporation, who not being thereunto authorized by law is instrumental in, consents to, or connives at the making or issuing of any note, bill, check, ticket or order, intended to be used as currency, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 115. Any agent, officer or employee of any foreign corporation, or any other person who transacts any business within this Commonwealth for any foreign corporation unless the requirements of the acts of assembly governing the transaction of business for foreign corporations in this Commonwealth shall have first been complied with, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.

Section 116. Any person who manufactures for sale, or sells or offers or exposes for sale, or has in his possession with intent to sell as food or drink any impure or unwholesome article of food or drink, knowing the same to be impure or unwholesome, or any article of food or drink which is adulterated or deleterious within the meaning of any act of assembly of this Commonwealth in force at the time, knowing the said article of food or drink to be so adulterated or deleterious, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both.
